Fowlkes and Purvis were on Bank street and accosted Edward W. Jones, employed as utility man at the Hotel Mohican, whom they started to abuse by telling Jones that he belonged in the south, where he would be made to keep his place. So great and loud was the vergal attack made upon Jones that a crowd of pedestrians collected. Finally the police were notified and Acting Lieutenant James D Gaffney and Patrolman Edward Daniels placed the marine firemen under arrest.

MEN ON MOTORCYCLE RUN INTO POLE AT GROTON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 18.—Two men, both Poles, one of whom had been operating a motorcycle, were injured this evening to Groton when the motorcycle upon which both were riding, collided with a telephone pole on the back road from Groton to Mystic. The men were picked up by a passing autoist, who found one of the pair lying in the highway, apparently unconscious. They were turned over to the police station, Groton barracks, after having been brought to the police station. Neither was able to tell his name or how the accident occurred for both were considerably under the influence of liquor, particularly the driver of the motorcycle. He suffered the worst injuries, principal among which were lacerations on the left side of the face and head.

COAST GUARD SAILOR FOUND WITH MARRIED WAITRESS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 18—Rossi Oliver, 18, United States Coast Guard service, and Estelle S. Nothstein Waltrip, 25, alias Irene Bennett, were arrested early this morning charged with fornication. The pair will be presented in the police court Monday morning and pending their trial are prisoners at the police station, having been unable to procure a surety on their respective bonds of $100.

The Waltrip woman, who is married is employed in a local restaurant as a waitress. She has been observed for about ten days in company with sailors, so much so that when the woman and her companion were observed entering a Golden street apartment, complaint was made to the authorities. Last night the Waltrip woman was observed to enter the apartment several times, and each time with a different bluejacket. Shortly after 1 o'clock, Acting Lieutenant James D. Gaffney, Sergeant Patrick Murphy and John Sullivan and John Foley visited the apartment and finding the Waltrip woman and Oliver in a compromising position, took them into custody. The Waltrip woman displayed a marriage license, which showed proof of her wedding to Waltrip, a sailor, attached to the U. S. S. Utah, at Boston, and that they were married by Rev. John H. Volk, Lutheran pastor.

FLORIDA MAN WITH $200 WAD BUMPS INTO TWO MACHINES

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 18. — Charles Bloomquist, formerly of Quaker Hill, who declares that he has resided at West Palm Beach, Fla., the past two years, was arrested this evening by Patrolmen Edward Daniels and Ernest Opperman charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor, reckless driving and failure to have an operator's license or certificate of registration. He was locked up to await the convening of police court Monday morning.

Bloomquist, who is a bricklayer by occupation and who was arrested about three years ago charged with violation of the liquor law, was operating his machine on Williams street, between Mohegan avenue and Gallows Lane this evening about 7:30. Bloomquist was evidently headed for Quaker hill. When in front of the residence of Ray Lewis, Bloomquist evidently lost all control of his automobile, for just as the automobile of C. Perley Wilbur, 50 Phillips street, and which was headed in a southerly direction, was about to pass, Bloomquist's car suddenly changed its course and was operated to the left side of the road. The machine crashed against the side of Wilbur's automobile and then getting back to the right side of the road the car again was operated to the left hand side of the highway and collided with an automobile owned and driven by Arvin S. Miller, R. F. D., No. 2, Waterford. Both Wilbur's car and that of Miller's was damaged, while Bloomquist's machine suffered a punctured tire, shattered mudguard and fender. Bloomquist was complained against by both Wilbur and Miller. When searched at the police station he had in his possession $200 which he declared he had withdrawn from a savings bank yesterday for the purpose of paying his expenses for a return trip to Florida. If Bloomquist is convicted in the police court Monday morning of the charges levied against him he will have but little left of his wad.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

WINTER VACATIONS BEST SAYS OCEAN TRAVEL EXPERT

"Winter is the logical season for vacation trips," said Mr. F. C. Gautier an ocean travel expert, who was a caller today at the office of James Dunn, 30 Main street, "and the public is endorsing that fact with enthusiasm."

Mr. Gautier who is passenger representative for the White Star and Red Star lines, which operate winter cruises on ocean steamships, is in town to meet several local people who are considering a winter trip.

"There has been a wonderful growth in our winter cruise business," said Mr. Gautier. "Last winter we had 475 passengers on a cruise around the world on the Red Star liner Belgenland, and they spent the entire winter away from home. Some paid as high as $30,000 for their tickets. Others made the trip on a $2,000 fare, but all had the same itinerary and service. We also carried more than 1800 people to the Mediterranean last winter, for seven weeks' trips on the Adriatic and Lapland. We also took 700 people to the West Indies, on the Megantic. We are now arranging similar trips for this winter.

"Such a volume of business in winter cruises would not be possible," continued Mr. Gautier, "unless there was a sound idea back of it. The idea is that the American people are not satisfied to relax in summer alone. Therefore the idea of a trip in summer seas is engaging, a fact to which we attribute the success of our de luxe voyages."

Breed Theater

Thrills, love interest, pathos, suspense, unusual dramatic situations, beautiful settings, real comedy and an all star cast such as is seldom seen in one picture—all these are found in First National's latest motion picture, Chickie, which opened last night at the Breed theater.

For genuine entertainment, which includes the proper proportion of laughs and tears, Chickie will be hard to equal. It is a love story that appeals not only to every feminine heart, but to the masculine as well. And to our way of thinking every city and town has its Chickie Bryces.

Dorothy Mackaill in the title role gives the finest portrayal of her screen career. She gives an intelligent and convincing interpretation of the poor typist who longs for wealth and luxury.

Chickie, in brief, is the story of Chickie Bryce, a poor typist, who wants a millionaire husband, not with a thought of love, but with the sole idea that he can give her things she has wanted so long. She meets her millionaire but discovers, like so many Chickies, a dissolute type of man from whom she is forced to flee. At the same party she meets a poor but ambitious law clerk and romance creeps in.

Dunne is sent to England to operate the London office for his employer and leaves Chickie behind. When she discovers she is in difficulty she writes him, but his employer's daughter, who wants to marry him, receives the letter and cables a message in his name telling Chickie he is already married and cannot help her. Dunne, not knowing what happened, returns to America because of his love for Chickie.

It is a picture that grips you and at times starts the tears. There are situations which fairly lift you from your chair. Hobart Bosworth, as the father of Chickie, exhibits some fine emotional acting. Gladys Brockwell is the mother who is anxious to push her daughter ahead and give her advantages she missed when a girl.

Philharmonic Orchestra Officers

The names of the guarantors of the Connecticut college concert series have been made known each year since the concerts were inaugurated. From season to season they have made it possible for the college to go forward with its arrangements. On its part, the public has expressed appreciation by attending in larger numbers each year.

The officers and directors of the Philharmonic orchestra who make it possible for that particular organization to come to New London include some of the most distinguished personages in New York city. The chairman of the board of directors is Clarence H. Mackay, who for many years has been identified with the advancement of music in America. Frederick A. Juilliard is president, Marshall Field and Otto H. Kahn, vice-presidents; Charles Triller, treasurer, Alvin W. Krech, honorary secretary, and Arthur Judson, executive secretary and manager.

On the board of directors are Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, Scipione Guidi, Mrs. E. H. Harriman, Thomas L. Leeming, L. E. Manoly, Frank L. Polk, Walter W. Price, Elihu Root, Charles H. Sabin, Nelson S. Spencer, and Maurice Van Praag.

The concert committee has received information that some of the directors will accompany the orchestra throughout next week's tour of New England.

ROSE PASTOR STOKES TALKS OF HER DIVORCE

NEW YORK, Oct. 18—(A. P.)—Rose Pastor Stokes, radical speaker and propagandist, who was divorced by her husband, James Graham Phelps Stokes, millionaire philanthropist yesterday after a hearing at Nyack, N. Y., a hotel manager named Grossman, is sued a statement tonight at the home and was charged with misconduct with of her mother here in which she blamed the law of New York state for whatever "scandal" there might be in her divorce proceedings. She said there was no small measure of disgrace to any state which refuses a divorce unless one is willing to be made the subject for scandal, and expressed the opinion that a man and a woman living together without love violate the best in their natures.

Mrs. Stokes declined to say whether a financial settlement had been made on her by Mr. Stokes and also refused to say whether she would attempt to interfere with the divorce decree being made final. She also refused to discuss her plans for the future and would not give information as to the identity of "Mr. Grossman" the correspondent. At the trial of her case George H. Gilman, counsel for Mr. Stokes, testified that Mrs. Stokes said she would marry Grossman when she was divorced. Mrs. Stokes refused to discuss this tetimony.

Ghosts who haunt churchyards probably like to read the epitaphs to see how good they were.

SKI JUMPER SHOT BY HUNTER IN NEW HAMPSHIRE

BERLIN, N. H., Oct. 18—(A. P.)—Erling Anderson, nationally known ski jumper, was shot today by a hunter who mistook him for a deer. The bullet entered Anderson's jaw and physicians tonight said the wound might prove fatal.

Horace Richards of Berlin, hunting in the woods near here, had wounded a deer earlier in the day and was following a trail of blood when he heard a rustling of leaves in a thicket and fired. When he went to look for the deer he found he had stalked another hunter.

At the close of his official year of service as selectman, many friends of Patrick Illey can congratulate and thank him for the excellent service rendered to this village and the very evident improvement in the condition of its highways

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

WEEKLY FINANCIAL REVIEW

NEW YORK, Oct. 18—(By the Associated Press)—Feverish speculation in the stock market, with trading swelling in breadth the volume to dimensions unequalled since the riotous markets of 1916, pushed all other financial developments this week into relatively obscurity.

Trading was featured more by the enormous daily transactions and the violence of fluctuations than by any sustained movement of prices. Waves of bullish enthusiasm repeatedly swept over the market but were difficult to for motor shares, U. S. Steel and General Motors headed the forward procession, but an onslaught of profit taking and bear selling caused a quick collapse in prices at the end of the week.

Speculative activities were carried on in apparent disregard of news developments, although most reports were of a favorable character. Signing of the Locarno treaty to outlaw was was viewed as one of the most constructive steps taken in Europe since the armistice, and this was augments at home by easy money, further expansion in steel orders and operations and a flood of merger and increased dividend rumors.

Foreign exchanges made little headway during the week. Sterling was held back by the efflux of $20,000,000 in gold from Great Britain and French francs reflected uneasiness over the proposed capital levy and indications that a debt settlement would be prerequisite to further private loans.

Commodity prices held firm in a week of quiet trading. Wheat advanced from 3 to 4 cents a bushel while cotton contracts eased off slightly.

AUTOMOBILES IN COLLISION WITH SMALL DAMAGE

A Nash carlole, operated by Hector H. Bernier of No. 76 South Main St., Danielson, ran into a Dodge coupe, operated by Wesley Gordon of Montville, claim agent of the Connecticut company, Saturday morning shortly after 8 o'clock. The Dodge was parked in front of the Jordan Auto company's place of business on Main St., East Side.

Mr. Bernier claimed that he blew his horn in order to pass a horse and wagon but that the wagon failed to pull to the right and in order to avoid hitting the wagon, he pulled so far to the left that he ran into the coupe, putting a slight dent in the body and bending a mudguard. A hub cap and mudguard on the Nash were damaged. The wagon is owned by Walter Sabotkowski of R. F. D. No. 7 Norwich. No one was hurt.

IRVING WATKINSON ACCIDENTALLY SHOT AT GAS STATION BELOW THAMESVILLE

Irving Watkinson, owner of the gasoline filling station at 370 West Thames street, is at the Backus hospital suffering from a bullet that is lodged in his abdomen. Mr. Watkinson was accidently shot when a .32 calibre revolver dropped to the concrete floor at the filling station Saturday morning and exploded, the bullet entering Mr. Watkinson's groin and traveling upward into the abdomen.

The revolver was one that Mr. Watkinson keeps hanging in a holster near the door of the filling station and when he opened the door Saturday the revolver was dislodged from its place and was discharged when it hit the cement floor. Mr. Watkinson although badly wounded and in great pain managed to get to the telephone and call Chief Linton at police headquarters. Chief Linton immediately summoned the ambulance and Mr. Watkinson was taken to the hospital.

Dr. Harrison Gray was called in on the case but a superficial examination failed to locate the bullet. By means of the fluoroscope and the X-ray the course of the bullet was traced to the abdomen where the bullet is lodged. It was decided after a consultation by Dr. Gray and Dr. Tingley that it would be unwise to probe for the bullet at the present time as Mr. Watkinson's condition is very serious.

It was stated at the hospital early this (Monday) morning that Mr. Watkinson was resting as comfortably as could be expected and was asleep at the time and expected to pass a quiet night.

WORLD NEEDS FAITH MORE THAN EVER

Dr. Luther's Reformation was the subject of a very interesting sermon given by Rev. H. Hunzinger at the Sunday evening service at the First German Lutheran church, Franklin street. It was a special English service arranged by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Hunzinger and there was a large attendance. The service opened at 7:30 o'clock with Rev. Mr. Hunzinger in charge. In his sermon the pastor said, "When last week our Luther league delegates left for the state convention in Meriden, I could not join them, for I had to stay home and do my church work. But I assure you, I was with them in spirit. I was praying for the success of this convention in general, but particularly for our delegates, that God would give them a broad and deep vision of the wonderful tasks in His kingdom, and a new inspiration for their church work at home. What a good and gracious God we have. Behold, He has granted my prayers. When I met them shortly after their return, I could see with my eyes and hear with my ears, what great things God has done during the convention days. Our delegates and all those who attended the meetings in Meriden with them—have come home with the fire of the Lord kindled in their hearts, to keep the home fires in their own church burning. Yes indeed they have come home ready for greater service in their own church and congregation.

Verily our church needs greater service, not a service which is compulsory and therefore given unwillingly and reluctantly, but a greater service which comes out of greater Love. Love, however, if it is pure and spiritual must originate from the strong power of faith. We may compare our whole Christian life with a plant. Faith is the bud, love the open blossom, and service is the fruit of the plant, or in other words: love is faith in evidence and service is love in evidence.

Faith is the very beginning of your Christian life. If there is little faith at the bottom of it, there can only be little love on the top of it,—and there cannot be great service coming out of little love. A good supply of faith is what we need for greater love and for greater service. What does faith mean? Faith does not mean that God might help us some day. Faith is a wonderful assurance anchored firmly in our souls.

Tonight we turn back our eyes to that great epoch of history, 400 years ago, when the principle and evolutionary power of faith was made the foundation of our church. On October 31st 1517, Dr. Luther nailed the memorable 95 theses to the door of the castle church at Wittenburg. These theses have been the means of bringing upon us the greatest blessing that will be granted it until the coming of Christ.

Not, by any means did Dr. Luther realize that by fastening these parchment signs covered with Latin characters to the church door he would cause that mighty revolution that has brought you and me freedom from the bonds of property. If he only would have been able to foresee those far reaching results of his actions, he would have shrunk from the very idea in the beginning. For it was not his intention to break with his church. All what he wanted to do, was to denounce for the sake of his conscience, some outstanding errors of the church and to bring about a debate, to have them corrected. When he swung the hammer in his hand he certainly did not know, that he himself was a mighty hammer used by the hand of God to smash the false principles of self-reliance and wordly power, which had induced the church of that day to discredit their first and only task to preach the gospel to a sinful world.

What was the great blessing that God bestowed upon the world through the reformation. What was the great gift? Some say: Dr. Luther disseminated those ideas of independence, equality and liberty, which have ultimately given birth to our great nation; others say he laid the foundation of the broad and liberal education enlightening our century; again others point ou that Luther has forever put a stop to the pretensions of hypocritical saintHood. All these achievements are, of course, of great importance to humanity but none of them can be compared with that one great principle of true Christianity, brought to light and put to work again by Dr. Luther. The salvation of the soul by faith in Christ alone. The just shall live by faith.

This is not the artificially constructed basis of a new religion, born out of the turbulent mind of a seditious monk, but it is the original life wire and stronghold of true christianity, its evolutionary power. Martin Luther had discovered anew this principle of faith, which was almost forgotten by the leading men of the church. He discovered it by the experience of his own soul.

This world needs faith today more than ever. It needs your faith. They who behold the world, as it is today and are to labor for its redemption, must have personal experience of a power adequate to the task. This power is faith in Jesus Christ. The best service we can render to our age is to get a new experience of Him, to receive His gifts of forgiveness, holiness and power. Let us submit our hearts tonight and forever to the great evolutionary power of faith in Christ. This power will surely break the ice of indifference in everyone of us and transform it into burning love for our brethren.

NORWICH TOMBSTONE WAS FOUND IN NEW YORK

In the month of July of the present year a tombstone or gravestone of gray schist was found on Riverside drive, New York city, by Reginald Pelham Bolton, who resides on West 158th street in that city. Dr. Bolton who is a historian, an author and identified with many of the historical societies of New York at once became interested and resolved if possible to find out where the stone was originally located. The inscription on the stone was as follows:

Here lies ye Body of Charles; son of Mr. Jabez
Crocker Jun. and
Mrs. Mary his wife who died
on ye 13th A. D.
Aetat

Dr. Bolton inserted an advertisement in the columns of one of the leading newspapers of New York and was interviewed by many representatives of the press. No clue could be found or was there any information forthcoming as to where the stone originally came from and how it reached New York.

Dr. Bolton, following his usual custom visited the Catskill Mountains this fall and there met Arthur L. Peale of this city and while discussing historical matters, Mr. Bolton referred to the incident about the gravestone, saying, "I think you will find that the stone came from Norwich, Conn." Mr. Peale replied, "Possibly so, but I should be inclined to think New London, but when I return home I will make further inquiries." On the return of Mr. Peale to Norwich he called at the office of the town clerk and was greatly surprised and pleased when Town Clerk Charles S. Holbrook found the following data:

Jabez Crocker Jr. and Mary Waterman, both of Norwich were married to each other on ye 28th of January 1732
Charles, ye son of Jabez Crocker and of his wife Mary died
Jany ye 13th 1760

And so the stone must have come from Norwich after all. Mr. Peale continued his investigation and reasoned that the names Crocker and Waterman were those prominent in nearby towns.

Bozrah, formerly New Concord, was originally in the bounds of Norwich and incorporated as a separate town in 1786, and two families as named above were among the first settlers.

Mrs. Elisha E. Rogers an authority on matters of genealogy and history, was then interviewed and the missing link of search was supplied.

Charles Crocker was baptized at the Baptist church in Bozrah in 1737 and his father Jabez Crocker, Jr., died in 1786. Mary Waterman, the wife of Jabez Crocker, Jr., died in 1772.

All were buried in the Bozrah cemetery and Mrs. Rogers has photographs of the gravestones of Lieut. Jabez Crocker Jr. and his wife, Mary Waterman.

How the stone that was on the grave of Charles Crocker ever came to be in New York city is a mystery. Dr Bolton is very anxious to have the stone restored to its original location and no doubt there are many descendants of the Crocker and Waterman families in this vicinity who will read this story with interest and gladly co-operate with Dr. Bolton.

STORRS EGG CONTEST IS NEARING END

There is only one more week to go in the Storrs laying contest. It's been a long hard grind for fifty straight weeks. There are 1400 hens in the competition from all over this country and Canada. Some are, of course, better than others; in fact some pens have laid double the number of eggs produced by the other pens with the same number of birds that have had the same opportunity to make big records. One of the encouraging features about the Storrs contest is the fact that after fifty long weeks only one pen of Rhode Island Reds and two pens of Leghorns have laid down and quit. In other words, the hens have stuck it out and stayed in the race no matter how many laps behind. A Connecticut pen of Barred Rocks and four pens of Leghorns from Connecticut, North Carolina, Massachusetts and Oregon have to date laid more than 2,000 eggs each of an average of over 200 eggs per bird. This is the kind of performance that the contest is designed to encourage. In the final week more pens are sure to be added to this honor roll, including one or two pens of White Wyandottes and another pen or two of Leghorns.

In the fiftieth week of the contest or the next to the last round, competition was closer than expected, because in late October the vast majority of hens are slowing down instead of speeding up. Two western pens tied for first place with 38 eggs each. They were Hanson's Leghorn Farm, from Corvallis, Ore., and Carterloa Farm's pen of Wyandottes from Troy, Mo. Tom Barron's pen of Leghorns from Catforth, England, was second best for the week with a score of 36 eggs. Barred Rocks entered by Lewis Farms at Davisville, R. I., and Mountain Meadow Farm's pen of Leghorns from West Rutland, Vt., tied for third place with 35 eggs each. Another pen of Leghorns owned by Ruehle's Sunnyside Farm at Pleasant Valley, N. Y., finished fourth for the week with a mark of 34 eggs. The total production for all pens was 2.397 or a yield of more than twenty-four per cent. By breeds White Wyandottes led the field with a production of thirty per cent. for the week, the Barred Rocks in second place scored twenty-eight per cent.

NEARLY 5,000 POLISH PEOPLE IN AMERICA

When the sun of liberty was rising in America it was setting in Poland. The partitions of Poland came during the period of Americas struggle for independence. Two of Poland's great champions Kosciuszko and Pulaski played an important part in American Revolution. Pulaski gave his life for American liberty in the battle of Savannah.

The Polish immigrants began to arrive here in larger numbers some fifty or sixty years ago. The persecution of the Poles during Bismarck's regime started the ball rolling. At first they came from Germany, then Austria and last but not least from Russia. They came here seeking liberty and better opportunity than their own dismembered country could offer them.

Many of the first immigrants went to Texas, others settled in Nebraska and Illinois, some went to Wisconsin, Minnesota and Michigan. They cleared the land and organized what are now very rich and prosperous communities. But the greatest majority settled in the large cities. Chicago has close to a quarter of a million Poles or their descendants. Detroit, Milwaukee, Buffalo, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Brooklyn have from 50,000 to 100,000 each.

In the larger communities the Poles have beautiful churches, schools, academies and colleges. Many of them are prosperous manufacturers, bankers and business men. They have their doctors, lawyers, judges, municipal, state and national officials. They are home builders and are striving to give their children a good education.

There are close to 4,000,000 Poles in America. About a half a million live in New England. Norwich has close to 5,000 Poles or over one fifth of the entire population. They are scattered all over the city, especially in the Greeneville and Falls sections. A few years ago the Poles in Norwich erected one of the finest halls in the city. Now they are building one of the largest and most up to date schools in the township. This new building will be a community center intended especially for the young people of all creeds and nationalities.

Those who contribute a share towards the drive for the new St. Joseph school, which will take place next week, will be helping a worthy cause that benefits morally and financially the whole community.

EIGHTY-EIGHTH BIRTHDAY OBSERVED AT PRESTON CITY

On Saturday afternoon a birthday party was given Mrs Susan Hill at the home of Mrs. Ella Bennett, where she resides, in Preston City. Mrs. Hill reached her 88th birthday October 14, but owing to other events did not celebrate until Saturday.

Eighteen friends were present, one coming from Hartford. Those unable to attend in the afternoon called in the evening to wish her many happy returns of the day. Several distant friends remembered her by letter or card.

The esteem in which she is held was shown by the beautiful gifts she received. Among other things were two large birthday cakes, one being very attractively decorated and presented by Miss Mary Woodmansee.

Refreshments were served consisting of sandwiches, cake and tea. After a very enjoyable afternoon the guests took their leave wishing Mrs. Hill many more happy birthdays.

URGES DRIVERS TO KEEP WITHIN SPEED LIMITS

Bacon's maxim that "knowledge is power" is being tried out in the effort to reduce motor vehicle accident totals in Connecticut. The State Motor Vehicle department, in its October bulletin, written by Deputy Commissioner Malcolm D. Rudd, points out that results will show wheather the way to deal with the accident situation is to try to educate the people to take care of themselves or to coerce them by the police power.

"We are a free people," writes the deputy commissioner, "We dote on our freedom; we point to it with pride and view with alarm any curtailment of it. We don't want to be subject to European systems of espoinage and surveillance, but we will be if we don't watch out. They can and must become operative if we abandon the easier and infinitely less costly and better way of demonstrating by sensible actions our right to personal liberty."

Under the heading, "Are more laws needed?" the bulletin says: "This theory that knowledge is greater than force with its corollary that the diffusino of knowledge will automatically lessen the necessity for the exercise of force in the attuinment of desired ends, is a theory which is still, after many years of patient exploitation, on trial, and it is an open question today whether certain regulatory laws which exist because of their obvious need, are going to be complied with voluntarily and universally by the people whose representatives enacted them, or whether failing such compliance, it will be necessary in the future to secure from the majority of those involved, the further enactment of rigorous laws and the delegation of further governmental police powers to restrain by force those who fail to exercise their natural common sense and reason, which in most cases have been supplemented by education in varying degree."

With regard to the duration of the experiment of relying largely on education for the solution of the traffic problems which confront the public, the bulletin observes that only the army of motorists can give the answer, adding: "What a relief it would be if, as one man, they would say that the present laws are adequate and that they would prove it by obeying them," it inquires: "Shall we keep on exhorting and begging until the legislature of 1927 convenes, in the hope that by that time the improvement will be so marked that further legislation will be uncalled for or shall we try to get action sooner from some special session, which would provide sufficient enforcement laws, funds and personnel to place under surveillance every motor vehicle operator in the state of Connecticut?"

The suggestion is made that drivers make a beginning at once by determining to cut down driving speed to the number of miles per hour which our law implies is reasonable and proper, that is in effect twenty miles in cities and populous centers and thirty miles in open country. "Try it valiantly," the bulletin urges, "and what's more get your friends to try it and if it would give the movement greater impetus, organize clubs whose members will agree to try it, to see if it would not result in a marked decrease in accidents," at the same time not losing sight of the other kinds of operation that cause accidents.

The fact that sixty-eight people were killed in Connecticut by motor vehicles in the past two months as against forty-nine in the corresponding months of last year is cited, and the observation made: "What form of race extinction can be more reprehensible than this? Sixty-eight people some of them ornaments to society, filling useful places in public and private life, snuffed out of existence because someone blundered."

MAKING LIFE HISTORY IS SUBJECT OF TALK

The parlors of the local Y. M. C. A. were well filled at the Sunday afternoon meeting. Hymns, prayer and scripture reading constituted the opening part of the service, and Hugh Kinder rendered vocal solos which were greatly enjoyed. Moving pictures were shown, including a reel on Indian life entitled "A people without a history," another reel on the "Etcher and his art" and one on "The Skyline of New York." All of the pictures were of real interest and were enjoyed by all. Between the reels General Secretary Hill gave a brief talk, taking for his topic, "Every man makes history." The speaker used the text, "Wherefore, by their fruits ye shall know them," and he spoke in part as follows: "There is really no such thing as a race without a history, or a man or woman without a history; every race makes history as does every individual; it may not be written, but he makes history just the same. We think of Moses whom God called to lead his people out of slavery, and we see him calling on the King, "let my people go," and the king decided to comply with his demand; we think of Josbua the successor of Moses who was so true to his God and made great history for His kingdom. Daniel who ignored the decree of the king and was cast into the den of lions, his life and works are inspirations to us all; we recall the life of Paul, who encountered many dangers and privations for his Lord, and yet won a glorious victory, and probably a thousand sermons were preached today from texts of his wonderful writings. Then we will not forget the story of the woman who so loved her Lord as to anoint his feet with costly ointment and wiped them with her hair, a most remarkable display of love. The lad who gave the Lord his lunch with which Christ fed the thousands will be remembered as one who made history by giving what he had to the Master. The young man who says no, when tempted, is making a record of which to be proud; the man who said, "I'd rather be right than be president," wrote splendid history, made a good record. Some have made sad history, such as Judas in his day and the bootlegger in our day, and others in other ways have made sad history. Let us determine the as for us, "we will serve the Lord," and thereby we will contribute our share to the right kind of history for the world in which we live."

MRS. JAMES DUTTON STATE PRESIDENT C. L. OF C.

The state convention of the Catholic Ladies of Columbus was held Saturday in Hartford. A solemn high mass celebrated at 9 o'clock in St. Patrick's church was attended by seventy five delegates from the assemblies in Connecticut:

Mercier Assembly of Norwich was represented by Mrs. Thomas J. McVeigh, president, Miss Eleanor Donovan, vice president, Miss Mary Hamill, recording secretary, Miss Irene Day, financial secretary, Miss Mary McCrahan, treasurer.

After mass the delegates reassembled in A. O. H. hall on Ann street, and the convention was called to order by the Hartford president, Miss Catherine Carolyn, who greeted the delegates and turned the convention over to Mrs. Esther Reardon, state president, much business was transacted and many resolutions for the good of the order were passed. The reports of the various assemblies were read which showed that progress had been made but the report of Mercier Assembly called for special applause for the remarkable progress, splendid increase in membership and for the various activities engaged in. At the noon recess a delicious luncheon was served by the Hartford assembly.

The afternoon session was opened at 2.30 and it was voted that the testimonials from the various assemblies be presented as a unit to Bishop Murray with resolutions. The election of state officers followed and they were immediately installed by the honorary state president, Mrs. Jennie Carroll.

Those elected are Mrs. James J. Dutton of Norwich, state president, Mrs. Esther Reardon of Rockville, honorary president; Miss Margaret Crane of Hartford, state vice president; Miss Lillian Patchit of Rockville, state secretary; Miss Lillian Bree of New Haven, state treasurer.

The directors are: Mrs. Woods of Baltic, Mrs. Healey of New London, Miss Helen Ward of Danbury, Miss Cribbons of Shelton, Miss Moriarty of South Manchester and Mrs. Hullivan of Thompsonville. Mrs. Jennie Carroll of New Haven was elected to fill the newly created office of state lecturer.

Norwich was singularly honored in that Mrs. James J. Dutton of Broad street was elected state president. Mrs. Dutton has been state treasurer for the past two years—was a former vice president of Mercier Assembly and a past president of the Catholic Women's club. The wonderful manner in which Mrs. Dutton performed her past duties was a natural prelude to the honor she now enjoys and to the confidence and esteem in which the new president is held throughout the state.

After the business of the convention was concluded a banquet was tendered the delegates by the Hartford assembly at the city club during which an address was made by Mrs. Dutton as state president, vocal selections rendered by Miss Cormier and Mrs Meade of Hartford were greatly enjoyed.

SONS OF HERMANN LEAVING GERMANIA HALL

The Sons of Hermann, Germania lodge, No. 11, which for 27 years has been holding its meetings in Germania hall on Shetucket street, held a farewell party there Saturday evening as the lodge is to move next Saturday to the Cadillac hall property on Market street, which has been purchased by the organization.

A bountiful supper was served by the women of Immergreun lodge, No. 12, the sister body and this was followed by an entertainment given by the women. This consisted of a play in which all the characters were taken by the women, who played their parts with much skill. Dancing, for which music was furnished by John Eckstein, cornet, Margaret Schaffhausen piano, and Mr. Rossoll, violin, closed the evening.

The Foresters are to take over the hall which the Sons of Hermann are leaving. The new Cadillac property, which will be known as O. D. H. S. hall, will be sublet by the Sons of Hermann. The American Mechanics and the Order of Vasa are organizations which have already leased meeting nights besides the German lodges.

POINTS IN LOCARNO TREATY DESIGNED TO ENSURE AN ENDURING PEACE IN EUROPE

Frontiers of Germany, France and Belgium Are to Be Guaranteed by the Signatory Powers Collectively and Severally —Agreement Would Preserve Tranquillity in the Area Which Has so Frequently Been the Scene of European Conflicts—Provides That Germany, France and Belgium Undertake to Settle by Peaceful Means All Questions Which May Arise Between Them and Which May Not Be Possible to Settle by Diplomacy.

LONDON, Oct. 19—The fruit of the Locarno security conference was put on display tonight for all the world to see when seven treaties, which comprise Europe's newest and most promising preventive of war, were made public in the various capitals.

The first and foremost of the agreements is the security pact, or treaty of mutual guarantee, guaranteeing the inviolability of the frontiers between Germany and Belgium and Germany and France as fixed by the treaty of Versailles. It will be signed at London December 1, and, assuming that all the signatory governments ratify the pact, it will become effective when Germany joins the league of nations.

By the treaty, Germany, on her side, undertakes never to trespass upon the soil of France or Belgium, or make any warlike gestures in the demilitarized Rhineland area.

On their side, France and Belgium promise not to violate Germany's western frontier. Should either party violate the agreements set forth, in the pact provides that Great Britain and Italy shall go to the aid of the aggrieved party, whether it be Germany, France or Belgium.

The powers parties to the pact agree to submit all their future disputes to judicial treatment, with the council of the league acting as a court. The whole plan is to work under the ægis of the league; it is for that reason that the treaties do not become operative until Germany is a member of that organization.

Of the other six treaties that have come out of the Locarno conversations Germany is signatory to four, one each with France, Belgium, Poland and Czecho-Slovakia; these four are identical. Germany agrees with each of her four neighbors to set up a peaceful machinery to settle any disputes she may have with any of them that do not yield to ordinary diplomatic treatment. These neighbors of Germany agree to submit any disputes they may have with Germany to an arbitral tribunal organized under the league conventions of 1907, or to the permanent court of international justice.

But, according to these treaties, before the parties resort to either of these two means of adjusting their differences they may by agreement submit their dispute to a permanent conciliation commission of five members, one from Germany, one from the other party to the treaty, and three foreigners selected by the first two appointees. These commissioners will hold office for three years and will have six months in which to decide any dispute. If their decision is accepted, the dispute will go before the league council as the court of last resort.

The other two treaties are between France and her eastern allies, Poland and Czecho-Slovakia. They provide that if Germany fails to keep her word with France, Poland and Czecho-Slovakia, and her failure is accompanied by an unprovoked recourse to arms, France and her two eastern allies shall go immediately to one another's assistance. France and her two eastern allies also agree to lend one another aid no matter what country should make an unprovoked attack on one of them, which the league council failed to prevent.

Neither the security pact nor any of the other six treaties will have the effect of outlawing war, in point of fact. It is made clear that there are circumstances in which war is legitimate; the treaties simply strive to define these circumstances, limit their number and do as much as is conceivably possible to prevent warlike conditions from arising.

One of these circumstances is self-defense. If Germany attacks France, France is entitled to fight back, and she would have the assistance of Belgium, Italy and Great Britain in defending herself, even if war must be made on Germany for the purpose. In the same way if France attacks Germany, Germany would be protected by the others.

Germany has also agreed that the allies can consider it a hostile act if she violates her Versailles undertakings to abstain from military works and war preparations in the demilitarized Rhineland zone.

And there are various cases where resort to armed force is legitimate under the covenant of the league, even under the orders of the league council, should that body decide that force is necessary to make a disturber of the peace behave.

So, while war is not outlawed, the circumstances which bring it within the law now seem fewer and more easily defined than ever before and what is more important, the statesmen of Europe seemingly think that such circumstances are less likely to arise than were those of bygone days.

Indeed, in the final protocol of the Locarno conference—a sort of preamble to the treaties—the statemen who assembled there express the conviction that the treaties will create a peaceful atmosphere, in which something further can be done about disarmament.

The concluding paragraph of the preamble says: "The representatives of the governments represented here declare their firm conviction that the entry into force of these treaties and conventions will contribute greatly to bring about moral realisation of the tension between nations. That it will help powerfully towards the solution of many political or economic problems in accordance with the interests and sentiments of the peoples, and that, in strengthening peace and security in Europe, it will hasten effectively the disarmament provided for in article VIII of the covenant of the league of nations.

"They undertake to give sincere cooperation to the work relating to disarmament already undertaken by the league and seek realization of this in a general agreement."

The protocol bears the signatures of Dr. Hans Luther and Gustav Stresemann, for Germany; Emile Vandervelde, Belgium; A. Briand, of France; Austen Chamberlain, Great Britain; Benito Mussolini, Italy; Eduard Skrynski, Poland and Edouard Benes, Czecho-Slovakia.

TREATY OF GUARANTEE ADOPTED AT LOCARNO

LONDON, Oct. 19.—(A. P.)—Text of the treaty of mutual guarantee, which is annexed to the protocol, initialed at Locarno, October 16, 1925, by Luther Stresemann, Emile Vandervelde, A. Briand, Austen Chamberlain and Benito Mussolini:

The president of the German reich: His Majesty, the King of the Belgians; the president of the Republic of France; the King of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and of the British dominions beyond the seas, emperor of India, and his majesty, the king of Italy, anxious to satisfy the desire for security and protection which animates the peoples upon whom fell the scourge of the war of 1914-1918, taking note of the abrogation of the treaties for the neutralization of Belgium, and conscious of the necessity of ensuring peace in the area which has so frequently been the scene of European conflicts; animated also with the sincere desire of giving to all the signatory powers concerned supplementary guarantees within the framework of the covenant of the league of nations and the treaties in force between them, have determined to conclude a treaty with these objects, and have appointed as their plenipotentiaries (the plenipotentiaries with their titles are named here) who, having communicated their full powers, found in good and due form, have agreed as follows:

"Article I — The high contracting parties collectively and severally guarantee, in the manner provided in the following articles, the maintenance of the territorial status quo resulting from the frontiers between Germany and Belgium and between Germany and France and the inviolability of the said frontier as fixed by, or in pursuance of, the treaty of peace signed at Versailles on the 28th of June, 1919, and also the observance of the stipulation of Article 42 or 43 of the said treaty concerning the demilitarized zone.

"Article II—Germany and Belgium, and also Germany and France, mutually undertake that they will in no case attack or invade each other or resort to war against each other."

This stipulation, it is declared, shall not, however, apply in the case of: (1) The exercise of the right of legitimate defense, such as resistance to a violation of territory or a flagrant breach of Article 42 or 43 of the Versailles treaty; (2) action in pursuance of Article 16 of the covenant; (3) action by reason of a decision of the assembly or council of the league.

Arbitration Provisions.

Article III—Provides that Germany and Belgium and Germany and France undertake to settle by peaceful means all questions which may arise between them and which it may not be possible to settle by diplomacy; where a conflict arises as to their respective rights the question shall be submitted to judicial decision; all other questions to a conciliation commission. If the commission's proposals are not acceptable the question will be taken before the council of the league.

Article IV—Deals with the violation of Article II of the present treaty or a breach of the Versailles treaty. In case of complaint by one state, the question will be brought before the council of the league, and if the council is satisfied that such violation has taken place, it will notify the various powers, who agree to come immediately to the assistance of the complaining power.

In case of a flagrant violation of Article II of the present treaty or of a flagrant breach of the Versailles treaty, the contracting parties agree to come immediately to the help of the party against whom such a violation or breach has been directed as soon as they are satisfied that this is an unprovoked act of aggression, or by reason either of the crossing of the frontier or of the outbreak of hostilities or of the assembly of armed forces in the demilitarized zone immediate action is necessary.

Nevertheless, it is further provided, the council of the league, in accordance with the first paragraph of the article will issue its findings, and the powers undertake to accept the recommendations of the council, provided there is a concurrence of views.

Article V—Sets forth that if one of the powers referred to in Article III refuses to submit a dispute to peaceful settlement, or to comply with an arbitral or judicial decision, and commits a violation as previously mentioned, the provisions of Article IV shall apply. In case one of the powers, without committing a violation, refuses to submit a dispute to peaceful settlement or comply with an arbitral or judicial decision, the other party is to bring the matter before the council of the league; the council shall submit proposals, and the contracting parties shall comply with the proposals.

Article VI—States that the present treaty does not affect the rights and obligations of the contracting parties under the Versailles treaty or under arrangements supplementary thereto, including the agreement signed at London August 30, 1924 (these agreements are comprised in the pact outlining ways and means for putting the Dawes reparations programme into effect).

Article VII reads: "The present treaty, which is designed to insure the maintenance of peace and is in conformity with the covenant of the league of nations shall not be interpreted as restricting the duty of the league to take whatever action may be deemed wise and effectual to safeguard the peace of the world."

Article VIII—Stipulates that the treaty shall be registered at the league of nations; that it shall remain in force until the council acting on a request of one or other of the high contracting parties notified to the other signatory powers three months in advance, and voting at least by a two-thirds majority, decides that the league of nations ensures sufficient protection. The treaty shall cease to have effect on the expiration of one year from such decision.

Article IX—The treaty shall impose no obligation upon any of the British dominions, or upon India.

Article X—Provides for the ratification of the treaty, setting forth that it shall enter into force as soon as all the ratifications have been deposited and Germany has become a member of the league of nations.

FRENCH-POLISH AND FRENCH-CZECH TREATIES

LONDON Oct. 19. (AP)—The treaties which France signed at Locarno with Poland and Czechoslovakia, which are in effect France's guarantees of the German-Polish and German-Czech arbitration treaties, are identical, and provide that the signatory countries shall lend each other immediate aid and assistance in the event that Germany should fail to observe the arbitration treaties signed with each of the three at Locarno, "if such failure is accompanied by an unprovoked recourse to arms."

These French-Polish and French-Czech treaties contain this provision: "In the event of the council of the league, when dealing with a question brought before it in accordance with the said) undertaking (that is, Germany's arbitration treaties with these three countries,) being unable to succeed in making its report accepted by all its members other than representatives of the parties to the dispute, and in the event of Poland or Czechoslovakia (or France) being attacked without provocation France (or reciprocally Poland (or Czechoslovakia) acting in application of article 15, paragraph 7, of the covenant of the league, will immediately lend aid and assistance.

The other articles of France's treaties with her eastern associates merely provide against these treaties affecting the rights of the signatories as members of the league of nations and also provide for ratification and registration of the treaties.

EARTH SHOCK RECORDED AT DOMINION OBSERVATORY

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 19—A strong earth shock, the centre of which was estimated at a few hundred miles from Ottawa, was recorded at the Dominion observatory this morning. The first preliminary tremors came at 5.59 a. m., standard time. The record continued for nearly an hour.

A second shock, also from a comparatively nearby epicenter, was recorded, beginning at 7.05 a. m. It was much smaller in range and continued for about 30 minutes.

TAX REVISION PROGRAM PRESENTED BY SEC'Y MELLON

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19—(A. P.)—A tax revision program contemplating a reduction of the maximum surtax income rate by one half and of the normal income levies by approximately one-fourth was proposed to congress today by Secretary Mellon.

These, with other changes which were suggested at the opening of hearings on new revenue legislation by the house ways and means committee, would bring about a permanent reduction of about $290,000,000 in the nation's tax bill. The treasury secretary warned that it would not be advisable to go beyond $300,000,000 in making reductions on the present outlook for the next two years.

Other proposals were:

Repeal of the estate tax, reducing the revenue by $100,000,000 annually.

Repeal of the tax on automobile trucks, tires and accessories, cutting off $35,000,000 annually.

Repeal of the gift and a number of miscellaneous taxes such as those on works of art brought from abroad.

The new maximum surtax rate proposed was 20 per cent which would apply on incomes in excess of $150,000. This compares with the present rate of 40 per cent effective at $200,000.

The new normal rates would be 1 1-2 per cent on incomes up to $4,000, instead of two per cent; three in place of 4 per cent on incomes between $4,000 and $8,000 and five in place of six per cent on incomes above $8,000.

Replying to suggestions of some democratic leaders in congress that the public debt is being retired too rapidly, the secretary said, that, far from hurting the country, the present policy of debt retirement has been a great benefit to all those who needed capital.

"Money taken to pay the public debt is not lost," he said, "it is not paid outside the country. Payment means a return of cash to the security holders who must immediately find other investments. The treasury debt payment has turned back to the American people $5,000,000,000, and this sum has gone into land, farm loans and industrial and other investments.

"This country is today exceedingly prosperous, it can afford to pay off its debts without undue burden upon its taxpayers. Its history has always been prompt extinguishment of its war debt it is ready for the next emergency when it comes."

NEW YORK, Oct. 19—(A. P.)—Adloph Kopuel, who started his career as an immigrant messenger boy for banking houses, has been elected president of the Central Savings bank, an institution with assets of $162,000,000, it was announced today. Mr. Kopel came to the United States in 1871 when he was sixteen years old. He entered the employ of the Central Savings bank in 1895 as secretary.

Bandit Robs Jewelry Store in New Haven

Lone Man Escaped With a Tray Containing 35 Diamond Rings Valued at $200 Each.

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 19—(A. P.)—A lone bandit held up a clerk in the Levine jewelry store, 731 Chapel street, in the heart of the business district here tonight, grabbed a tray containing 35 diamond rings valued at $200 each and made his escape. The robbery was committed while hundreds of pedestrians were passing the door about 8 o'clock.

The bandit entered the store and asked to see some diamond rings. A son in law of the proprietor was behind the counter and drew a tray containing the rings valued at $7,000 from the case. The robber then pulled a gun on the clerk, grabbed the tray of rings and covering the man behind the counter with his gun, backed to the door. He then disappeared in the crowd.

The robber was about 27 years old, and was described by the clerk as being five feet six inches tall, weight 140 pounds, sallow complexion, smooth face, blonde hair. He wore a gray top coat and a gray soft hat.

The Levine store is located on the second floor of the building. The bandit entering the store asked to see a diamond ring. The clerk, Jacob Fineberg, took a tray from the showcase and produced a ring valued at $150. After examining the ring, the stranger said that he thought the price too expensive, and that he could get one cheaper in a nearby store and left. Several minutes later he reappeared and said that he had changed his mind. He then stated that he would take the ring except for the fact that it was mounted in gold while he wanted a platinum mounting.

The clerk replied that if the stranger would wait a few minutes his brother-in-law, the proprietor would be in with some platinum rings. The stranger decided to wait and started to read a newspaper. Suddenly, however, he drew out a revolver and forced the clerk to the rear of the store. The bandit then seized the tray of rings and dashed from the store.

BANDITRY WAS RAMPANT IN NEW YORK YESTERDAY

NEW YORK, Oct. 19—Hope that the city's underworld had been cowed by the smashing of two extensive criminal gangs within the past few days, was dashed today by an outbreak of robberies almost unparalleled in New York City's history.

Six crimes of major importance was reported, including one shooting, a jewelry robbery totalling $200,000, a safe robbery and a holdup. Only one arrest was made, that of John Dunn, a one-legged man who was wounded by a policeman in a chase after a delicatessen store holdup.

Today's outbreak was viewed with particular concern by police because it followed so closely on the arrest of a score of men and women accused of being members of two criminal gangs believed responsible for fully 75 per cent. of the robberies committed this past summer. With the breakup of the "cowboy gang" last Saturday and the arrest of seven alleged members of the "Rothenberg" gang yesterday, police had hoped the crime wave would soon subside.

Early today, however, five robbers one of them dressed as a policeman began operations, robbing Samuel Goldman and his wife of $5,000 in jewels and $250 in cash. Within a short time several minor holdups occurred in rapid succession. Michael Gurney, an east side restaurant owner, was the next victim. He was shot by two robbers who fled after menacing a score of patrons in his place.

Even Broadway was invaded. Six armed men, surrounding the chauffeur of a diamond salesman as he sat in his automobile at Broadway and 54th street, raided a sample case and fled with gems valued at $200,000. The robbery occurred shortly before noon while hundreds of passersby were near. The jewels were owned by Larter & Sons, of Maiden Lane.

A second jewelry robbery took place on Lexington avenue during the night when a safe was blown in the store of Jacob Sakow and Liberty bonds, cash and jewelry valued at $50,000 were stolen.

United Cigar stores, robbery of whose stores has become almost commonplace, also came in for attention when a store on West 130th street was held up and $135 stolen.

Meanwhile the district attorney's office was presenting its case against the 19 men and women arrested as members of the "cowboy gang." Several victims of holdup men went before the grand jury and presented evidence against members of the gang. Dr. Jacob Lane, a dentist, one of patients was shot by two alleged members of the gang, was a witness.

Examination of court records disclosed 37 trial delays which have been granted Herman Rothenberg, arrested as leader of a gang bearing his name. Three indictments are pending against him. Rothenberg and six men were arrested in a loft yesterday and loot valued at $7,000 was recovered. The men were held without bail for examination Wednesday.

William Berry today entered a plea of guilty to a charge of attempted robbery and will be sentenced next week. His plea was made just before Kitty Landrigan, a model, was to take the stand against him. Miss Landrigan, who is also under indictment was arrested with Berry in an automobile fleeing from the scene of a jewelry store holdup. She declared she was dragged into the car and knew nothing of the attempted robbery.

MAYOR OF PHILADELPHIA WOULD RETAIN BUTLER

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 19.—(AP) — Mayor Kendrick said tonight that if it is the desire of President Coolidge that he make a direct request for the reention of General Smedley D Butler as director of public safety for Philadelphia, he will be very glad to go to Washington and make formal application for the extension of the general's leave of absence from the marine corps. "It is my desire that General Butler shall remain as director of public safety," said the mayor.

General Butler's leave expires the end of the present year.

He has declared that he is willing to stay during the two remaining years of Mayor Kendrick's administration if the mayor and the people want him.

Testimony by City of Rome Radio Operator

Almost Three Hours Elapsed Between Ramming of Sub S-51 and Sending of Message.

BOSTON, Oct. 19. (AP)—Almost three hours elapsed before Captain John H. Diehl notified the naval authorities that his steamer, the City of Rome, had sent the U. S. S. Submarine S 51 and 33 of her crew to the bottom in a collision off Block Island on September 25. This point was brought out today when Harold H. Kelley, radio operator aboard the steamer, testified before the naval inquiry board probing the disaster.

Kelley, who will be recalled to the stand again tomorrow to give additional testimony, said that it was almost two hours after the collision when Captain Diehl ordered him to send a radio to the Ocean Steamship company, owners of his vessel announcing the collision. This radio, Kelley said, the first to be sent out after the crash, was filed at 12.10 a. m., eastern standard time, on September 26. The collision occured at 10.24 p. m. on the previous night. The home's message to the navy was filed at 1.15 a. m. Kelley said.

Kelley testified that he was standing in the doorway of his radio room when the ships collided. A few seconds before the crash, the steamer's whistle blew four short warning blasts. From his post, he was able to see the lights of the S-51 about 175 feet off the steamer's starboard bow.

She was so well illuminated, he said, that he could distinguish the form of a man on the deck. As the submarine was sinking, according to his testimony, he was near enough to hear Captain Diehl would order him to send out immediate SOS call.

A previous witness, Whitcomb P Currie at the WBZ radio station, who received the first news of the disaster from the steamer, testified that Kelley had requested him to cancel messages which the latter had sent him from the City of Rome because "Captain Diehl had no information to give out about collision." Kelley denied making such a request.

The steamer's radio man testified that as the submarine was sinking and several members of her crew were struggling for life in the water, members of the City of Rome's crew disregarded their plight and ran about the steamer seeking life preservers for themselves.

Several of the crew of the S-51 were on her deck as she sank, Frank B. Easley, of Dalton, Ga., a Harvard medical student, testified. He was a passenger on the steamer and administered medical treatment to the three members of the submarine crew who were picked up by the City of Rome's lifeboat.

Easley said he heard the men on the submarine deck call for help. The submarine was then but 20 feet away from the steamer, he said. He said that he did not see the steamer play a searchlight on the submarine at any time but did see several lighted life rings which were tossed overboard from the steamer.

The first witness of the day, Captain Walter M. Scott, of the Merritt, Chapman-Scott corporation, told of the rescue operations attempted. He said that the rescue fleet's efforts were devoted entirely to the saving of life and were not abandoned until the divers discovered that every compartment in the submarine was filled with water.

THREE ARMY OFFICERS WERE KILLED IN CRASH OF PLANE

Martin Bombing Plane Fell Into the Meadows in New Jersey After One of the Two Liberty Motors Apparently Went Bad—Each Aviator Had a Parachute Attached to His Body, But Drop Was so Short They Could Not Be Used Effectively.

CAPE MAY COURT HOUSE, N. J., Oct. 19—(A. P.)—Three United States army aviators fell to their deaths near here today when the Martin bombing plane in which they were flying from Mitchell field, N. Y., to Langley field, Va., crashed into the meadows after one of the two Liberty motors on the ship apparently went bad.

The dead: Captain Robert A. Kinloch, Charleston, S. C., Lieutenant Abbott C. Martin, Reading, Mass., the pilot and Staff Sergeant Joseph Coulston, Norristown, Pa.

Each aviator had a parachute strapped to his body, but the drop was so short as to preclude their escaping by them and all three were crushed by the heavy motors. The big plane carried beside the men, a quantity of household effects, comprising suit cases, a bicycle, children's toys, chairs and clothing, much of which was scattered over the field when the accident occurred. The cargo was property of fellow officers. The aviators were to for the winter and they were moving have been stationed at Langley field, the effects as a favor to their friends.

Captain Kinloch had been stationed at Mitchel field for two years. Lieutenant Martin and Sergeant Coulston were members of the aviation squadron at Langley field.

The big plane was first seen to be in trouble while flying over Wildwood-by-the-Sea, over Denny's Landing, near here, the coast. It then turned inland and wavered, and made a nose dive into the woods. The men were dead when reached by observers who saw the fall.

Captain W. H. Hale, also of Mitchel field, intended to fly with the other men. It was learned, but for some reason he did not go. A pair of aviator's goggles, with Captain Hale's name written on them, were being worn by Captain Kinloch. Identification of the aviators was made by means of cards fastened to their shirts.

A few hours after the plane crashed, Dr. Frank Hughes, Cape May county coroner, impaneled a jury. He will hold an inquest at the scene of the accident as soon as possible.

The airplane, No. A. S. 68,534, left Mitchel field, Long Island, at 10:30 o'clock this morning and was one of two machines of the same type that left for Langley field. The other plane, carrying several officers, reached the Virginia flying field without mishap.

The bodies of the three men were badly crushed and the arms and legs broken. The men were found pinned beneath the wreckage. Medical aid was called but it was said the three aviators probably had been instantly killed. The bodies were taken to a morgue at Cape May Court House.

SHORTAGE BY WILLIMANTIC TAX COLLECTOR ALLEGED

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 19—It is alleged a shortage of several thousand dollars has been found in the accounts of Alfred J. Lariviere, collector of city taxes and assessments during 1924, according to information secured Monday. Rumors relative to an alleged shortage have been somewhat prevalent in the city for several weeks.

Some weeks ago John Kelley, public accountant, was hired by the city to go over the books of the collector in conjunction with an accountant representing Hartford indemnity company, with which firm Lariviere is under bonds for $12,000. The work of these accountants according to available information show that $2,800 or thereabouts in amounts collected has never been turned in to the city treasury. At the present time somewhat over $6,000 has not been located, it not being determined as yet whether or not that amount was collected from taxpayers.

It is said that City Clerk Donohue mailed out collection notices to those taxpayers who were not recorded as not paying their assessments. Several responded and some $500 was collected in this manner but no word was forthcoming from the remainder. In order to establish the definite amount of the alleged shortage the logical course appears to be to grant a personal interview to taxpayers understood as a while hevent those having paid will be required to present their receipts.

The total issue of the grand list of 1923 which was collected in 1924 by Collector Lariviere amounted to $171,000 in round figures. Of this amount it was stated Monday that about $163,000 has been turned in.

Interviewed Monday evening, Mayor George W. Hickey and Corporation Counsel Thomas J. Kelley did not deny the shortages but stated that they were not in a position to give out statements but would be prepared to do so at a later date when word was received from the bonding company. Collector Lariviere was appointed to that position in 1924 by Mayor Hormisdas Dion.

VIOLENT REVERSAL IN MOTOR STOCK VALUES

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—(By the Associated Press)—Wall street's stock market stopped to catch its breath today after starting off at a pace that looked as though all existing trading records would be broken. The sharp opening rally was followed by an extremely violent decline, with the sales in the first two hours running over 1,300,000 shares, but another rally got under way in the afternoon and trading slowed up. The day's sales were figured by Associated Press tabulators at 2,597,800 shares, as compared with 2,700,600 on Friday which were with the exception of one day in December 1916, the highest in nearly twenty years.

The balloon of inflated motor stock values was punctured again by the rapier-like thrusts of bear traders, whose sales were swelled by the enormous liquidation of speculators on the long side throwing stocks overboard in order to conserve their rapidly diminishing profits or to limit their losses.

Motors bounded upward at the start under an accumulation of week-end buying orders, the opening gains ranging from one to five points. When these had been disposed of and it became apparent that the buying power was again exhausted, bear traders stepped in and began their assaults on the speculative favorites. General Motors dropped from 130 1-2 to 121 1-2 Fisher body from 115 to 108, Hudson from 97 1-8 to 91 and others in like proportion.

FIRE DESTROYED BARN ON TOBACCO PLANTATION

THOMPSONVILLE, Conn., Oct. 19—Fire of unknown origin, which destroyed the stock barn on the tobacco plantation of Huntley brothers, of Hartford, in the Wallon district four miles from Thompsonville tonight, caused damage estimated at $20,000. Four horses, eight mules and one cow perished and 100 tons of hay, much grain and farming implements were destroyed.

Fire apparatus from Thompsonville, Hazardville and Broad Brook, a bucket brigade and a stream of water pumped from an ice pond in a nearby field saved the welling and other farm buildings which were showered with sparks.

The police are investigating a report that an automobile without lights drove away from the vicinity shortly before the fire was discovered.

ACTIVE SESSION OF HOUSE DEPUTIES OF THE P. E. CHURCH

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 19.—(By the Associated Press)—Adoption of the budget of the Protestant Episcopal church for the next three years, tentative selection of Washington, D. C., as the next meeting place, ratification of the election of missionary bishops and the election of sixteen members of the national council marked an active session of the house of deputies of the general convention today.

The house of bishops spent the afternoon in executive session, where it was understood the pastoral letter to be sent back from the convention to the churches, claimed the most attention.

The bishops approved an amendment giving suffragan bishops a vote. This must be approved by the house of deputies and be ratified by a two-thirds vote at the next convention.

The report of the joint committee on budget and program was adopted unanimously with only minor alterations.

The sum of $3,510,000 was fixed as the basis upon which quotas for the next three years will be allotted. The revised budget called for $4,212,000, but interest on invested funds and the United bank offering of the women's auxiliary reduced it to $3,510,000

The names of eight of the national council to serve three years and eight to have six terms, were sent to the house of bishops for concurrence.

Those named for three years included Burton Mansfield, New Haven, diocese of Connecticut.

The Rt. Rev. Joseph S. Motoda, bishop of Tokyo, of the Episcopal church of Japan, addressed the house of bishops this afternoon and was voted a seat in the body during the remainder of the convention sessions. He was escorted to the seat made vacant by the deposition of Bishop William Montgomery Brown.

The adoption of a recommendation that the general convention of 1928 be held in Washington practically guaranteed the national capital the next meeting. The bishops were expected to concur. Denver, Colo., filed an invitation for the convention of 1934.

INJURED YALE MEN ARE RELEASED FROM HOSPITALS

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 19. (AP)—With the exception of Richard Dana, of St. Louis, and E. C. McHenry, of Dayton Ohio, practically all of the 15 Yale men who were injured when a platform erected over a quarry near Middletown collapsed yesterday, were released from the hospitals today. A few are still patients at the Yale infirmary. The men were injured when they fell forty feet to the bottom of the pit landing in three feet of water.

Dana, taken to the Middlesex hospital, in Middletown, immediately after the accident, was not in condition to be transferred here today. He suffered a fractured jaw and lacerations in many places. He was still in a dazed condition 24 hours after the accident.

McHenry, who was taken to the New Haven hospital, suffered a fractured leg. He was resting comfortably tonight. A. R. Mathews, of Pittsburgh, Pa., who also was taken to New Haven hospital, and who was found to have suffered a cracked rib, was released from the hospital this morning. He will not be able to attend classes at Yale for two weeks. Many of the injured appeared at classes today with wrists and hands bandaged and were unable to use a pencil or pen. Others had bandaged heads and arms.

A statement issued by Dean C. F. Warren, of the Sheffield Scientific school, who was directing the field expedition at the time of the accident, remarked at the fortunate results of an accident that might have resulted in the death of many men. Victims of the accident said that the three feet of water at the bottom of the pit was all that saved a worse disaster.

Each school represented as a donor will be presented a beautiful four-colored reproduction of Old Ironsides. Old Ironsides buttons will be received by every pupil contributing. Competitive plans to arouse interest are being worked out by the committee.

Dinsmore, former pastor, now a member of the faculty at Yale university, preached the sermon. The evening sermon was by Rev. William S. The windows were given in memory of Horace Hall, John Manning Hall, Silas Fuller Loomer and Pamelia White Loomer by their grandchildren, John Loomer Hall, Florence Hall Day and Helen Hall Owsley. Rev. Mr. Beard acted on behalf of the donors who were unable to be present. Rev. F. C. Williams of St. Paul's Episcopal church conducted the responsive reading and Rev. A. Stanley Muirhead of the Methodist church read the scripture lesson. Also present were Rev. T. Hawthorne Jones of Mansfield Center and Rev. Members of Francis S. Long Post, No. 30, D. A. R., took note of the 83rd birthday of Commander Arthur P. Benner and held their regular meeting at his home with the following comrades present: James Haggerty, Adam Dunts, Joseph Slater, Timothy Cullen, George Herrick, Charles Hall and John Leonard. Mrs. Benner served a delicious supper, after which the members and comrades sat about and exchanged stories reminiscent of Civil war days. Some dwelt on the forced marches and recalled that march of the Army of the Potomac to reach the battlefield of Gettysburg. Comrades who knew told how Commander Benner volunteered to go into the Confederate lines the night after the battle of Antietam to ascertain if the rebels were entrenching their lines. He performed this dangerous task with remarkable success. Timothy Cullen, an artilleryman, helped to shell the city of Charleston, S. C. for two years and "Joe" Slater aided a wounded Confederate lieutenant on the field of Gettysburg and the officer offered Joe his $250 gold watch in gratitude. Joe refused the gift. Adam Dunts carried the flag through the lowlands of Louisiana to victory and John Leonard, a battery man, was stationed in the lines that fired the city of Petersburg, Va., for eleven months. The comrades talked over the terrible condition of the city of Richmond, after four years of war.

Another case of "Hello little kitty" and "Good night, skunk!" was amusing neighbors on Pleasant street Monday. Joseph Gagne, a night man at the William A. Dawson greenhouses was the butt of the joke. During the night Gagne went out to lunch and left the greenhouse door ajar. He returned and was resuming work when he saw a pretty cat making itself at home on a box. Gagne loves cats and he loves to hear them purr. But that is all. He petted this particular cat and no one can say that he liked what that one did. He conferred with his employer and after considerable manoeuvering the polecat was induced to go along to its happy hunting grounds by the use of a club. Today Gagne is a wiser man regarding the feline species and the greenhouses do not give as pleasant an odor as they used to.

SPRINGFIELD WOMAN APPEALS FROM FINE AND COSTS OF $45

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 19—Mrs. Catherine Regan of Springfield, Mass., took an appeal to the superior court when fined $25 and costs amounting to $45.15 on a charge of reckless driving when presented in the local police court Monday morning. Another charge of evasion of responsibility was nolled by Judge Foss. Through her attorney Mrs. Regan pleaded not guilty to both charges. Tuesday, August 18, some several hundred feet west of the trolley crossing on the South Windham Road, west of South Windham village, a Dodge car operated by Mrs. Regan and a Ford car owned by Mrs. Guilford Smith and driven by Charles Huntington, collided, doing damage to both cars an slightly injuring a little girl who was in the Ford machine. Huntington said that he looked carefully up and down the road, failed to see any approaching vehicle and heard no warning and then started to make a turn in the road. Suddenly there was a crash. The little girl riding with him was thrown to the ground and rendered unconscious for some time.

Mrs. Regan said that she gave a warning signal twice at the trolley crossing and saw the Ford car standing on the right side of the road. Just as she was passing the Ford was suddenly backed, striking her machine full on the center of the right side, causing considerable damage to her car.

Constable Alfred testified that he went to the site of the accident and took measurements and in his opinion the Ford was struck by the Dodge.

Mrs. Catherine Malloy of Springfield, Mass., a passenger in the Dodge corroborated Mrs. Regan's testimony.

Guy Underwent of Lebanon, said he was repairing a tire on his car nearby. He heard the crash and ran over. It appeared to him that the Ford car had bumped into the Dodge. Judge Foss then announced his decision.

COUNCIL VOTES NEW LIGHT— WILL END PETTING PARTIES

The postponed October meeting of the common council was held Monday night, Mayor George W. Hickey presiding. The office of third ward alderman was declared vacant, due to the removal of James J. Lee, representing that ward, to the second ward. By resolution introduced by Alderman Beebe Amos Lewis, of Lebanon avenue, was granted an abatement on sewer assessment interest. The purchasing committee was authorized to secure quick-hitch suits for the permanent members of the fire department. The resolution was introduced by Alderman Laramee. The installation of street lights on Valley street, opposite the state normal school and at the corner of Prospect and North streets was authorized. Alderman Jackson pointed out that a light near the normal school would not only eliminate the danger from much darkness in that section but would put a stop to petting parties on the stone steps by local young people.

Rebates on taxes were granted to William J. Miller and J. J. Welsh. Several petitions to cut down trees in the city were referred to the street warden. The board expressed sorrow on the passing of such a large number of the stately elm and maple trees which in past years had been a matter of pride to the city.

JEWETT CITY

Not long ago, one of the graduate nurses of the town, employed by one of the big manufacturing concerns of the borough, was hurrying a patient, a critical maternity case, to Backus hospital, Norwich, in her own automobile. To save the woman's life, immediate surgical attendance was imperative. On South Main street, some young urchins, hidden behind a fence post, blew a whistle or made it with his fingers between his lips. The resemblance of the blast to Officer Viegard's 'holdup' whistle was so remarkable, that the nurse, anxious to obey the officer's call held up. No one appeared, and 10 or 15 minutes of terrible suffering was undergone by the patient, as the result. This whistle has been heard before. Unless whistling to stop passing vehicles is stopped, action may be taken to end it.

Rally Day was observed at the Congregational church Sunday. Seventy-five were at church. An offertory solo, "My Task" was sung by Byron Kinnie and there was special music by the choir, under direction of Miss Sadie Thompson. Rev. G. Keene Gray occupied the Sunday school hour with a talk on the lesson, and there was chorus singing.

Local flower-lovers were able to find out that the badly faded specimen brought to Miss Katherine McNamara, a teacher in the Riverside grammar school, was once a beech-drop. The blossom is found but sparingly among the flowers of Griswold. It is a curious looking plant, and is found only in the shade of a beech tree, drawing nourishment from the roots. Its flowers may be purple, yellow or brown.

It looks as though there would have to be a chapter written that shall tell of the passing of the wood duck. Returning hunters from places, once the habitat of this beautiful bird, report that there are none to be seen.

The wood duck is protected by law at all times, in the hope that he may not be exterminated. Not so many years ago, if the hunter stole quietly around the Bend, on the upper end of Read's Island, or along the stream above the "Nigger Bridge" to the "Burnt" Hopeville mill, there might be obtained a fleeting glimpse or maybe a close up, of the blue red and gold of this handsome duck. It is with regret that one hears the report, that the grace and beauty of these richly attired birds may not be seen again, in 1890, the late William C. Bliven, during one of his hunting trips, secured a wonderfully fine male wood duck. He gave it to the Agassiz society, with the result that it was sent to a Providence taxidermist, where it was mounted. The local Agassiz society died a painless and natural death, over a generation ago. A few of its former members survive, and so, in its stuffed splendor, does Mr. Bliven's wood duck. It is stored up among the archieves and defunct natural relics of the once flourishing society, and stands up as handsome and natural as in life, with its beautifully painted plumage and shining eyes of tinted glass still undimmed.

Now are come the melancholy days when one must go down to the town hall and have his annual "go" with the assessors. Griswold's ever increasing tax list, now well over two millions of dollars, is to be assessed before Nov. 1. The newly elected board, Irving O. Burdeik, E. M. Gray, and Edward Blanchard, will accomplish the job on time, and there will be the universal verdict of fairness, rendered to these men, so well acquainted with the property of the town.

Clifford Allen and Annette Ennis, pleaded guilty to the charge of Sunday hunting, when in the Griswold town court Monday morning, Judge John T. Barry imposed a fine of one dollar and costs, amounting to $16.72 in each case. The arrests were made by County Game Warden Robert B. Chappell and Assistant Deputy Game Warden William R. Palmer.

Fireproof Gas Tank

An air plane gasoline tank which may be completely riddled by incendiary or explosives bullets without bursting into flames or even leaking is the latest development in the aviation field which comes from Vienna, according to science. The tank is the usual metal type, but with a peculiar interior coating, the composition of which is a careful guarded secret with the inventor, probably on the order of the liquid gums placed in automobiles to make them puncture-proof.

The inflamatory bullet, upon entering the tank, is immediately enveloped with a coating of some sort of material that extinguishes the flames and at the same time prevents the phosphorous-coated bullet from leaving a deposit.

In the test made by expert army witnesses, a series of 21 bullets were fired through the experimental tank, which was filled half with gasoline and half with inflammable gas. The bullets were fired in a series of one explosive, one phosphorous and one solid, in rotation. After the 30 rounds had been fired, with no bad results, the tank was set in an airplane, which then made an hour's flight, using only the gasoline from the apparently perforated tank.

Monday evening a meeting of the directors of the Danielson Rotary club was held to further details of the organization. The directors are Obadiah Butler, general manager of the Connecticut Mills company; Judge Sabin S. Russell, Louis E. Kennedy, Irving W. Davis and Agent Harry Richardson of the Alrich mills at Moosup.

The club will start with the maximum number of members allowed which is 25. It is indicated that many will become members as soon as their acceptance can be arranged for. Thereafter the club may admit three members each month.

Among the members-to-be there is great enthusiasm for Rotary, much of this inspired by the gathering last Friday evening at Putnam with members of the Putnam Rotary club.

At the home of her sister, Mrs. Rose Gaudette of Union street, a shower was given for Miss Marguerite Duprey, whose marriage with Alfred Vevia will take place Monday of next week. The large number of young people who gathered for the shower in honor of Miss Duprey spent a delightful evening. There were musical selections and various diverting pastimes that furnished keen amusement. Miss Yvonne Dupre, another sister of the bride-to-be, served cake, ice cream, soda and punch.

Miss Duprey received many very pretty gifts. There were numbers of pieces of cut glass, silver and linen.

Others in the party were Misses C. Dupre, Mrs. J. LaFrance, Mrs. S. Vevis, Mrs. I. Boulay, Mrs. F. Moulin; Mrs. J. Pupils in various schools of the town of Killingly participated Monday in programs opening the observance of Old Ironsides week. Much about the history of this remarkable war vessel was imparted to scores of pupils and their interest aroused in aiding to preserve it against rotting away. Sidney F. Marland with Supt. W. F. Parker of Killingly's schools visited schools in Danielson, Dayville and Goodyear. Supt. Parker is bringing the matter to the attention of pupils in Killingly's schools. At Attawaugan the matter is in charge of William Kinder. Today (Tuesday) Warden Walter Anderson will present the subject to the students at Killingly High school. There are indications that Killingly and Brooklyn young people will contribute quite an impressive sum, though no individual gift be large. At St. James' school, Louis E. Kennedy is in charge of the project.

A car that was damaged to the extent of about $400 Sunday when it was driven on the trolley track at Attawaugan crossing and into the path of an approaching trolley car was of interest to people who looked it over here Monday. There were those who marveled how the nine people who were riding in the machine at the time of the accident could have escaped serious injuries. A line of box cars standing on a siding at Attawaugan obscured the vision of the operator of the motor car. He did not see the approaching trolley until it was too late to avoid an accident. The car is owned and driven by Rudolph Arpin, of Leominster, Mass.

The rabbit hunting season in Connecticut opens November 1. It is a strange fact that there are several times as many rabbits this fall in country hereabouts as there has been at any time for several seasons past. It is what the hunters call a good rabbit year. Some of them tell of an old saying that every seventh year brings an abundance of rabbits; so this must be a seventh year.

Clergy and laity from all over Long Island and from many cities in New York and other states gathered to attend the funeral of Right Rev. Frederick Burgess, Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Long Island at 11 a. m. Monday in the Cathedral of the Incarnation, Garden City. He was a former rector of Christ church, Pomfret.

As the funeral procession entered the cathedral Right Rev. Frank Du Moulin of Columbus, retired Bishop Coadjutor of Ohio, read the scriptural sentences commencing: "I am the resurrection and the life." The lesson beginning "Now is Christ risen from the dead" read by the Rev. Henry C. Swentzel of Brooklyn, president of the standing committee of the diocese. Prayer was offered by Right Rev. Chauncey B. Brewster, bishop of connecticut, and Very Rev. Oscar F. R. Treder, dean of the cathedral. The epistle read by Rev. Dr. Robert Rogers o Brooklyn, for many years secretary of the diocese. The gospel was read by Rev. Dr. St. Clair Hester of Brooklyn, who with Dr. Rogers is on the standing committee. Right Rev. before closing any deal.

Memorial services were conducted at New Orleans Monday morning in the House of Bishops and the House of Clerical and Lay Deputies of the Episcopal convention for Bishop Burgess, simultaneously with the funeral in Garden City.

The new bridge over the Assawaga river at Main street likely will be completed and open for travel by Thanksgiving time. This was the forecast on Monday, when workers had removed practically all of the old bridge and were well advanced in building supports for the forms into which the concrete is to be poured. The new bridge will be considerably wider than the one that has been removed, and of such solid construction that it will bear any traffic load likely to be put upon it. It will be amply strong to take care of such capacity truck loads as the state of Connecticut allows to move over its highways.

Mr. and Mrs. Myer Blumenthal, Mr. and Mrs. Max Sternlieb, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Sternlieb and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sternlieb, all of Norwich, were guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Blumenthal of Winter street.

PUTNAM

Mrs. J. V. Merrill, who has charge of the seventh grade and whose husband is principal of the Israel Putnam school, has outlined the following program for the coming year's work. The seventh grade is the highest one at that school, the eighth grade being at the High school building.

The seventh grade this year is in two divisions; one an A or high division, the other B or low division. The groups are made up according to their scholarship and school spirit. The divisions are not permanent, so that a B student by doing good school work may become an A, or if an A student is not as good he is placed in the B class. Both groups will have practically the same work, except that the A division will have extra activities, such as an opportunity to take library books from the school, have a play period once a week and other privileges from time to time. This arrangement not only furnishes an incentive to the pupils to do good work, but rewards those who do. It also keeps those for whom studies are more difficult, as the teachers can afford more time for explanation to them without making it tiresome for those who grasp things more readily. Both divisions, however, stand an equal show for promotion in June, with the exception of a few that are very low in the B class.

Those in A group now are: Lucy Carpenter, Louise Sherman, Doris Dean, James Tatem, Billy Moss, Frederick Franklin, Agnes Sullivan, Mary Socher, Lillian Bowen, Marjorie Maybew, Marie Stombella, Albina Socher, Costa Patrides, Scouta Carver, Grace Cutler, Billy Jones, Marjorie Benoit, Elviro Leo, Solomon Sandlovitz, Arthur Ross, Carl Tourtellotte, Gladys Gunsulas and Doris Johnson.

Louise Sherman was recently elected by the A class school librarian. At present there are about two hundred and sixty-five books in the seventh grade library. These will later be supplemented by some from the state library. As soon as the librarian finishes checking and numbering, the books will be ready for use.

A school orchestra has been organized consisting of Marie Stumbells, Arthur Ross, Natalie Dean, violins; Vincent Wilbur, cornet; Bernard Bulgern, drums and Irene Bruce at the piano. They expect to make their first appearance at the Parent-Teachers' association meeting of December 8.

A school club has been partially organized in the seventh grade. The purpose of this club is two fold. First it gives a little variety from the regular school routine. Secondly it gives the pupils some knowledge of parliamentary practice as it is carried on as nearly correct as possible. Meetings are to be held on the first and third Fridays of each month from recess until the close of school. The following officers were elected: President, James Tatem; vice president, Irene Bruce; secretary, Robert Rust and treasurer, Louise sherman. At the next meeting a name will be chosen and an executive committee elected. Doings of the club will appear in the news of the school from time to time.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Tourtelotte and Mrs. Mary A. Clark were in Providence recently and attended the funeral of Hon. Thomas W. Bicknell, 91. Funeral services were held at his home in Providence and burial was in Barrington, R. I.

Mr. Bicknell was well known in Putnam. Through the efforts of the D. A. R. he spoke at one time to the high school pupils on an historical subject and offered a prize of ten dollars for the best historical essay, which prize was won by Miss Ransom of Pomfret. He was prominent in Rhode Island, founded the State normal school, the National Teachers' association and was a writer of many historical and educational sketches.

Delegates from each of the four classes of the high school as well as from the Putnam Hi-Y club will be sent to the Older Boys' conference to be held at Hartford, Friday, October 23.

Putnam troop of Boy Scouts will appear in the Armistice day parade in new uniforms. The troop promises to have a full troop in line in dazzling outfits of khaki.

Simon Farley of Pawtucket, has been in this city in connection with settling the estate of his son, the late George W. H. Farley. Mr. Farley lived in Putnam for many years and at one time was city tax collector.

Mrs. Mary S. Kenyon of Grove St., has gone to North Carolina to spend the winter with her daughter, Mrs. William A. Vaughan.

Tuesday evening, October 20, Israel Putnam lodge of Odd Fellows will confer the first degree on eight candidates from their own jurisdiction, also on candidates from the Danielson and Willimantic lodges. There will be visitors from the Willimantic, Danielson, Central Village, Webster and Pascoag lodges. The local lodge is preparing to provide a cordial reception for the guests. The Putnam degree team is well up to the work. On the following Tuesday the Putnam members will be the guests of the Danielson lodge where the new candidates will be given the second degree. The third and fourth degrees will probably be worked by Central Village lodge.

The boys of the Putnam Hi-Y club are planning to hold a rummage sale.

Aside from the increase resulting from the Florida boom, he has had a number of attractive offers from prospective buyers, but he wants to see conditions for himself before closing any deal.

A tire that keeps its good looks to the very end of its long service life

SOME tires that look well on the show room floor begin to look shabby after a few miles of service.

The important thing to note is that it holds its good looks.

Finger marks, grease and mud stains do not show on its handsome all black body.

And the flat "Low-Pressure Tread" wears slowly and evenly.

Because the weight is properly distributed over the entire tread surface, the uneven, disfiguring wear that soon gives a ragged appearance to round treaded balloon tires does not occur.

This and the patented Latex-treated Web Cord construction of the carcass permit the U. S. Royal Balloon to be run at proper cushioning pressure.

There is no need to over-inflate to save the tires.

Thus, appearance, long mileage, comfort and car protection are all provided for.

Peanuts—$30,000,000 Worth

How the humble peanut is closely allied with American history is told in the United States department of agriculture educational film, "Peanuts—$30,000,000 Worth."

This vegetable, which is not actually a nut but a ground pea, is a native South American plant and found its way to North America by way of Africa as food for prisoners on board slave ships in early Colonial days. Up to the time of the war between the states the plant was neglected by the southern planters and was grown mainly in small patches by the slaves. During the war Union soldiers foraging for food came upon the "groober pea" and found it palatable and nourishing. After Appomattox many of them carried the pods home with them, and the peanut won immediate favor in the north, and its culture has undergone great development in the south.

FLY-TOX

Every Bottle GUARANTEED

FLY-TOX was developed at Melon Institute of Industrial Research by the Rex Fellowship. In a simple, easy and thoroughly effective way, FLY-TOX kills flies, moths, mosquitoes, fleas, ants, roaches and other insects. It's so convenient to saturate the air with clouds of FLY-TOX. Flies, by merely winging through the mist, become affected with the strange action of FLY-TOX, and die. This mist lingers just long enough to do its work. It then evaporates and leaves only a pleasant, clean odor. Wall paper or drapes are not stained. FLY-TOX is harmless to humans. Those stray, elusive flies that invade the most carefully screened homes, are quickly and easily eliminated with FLY-TOX.

The Upward Trail

A chimpanzee finding existence dull
In his treetop aged ago
Dropped a cocoanut down on the anthropoid skull
Of a frolicsome ape below.
He grinned and chattered, he chattered and grinned,
At his victim's droll surprise,
And the upward trail was started the
In a babel of monkey cries—
The long trail, the song trail,
The trail of the cheerful guys.

For he was the earth's first funny man,
Where he grinned in simian guile
At the first of jokes since time began,
And the grin was at last a smile.
While the long, long ages, came and went
It brightened as men grew wise,
The smile that has lit the trail they leads Toward the things that all good men prize—
The long trail, the song trail,
The trail of the cheerful guys.

They must stir our souls with a gleam of hope
In the lilt of their breezy song,
Lest upward the world less bravely grope
Through the dusk and the dark of wrong;
They must light the way where the going is rough
In scorn of discordant sighs,
The guys who go singing up the trail,
To the hilltop where error dies—
The long trail, the song trail,
The trail of the cheerful guys.

So we well may sing of that joker rude
Who grinned at his own rash jokes,
While a brutish world in his gloomy mood
To a mystical dawn awoke;
For he brightened life's lurid, mountain ways
With a promise of friendly skies
Unawares that his grin would become a smile
To illume what darkness lies—
The long trail, the song trail,
The trail of the cheerful guys.

Virgil's Tomb

On an olive-crested steep
Hanging o'er the dusty road,
Lieth he in his last abode,
Wrapped in everlasting sleep.

He who in the days of yore
Sang of pastures, sang of farms,
Sang of heroes and their arms,
Song of passion, song of war.

When the lark at dawning tells,
Herald-like the coming day,
And along the dusty way
Comes the sound of tinkling bells.

Rising to the tomb aloft,
While some modern Corydon
Drives his bleating cattle on
From the stable to the croft.

Then the soul of Virgil seems,
To awaken from its dreams,
To sing again the melodies
Of which he often tells,—
The music of birds,
The lowing of the herds,
The tinkling of the bells.

NIGHT SCHOOLS

For the benefit of those who have not had educational opportunities for one reason or another two night schools are maintained by the town of Norwich for a period of 75 nights. Such schools are for the public, or that portion of the public that needs their help, and to those who are in need of such advantages as are provided there should be a strong appeal.

Those who have come from abroad or from states where a common school education is not compulsory can find in the night school the very thing which they require to remove them from the class of illiterates. Likewise there is a chance for the many who cannot read and write in English to get the help of this branch of the public school system. The night school is not something to be neglected, but to be employed for the good that there is in it.

Many there are who can point to the instructions which they received in the night schools with pride. They are not only eager to proclaim their good points but to urge all others who need such aid to profit by the chance. The lack of an education is due too many times more to the failure to make the effort to get it than to the lack of opportunity. With the night schools available here can be no excuse for pleading no education or inability to read or write, whatever may have been their handicaps in the educational line prior to this time.

The existence of the night schools should mean that the facilities are employed to their full extent. The fact that the schools are open and ready for pupils should be made known to those who should be interested in attending. For the good of those who stand in need of just such instructions word should be passed along regarding the school and encouragement given to them to do something for themselves by accepting the assistance that has been provided for them. There is no compulsion and there ought to be none required when it comes to attending night school.

PRESERVING "OLD IRONSIDES"

The campaign for raising the needed half million that will be required to repair and preserve the old frigate Constitution is on. It is a nationwide undertaking and well it may be for it is a matter of nationwide interest.

It is an elaborate plan which has been worked out by the Elks in their efforts to secure the money by small contributions and from the school children. This historic old ship has a strong appeal. It holds a fascinating place in history and every boy and girl knows how eager they drink in and admire its history and how anxious they are to see such relics of the long distant past, but which are visible connecting links with those trying days in the early period of this country's existence. It is desirable not only to have and to maintain such famous ships but there is no small degree of satisfaction in actually participating in the provision of the funds for keeping it in condition for other generations to see.

When congress approved the idea of restoring "Old Ironsides" it should have completed the job and provided the money to do the work with. Because it failed in that important respect there can be no acceptance of the situation and do nothing about it. Even though the project is approved it cannot be done without funds. A half million raised by public subscription throughout the country means the imposition of a burden on no one. The pennies of the school children can easily meet the bill and there is no doubt that they will, but it can be appreciated that there will be many others who will be anxious to give their financial assistance even to providing substantial amounts if necessary.

The solicitation of the funds is in good hands when undertaken by the Elks. They develop an interest and enthusiasm in whatever they undertake that is contagious and there is good reason for believing that their support in the present movement means a most successful outcome.

DEFECTIVES

In connection with the protection of the public through the proper enforcement of the law and the prevention of crime through the placing of dangerous persons where they cannot do harm, attention is directed to a recent case in New York where a young man convicted of robbery expressed his pleasure at being sentenced to Sing Sing and declared that he was anxious to go there as he wanted to make a reputation for himself and then come out and kill a cop. He has taken Gerald Chapman as the example to follow.

Such a state of mind indicates that something is wrong. That he was given the proper sentence for the deed he committed is to be inferred from the fact that the judge was not disposed to be lenient. But a look into the young man's history indicates that while he may be a fit subject for Sing Sing now it is a question whether he ought to be allowed his liberty when his prison sentence is completed. It seems that his father is dead and his mother in an insane hospital, one brother has recently been released from prison and another is in an institution for feeble minded convicts.

He apparently goes to prison with the idea of climbing the stairs to fame and the height of his ambition is to "kill a cop." That he is serious about his plan should not be overlooked. He apparently belongs to that class of individuals who needs to be under restraint all the time for the protection of the public upon which he intends to prey. It apparently doesn't make any difference who the cop is so long as he meets the necessary requirements as to uniform. The mere fact that such a state of mind exists calls for steps to protect the unknown cop.

There have been several cases recently in New York and its near vicinity where individuals have been killed because such persons have been allowed their liberty even when it was known that they were harboring thoughts of just such crimes as they afterwards committed. Such cases ought to be dealt with before they take life.

"NEVER AGAIN?"

Some surprise has been expressed in political circles over the statement made by Governor Smith of New York that he has made up his mind to retire after his term as governor is completed next year and to hold no other public office. When asked to talk about his statement he declared that there was nothing more to be said since it told the whole story.

The surprise displayed is due to the fact that the governor has been groomed for a continuation in office and as a candidate for other offices, but whether his statement has anything more than a temporary meaning will be disclosed in time. It is to be hoped that he is now talking for present consumption. What the future will bring forth will be revealed later on.

It is of course entirely possible that the governor has come to the conclusion that political office does not pay, that is that it does not pay him what he might be getting in other fields. He has intimated at times that he might have done better had he not thrown his hat into the political ring, and just now he is making an appeal for the support of certain of his policies connected with the conduct of New York state affairs and the fact that he intends to get out of public office is being used to draw additional support for them.

It is of course well to remember that this is 1925 and not 1926 or 1928. There is a chance for a changing of mind. It has been done before. Surprise is displayed at Governor Smith's declaration just now, but hasn't he declared in the past that he was not going to be a candidate? Political history often repeats itself. "Never Again" is a popular cry, but there is invariably a demand for proof and that is the situation in New York.

THE SCHEPP FOUNDATION

When Leopold Schepp got to the point where he wanted to dispose of his fortune and to make a start during his lifetime he established a foundation for boys from which help might be obtained by those in need to get an education. It was generally recognized as a commendable bit of philanthropy.

When he sought to distribute more of his wealth he sought the advice of the people of the country. He endeavored to learn what was considered the best means of utilizing his money and how it should be employed for the general good. He was swamped by the replies received. There were plenty who could tell him how to use his fortune and they did, but of the great number of answers 95 per cent. suggested that he hand out a good lot well to the individual.

Perhaps that was no different than Mr. Schepp might have expected. Nevertheless he had anticipated that there might be advanced some idea which had not occurred to him. From many minds he hoped to get something original and worthwhile. His effort doesn't appear to have been a success, for he has now announced that he will give a million to establish a foundation for girls that will have for its object the same general purpose as that connected with the foundation for boys.

Thus he adopts a plan which he had already approved. He extends the benefit of the idea to all instead of part of the youth and in his desire to have his millions be of benefit to as many as possible it is to be hoped that there will be a full appreciation of the desire of the donor and the good he expects will result. Above it all, however, Mr. Schepp's record shows what can be done where there is the will to make the most of opportunities.

INDUSTRIOUS COOKS

"I don't understand modern housekeeping," complained the tall, lank householder who had been looking out of the window while he was home nursing a bad cold. "I thought all these girls took stiff courses in domestic science and household efficiency and made every motion count—but if you could have seen Evangeline Edwards and Mimosa Grimes this day!

"They may be married and think that they are grown up, but if ever I saw two little girls playing at housekeeping they are it! First Mimosa would run across the back yard from her house, all dolled up in pink and white gingham, and scoot into the side door of Evangeline's house. Then she would emerge carrying something very carefully and trip back. In a few seconds out would dash Evangeline, tricked out in pale green and a grand marcel, make a bee line for Mimosa's kitchen door and presently both of them would trot back.

"I tell you that all the while you have been gone those two girls have done nothing but run back and forth carrying things and talking excitedly. What their husbands are going to get for dinner I don't know!"

"I can tell you all about it," said his wife, parceling out his medicine and making him take it. "They are both exhausted from their strenuous labors and I have been sitting under the lilac bushes helping them rest.

"It seems that Mimosa was stricken with the yearn to make an angel-food cake and trustingly did so. But when she took it out of the oven it shriveled all up to a pancake, much to her hurt amazement. Thereupon she ran over to tell Evangeline her troubles, Evangeline being a prize cake maker. Evangeline said it was a shame and they would make another, so she went over to Mimosa's house to superintend it.

"When she got there she decided she did not like her hostess' egg-beater and went back to get her own. Then Mimosa ran over to say please bring six eggs also. Having mixed the cake, Evangeline discovered that Mimosa's oven was still hot from the previous attempt—and angel food must be started in a stone-cold oven. So then they carefully carried the cake over to Evangeline's house to bake it.

Heaving a sigh of relief at a great deed accomplished, Evangeline thought it a shame to waste the time and said she believed she would make some pastry shells for lemon pie. So she made the shells and when she got them ready to bake she found that her own oven nurturing the angel food was far too cool for pie pastry—so the girls carried the shells over to Mimosa's house and put them in her still hot oven.

"Just as they would get nicely settled to discuss what Emily had said when Ruth made that nasty crack about Grace at the party or how Lemuel never in the world shut a bureau drawer they would recall with horror that they had not looked at the cake for ten minutes and dash over to Evangeline's oven.

"Finding the cake progressing satisfactorily, they would sigh and begin telling each other about their mother-in-law and then be stricken with the idea that no doubt the pastry shells were burning up. Whereupon they would hotfoot it across to Mimosa's kitchen and turn the fire down a bit. It takes an hour to bake an angel food and in that time they made at least six visits to each kitchen.

"Then after the successful cake was removed from the oven at Evangeline's it had to stand and cool before it could be carried across to its rightful home. And when the six pastry shells were shucked off the little tins over at Mimosa's they had to cool, too, before removal for fear of breakage, and that accounted for two extra trips each. Besides which, Evangeline forgot to take home her egg-beater, so that Mimosa had to bring it over and then the grocery man arrived at Mimosa's, so she carried back the six borrowed eggs—and Evangeline thoughtfully transferred the angel cake pan after washing it to its right home, and—"

"Oh, great guns!" roared the tall, lank householder, "I never heard such a pack of fuss! What's more to the point, did Mimosa know I was sick—"

"She sent you this lovely big piece of angel food," said the wife, who knew right away what he really meant.

"Ummm," said the invalid after grabbing it. "Say, didn't Evangeline send a sample of her pies, too? I tell you I earned it watching and worrying over those girls' actions!"—Chicago News.

Most women can make a dollar go so far that friend husband never sees it again.

From Small Beginnings

Captain James Cook, the Great Voyager

In an English village a man who was what we in the United States call a "hired man" that is, a man who is employed for others in farm work, had a sturdy boy who would have to look out for himself in the world. When little Jim was only 12 his father set him to work for a tradesman. There, in a most unadventurous occupation, the small boy worked without any expectation that he would sail to the farthest seas and discover new lands, and not dreaming that he would be killed on an island at the opposite side of the earth from England.

A second apprenticeship brought him into touch with the sea, and it was not long before he heard the call that has summoned many an English lad. By the time that he was 30 he had sailed on many seas and had come to the command of men. What there was in the "hired man's boy" that gave him naturally the spirit of command and the love of adventure no one can say, but history records no more daring sailor than Captain James Cook, the "hired man's boy." Furthermore, he had by nature the instincts of a scholar and readily mastered difficult problems in the mathematics of navigation and of astronomy, and he became an expert nautical surveyor, noted for the excellent maps that he produced.

At the age of 40 he was sent on a new famous expedition into the South Seas where he visited many islands, observed the customs of the natives, and made excellent maps. On his return to England he was again asked to explore unknown Pacific, and this time he made even more careful observations than before, familiarized himself with such lands as Tahiti, the Marquesas, the New Hebrides and with all the vast region that lies toward the Southern Pole. The mere naming of the places that he visited is like making a catalogue of all the southern Pacific lands.

Captain Cook's next journey into the Pacific was made when he was 48. Once again he explored the Pacific from New Zealand to the icy regions of the Arctic, mapping coast lines, finding new islands, visiting strange peoples and recording all that he saw for the benefit of his country. It was in that far Pacific that he met his death, for he was killed by natives in what is now our own peaceful Hawaii. So died at the age of 51, James Cook, "the hired man's boy," perhaps the most notable ocean-explorer that England ever produced, a man whose name is the synonym of adventure.

WHO WAS STUBBORN?
Viola Woodville

"I hope you won't have trouble with Meredith," said Mrs. Clark to her son's new teacher, and added in a voice only a little lower, "He is the most stubborn child I ever saw. He just won't give in, no matter how long I keep at him."

"He looks like a fine boy," replied Miss Bush, hoping Meredith had not heard his mother as he took his place in the schoolroom.

Some time afterwards they had another little talk—the mother anxious to know how Miss Bush regarded the stubborn streak in her son.

"Perhaps he is a bit stubborn," he agreed, "but what I see is the beautiful quality of perseverance. Why, Meredith wouldn't think of giving up an unsolved problem, and you should just hear his points in our Friday debates," and Miss Bush's eyes fairly sparkled.

"But he gets so angry when I contradict him," continued his mother, "and you know how liable a child is to be wrong."

"Perhaps he is often wrong, but many times one can agree with part of what he says, and that leads the way to suggesting a different way of thinking along the main line. When he sees a truth clearly he is very ready to admit it. I suppose none of us like to have our opinions put aside too lightly," she laughed.

Of course Mrs. Clark was glad that Meredith was doing so well, but it hurt her to feel that she had been wanting in tact in his management. However, she was too intelligent and honest not to recognize the superiority of Miss Bush's method. "I believe you think that he will outgrow this fault," she persisted.

"I wonder if it is really a fault in Meredith's case. It seems to me that the boy has a strong character. His judgment will improve of course, and he will do the right thing oftener as he sees the right."

"Thank you, Miss Bush," said the mother, quietly. "You're right, and it will do me good to admit that I believe I have often been the stubborn one. I'll try not to antagonize Meredith after this."

"Antagonize!" that is the key-note to many a childish rebellion. Mothers seems to forget that children are people and they are not careful to use the same methods with them that they do with others. A woman who treats her guests with the most careful consideration, avoiding all topics that might prove disagreeable, will irritate her own child to the point of desperation.

Then, too, children react so readily to the mood of another. A mother often doesn't realize that because she is overworked or not feeling well, she herself is in an irritable state of mind. Even a sweet tempered child may be thrown into a very "stubborn" frame of mind if he is attacked in a fault finding spirit. If instead of blaming the child the mother would prescribe a nap for herself, an hour with a good book, or a walk, such diversion might enable her to radiate an atmosphere of understanding and love that would bring out only the best responses in the child.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Peter Chats With Whitefoot

The wise for future needs provide,
And in their thrift take honest pride.
—Whitefoot the Wood Mouse.

Peter Rabbit hung around most of the afternoon watching Buster Bear and the others feasting on beechnuts. They seemed to enjoy them so much that he almost wished he liked them himself. Toward night he wandered away to see who else he could find. For a while his cousin, Jumper the Hare, was the only one whom he met. He stopped to gossip with him awhile, and then once more wandered on.

Gentle Mistress Moon came peeping up above the tree tops, and presently little lanes of moonlight lay all through the Green Forest between the Black Shadows. Peter was over near the edge of the Green Forest. Suddenly not far from him Hooty the Owl hooted. Peter froze right where he was. That is, he sat perfectly motionless. But inside his heart was going thumpity-bump, thumpity-bump, thumpity-bump. Again Hooty hooted, and Peter continued to sit here thumpity-bumping.

After a long time Hooty hooted again but this time he was far away and Peter's heart no longer thumpity-bumped.

"My, I'm glad that fellow's gone away," said a thin squeaky voice. "I have to swallow my heart every time I hear him."

Peter turned. There sat Little Whitefoot the Wood Mouse washing his face with his little white hands.

"What do you mean by swallowing your heart?" demanded Peter.

"I mean," replied Whitefoot, "that when Hooty is as close as he was tonight and hoots, my heart just seems to jump right up in my throat. So, of course I have to swallow it to get it down where it belongs."

Peter knew just what Whitefoot meant. He had felt just that way himself. Of course that little heart of Whitefoot's didn't really jump up into his throat, and of course he really didn't swallow it. It just seemed that way. "What are you doing here Whitefoot?" Peter asked.

"I should say that was the question for me to ask. What are you doing here, Peter Rabbit?" inquired Whitefoot.

"Oh," said Peter, "I'm just looking around. I'm finding out how folks get ready for winter. Do you get ready for winter, Whitefoot?"

"Any one who doesn't is foolish," replied Whitefoot.

"I don't," said Peter.

Whitefoot chuckled. "Then you're foolish," said he. "I won't take back what I said."

"But I didn't know you slept through the winter," said Peter.

"Then what do you get ready for winter for?" inquired Peter.

"For the same reason that Happy Jack and the rest of the Squirrel family do," retorted Whitefoot. "Happy Jack and Chatter don't sleep through the winter, but you notice they get ready to sit just the same."

"That's so," said Peter. "I had forgotten all about them. Do you get ready in the same way? Do you store up nuts and acorns?"

"I store up seeds," replied Whitefoot. "I always lay in a supply of seeds. They come in very handy in bad weather. I have an extra fine lot this year."

"What do you mean by swallowing your heart?" demanded Peter

"Where are they?" asked Peter.

"Nobody knows but Whitefoot the Wood Mouse," replied Whitefoot, and disappeared in the Black Shadows.

"It seems as if every one does something to get ready for winter," muttered Peter. "I wonder if Danny Meadow Mouse does?"

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Fish and Game Law Enforcement

Mr Editor—In an editorial of The Bulletin issue of Oct. 17, 1925, I note the statement that "hunting is not permitted on a fishing license." I beg to advise that it has been done in the town of Norwich recently, and with impunity.

A man was recently found near Wauregan hill with dog and gun and with one squirrel that had been shot, and when asked to show his license produced an angling license dated July 9th and insisted that it was a hunting license. The next day in Norwich police court the charge against this man of hunting without proper license was first nolled on payment of costs and later when court learned that officers fees went to state instead of to officer, this was changed to nolle without cost.

The case of a Russian alien found fishing in Shetucket river at Greenville with three lines equipped with five baited hooks and who also had one short fish is another example of fish and game law enforcement in the town of Norwich. When this case was brought to the attention of the city court prosecutor he objected to prosecuting, stating that he disliked to establish a court record against the man.

Action in these cases and similar action on some previous ones along the same line, leads this branch of the warden service to believe that it is a waste of time and state money to endeavor to enforce fish and game law in the town of Norwich.

W. S. Watson,
Deputy Fish and Game Warden.
Norwich, Oct. 19, 1925.

Fighting Rats

Cooperation in rodent-control work in the Oregon district is furnished to the representatives of the biological survey of the United States department of agriculture and the extension service of the agricultural college by the Southern Pacific railroad. Track foremen state that as much as 40 per cent of the track work is caused by pocket gophers, and the railroad officials believe that the elimination of these pests, not only from the vicinity of the tracks, but from surrounding farm lands, will prevent them from making winter homes along the tracks when the farm lands become too wet for occupancy. The railroad has furnished the rodent-control man with speeder transportation and an engineer assistant who travels with him from one section to another, giving instructions in poisoning pocket gophers. The entire Southern Pacific railroad system in the Willamette valley has now been covered and foremen and section crews instructed in the methods of poisoning pocket gophers.

CLAIMS SIDE ISSUES ATTRACTS ATTENTION TODAY

Side issues seem to present a more alluring appeal in our day than the main issue, declared Rev. A. N. Foster in his sermon Sunday morning at the church of the Good Shepherd, Universalist. Rev. Mr. Foster spoke upon the theme, he Dominant Purpose Versus the Side Issues, using the text, Isaiah XL: 3. Prepare ye the way of the Lord: make straight in the desert a highway for our God.

In part he said:

"The lives which show a dominating purpose are marked for usefulness, efficiency and that gratitude which recognizes leadership. And yet so commonly we fail to realize the meaning of a large purpose and confuse our vision and scatter our strength by attention to incidentals and accidentals. We th usllive at random or drift aimlessly or serve the purpose of some one else. The process of specialization which is so typical of our day makes the appeal of the side issues more remote, in appeal and in consequences.

Few public principles have been stated more insistently and emphatically than the distinctive principles of American education. The purpose is to educate the youth as a public policy which shall safe guard the best interests of society. The money cost is a secondary consideration and to encourage the building of private schools for the sake of lowering the tax rate is a mistaken economy and a violence to the historic policy. And then again, propaganda is commonly seeking to enter the educational system. In some towns and cities the school children are being asked to pay for repairing the historic frigate Constitution of the United States navy. One wonders why the large and competent navy department doesn't keep its vessels in repair as a matter of routine or if an emergency, why the many wealthy and official organizations of our broad land do not pay the money rather than the boys and girls who, without income, are trying to get an education. As for lessons of patriotism, certainly grown up men and women need such more than children.

Such diversions from the real purpose of education have a weakening influence.

Isaiah, the wonderful prophet of ancient Judea, uses a most effective illustration. He knew the vital importance of connecting one prosperous and resourceful community with another by a great highway which should traverse the desert and so prevent the dangers of isolation. In a later day our fathers built railroads to thus serve social and commercial needs and in our day the automobile further magnifies such service. Back of such needs is the religious impulse and even the wisdom of God which would shape the course of our conduct, and conduct is three fourths of life.

Turpentine and Rosin

The turpentine and rosin industry is of considerable importance in the United States, as indicated by figures recently put out by the bureau of chemistry of the department of agriculture. The various industries which use these products in their manufacturing reported that during the calendar year 1924 they used a total of 6,750,000 gallons of turpentine and 964,850 round barrels of rosin. The manufacturers included in these reports are makers of paint, varnish, soap, paper, rosin oil, pitch, printing ink, shoe polish, leather dressings, sealing wax, fly paper, insulating material, oils, greases, linoleum, roofing, automobiles and wagons, malleable iron and steel, pharmaceuticals, woodmeasure and operators of shipyards. Paint and varnish, shoe polish, leather dressings, and the automobile industry use the greater part of the turpentine, while the paper and paper size, varnish, soap, rosin oil, pitch, and printing ink makers use by far the larger part of the rosin.

Gas For Rats

Rats living about the farmyard of a home near Eureka Lake, Kans., were recently given a taste of modern warfare by a representative of the biological survey of the United States department of agriculture, cooperating with the extension service of the agricultural college, whose time is given to rat-control work and the demonstration of the best means of eliminating this pest. Such delicacies as canned salmon apples, and fresh eggs served in the half shell, seasoned with barium carbonate, were first rationed out along the known runways and haunts of the rats. Then came a gas attack for those that had survived. A small hand duster loaded with calcium-cyanide dust was used for gassing all the burrows and hiding places. Some of the rats plunged into the dust barrage only to die at the operator's feet. A week later the gas treatment was repeated, and the premises are now reported absolutely free of rats.

Studying Reindeer

For some time the biological survey of the United States department of agriculture has been making preparations for an experiment in connection with the improvement of the reindeer stock in Alaska by means of cross-breeding with caribou. After considerable difficulty in obtaining wild caribou a shipment of 16 young bulls was successfully transported to Nunivak island during the past summer. They were delivered at Kokrines for transporting down the Yukon river.

Cured His Rupture

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation if you write to me. Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 239 M Marcellus Avenue, Manasquan, N. J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save rupture and the worry and danger of a life or at least stop the misery of an operation.

TEACHING RELIGION AT THE SCHOOL AGE

The crime wave is on the increase throughout the country. According to statistics it has increased 100 per cent in the last twenty years. Various attempts are being made to check it and eradicate it. One of them is the religous training of our youth.

The Brooklyn Eagle, one of the large metropolitan dailies is running full page advertisements, asking people to go to church, for without churches, "Chaos would reign in all parts of the civilized world. Your property would be valueless. Your business would be wrecked. Your home would vanish. Your family would be unsafe. It is the church that sustained whatever progress we have today. Religion rules mankind. It is the backbone of our laws. It is the cornerstone of our faith in one another."

There are, according to census, 27,000,000 American children and youth under twenty five years of age who are not enrolled in any Sunday school and receive no systematic religious education. All educators agree that religious education is necessary for our youth. The lack of it is, to some extent, responsible for the crime wave that is permeating the country. "Children, according to the Literary Digest, are required to learn something about every branch of human knowledge except that which concerns their immortal souls. They may learn about the men whose career left a trail of human blood and misery, but nothing about their own God." That is sad but it is true.

The proper place to teach children religion and how to live according to Christian principals is the home, church and school. The St. Joseph school will devote some time each school day for teaching religion, because its authorities consider the knowledge of God and His commandments as of utmost importance to every good citizen of this great Republic.

Therefore those who are endorsing the drive for the new St. Joseph school say that contributors of money will be helping to educate thousands of children, many yet unborn, to become God fearing and law abiding citizens. Religion and not bigotry will be taught in the St. Joseph school.

CHANGING FIRE HYDRANTS' COLOR TO YELLOW

The fire hydrants in the city are being painted the standard yellow color in use in other cities. The painting of the hydrants is being done by the water department at the request of Chief Howard L. Stanton, who asked the department to use yellow when they got ready to re-paint the hydrants. The hydrant on the grounds of the Central fire station has been painted yellow for some years and has stood the weather test far better than those painted red. Yellow hydrants are more distinguishable in the snow than red hydrants.

A business meeting was held at 6 o'clock in Grotto hall at which Monarch Herman Steinner presided, following which the Grotto men were served a delicious cold meat and salad supper at the Community house by the Sachem chapter of the Eastern Star. The Grotto orchestra played during the supper hour.

The parade, led by Monarch Steinner, with whom was the guest of the evening, Charles Nichols of Hartford, representing the grand monarch, moved from the Community house about 7.30 and ended at Grotto hall on Broadway, after passing down through Bath street, through Main to Burnham square, countermarch to Broadway and up Broadway to the hall. Music by the Grotto drum corps kept feet moving lively and the uniformed patrol in their zouave costumes made a brilliant spot in the line. The Grotto members wore their black fezes with red tassels.

The ceremonial work was put on in excellent form in the hall and was highly commended by the representative of the grand monarch, who addressed the Grotto after the work and told the prophets that they deserved a high rating in all departments.

Doctor Advised Operation Friend Said Try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound First

St. Paul, Minn. — "I was all run-down from overwork and worry, had no appetite, could not sleep at night, and looked like a corpse. I have six children (five boys and one girl) and did not get any strength after my last baby was born. I was getting worse and thinner every day. The doctor said I had to go to the hospital, but this I could not do on account of my family. So I went to a friend of mine and told her what the doctor had told me and she said, 'Now do as I tell you. Try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as I have done. It helped me.' So I started taking the Vegetable Compound and I noticed after the first few bottles that I

PENN PICKED AS FOOTBALL TITLISTS FOR THE 1925 GRIDIRON SEASON

NEW YORK, Oct. 18—(By the Associated Press)—The mantle on international football supremacy which the middle west had worn for a good share of the past few campaigns, due largely to the winning ability of such wandering warriors as those of Notre Dame and Marquette, is now resting on rugged eastern shoulders.

Some of the most notable intersectional engagements are still to be played, with Pennsylvania holding the spotlight in clashes with Chicago and Illinois on the next two Saturday afternoons, but so far it has been close to a runaway for the east against opponents from the south and middle west.

Up to date the list shows thirteen victories for eastern teams, only two for the middle west and one for the south in clashes that have brought distant rivals into conflict.

Notre Dame's triumph over Baylor and Ohio state's victory over Columbia represent the middle west's toll while Georgia Tech, conquering Penn state, turned in the only successful southern sortie.

Already the east has wiped two old scores off the slate. Notre Dame met crushing defeat at the hands of the army for the first time since 1916, while the navy, by trouncing Marquette, has squared accounts for the setback administered by the Milwaukee eleven in 1924.

The army so far has lifted the scalps of Detroit and Knox, in addition to that of Notre Dame, and is confident of making it four straight this Saturday over mid-western foes in the game with St. Louis at West Point.

Where members of the Western Conference or "Big Ten" have carried the middle west's banner into the fray, however, it has been an even break so far with eastern foes. Ohio state's victory over Columbia last Saturday was offset by Syracuse's defeat of Indiana.

This Saturday marks another important test between rival eastern and middle western championship contenders with Chicago playing Pennsylvania at Franklin field. Two great and unbeaten defensive machines will come into conflict there with Pennsylvania's attacking ability, well demonstrated in upsetting Yale, regarded as likely to turn the tide.

CADETS TO MOTOR TO NEW HAVEN FOR GAME

WEST POINT, Oct. 19—(A. P.)—Forty motor busses stretching along the highway for one mile, will carry the entire West Point cadet corps to New Haven, Saturday, October 31, for the annual football game between the Army and Yale in the Yale Bowl.

This is the first time in the history of the Academy, except when leaving on a march, that the corps of cadets has left other than by train. The fleet of busses will leave the point at 7:30 a. m. on the day of the game, and proceed to New Haven by way of Bear Mountain, Peekskill, Mahopac, Carmel, Brewster, Danbury, Redding Ridge, Bridgeport and Derby. The return trip will be made over the same route.

The Connecticut state police has consented to meet the corps column at Danbury and escort it to the Yale Bowl. The same escort will lead the column back to Bridgeport on the return. Upon arriving in New Haven at 12:30 o'clock, the fleet of busses will be halted one mile from the bowl and parade formation will be sounded and the march to the bowl will start.

"Break ranks" will sound upon arrival at the amphitheatre and the cadets will be allowed to "fall out" to visit friends until 1:30 when parade formation will be sounded again and the march inside the bowl will be started. On the return trip dinner will be served at Bridgeport.

A FOOTBALL IS NOT A "PIGSKIN" ANY LONGER

CHICAGO, October 19—It is all wrong to call a football a "pigskin". Instead, it's a cowhide.

The misnomer has stuck since the ancient days when a hog's bladder was kicked around the English village green. Later it was given a coat of pig hide to make it last longer.

Footballs now are made from cowhide, the best double grained quality, and have been for years. The process of their manufacture will be demonstrated during the convention of the National Tanners' Council of America here, November 3 and 7.

The oval shape of the football also is due to its porcine ancestry, the bladder shape being retained.

AUTO RACES AT ROCKINGHAM CALLED OFF

SALEM, N. H., Oct. 19. (AP)—At 3.15 it was officially announced that the auto races on Rockingham speedway were called off and would be held October 31st. The drivers claimed that the board track was in no condition to race without endangering human lives.

Tommy Milton, circling the track to see whether the race would be possible, skidded and his machine turned a complete circle but did not go over. The crowd kept shouting for the start and did not break up even after the announcement was made.

The large crowd kept insistently demanding that the races start and Milton volunteered to test the condition of the track. On the first lap he took it slowly and began the second in a burst of speed. Reaching the first bank his rear wheels skidded and the machine whirled in a complete circle and part of another. Only Milton's mastery at the wheel saved him from serious injury. The crowd gave him a great hand and was satisfied that the race could not be held and slowly dispersed.

The order in which the drivers were to start today was as follows:

1—DePaolo, Brooklyn, N. Y.
2—B. Hill, Brooklyn N. Y.

DIXON AND SMITH IN FEATURE BOUT AT NEW LONDON

Promoter Joe Grills of Westerly has contracted for another boxing show at the Lyceum theatre in New London on the evening of Oct. 23rd. For the feature bout he has signed Johnny Dixon of Newark to fight a ten-round bout with Steve Smith of Bridgeport. Smith and Dixon fought a fast 12 round draw at the Nutmeg A. C. the past summer. This will make the third bout between these two sluggers and neither has yet secured a decision over the other.

Pinkie Burns is slated to meet Young Montie of New Rochelle, N. Y., in an eight round semi-final.

One of the six round preliminaries will be between Young Levinsky of the Coast Guards and Johnny Peters of Bridgeport. Levinsky has been going good in Stamford, Bridgeport and other places in the state.

For the second preliminary it is planned to secure some fast Norwich boy to meet Kid DeBartlo of Westerly.

SCHEDULE FOR SEAPLANE RACES IS REVISED

BALTIMORE, Oct. 19. (AP)—A revised schedule for the Jacques Schneider trophy seaplane race at Bay Shore Park next Saturday will send the seven planes, representing three countries, away from the starting line at five minute intervals. Captain Henry C. Biard, piloting the British super marine Napier S-4, will be the firs tto leave the water, the order was chosen by lot.

Following Captain Biard across the line will be Lieutenant James H. Doolittle, United States army pilot, in a Curtiss racer. Others in the order of their take-off will be Captain Hubert Broad in the British Gloster Napier III, Lieutenant George T. Cuddihy, United States navy, in a Curtiss racer; and the second navy entry, also a Curtiss racer, piloted by Lieutenant Ralph A. Ofstie; Lieutenant Giovanni De Briganti and his teammate Ricardo Marselli, piloting Nario Castoldi designed Macchi flying boats with Curtiss engines.

AGGIE SCRUBS WILL PLAY AT NEW LONDON TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Oct. 19—Coach Dole changed his plans made for giving the Connecticut Aggie varsity squad a workout today, and instead gave the men their usual Monday afternoon's respite from drill. Announcement was made, however, that the second team would journey to New London tomorrow, where they would play a practice game with the eleven of the Coast Guard academy. The first team will remain in Storrs, where they will be drilled by Freshman Coach Alexander.

Injuries received by those participating in the Massachusetts Aggie game are not as serious as was first feared, and it seems probable that Coach Dole will be able to send an eleven of full strength against the Tufts team at Medford next Saturday.

Comparative scores, which at best are tricky things to toy with, give the Aggies a slight edge in doping the Tufts-Connecticut game. Norwich, the team that downed Tufts 13-0 last Saturday in one of the day's upsets, was defeated by Massachusetts Aggies 19-0 the preceding Saturday. The Connecticut Aggies, holding M. A. C. to one less touchdown, are apparently stronger defensively than the Vermont eleven, and if they can match the Northerners in offensive play they should break into the victory column at the expense of Tufts next Saturday. Whether they will do it or not is another thing, but Coach Dole intends to drive his men long and hard for the approaching contest, working to correct the faults in play that have worked to the detriment of the Nutmeg eleven.

CINCINNATI BUYS OUTFIELDER FROM ST. PAUL CLUB

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 19. (AP)—Walter Christensen, star outfielder of the St. Paul American association team, has been sold to the Cincinnati Nationals. First baseman Nichaus, another player and some cash were given for Christensen.

WORLD'S SERIES MAY BE STARTED A WEEK EARLIER NEXT SEASON

NEW YORK, Oct. 19—(A. P.)—The world's series of 1925 developed a few lessons besides adding proof, for the benefit of Washington fandom, that it's unwise to count the championship chickens before they're hatched.

If various and sundry recommendations have any weight, another season will find the world's series played at an early date to avoid bad weather; the games started earlier in the day to avoid darkness; and newspaper corresponde .ts accomodated with more elbow room.

Most of the club owners who attended the Pittsburgh-Washington melee were of the opinion that the series now is held too late in the season to permit assurance of suitable weather. The fact that two of this year's games were played under unusually bad conditions while rain wiped out play on two other days altogether is likely to prompt action at the annual league meetings to shorten the regular seasons and permit the start of the championship struggle at least a week earlier, probably by October 1.

Sentiment also is crystallizing among the magnates to have the games begin at 1:30 instead of 2 p. m. So far as convenience goes, there is little difference in these times, whereas officials believe that an earlier start would preclude the chance of darkness interrupting hostilities as it did three years ago in a game between the Yankees and Giants.

So far as the correspondents are concerned, they had so little working space in the Pittsburgh press "dugout" that the Baseball Writers' association passed resolutions requesting that hereafter the clubs allot 24 inches instead of 18 to each writer or telegraph operator.

TRYON STIL LAT HEAD OF EASTERN SCORERS

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Eddie Tryon of Colgate, scored only one touchdown against Lafayette Saturday but despite this decrease in his weekly average he has piled up a total of 51 points and is head and shoulders above the field in the chase for individual scoring honors on the eastern intercollegiate gridiron. Tryon has amassed a total of 11 touchdwons and 15 points after touchdown in his four games and leads the east in both of these divisions.

Two Dartmouth halfbacks, trail Tryon, Oberlander and Lane of the Green are tied for second place with nine touchdowns, each for a total of 54 points. Carr of Syracuse is fourth with 52 points and Woerner of Fordham fifth with 49. The leaders follow:

WESLEYAN FRESHMEN PLAY AGGIE YEARLINGS TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Oct. 19.—The Connecticut Aggie freshmen will play their second game in four days tomorrow afternoon when they meet the Wesleyan yearlings at Middletown. It will be the third game of the season for Coach Alexander's team, which to date has dropped a game to Tufts freshmen, played last Friday, by a 14-0 score, and a scoreless tie with Kent school.

Coach Alexander was undecided as to his lineup tonight. The Connecticut yearlings found the Tufts contest a hard battle, and injuries may keep some of the first team on the sidelines. It seems likely that several shifts may be made in the lineup on the basis of play shown in the Tufts game, as several of the substitutes showed to much better advantage than some of the starters. Coach Alexander used twenty-five men in all during the game, which gave him an excellent opportunity to see what many of his candidates could do under actual game conditions.

The probable lineup that Coach Alexander will start against Wesleyan freshmen is Schildgren and Usher or Hewlit, ends; Cromble and Wilson or Sayers ,tackles; McNamara and Gallicurcio or Brown, guards; Callahan, center; Knaut, quarterback; Brown and Dickson, halfbacks; Sahagian or Allard fullback.

Against Tufts, the Aggie frosh flashed an aerial attack in the last few minutes of play that looked good. With Allard, Plainfield boy doing the throwing, and Hewitt, Dickson and Brown on the receiving end, the yearlings made several substantial gains that carried them well into Tufts territory. In case the Aggies uncork their aerial game against Wesleyan, the Middletown team will have to be on the alert to check it.

BIG LEAGUE PLAYERS ON WAY TO MAINE WOODS

FORT FAIRFIELD, Me., Oct. 19—Bob Shawkey, "Babe" Ruth and Bernard Bengough of the New York Yankees, Joe Bush of the St. Louis Browns, Eddie Collins, Chicago White Sox manager, "Muddy" Ruel of the Washington Senators and a friend, George Carns of Philadelphia stopped here today for a short time enroute to New Brunswick for a hunting trip.

They were met by many leading representatives of the chamber of commerce, headed by its president, A. B. Wachlin, and were given a banquet at the Plymouth. It was a big day for this town.

The party, headed by Shawkey, was met here by Charles Cremins, a Tobique river guide, and taken in automobiles to Nictau, N. B., where they plan to hunt big game for 2 weeks or longer, according to how much rest and recreation they need.

ACADEMY SQUAD HAS TWO GAMES THIS WEEK

The Academy football squad has a week of hard work before them when on Wednesday they meet the Stonington High school gridsters at Owen's field in Stonington, while Saturday they clash with Plainfield High on the Academy campus. The local boys have lost both games to date this season and hope to make up for them this week. Coach Whitney has worked his charges hard and long since the beginning of the season and now has what looks like a pretty good team. The material out of which this years team had to be built was new and green and the task of rounding them into a fairly good eleven is a heartbreaking job. The Academy boys are looking forward to the Stonington and Plainfield High games and hope to bring home the bacon in both.

FABER'S INDOOR TEAM SWAMPED BY BATTERY B

Joe Faber's Jewett City All Stars failed to shine Monday evening in their game with the indoor baseball team representing Battery B, the soldiers smothering the stars under a 24 to 1 score. Joe Faber was in the box for the visitors but his support was far from being good. A. Berberich and Goodreau were the battery for the soldiers.

Battery B challenges any indoor team for games during the coming season, especially the McGuiness Whirlwinds, Riverview, Nuggets and Centrals.

LAZERRE BEATS RUTH'S HOME RUN RECORD

SACRAMENTO, Calif., Oct. 19.—(AP)—Babe Ruth is no longer home run king as far as Pacific coast baseball fans are concerned. Tony Lazerre shortstop on the Salt Lake team of the Pacific coast excelled Ruth's record today by knocking his sixtieth circuit clout of the season in the afternoon game here between Salt Lake and Sacramento.

Lazerre knocked his fifty-ninth homer yesterday.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

A week that was broken up by rains slowed up the building operations in Norwich to some extent last week but good progress was made on the interior work on many of the projects now in hand. At the Norwich state hospital where a new ward building is being erected by the H. Wales Lines Co. of Meriden work has been rushed along until the building is fast reaching a stage where the interior work can be done without fear of weather conditions.

The work of remodeling the old Y. M. C. A. building on Broadway for N. S. Gilbert and Son has been practically completed. The new sidewalk in front of the building is now being laid and it is expected that the company will be occupying the building within a short time.

Work on the Sheltering Arms has progressed favorably during the past week and the walls of the building are well along and the building will be roofed in within a short time.

On Geer avenue in Thamesville the work on the house of Mr. Leasemann is fast approaching completion. The frame work has been erected and the building boarded in. Other houses in this section of the city are well along and will be completed before the winter season.

At the office of Fire Marshall Howard L. Stanton on Monday there were several building applications filed but none were granted last week. There have been 19 permits granted so far during October and there is every indication that the number of permits for the month will be up to the normal average.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

During the past week there were 22 sales of real estate, exactly the same number of sales as for the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $265,895 and $47,100.

In New London during the past week the total number of sales of real estate was 15, an increase of three sales over the corresponding week in 1924. The mortgage loans were $88,-619 and $35,182.

Building Permits in the State

As compared to last year, for the same week, 312 permits were issued for the week just ended, for buildings costing $1,571,825, against 303 in the same week of 1924, when buildings cost $720,480; and 282 permits in the same week in 1923, for buildings costing $63,304.

Is There a Building Shortage?

A question which during the past few years of phenominal building expansion has been a perplexing one for builders and those engaged in financing building operations, a question which has an important bearing on real estate values, and one which is the subject of daily discussions in the building field appears to be conclusively answered, so far as the country at large is concerned, in the current issue of Building Age and National Builder. The question is: What is the building situation today? Has the phenominal amount of building activity in the last few years overcome the great shortage resulting from the cessation of practically all building construction during the World War? The answer to the question is given in figures obtained from a country-wide survey by means of a questionnaire addressed to the chambers of commerce, boards of trade, or other commercial organizations in various cities and towns throughout the United States. From 590 complete detailed reports received from all the states it was revealed that despite the large amount of buildings constructed in our cities, there is still today a very considerable shortage of homes and other buildings in our cities of over 25,000 population. The figures disclose that, though apartment houses still favor in our smaller cities, the demand for them in the smaller cities is not so very heavy, and that the greatest apartment house demand is still in the large cities. There is a very great demand throughout the United States for small one-family houses, especially those costing less than $5,000. This demand has not been met to any great extent despite the past three years of abnormal building. The report shows that nearly 220,000 of such buildings are still needed today in the United States to bring the demand back to a normal basis. It is further disclosed that more than 100,000 single-family houses costing from $5,000 to $10,000 are needed.

The greatest single need then, that the building industry must do its best to fill if we are to overcome the housing shortage, according to the Building Age and National Builder, is for moderate cost single-family dwellings. We have been spending money for higher grade buildings but have been ignoring the small home structure.

Blighted Chestnut Timber

With the utilization of much dying and recently killed chestnut timber, the bureau of entomology of the United States department of agriculture has received a number of inquiries as to whether timber killed by the chestnut blight is safe for use. The bureau states that borers infesting a living tree soon die after the tree is felled, and where sound, wormy chestnut timber is used for the cores of veneer, worms emerging from the veneer do not come from the sound through worm-eaten chestnut but from the hard wood veneer itself. The injury is caused by Lyctus powder-post beetles, which lay their eggs in the pores of the sapwood of many species of hardwood, but will not attack chestnut. The knowledge of this fact has recently averted several lawsuits.

Senator Cameron Involved In Suit

KEYSTONE VIEW CO., NEW YORK

The U. S. Government has brought 203 civil suits in Arizona in order to dispossess Cameron's friends of mining claims in Grand Canon, Basin of Colorado River etc., which give the holders control of the Boulder Dam waterpower development. Singularly enough no one of the suits mention Senator Cameron's name—although it is generally conceded that he is involved.

NORWICH TOWN

Under the auspices of the Young People's Christian Endeavor society of the First Methodist Episcopal church, a successful food sale was held Saturday in the Main street store formerly occupied by H. R. Woodard. The sale netted about $23. Miss Florence M. Brown was in general charge of the sale assisted by Miss Theodora Brown, Miss Hazel Cruthers and Miss Elizabeth Gifford.

At the First M. E. church Sunday morning the pastor, Rev. James B. Aldrich preached from Matthew 11:29 Take My Yoke upon you and learn of Me; for I am meek and lowly in heart and ye shall find rest unto your souls.

Edward Howe was the leader of the Christian Endeavor meeting in the evening when the topic was "What Is expected of a Christian Citizen?" Mic. 6:8; Tit. 3:1-8 (citizenship day). The same topic was used at the Christian Endeavor service at Versailles Methodist church, Sunday evening, when Rev. Mr. Aldrich was a visitor there and conducted the meeting.

At the Methodist church Sunday, during the school hour, the following rally day program entitled "The Builders," was carried out by members of the school: Song, Battle Cry of Freedom, junior choir; prayer, Rev. James B. Aldrich; reading, Miss Grace Mitchell; song, Would You be True?, junior choir; reading, Miss Florence Brown; exercise, rally day, primary class: Blossom Ward, Ruth Miller, Annie Mitchell, Norma Rose, Marion Cripps, Marjory Bradford, Lelois Haughton; reading, Miss Theodora Brown; recitation, Smiles Are Catching, Irah Smith; recitation, Their Sunday Dresses, Marion Miller; The Challenge of the Boys and Girls, Miss Brown's class; song, Onward Christian Soldiers, by the same class of boys and girls; recitation, A Soldier Like Father Clarence Smith; reading, Miss Brown; reading, The Challenge of Youth, Miss Elizabeth Gifford; recitation, Our Little Lands, Mary Waters; exercise, The Book We Love, Virginia Ward, Mildred Carter; vocal solo, The Great Judgment Morning, Lewis Aldrich; reading, Miss Grace Mitchell; song, The Soldiers' Loyal, by Junior choir, with Doris Rose taking the solo parts. Interesting remarks by Frederick H. Bushnell, superintendent of the Sunday school, and Rev. James B. Aldrich, pastor of the church concluded the program. Mrs. Richard Carter, teacher of the primary class was in charge of the exercises. Miss Florence Brown was pianist.

Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., pastor of the Central Baptist church, and that church choir, was in charge of the Sunday afternoon service at the Sheltering Arms, instead of Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey and choir from the Norwich Town Congregational church, as announced. Rev. Mr. Bailey and Rev. Mr. Pitt exchanged Sundays, to enable Mr. Bailey to attend the 225th anniversary exercises of Lebanon Congregational church. Others from Norwich Town who were present at the exercises included Thomas H. Bachelder and Herbert L. Yerrington.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick P. Millard (Gladys Belle Beebe, R. N.) whose marriage took place Tuesday, October 6th, returned Friday evening to the home of Mrs. Millard's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George S. Beebe, of Scotland road, following a wedding trip to Boston, Vermont and Bethlehem, N. H. Part of the trip was by train, the remainder by automobile. While enroute to New Hampshire Mr. and Mrs. Millard were among other tourists over Columbus day, who encountered two foot of snow. It took ten hours to travel 25 miles, 40 automobiles being stalled before reaching Bethlehem. Crawford Notch in the mountains was reported blocked with snow. In returning to Norwich, the journey was by way of Lake Champlain thence over the Mohawk trail. Saturday Mr. and Mrs. Millard were guests at the home of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mathew Millard of New London, formerly of Norwich, also called on friends in Ledyard. When leaving Sunday morning for their home in Philadelphia, Mr. and Mrs. Millard were accompanied as far as New London by Mrs. Millard's mother, Mrs. Beebe.

From the production of The Great Chicken Case (Abduction of Daisy White) Friday evening in the Norwich Town Congregational chapel, the men's class under whose auspices the mock trial was given cleared $39. The several members of the cast have been highly complimented for their excellent work. So much enthusiasm has been manifested since, it has been requested by many Norwich Town people that the mock trial be repeated, also put on in Hanover, at some future date. This substantial sum is to be used toward the general expense of renovating and redecorating the chapel. Thus far, through the assistance of a number of volunteer workers men of the parish have shingled the roof, the work being accomplished in about two days. The Drop-in class of the Sunday school, as the result of a successful sale and cafeteria supper has been influential in having a hardwood floor laid in the parlor. The interior has been freshly painted. The exterior of the chapel was painted a few years ago, as was also the church. Meantime the interior of the church has been redecorated, making the church property much more attractive.

John C. Hinricks, Jr., a student at Brown university, has returned to Providence after spending the week-end at his home.

Dr. and Mrs. Charles H. Lamb of Town street had as callers on Sunday afternoon, Dr. Lamb's relatives from Mystic, Mrs. Harriet E. Brainerd and Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence J. Gremley.

The First Congregational Young People's Christian Endeavor service Sunday evening was in charge of the Information and Citizens committee. Miss Jessie E. Hyde opened the meeting and offered prayer. After the singing of a hymn by the congregation an interesting talk concerning the interests of the Connecticut Humane Society, was given by District Agent Frederic H. Wyant, who said in substance:

The Connecticut Humane society is now in the 45th year of its existence. Last year was marked by a notable expansion in volume of its work, by an increase in both the outreach and effectiveness of that work and by a growing public appreciation of and regard for the society and its activities. Never before have its operations for the protection of abused humans and animals been so great, or so widely extended. The extent and scope of its beneficient ministrations for the alleviation of suffering and the relief of unfortunates is statewide reaching to the remotest corners of Connecticut. This requires the expenditure of considerable money, but affords subscribers the satisfaction of knowing that no call regarding cruelty and suffering therefrom, however distant, has gone unheeded.

There are at present in New Haven, Bridgeport, Stamford and Norwich branch offices, manned and equipped for prompt and efficient attention to all complaints. At headquarters in Hartford there are 14 employes, six of whom are engaged in field work, there are three employed at both Bridgeport and New Haven, and one at both Stamford and Norwich, with an additional part-time agent at New London, a part of the Norwich district. There are 10 automobiles needed to carry on this work.

In addition to this, 175 so-called local agents who because of their great love of animals, volunteer their services along that line, in the various sections of the state where they live.

The general assembly's sympathetic attitude toward this work was shown in 1921 by the passing of several additional important bills which were either presented or advocated by the society. The most important of these probably was the one embodied in an amendment sponsored by the state board of education requiring that instruction in the humane treatment and protection of animals and birds and their economic importance be given in all public schools of the state. Punishment for violation of an human code of conduct doubtless has a repressive value, but, after all more far-reaching results are to be found in right influence brought to bear upon the young, in their formative years.

Another bill passed was one providing punishment for any person willfully or unlawfully causing or permitting a child under 15 years to be placed in such a situation that life or limb is endangered, or its health likely to be injured, or its morals impaired. A bill authorizing the governor to appoint upon request duly accredited agents as special police officers, empowered to arrest and detain any person violating any provision of the general statutes concerning the neglect or cruel treatment of children, or animals, a bill empowering courts to commit to the society for temporary detention children under 16; one creating a department of child welfare and one establishing juvenile courts and defining their procedure, were among the more important ones.

During last year, 15,588 horses were examined, 1,744 stables, 938 public markets and 471 slaughter houses were inspected and there were 29 horses, 118 dogs and 133 cats cared for at the shelter; 726 dogs and 7159 cats were humanely destroyed and 39 lost animals were restored to their owners.

In the family work, there were 1085 families under supervision in which 3 830 children were concerned, while relief was furnished for 97 aged men and 156 aged women.

There was 165 prosecutions for cruelty to animals and 203 prosecutions necessary in the family work.

Even with as brief an account as this it is not difficult to realize that it requires considerable funds to carry on a work so noble an one much needed as this; and while it is a fact that Connecticut does appropriate a small portion and from time to time there has been bequeathed a number of very substantial funds, yet much more is needed each year, which must come from the small contributor. So that after all it is from this class of donations that the work is made possible and I would take this opportunity of asking those present if they would not only include the Connecticut Humane society in their list of charitable contributions, but also talk the subject over with their friends and try to persuade them to do likewise.

One death and six injuries, three of them serious resulted from motor vehicle accidents in Hartford over the week-end, all occurring during daylight hours.

NORWICH DOINGS 75 YEARS AGO

In Norwich 75 years ago people read with interest and wonder of a Charleston, Mass., inventor who had invented a type of balloon that he could guide through the air in any direction. He made a trip of several miles and remained in the air flying about the eastern part of Massachusetts for an hour and twenty minutes before coming down. Those who believed the report said that the time had come when people would fly about in the air instead of using the horse and wagon and the railroads.

Extracts from the files of the Courier of 1850 follow:

Tuesday, Oct. 15, 1850—On Wednesday the Temperance society of New London county met in session at New London and the following officers were elected: President, S. W. Tompkins of Norwich; vice presidents, Joseph Hurlburt of New London, Moses Pierce, of Norwich, John Avery of Lebanon, John F. Trumbull of Stonington and Rev. T. L. Shipman of Jewett City, secretary H. H. Starkweather of Norwich; executive committee, John Dunham, Rev. Alvan Bond, Rev. E. T. Hiscox, Isaac Bromley, Rev. John Lovejoy and Richmond Cranston of Norwich, Rev. Mr. Warren, Andrew Frink, Robert Fellows and P. L. Berry of New London.

In eight concerts given by Jenny Lind in Boston she has given $7,255 to charities in that city. Since coming to America she has given from her concerts $18,255 to charity besides what she has given of her own money.

Thursday, Oct. 17, 1850—At a meeting of the Hudson Engine Co. No. 1, held at their Station house on Friday Oct. 11, for the choice of officers for the year ensuing David Moore was chosen foreman, H. L. Butts, first assistant, E. S. Osgood, second assistant, E. F. Stone, secretary, N. B Bates, treasurer and collector, J. M. Spencer, foreman of hose.

During the recent congressional elections in 13 states the whigs elected 72 members of congress, the democrats 43 and the free staters 7.

The practicability of navigating the air by means of a flying machine has been satisfactorily demonstrated by John Taggart of Charlestown, Mass. He gave a demonstration of the other day and remained in the air an hour and twenty-three minutes traveling considerable distance. His machine consists of a gas bag to which is attached a car. In front of the car are wings shaped like the screw to a propeller which are moved on an axle that are turned from the center of the car and the wings or propellors can be used in ascent or descent. The flying machine is guided by a rudder which acts very quickly on the machine. Mr. Taggart after his trip which took him from Lowell to Andover then to Redding and a distance out to sea he was so high that the rarified air caused blood to spurt from his nose. Mr. Taggart will take his machine to New York where he will give a demonstration.

A very large meeting of the citizens of Connecticut was held in Hartford on Saturday to express their approbation of the measures passed by congress for the adjustment of difficulties growing out of slavery.

Saturday, Oct. 19, 1850—An accident happened to the express freight train on the Norwich and Worcester road on Thursday evening near Oxford. The engine and four or five cars were considerably damaged and the engineer (Mr. Barton) had a leg broken and was otherwise injured. The accident was caused by the cow-catcher meeting with some obstruction and throwing the engine across the track.

The journeymen ship carpenters in seaport towns have struck for higher wages. They now receive $1.50 per day but ask $1.75 and break off work to obtain it.

Sweets for Athletes

Scientists have upset the dope of hard-hearted trainers who rule candy off the diet of athlete says, Science. Dr. Burgess Gordon and several other physicians of Boston have found as a result of experiments at marathon runners who have lived on a generous carbohydrate diet during the training season and who eat candy before and during the race not only come out ahead but are also in much better physical condition than those who run unsweetened.

The experimenters got the hint that sugar had something to do with the physical condition of runners when a series of blood tests made a year ago after the American marathon race revealed that those who were most exhausted showed very low blood sugar, and others, less exhausted, showed a somewhat higher sugar percentage. Some extreme cases even presented an appearance similar to that of stock produced in diabetic patients by an overdose of insulin, a substance of sugar in the blood and which diabetics lack.

Results of blood tests made accordingly, using sugar rations during this year's marathon, have just been made public. Runners were placed on high carbohydrate diets before the race, besides being given large doses 24 hours before and supplied with candy and oversweetened tea at wayside stations. The blood tests after the race showed normal blood sugars in all cases in contrast to previous results. There was striking improvement in general physical condition and running time was faster in many cases.

Weight of an Inch of Rain

Two men were disputing as to the weight of an inch of rainfall. "I read somewhere that it is 101 tons of water to the acre," said one. "No," said the other, "I'm positive the correct figure is 113 tons." The weather bureau of the United States department of Agriculture says that both are right. The rainfall in the first instance was reckoned by the long ton, or 2,-240 pounds, the common ton in Great Britain. The long ton is used for some purposes in this country, but the short ton, or 2,000 pounds, which gave the second result, is more usual here.

When Mrs. Leon Ostrom, of Liberty, Pa., saw a wildcat swimming toward the shore of the duck pond with one of her ducks in its mouth, she became a determined woman. She armed herself with a club and followed the cat until it ran under a log. By jabbing the cat with a pointed stick, she forced it to turn upon her and then stunned it with a club, subsequently beating it to death.

WESTERLY

Monday morning at 8 o'clock, Mabel Anna Sutton Cook, of Westerly, daughter of Frank E. Cook, was united in marriage with James Bernard Carry, of Washington, D. C. Rev. J. F. Vincent, S. M., pastor of the Immaculate Conception church solemnized the marriage and was celebrant at the nuptial high mass. The wedding party entered the church as the Lohengrin wedding march was played by Mrs. Frank G. Ahern, the organist. The bride was gowned in oak-wood brown chiffon, velvet trimmed, with fur and large hat to match. Her bouquet was of butterfly roses. She was attended by her cousin, Miss Bessie Fenelon, of Yonkers, N. Y., who wore a frock of ashes of roses tint and carried chrysanthemums.

Harry Francis Cook of Springfield, Mass., a brother of the bride, was best man. During the service "Ave Maria" by Gounod, was sung by Martin H. Spellman and "O Salutaris," by Jordan, was given by Miss Helen K. McGrath, a cousin of the bride. Following the wedding a reception was held at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Gilbert D. Beebe, 136 West Broad street, Pawcatuck. Mr. and Mrs. Carry left Westerly for a wedding trip to Niagara Falls and Detroit. On their return they will make their home at Ashmead place, Washington, D. C., Mr. Carry being superintendent of the Chestnut Hill Farm dairy, there. Mrs. Carry is well known in Westerly, having been secretary to the manager of the Westerly branch of the Industrial Trust company for a number of years. She was a graduate of Weserly High school and an active member of the Tuesday club of Westerly.

The Buick touring car of August Larson, on Monday just before noon cut didoes on High street, now two minutes after its owner and driver left it parked on the east side of the street, between the Westerly post office and the Colonial club. Mr. Larson was going up the street when passers by hailed him, to point to his automobile backing slowly and unoccupied toward Dixon square. In front of the Industrial Trust bank building the auto backed across the middle of the street, and struck the forward fender of the heavy truck of the Lorraine Manufacturing company which was proceeding toward the square. After striking the truck a glancing blow, the rear end climbed the sidewalk and had almost reached the plate glass show window of Vars Bros. drug store. The only damage resulting was a bent rear fender. Chief of Police T. E. Brown and Patrolman George Madison investigated the mishap.

But four days remain for court cases in this September session of superior court for Washington county, in which the Westerly trial calendar is under consideration before Associate Justice Antonio A. Capotosto in the county court house on Union street. This was learned when Judge Capotosto, on Monday, said he was due in Kent county on next Monday and when little business was transacted, due to a misunderstanding. A telephone message to Providence brought Attorney M. Walter Flynn, Jr., back for the contested will case of John D. McGrath vs. John J. Dunn, executor, et al, in which Mr. Dunn is represented by Attorney John F. Gallagher. It developed that this case might run over the allotted and Justice Capotosto said he felt that will cases should not be gone over hurriedly, with the consequence of having decisions reversed later. The note case of Byers vs. Hall was passed at the previous sitting of court in Westerly.

The case of McGrath vs. Dunn was set down as the first case to follow the attorney general's docket at Kingston for the November term, to come up on the first trial day at Kingston when it could be marked for trial at the Westerly session if the parties so desired at that time. Joseph Ferraro vs. Louis Weisinger was marked passed. In the action on a will case, Anna Evelyn Faulk vs. Lydia M. Davis, executrix, Attorney Gallagher announced that the case was in process of settlement. The case of John Pandola vs. Harry Henseh, alias, was reported as settled.

Annunziata Serra vs. Gabriele Falcone, alias, is the case to come up this (Tuesday) morning for jury trial and it is hoped, if possible to try three other cases to be grouped with it, Charles Serra vs. James Falcone, Angeline G. Falcone vs. Charles Serra and Angeline G. Falcone vs. Mary A. Serra.

Attorney Flynn asked that the two equity cases Mooney vs. Tuckerman and Mooney vs. Luppinazzo be continued to the November term for Westerly trial. The jurors who had been excused in the morning to report at 2 p. m. were again excused, to report this (Tuesday) morning at 10.45 o'clock.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Burdick Saturday at 3 p. m. Rev. Arnt L. Schoning, pastor of the Broad Street Christian church, united in marriage Miss Clara Mildred Greene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Greene of Westerly, and Vernon Oscar Herbert, son of Oscar Herbert of North Stonington. The ceremony took place amid autumn leaves and under a canopy of red, white and blue with a wedding bell suspended.

The bride was attired in white satin trimmed with Spanish lace and pearls. Her bridesmaid, Miss Antoinette De Placito, was gowned in crushed strawberry crepe de chine, trimmed in silver Spanish lace with hat to match. The bride carried a bouquet of brdia. roses and her bridesmaid carried pink carnations.

The bride entered walking with Frank Ingersby of Westerly, the best man, while the wedding march was being played by Ruth Brown.

The bride's gift to her bridesmaid was a beautiful beaded bag and the groom's gift to the best man was gold cuff-links.

A wedding supper was served. The wedding cake was made and beautifully decorated by Ruth Brown of Westerly. The bride's gifts were numerous, consisting of silver, cut glass, linen and money.

Among the guests were friends from Sterling, Conn., Hartford, Bradford, North Stonington and St. Petersburg, Fla.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert left in the afternoon for Providence and Boston. On their return they will reside at the Herbert homestead on the North Stonington road.

The funeral of Maria Munro Freestone, who died Tuesday evening at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Adin Sheldon, was held Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Charles Gavitt funeral house. The service was conducted by Rev. Ernest E. Morrill of the Congregational church. Burial was in River Bend cemetery, members of the family acting as bearers.

Mrs. Freestone was born in Riverpoint, R. I., June 22, 1853. For a number of years she was a resident of Norwich, where she married the late Stafford C. Freestone of Lisbon, Ct. Mr. Freestone met death by accident in Ponemoh mill, Taftville, a number of years ago. To them six children were born, four of whom are living, Edward S. of Westerly, William A. and Robert M. Freestone of Pawcatuck and Mrs. Alice F. Sheldon, with whom she made her home. Also surviving are five sisters, Mrs. David Buchanan of North Adams, Mrs. James Lewis, Mrs. George Campbell of Wickford, Mrs. Tillie Card of Peace Dale and Mrs. Henry Fenner of Hopkinton City.

Recorded in the Westerly Town Clerk's office are the following transfers: Oct. 17. Washington Trust company to Shelter Harbor corporation, a quit claim deed for Lots Nos. 19 and 20 in Sec. XII map of bungalo sites, Musicolony. COTTRELL PROPERTY SOLD AS HOME FOR CATHOLIC TEACHERS

WESTERLY, R. I., Oct. 19.—The property of the late William H. Cottrell, 118 High street, occupied by Mrs. Ella J. Stillman, was sold at public auction Monday morning to settle the estate. Representing various interests were Judge Edward M. Burke and Attorney S. H. Davis. Oliver P. Crandall acted as auctioneer. The bidding was spirited, beginning at $10,000 and the property was finally sold to Charles L. Fontana for $15,737.50. It is reported he purchased the same for the Immaculate Conception parish to be occupied by teachers in the new school building being erected on the adjoining lot. The Cottrell farmhouse and woodlot, located on Bradford road about two miles from Westerly was sold to Mrs. Ella Stillman for $3,950, and a ten-acre tract of cedar swamp, located across the tracks of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, was sold for $35.

A prank of nature which attracts tourists passing through Union, N. H., is a tree close to the main highway growing in a rotted fence post. Years ago a seed from a poplar tree became lodged in the decayed post and it gradually developed until it reached the hight of five feet. The only nourishment it gets is from the old post.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

IMPROVED OAT VARIETIES DEVELOPED FOR NEW YORK

A number of high-yielding oat varieties have been developed by the New York state expriment station in cooperation with the United States department af agriculture. Six of these varieties, the Comewell, Cornellian, Empire, Ithacan, Standwell, and Upright, are discussed in department circular 353 just issued by the United States department of agriculture. Tested on New York farms for a period of four years, 1921 to 1925, each of these varieties gave an average yield of more than 50 bushels per acre.

The investigational work to develop these high-yielding varieties was undertaken because of the important place the oat crop holds in the agriculture of New York, and because the general average of the crop over the entire state has been but 31.9 bushels per acre for the past 16 years. This low yield has been due in part to the use of poorly adapted and low-yielding varieties.

During the six-year period from 1918 to 1923, inclusive, in experiments at Ithaca the Cornellian has produced decidedly the highest average yield, exceeding its nearest competitor, the Ithacan, by more than 5 bushels to the acre. The yield of the Cornellian was 58.9 bushels.

NEW ENGLAND APPLES MEET SATISFACTORY MARKET

The fall movement of New England apples marketward has been unusually heavy, but prices at the larger markets have held at levels satisfactory to most growers. Producers in touch with these markets or having an active market at the roadside enjoy many advantages not open to producers located in remoter regions and out of the main streams of travel.

Prices are somewhat lower than at this time last year but during the week ending October 3 the Boston market received 40 per cent more local apples than during the corresponding week in any of the past three years. In view of this heavy movement prevailing prices may be considered good.

The production of commercial apples in the United States is estimated at 30,124,000 barrels or five per cent above last year. Washington usually produces about one fourth of the commercial apple crop of the country and this year has a crop of 8,160,000 barrels, or 22 per cent above last year's crop and five per cent above her average crop for the last 5 years. A considerable part of the Washington crop consists of Winesaps, an important competitor of eastern Baldwins.

The outstanding feature of the New England crop is the relatively large crop of good quality McIntosh. Massachusetts reports 92 per cent of a full McIntosh crop and Maine and New Hampshire, crops of 85 and 87 per cent respectively. The Baldwin crop is light but of good quality. The short Baldwin crop will facilitate the marketing of the large McIntosh crop by lengthening the season during which they can be sold. The season is earlier this year than last and Macs were the leading variety in the Boston market shortly after the middle of September. More Macs are also moving into storage this year than last. On October 7 this year, 30,000 boxes and 3,000 barrels of apples had moved into cold storage in Boston as compared with 3,000 boxes and 200 barrels last year at this time. The carlot movement of apples up through September and the first few days of October was thirteen to fourteen per cent larger than last season.

However, in spite of the larger commercial crop, the total production of apples in the United States is estimated at 164 millions bushels. This is 15 million bushels less than last year and 17 million bushels less than the average for the last five years. For this and other reasons it seems probable, that, while prices may continue at a level somewhat lower than last year, the apple market will nevertheless be fairly strong for New England growers. New York apples are not subject to a very heavy freight rate but a freight charge of about 75 cents per bushel on apples from the northwest gives the New England grower a distinct advantage in supplying local markets.

According to the October 7th Special Apple report issued by the Massachusetts department of agriculture A 2 3-4 inch McIntosh are now selling at $2.25 to $2.50 per box which is only 25 cents per box below the 1924 price for the same grade. A 2 1-2 inch Macs are selling mostly at $2.00 which is 25 to 50 cents below the price on this grade last year. This difference in price is not alarming in view of the large crop of Macs resulting from the combination of a very full crop and the coming into bearing of recent new plantings of this variety. Farmers pack, hand picked Macs, jumble pack, 2 1-4 inch up, A and B mixed, bring from $1.50 to $2.25, with $1.50 to $1.75 the usual range on ordinary packs.

Probably half of the apples not gathered were blown off by the recent storms. This will, no doubt, cause a heavy movement of drops to market in the immediate future and will reduce the quantity available for the later market and for storage.

FREQUENTLY CULTIVATE TO KILL QUACK GRASS

Quack grass was completely killed by several treatments in a series of trials recently reported by the Michigan Agricultural Experiment station. This report is of particular interest because few carefully planned and conducted tests have been reported by the various experiment stations. Furthermore, soil and climatic conditions under which the Michigan experiments were conducted, are much like those in this state. Plant characteristics of the ill-famed quack grass (witch grass) are identical everywhere.

A fifty acre field was divided into eight sections for as many different treatments. Three sections were plowed at depths of three, six and eight inches, October 23 to November 5, 1923. The following spring two of these were harrowed with spring tooth harrows and one with a disc at intervals of ten days or as often as the quack grass appeared (five to six times) then then seeded with alfalfa August 12, 1924. None of these showed evidence of quack grass in 1925.

Another plot was plowed in October, 1923, and seeded to oats and alfalfa April 20, 1924. On this quack grass was very evident in thick patches in 1925.

Spring plowing, May 20 to June 16, 1924, followed by the spring tooth and disc harrow each five times and seeding with alfalfa August 24, 1924, was not effective. Quack grass reappeared very quickly.

Another plot was also spring plowed six inches deep. Instead of seeding with alfalfa in August, the disc was used once and the spring tooth six times after August 25, 1924. This was plowed six inches deep in November and then four inches in the spring of 1925. Corn was planted but no quack grass appeared.

Special quack grass tools were used on two plots but these did not prove any better than the ordinary disc and spring tooth harrows.

The foregoing indicate the desirability of fall plowing, frequent and thorough cultivation for removing quack grass. Treatments were successful only when the quack was entirely dead before seeding to a crop. It is probable that fall plowed land, thoroughly harrowed in the spring and seeded thickly with a quick growing crop such as oats or millet, harrowed before seeding in midsummer would be as effective as continued fallowing. The latter practice is becoming common in Connecticut.

OUTLOOK FOR NEW ENGLAND CROPS

Later judgments as to total yields of hay indicate considerable gains over earlier estimates so that the total estimate for New England time hay now stands at 4,814,000 tons or 6 per cent above last month, 9 per cent above last year and 17 per cent above the 5 year average. Estimated production this year is larger than last year in all states except Rhode Island. Maine and Vermont, the two surplus hay states show important gains. United States hay also shows 6 per cent gain over last month, but is 12 per cent below last year and 5 per cent below average.

Oats are most important of New England's grains for feed, especially in the three northern states, and show 2 per cent gain over last month. Estimated total production is 9,941,000 bushels against 8,355,000 last year and 8,671,000, the 5 year average for New England. The substantial increases result from larger acreages and higher yields. Maine has over half the total and Vermont has nearly 30 per cent. United States oats production, with a small gain the past month is five per cent below last year's big crop, but 11 per cent above the five year average.

Corn for grain, silage or stover gained somewhat in September in northern states, but hardly held its own in southern New England. Expected production, due to larger acreages and yields, is 16 per cent larger than last year and average. The crop is materially larger than last year except in Vermont. The United States crop gained slightly in September and production will be 20 per cent larger than last year's short crop and practically equal to the five year average.

New England pastures during September declined generally except in Massachusetts and on October 1 were rated about equal to last year but four points below average, while pastures throughout the country are five or six points under average for Oct. 1. Although rainfall in many parts of New England has been deficient this season it has been so well distributed that crops as a whole have turned out quite well.

During September New England potatoes changed very little and remain 23 per cent short of last year's big crop and six per cent below the five year average. Maine, with 31,008,000 bushels against 41,175,000 last year and her average of 31,725,000 has 73 per cent of the New England total. In nearly all parts of New England the crop is much less than last year. Following for states of most intrest are figures for potato production this year and last in bushels: New York 39,518,000 and 46,620,000; New Jersey 5,613,000 and 11,544,000; Pennsylvania 26,583,000 and 29,792,000; Michigan 26,384,000 and 38,252,000; Wisconsin 23,632,000 and 31,460,000; Minnesota 25,851,000 and 44,352,000. The United States total is 344,227,000 bushels, or 24 per cent less than last year's 454,784,000 bushels. The outlook is for a strong market at rising prices throughout the season.

WILLIAM S. LEE IS FOUND DEAD IN A NEW LONDON LODGING HOUSE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 19—William E. Lee, about 50, residing at 131 Main street, a lodging house, was found dead in bed this afternoon, death having resulted from acute alcoholism or possibly strangulation. Medical Examiner Charles Kaufman viewed the body a short time after it was discovered and after ascertaining the facts in connection with Lee having been found lifeless, ordered the body removed to an undertaking establishment.

Lee was employed at the Coffee Pot, a restaurant at 133 Main street, as dishwasher. Sunday afternoon, when Lee put in an appearance to go to work, he was intoxicated. After Lee had smashed a number of dishes, Thomas Hamrah, proprietor of the establishment relieved Lee of further duty and instructed him to go to his room until Lee was sober enough to take care of his work. Lee went up the stairs leading to his room, but before he was able to reach the room, he fell on the floor. Two sailors found Lee stretched on the floor an hour after he left the restaurant and picking him up, placed him in bed, face-downward on the pillow. That was the last seen of Lee alive for shortly after 5 o'clock this afternoon Thomas Hamilberry, a utility man employed at the lodging house, went to Lee's room and found the occupant of the bed cold in death. Lee had resided in New London several years, moving to this city from Potter Hill, R. I. He is survived by a brother, James Lee, of this city.

Complaint made by a resident of Golden street that the house at No. 60 on that street was the resort of men and women who did not conduct themselves as the law requires, led to a raid of the premises and the arrest of a sailor and a young woman of 25, the wife of another sailor, who were found in a room in the house. The woman declared that she hired the room awaiting the return of her husband, and that she had the company of a gentleman with whom she had long been friendly. The sailor was wise and he told the same story. There was no contradiction of what they said for the police had no other information that was reliable. The woman said she was to have gone to work today in the Sheffield dentifrice establishment, but that her detention and a lame ankle prevented that. She had made up her mind that she would go to Boston, where she has friends and relatives. The court was of the opinion that such plans would be the best the woman could make and allowed her to get out of town by this evening. The sailor was turned over to the state pier commander.

There were several other sailors in the pen when the court opened. They were accused of intoxication and of unbecoming conduct, and were disciplined by fines or suspended judgment. One of them was charged with having kicked in the door at the residence of Dorothy Lewis, 617 Main street, because he evidently wanted there. He had been the friend of Dorothy at one time, but—never again. He was fined $10. That was expensive kicking and it brought no satisfaction.

Charles Shomquist of West Palm Beach, Florida, was the dizziest man that ever drove an automobile, in the opinion of those who encountered him, Sunday, on the road. He bumped into the automobile of Perley Wilbur and then careened to another machine, doing $25 damage to the Wilbur car. He had nothing to say, when charged with operating a car while under the influence of intoxicating liquor and was fined $100. He paid this with the costs and settled for the damage he had occasioned to the car Shomquist came north to do road work and has been employed about Mystic. He was absolutely honest in his predicament and paid all the expenses it involved without a murmur, saying, when he had done that he would never be caught again.

Glenn Fowlkes and a fellow ship mate employed on one of the tugs of the Thames Towboat company, became intoxicated while their boat was at the wharf up the river. Fowlkes comes from the south and wanted it known that he did not like the negro in any phase of life. He encountered Edward Jones, a clever colored man at a fruit stand on Main street where Jones was making a purchase and abused him like a pickpocket. He insulted the man gratuitously and finally hurled him into the street. Mr. Jones has some ideas about fair treatment, these having been obtained about hotels where he has been employed. He called on the telephone for police assistance and then kept the belligerent Fowlkes under vision till the officer came. In the police court this morning Jones told what had occurred and Fowlkes was ordered to pay a fine of $25. His companion was assessed $5. The bill of the pair was close to $50, a fairly expensive taxation for a spree and a demonstration of hatred for a man whose skin happens not to be white.

One parker on the east side of Bank street was arraigned, but judgment was suspended as there seemed to be mitigating circumstances about the offense.

It was revealed today that the residence of Mrs. J. B. Collins, 7 Brooks street, was not burglarized last Saturday, as alleged to the police by Mrs. Collins, for this morning Mrs. Collins communicated with the authorities and made it known that she had erred in reporting her home entered and between $35 and $40 stolen. Mrs. Collins stated that she had left the money and a leather fold, containing valuable papers, at the residence of a relative where she called Saturday afternoon and that she had suffered no loss whatever.

Mr. and Mrs. Carey Congdon, recently married in Philadelphia, have concluded their wedding journey and have arrived in New London. Mr. Congdon, who is a director of finance, resumed his duties at the municipal building today.

City Clerk Julian D. Moran has resumed his duties at the municipal building after his vacation.

Ambrose Cassara has sold a building lot on Avery court to Henry A. Daniels.

Mrs. Almon Fenn and infant daughter, of 316 Ashcraft road; Roland Brousseau, a member of the crew of the U. S. S. Beale, state pier; Richard Beatle, Newport, R. I.; Master Julian B. Drew, 79 Ashcraft road; Mrs. Frank Rotban, 3 Jennie street; Mrs. Mary Briggs, 174 Jefferson avenue; Miss Rose Quane otte, Waterford, and Mrs. John Atchales and infant daughter of 401 Williams street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital were dismissed today.

Mrs. Joaquina Fidalgo 65, a former resident of New London, died suddenly of asthma at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Joseph Goulart at Leonard Center, this forenoon. Mrs. Fidalgo, who was the widow of Antone Fidalgo, resided in New London many years, moving to Ledyard Center about three years ago to make her home with her daughter. Mrs. Fidalgo has had asthma a long time, but her condition today was no worse than it had been for a number of weeks. During the early forenoon, Mrs. Fidalgo suffered a sinking attack and expired before medical aid could be summoned.

Hans Hanson, 76, died Saturday night at his residence, 106 Union street, death resulting from infirmities attending age. Mr. Hanson was well and favorably known having been a seafarer practically his entire life. He was for many years employed as master of Ram Island lightship. He is survived by his wife.

An automobile owned by David Banks, Waterford, was in collision this morning with an automobile owned by Vanderman Brothers, Hartford. The latter machine was damaged and Mr. Banks assumed responsibility for the accident, agreeing to pay for the repair of the damaged car.

Another Maine girl is missing from her home and for the second time within a week the New London police have been requested to institute a search for runaway girls from that state as it is believed both girls headed for New London when they ran away from home. This forenoon Perley F. Young, R. F. D., Bangor, Me., visited the New London police station and made it known that his niece, Florence Young, 19, had disappeared from her Bangor home and it was the opinion of relatives of the girl that she would come to this city. A search of lodging houses, hotels and restaurants was made, but no trace of the girl was found. Neither have the police been able to locate Alberta Louise Pearson, daughter of Frank Pierson, of Bath, Me., who ran away from home on the 6th inst., and was believed to have come to New London.

Bennie Restkusky, Mystic, was fined $100 and costs, the latter amounting to $13.19, on a charge of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor, and Dominick Podzolnie, also of Mystic, was fined $10 and costs, the latter amounting to $12.70, on a charge of intoxication when they were arraigned before Judge Cornelius C. Costello in the Groton town court this afternoon.

Restkusky was operating his motorcycle, with Podzolnie as a passenger on it, on the back road from Groton to Mystic, last night. When a short distance from Groton the cycle crashed against a telephone pole, wrecking the machine and hurling Restkusky and Podzolnie to the highway. The former bleeding and bruised, together with Podzolnie, were found by a passing autoist and brought to the New London police station, where the pair were turned over to the Groton state police.

Anthony Ricci, of Dennison avenue, Groton, was presented on a charge of violation of the liquor law, being charged with keeping liquor with intent to sell. The case was continued to next Monday. Ricci was taken into custody a week ago when officers raided his home and seized a quantity of liquor.

Joseph Dodo, formerly of Poquonoc Bridge, was arrested this morning by State Police Officer Giles Watson, charged with failure to pay the cost of his trial in the Groton court a week ago. Dodo was arrested Sept. 26 charged with the theft of an automobile tire. He was fined $5 and costs, but upon his promise to return the tire the fine was remitted and Dodo was allowed his liberty, on his assurance that he would remit the costs to the court. This he failed to do and his second arrest followed. Today when in court he was compelled to pay the costs of his first trial, $10.17 and an additional costs of $8 for his arrest today.

Bruno Mazzacca, New London, was fined $25 and costs on a charge of reckless driving. He pleaded not guilty, but with the introduction of testimony Judge Costello imposed the fine. Mazzacca's car was in collision with a machine owned and driven by Clarence A. Watson, of Mystic, at that place the 10th inst.

John V. Heade, of Norwich, was arraigned on a charge of violation of the motor vehicle law in failing to give right of way and was fined $5 and costs. Heade was arrested on the 11th inst.

Frank Campana, New London, charged with violation of the motor vehicle law in operating a motor vehicle without having a license to do so was fined $5 and costs. Campana was arrested Sunday by State Police Officer Henry Albright.

As told in the Mystic news of The Bulletin Monday Benjamin Coleman, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Coleman Cohanzie, is a patient at Home Memorial hospital New London, suffering from a gun-shot wound in the left arm sustained while hunting in Quakertown. Coleman with his brother Richard, had been hunting sometime when they sat down to rest. Richard Coleman picked up the gun to apply the safety and in doing so the gun exploded, the contents of a cartridge entering the forearm of Benjamin Coleman. The latter was taken to Mystic where medical treatment was provided, after which the young man was transferred to the local institution.

William Otto Ruth, a sailor, stationed at the submarine base and Mrs. Elizabeth Seeley Gavitt, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gavitt, 5 Pearl street, were married Saturday evening at the parsonage of the First Church of Christ by Rev J. Romeyn Danforth.

Louis Kenneth Barraclough, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Barraclough, of Greenmanville avenue, Mystic, died Saturday at Home Memorial hospital, where he had been under treatment three weeks. The young man had been in the employ of the Rossie Velvet company about a year.

Two youths, William Deignan, 16, of 19 Lydia street, Providence, and Peter Glynn, 17, of 150 Smith street, Providence, were taken into custody late this afternoon by Edward McGrath, special agent of the New York New Haven and Hartford railroad, when he discovered the youths riding on a freight train in the union station yard. The boys were determined to be runaways and they are being held at the police station until tomorrow when arrangements will be made to send them back home.

JOSEPH FERRIS, ONCE OF OCCUM, LEFT WIFE FOR AFFINITY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 17—Joseph Ferris, about 38, formerly employed by the Corticelli Silk company, is under arrest at Lowell, Mass., charged with adultery, having been taken into custody Sunday by the Lowell authorities at the request of the New London police. Sergeant John Cavanaugh has gone to Lowell to bring the prisoner back to New London for trial. Ferris, until a few weeks ago resided in Occum. He deserted his wife and child and came to New London where he was joined by a woman, not his wife and with whom he resided at a Church street residence. Ferris finally gave up his work at the silk mill and left for Lowell, where he obtained employment in a mill. A few days after Ferris left New London, complaint was made to Acting Prosecuting Attorney Perry J. Hollandersky by a relative of Mrs. Ferris, who alleged the adultery charge. With the facts investigated and substantiated, Attorney Hollandersky issued a warrant for the arrest of Ferris, although at the time it was not known where Ferris had moved to. A day or two later Ferris communicated with the silk mill bookkeeper requesting that money due him at the time he resigned be sent to an address in Lowell. The police of that city were provided with Ferris' address and the request for his arrest was made.

ABANDONED CAR OWNED BY H. P. HARVEY, NEW YORK

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 19.—The police tonight ascertained the identity of the owner of the touring car that has been in the possession of the police since last Tuesday, when the car was taken from the highway, corner of Broad and Baker streets, where it had been abandoned by four or five young men two days before. The car is owned by Harry P. Harvey, 1103 Washington avenue, New York, this fact having been determined through correspondence with the motor vehicle department at Albany. It is believed that the car was stolen in New York and this fact will be determined within a day or two, as the police have communicated with the New York authorities regarding the matter.

SUSPECTED SALESMAN NOT DIAMOND THIEF

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 19.—The New London police tonight detained a salesman who was suspected of having been the crook that held up a New Haven jewelry store proprietor this afternoon and got away with twenty-five diamond rings. The suspect answered the description of the crook somewhat, but a questioning of the fellow, together with his being identified by a North Bank street merchant as having been in this city this afternoon convinced the police that the man was not the thief.

Some young wives love old husbands because of the ability to transform these into rich widows.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

One Cent Sale a Novel Event

This unusual, distinctive type of sale was originated by the Liggett Drug Stores.

The plan, in brief, is that you buy one article at its regular everyday price, and obtain another of the same article at one cent additional.

For example: The purchase of a $2.00 Hot Water Bottle gives one the privilege of getting another one for one cent.

Among the selected list of merchandise are included such needed things as complexion preparations, household remedies, candies, etc.

Even though a person may not be able to use two of an article, by combining one's purchases with neighbors or friends, a saving of almost half is effected.

This feature sale is conducted only twice each year, each sale lasting three days. The Liggett people say that the values are made possible only because most of the products are manufactured in their own factories at a minimum cost, and they are willing to take small profits because they consider these One Cent Sales of tremendous advertising value in bringing new customers to their stores.

The sale at the Liggett's Norwich store will be conducted on Oct 22nd, 23rd and 24th.

Broadway Theater

They laughed, applauded and were never more pleased with any program than the one that opened at the Broadway theater yesterday.

It now seems to be the slogan, "If you want the best there is in vaudeville and photoplays, go to the Broadway." It's real big time entertainment for B. F. Keith shows need no introduction.

The Country Store proved a huge success as well as the entire show.

The wizard of the accordeon Gene Martini rendered an accordeon recital that took the house by storm.

Shorty and Shorty, two colored entertainers held down second spot with a fast and very good line of comedy, song and dance.

Maurice Samuels and company of five people in the comedy At Ellis Island, proved to be all that was expected.

Story and Lee Pleasantly Foolish is just that with a new line of comedy and song.

Breed Theater

Seldom do movie fans have the opportunity of seeing an all-star cast such as Earl Hudson has selected for the presentation on the screen of Elenore Meherin's famous newspaper serial, Chickie, now showing at the Breed theater.

In the cast of this 1 test First National picture are Dorothy Mackaill in the title role, John Bowers as the poor lover, Hobart Bosworth as Chickie's father, Myrtle Stedman as her friend, Gladys Brockwell as her mother, Olive Tell as the wealthy rival of Chickie, Paul Nicholson as a millionaire who thinks of women usually as playthings; Lora Sonderson former star in musical comedy, and Louise Mackintosh.

Lovers of screen drama will never forget Dorothy Mackaill in Mighty Lak' a Rose. Following that picture she was swamped with offers from producers. In Chickie, she portrays the poor typist who longs for a millionaire husband, and with the opportunity to get one, turns it down.

John Bowers has one of the big followings among the movie folk ever since he appeared long ago in Richard the Lion-Hearted and Lorna Doone. Recently he won added laurels in First National's So Big.

Crowning the production of Chickie was the selection as director of John Francis Dillon, who directed First National's phenomenal success, Flaming Youth.

By special arrangement the management of the Breed theater has succeeded in holding Chickie over until Wednesday, to accomodate those who were turned away at every performance on account of the great crowds.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

New Paramount Comedy Star's Colorful Career

Two ambitions that live in the heart of practically every American boy have been realized by Raymond Griffith, whom Paramount presents as a comedy star in He's a Prince!, at Palace.

The two ambitions realized by Griffith were to "join a circus" and to "join the navy."

Almost born on the stage and actually raised on it, Griffith became a performer in the Barnum and Bailey circus when he was 12 years old and lived under the "big top" for five months.

Then followed school and more stage work and as soon as he was old enough he enlisted in the United States navy. During his two years enlistment he rose to the rank of boat-swain's mate and made two trips around the world.

Griffith plays the part of a high royal naval officer in one portion of He's a Prince! Mary Brian, who made her first appearance in motion pictures less than a year ago as Wendy in Peter Pan, is featured opposite the new star. The supporting cast features Nigel de Brulere, Edgar Norton, Gustav Von Seyffertitz, Michael Dark and Carl Stockdale.

Edward Sutherland directed the production. Keene Thompson wrote the screen play from the story by Reginal Morris and Joseph Mitchell.

Here is the way to glistening teeth that dentists now advise

It removes that dingy film from your teeth. It clears cloudy teeth and Firms the Gums. Start today — why wait?

MODERN science now tells us how to brighten dingy teeth and give toneless gums a healthy coral tint. A new way widely urged by leading dentists of the world. Different in formula, action and effect, it does what no other method has yet attained—removes and combats, without harsh grit, the dangerous film that covers teeth and which old type dentifrices do not fight successfully.

Run your tongue across your teeth. You will feel that film. Under it are the prettier, whiter teeth you envy in others. If you combat that film your teeth will quickly glisten delightfully. Ask your druggist for a tube of Pepsodent. Results will amaze you.

The enemy of teeth and gums

Film is the great enemy of teeth and gums; a chief cause, according to world's dental authorities, of pyorrhea and most tooth and gum troubles. It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. Germs by the millions breed in it. It holds food in contact with teeth, inviting the acid that causes decay.

You can't have prettier, whiter teeth; you can't have healthier teeth unless you combat that film.

Mail the coupon now. Don't expect the same results from old type dentifrices. Begin beautifying your teeth today.

Explosive Dusts

"Good housekeeping" in mills and grain elevators, advocated as a means of preventing grain-dust explosions, is demonstrated in the United States department of agriculture educational motion picture Explosive Dusts.

This film was recently revised to meet new practices in removing the danger of explosions in mills and elevators, and additional photography showing the dust-removing equipment of two of the largest and most up-to-date grain elevators is included in the revised edition. Vacuum-cleaning systems, bin vents, ventilations, floor sweeps, and other new apparatus designed by federal engineers to carry away excess dust are shown.

Actual scenes of some of the disastrous results of dust explosions in grain elevators, which have taken scores of lives and caused enormous property losses, are included in the film.

Ireland After Bettors

Irish Free state authorities are strictly enforcing the laws against gambling. A man in Fermoy who had been running a roulette wheel for 18 years, was prosecuted as a "rogue and a vagabond" under an act of George IV. His defense was that he had done it on his own property which, as he could exclude anybody from it, was not a public place. The justice, confirming this view of the law, dismissed the charge against him.

It's bad form to drink too much wine at dinner and it's bad taste in the morning.

REACTION IN MOTOR SHARES

NEW YORK, Oct. 19—(By the A. P.)—Another extensive reaction in the motor shares and an unsatisfied investment demand for the mile-current average of which touched the highest since the war, were the outstanding characteristics of today's confused stock market. Total sales fell just short of 2,500,000 shares, compared with 2,562,900 on Friday, which were the largest in nearly twenty years.

Convulsive movements characterized the trading in motor shares. There was a large accumulation of week end buying orders in these issues, the execution of which ran prices up one to 5 points.

The buying soon exhausted itself and bear traders launched another vicious attack against that group. General Motors fell from 130 1-2 to 124 1-4; Fisher Body from 143 to 108, Hudson from 97 1-8 to 91, Studebaker from 63 1-4 to 59, and Dodge from 43 1-4 to 37 3-8.

A subsequent rally wiped out part of the earlier losses. General Motors closing at 124 1-4 for a net loss of 5-8; Fisher Body at 107 1-8 for a net loss of 1-2; Hudson at 93 3-4, off 3 3-4; Studebaker at 60 1-4, off 3 1-8, and Dodge at 40 1-2, off 2. Mack Trucks was independently strong, closing nearly ten points higher at 220 3-8.

Meanwhile there was persistent accumulation of the rails. New York Central was run up 3 points to 127 1-4, the highest price in 16 years. Louisville and Nashville jumped over five points to 124 1-4, also a new top, and Atchison, Atlantic Coast Line, Baltimore and Ohio, Jersey Central, Lackawanna, Kansas City Southern, "Katy" preferred, "Nickel Plate" New Haven, Norfolk and Western and Reading showed net gains of 3 to 5 points. Buying of these issues was based on reports of high current earnings and speculative expectations of higher dividends.

The general industrial list developed marked irregularity. American Can soared 7 1-2 points to 245 and Associated Dry Goods, Foundation Company, International Paper, Frank G. Shattuck, Worthington Pump and the Wright Aeros closed 2 to 4 points higher, in addition, a few issues such as Marland Oil, Howe Sound, American Safety Razor and Tidewater Oil preferred were pushed up to new high prices for the year.

S. S. Kresge, which established a record high of 300 last week, broke 30 points below its previous close to 650 on a few sales. Cushman's Bakery dropped over 7 points to 90 1-4 and General Electric, Adams Express, American Express, Commercial Solvents A and B, Midland Steel Products preferred, Postum Cereal, Pullman and Standard Milling showed net losses of 2 points or more.

Call money renewed at 5 per cent, and then dropped to 4 7-8. Time money rates also relaxed, sixty to ninety day funds being quoted at 4 1-2 to 4 3-4 per cent, instead of on a flat 4 3-4 per cent, basis. Commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Weakness of French francs, which broke below 4.40 cents to a new low level for the year, featured the irregularity in foreign exchange market. Demand sterling held firm at 4.83 3-4, but Italian lire which appeared to be "pegged" last week above 4.00 cents dropped over 3 points to 3.99 1-2 cents. The Scandinavian exchanges moved within rather narrow and irregular limits. Brazilian exchange sold close to the year's high.

TAFTVILLE

Rev. and Mrs. Edwin Gordon Crowdis of North Third avenue left Monday morning for Washington, where they will attend the sessions of the National council of Congregational churches this week. Next Sunday the preacher at the Taftville Congregational church, in the absence of Rev. Mr. Crowdis, will be Rev. William J. Reynolds, pastor of the Newent Congregational church of Lisbon.

Mrs. Harold E. Linderson of Providence street entertained at dinner Friday evening in honor of Miss Ruth Pollard, R. N., whose marriage to Frank Conselli of Norwich took place Saturday.

At the Sunday evening meeting of the Young People's society of Christian Endeavor held in the vestry of the Taftville Congregational church, the leader was Miss Elizabeth Houston, and the topic was "Christian Citizenship."

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hague and two children of Detroit, have been recent guests of Mr Hague's uncle and aunt, Mr and Mrs. John W. Seddon, of South B street. Mr. and Mrs. Hague, who made the trip by motor from Detroit, are to visit in Providence before returning home. Mr. Hague at one time resided in the village.

An epidemic of sore throat believed to be caused by the smoke from the burning of great quantities of dry leaves on the streets is prevalent in the village. Attention is also being called by the state highway department to the building of fires on or adjoining state roads. Each fall, cases have invariably been brought to light in which these roadside fires, started by persons cleaning up fallen leaves, have worked serious injury to the surface of the highways. At the same time, the added danger to automobile traffic from these fires has been pointed out.

As a result of these conditions, warnings have been given that prosecutions are likely to follow under a statute which provides penalties for damage to the highways. Inasmuch as many roads are treated with asphalt, tar or other substance which contain volatile oils, easily ignited, a serious menace exists, the highway department claims. At the same time a needless waste follows, when a roadside is chosen as a place to destroy great piles of accumulated leaves. Even though the fires are started in the gutters, the heat from them is sufficient to draw the oils from the bituminous surface of the highway and cause a greatly increased maintenance expense.

Similar warnings, it is believed, have done much to save the state the added expense of unnecessary repairs to road surfaces. The warning it is hoped will serve to emphasize the danger to transportation, on which lies in the presence on the highway of the smouldering remains of such fires in view of the possibility of gasoline tank fires or explosions.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Patrulo and son, Stephen of Hallville, have been recent guests of Nicholas Lisnoff and family of South B street.

Paul Bartlbig has resigned his position with the carding department of the Ponemah company.

Mr. and Mrs. William Whitehead of Boswell avenue have been recent visitors at the home of friends in Thompson.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold M. Pingree of Goodyear were week-end visitors at the home of Mr. Pingree's parents Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Pingree of North Third avenue.

Complaints are being made by motorists that they are being shot at by small boys with pea-shooters.

The funeral of Mrs. J. Omer Tellier was held Monday morning at 8:30 from her late home on Merchants avenue followed by a requiem high mass at Sacred Heart church. At the mass Rev. Henri F. Chagnon was celebrant Rev. Frederick DesSureault, pastor of St. Joseph's church, Occum, was deacon and Rev. John Miley was subdeacon. Attending the services was a delegation of 8 men and 8 women members of Council Gagnon, No. 208, Union St. Jean Baptiste d'Amerique, headed by Joseph D. Marsan, president of the council. There was also a delegation from the Ladies of St. Anne society, in which the deceased also held membership. The bearers were four sons, J. O. Tellier, Jr.; Joseph Tellier, Wilfred Tellier, and Arthur Tellier; a nephew Henry Tellier and a son-in-law, Joseph D. Benoit. Burial was in Sacred Heart cemetery on the Old Canterbury turnpike, where Rev. Father Chagnon read the committal service. The funeral arrangements were in charge of Undertaker George G. Grant.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert P. Hoyle of South B street have returned from Boston where they have been attending the wedding of their son, Thomas Hoyle.

FOR SUPERIOR COURT TRIAL OVER FATAL AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

Despite the fact that Coroner Jeremiah J. Desmond has exonerated from blame Peter Dufilie of Central avenue, in causing the death of former Alderman Edward Crooks, Dufilie was bound over to the criminal court on a charge of manslaughter by Judge Arthur F. Libby in the city court Monday morning. Dufilie's Ford coupe on Sept. 27th knocked down Mr. Crooks who died several hours after the accident, which occurred near the house at No. 643 North Main street. Dufilie was held by the police following the fatal accident and his case had been continued under bonds until Monday to await the coroner's finding.

Dufilie was presented in the city court Monday morning and after a lengthy trial he was bound over to the January term of the criminal court, bonds of $5,000 being furnished by Dufilie's mother. City Attorney Lee Roy Robbins in giving his reasons for the holding of a trial said to the court that from the evidence he had gathered Dufilie was going at a fast rate of speed. Conflicting testimony in spite of the coroner's finding makes me feel that the case should not be nolled, he said. Attorney Thomas M. Shields appeared for the accused.

The first witness was Police Sergeant John T. Casey of the local department. Sergt. Casey said that he arrived at the scene of the accident which was on North Main street, just a little above the junction of North Main street and Central avenue, about 15 minutes after it happened. He saw Mr. Crooks lying near the gutter, and immediately went and called for the ambulance. Later he arrested Mr. Dufilie and brought him to police headquarters. Marks in the road for a distance of about 100 feet, where the brakes had been applied were visible, he said.

An eye witness to the fatality, Mrs. Elizabeth McClatterty of No. 643 North Main street also testified. It was near her house that the fatal accident took place. Mrs. McClafferty said she saw Mr. Crooks crossing the street, she spoke to him and he replied. John Kelly who was sitting on the porch with her suddenly remarked, Do you see that machine? having reference to the Dufilie car. She said the car was proceeding towards Taftville at a good rate of speed.

Did you hear the crash of the collision, asked City Attorney Robbins. She answered: "I certainly did. I jumped off the chair and exclaimed, Oh! Mr. Crooks got hit."

She testified that she tried to render aid to the injured man and afterwards spoke to Sergt. Casey.

Mrs. McClafferty's testimony was corroborated by John Kelly of No. 643 North Main street. He added that he had paced off the distance of the brake marks which showed that the machine had gone a hundred feet. Glass from the windshield and headlights was strewn about the highway. Mr. Kelly said the machine had four people in it.

Police Officer John Carroll testified that he was standing near Preston Bridge, Burnham square, when the machine went by him at a pretty good clip. He recognized some of the occupants of the machine which had four people in it. Ten minutes later he saw the ambulance goin to Greeneville. Connecting the two together, he hailed a passing machine and was taken to the scene of the accident. He said the distance of the brake marks was 130 feet. Visible blood marks were noticed for about 100 feet on the highway.

Mrs. Patrick McDermott, No. 247 Central avenue, testified that she was walking on the opposite side of the street from Mr. Crooks. She saw several automobiles passing and saw that Mr. Crooks was in danger. She could not say whether Mr. Crooks saw her or not. She called to Mr. Crooks to stop. He got as far as the trolley tracks, stopped, looked both ways and then proceeded to cross the street. She called to him again, clapped her hands and yelled "Stand where you are or you'll get killed." Mr. Crooks evidently did not hear her for he kept going.

In order to clear up certain locations regarding the brake marks, Mr. Shields called Prosecuting Attorney Robbins to the stand. Mr. Robbins testified that the marks in the highway showed that Dufilies had applied his brakes, and that the marks were strongly defined for some distance, then the brake marks were somewhat fainter and were strongly defined for the remainder of the distance.

This would show that Mr. Dufilie saw Mr. Crooks, applied his brakes, and then as Mr. Crooks stopped, he released his brakes, again applying them when Mr. Crooks stepped out and was hit.

Testimony taken by the coroner from John Edwards, 18, No. 338 Central avenue, an operator for the U. H. Driver company, was read. Mr. Edwards said that he passed Mr. Dufilie about 100 feet from the accident. Edwards was driving about 20 miles an hour and Dufilie was traveling about 15 miles an hour.

A Mystic lumber dealer, Frederick A. Barnes, voluntarily gave evidence in regard to the fatality to Coroner Desmond after reading an account of the accident in the press. Mr. Barnes in his statement to the coroner, which was read to the court, was returning after visiting his daughter in Baltic. He saw the Dufilie car strike Mr. Crooks, throwing him up in the air. Mr. Crooks landed on the radiator and then on the ground.

The accused, Peter Dufilie, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Maucarele and Mrs. Gladys Liecliky of Montville, all told the same story. They were riding in the coupe and were bound for Lisbon. They saw Mr. Crooks step, look and then step out in front of the machine. The car was unable to stop as it was right upon Mr. Crooks. A piece of glass caught in the brake pedal so that it would not work.

It was stated by Judge Libby that he could not see how a man could get knocked into the air and bend the lamp rods when the machine was going only 15 or 20 miles an hour, especially a man of Mr. Crooks weight, about 180 pounds. He found probable cause and held the accused for the criminal court.

Coroner's Finding

Coroner Desmond makes his finding as follows:

That Edward Crooks died in Norwich on the 27th day of September 1925, from injuries received when he was struck by a motor vehicle operated by Peter Dufilie of Norwich.

On September 27 Peter Dufilie was driving his Ford coupe northerly on North Main street in Norwich, as he approached the point where North Main street and Central avenue meet, just north of the trolley car sheds at Greeneville, he saw Mr. Crooks walking across the road a short distance ahead; before the car reached the place where the decedent was crossing he stopped, appeared to look to the north and south as he stood near the railway tracks; as he was so standing Dufilie sounded his horn, and, believing that Mr. Crooks had stopped to let his car pass, he increased his speed, intending and expecting to pass Mr. Crooks who was then on Dufilie's left; but just before Dufilie's machine reached the place where Mr. Crooks was standing he suddenly started rapidly across the street directly in front of the car which struck him, and fatally injured him.

When the decedent stopped on his way across the street, another motor vehicle, operated by Frederick A. Barnes of Mystic, was coming southerly on North Main street, towards the place where Mr. Crooks stood, when Mr. Crooks started to cross the street, after stopping near the trolley tracks, Mrs. Patrick McDermott, who was in front of her residence at No. 247 Central avenue, shouted to him twice to stop, as she observed the approach of the Ford coupe, and saw that Mr. Crooks was in danger of being struck by it, but he either did not hear the warnings, or believed he had time to pass safely in front of the Dufilie car, as he continued to pass hastily across the street, until he was struck, as above stated. The Dufilie car was in good condition, was proceeding at a moderate rate of speed, and was driven with due care at the time of the accident. As soon as the car struck Mr. Crooks Dufilie applied his foot brake, but a fragment of his windshield, which had been broken when it struck the decedent, fell beneath the foot brake pedal, thereby preventing its operation; then Mr. Dufilie applied the emergency brake, but this could not hold the car which proceeded about 100 feet along the street before the car could be brought to a stop. As soon as he could stop his car, Dufilie got out, came back to Mr. Crooks, and assisted in giving such aid as he could.

From the reliable evidence in this case, the inference seems clear that there was no lack of due care on the part of Mr. Dufilie contributing to this unfortunate fatality; and that it was due to the sudden darting of Mr. Crooks in front of the machine, when it was too near him for Dufilie to stop before striking him.

I am satisfied and find that the death of Edward Crooks was not caused by the criminal act, omission or negligence of any other person or persons; and I so report to the prosecuting attorney of the city court of Norwich, Connecticut, with the names of the witnesses to the accident.

COVERED 2,700 MILES ON AUTOMOBILE TOUR

William C. Kendall of Norwich, Miss Flossie Meyer and Glenn W. Jones of Mt. Union and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bullock of New Britain have returned from a two weeks' automobile trip, making over 2700 miles.

The itinerary of the trip was: Maple Trail, Albany, Schenectady, Syracuse, Rochester, Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Buffalo, Erie, Cleveland, Sandusky, Toledo, Detroit, Chicago, Indianapolis, Terre Haute, Columbus, Ohio, Zanesville, Wheeling, Cumberland, Hagerstown, Washington, Gettysburg, Philadelphia, Canaan, Hartford and Norwich.

At Niagara Falls the falls were seen at night by the powerful vari-colored search lights that have been recently erected on the Canadian side and are thrown upon the falls every night for the benefit of tourists. While in Chicago the Field Museum of Natural History was visited, at Washington the Smithsonian Institute and the Washington monument and at Gettysburg the battlefield and the national cemetery. Other interesting points of interest were seen along the way, including the Bear Mountain bridge over the Hudson and a ride over the Storm King Highway, the most scenic and expensive highway in New York, which is cut out of rock along the shore of the Hudson. During their stay in Philadelphia, Independence Hall, Old Christ church and Betsy Ross' home were visited and a tour was made through the Curtis Publishing company building.

In the more than 2700 miles of riding there was only one puncture.

McKINLEY AVENUE CHURCH TO HOLD FINANCIAL RALLY

The special financial rally of the McKinley Avenue A. M. E. Zion church in the interest of its new roof, will be held Sunday, October 25. There will be three services during the day with different speakers of interest. The members are expected to make good their pledges on or before this date. And while there is no one authorized to solicit funds for this purpose, says the pastor, Rev. Dixon A. Brown, should there be friends out of a generous public to whom we are already so deeply indebted, wishing to volunteer their help in this effort, they will find it convenient to make check payable to church name given above, and address to 14 Grove Place, care minister. All such contributions will be gratefully received and satisfactorily acknowledged.

ASSESSORS ARE RECEIVING PROPERTY TAX LISTS

The board of assessors are on duty now daily at their office at the court house in receiving the tax lists from property owners. The lists are coming in as usual from those who have taxable property, but so far the board has observed that those with exempt property are not putting in their lists as is required. This applies to church property and such other property as is legally exempt, but this is the year in which it is required that lists of exempt property shall be handed in to the assessors.

The assessors will be in session for the rest of the month.

Inspected D. of V. Tent

Mrs D. Louisa Atterbury, departmental inspector for the Daughters of Veterans, made the official inspection of Ann Rogers Lyon tent at New London on Friday evening.

Accompanying Mrs. Atterbury from this city to New London were the following members of Clara Barton tent: Mrs. Alice C. Brinkmann, president, Mrs. Genie Evans, Mrs. Lola B. Roath, Miss Florence Hoffmann, Lillian Carpenter, Dorothy Brinkmann and Marie Atterbury.

RAISING MUSICAL STANDARDS AT NEW HAVEN CHURCH

The prediction that Professor Frank L. Farrell, formerly of this city, will give St. Mary's church in New Haven, a choir comparable to any in that city is made in a sketch of Mr. Farrell, which was published Sunday by the New Haven Register in its series of Little Biographies of Big People.

The New Haven paper's sketch which was used with a two-column cut was as follows:

Frank Farrell, new organist and choir director at St. Mary's church is a native of Ansonia and comes here from Norwich. He began the study of piano, organ and theory with his father, Lawrence Farrell, and continued with J. Wootten, the English pianist. He also studied harmony and composition under William W. Lowitz and later, in Boston, under the American tonepoet, Heinrich Gebhart. From there he went to Germany where he completed his musical education under Alberto Jonas and Alexander Silott, the famous Liszt student and teacher of Rachmaninoff.

At the age of 12, he held his first position as organist at Seymour, continuing at school. At 16, C. Marshall Darrah, the Shakespearean reader, hearing Mr. Farrell play engaged the talented youth to tour with him as "the Boy Pianist." It was while he was playing at Binghamton, N. Y., that Rev. Father Peter M. Kennedy, who had known him as a child and had watched his development, called him to Norwich to become organist at St. Patrick's church.

Since then he has worked faithfully, never missing any time except when preparing for the concert stage, for seven months in Germany. He returned, making his debut in New York city, and has continued his recitals, filling engagements each year at various places in New England and New York. Co-operating with the late Archibald Mitchell and others, he made possible the first Mitchell concerts held in Slater hall in Norwich.

On September 1, this year, Mr. Farrell resigned his position with St. Patrick's in Norwich and came here to reorganize and direct the choir at St. Mary's. Evidence of his ability is reflected in the marked improvement already accomplished there, and it seems safe to predict that in a few months St. Mary's will have a choir comparable to any in the city—a statement which could not truthfully have been made in the past.

Mr. Farrell's successful concert work has made him one of the best known pianists in New England. He was one of the first pianists to give a recital in Norwich and the first musician to play a concerto in public there. He has a highly retentive memory and has many of the compositions of the old masters at his fingers' ends. A teacher of rare parts, numerous pupils of great promise have studied under him. His concert performances are marked with deep understanding, fluent technique and beautiful form and style and his appearances as a soloist here will be eagerly looked forward to by music lovers. Besides being a richly endowed musician, Mr. Farrell has a personality of charm and distinction which has already attracted to him a wide circle of admiring friends and which is sure ot create for him a permanent and enviable place in the musical life of the community.

COMMENDS NORWICH COUNCIL OF COMMERCIAL TRAVELERS

The October issue of The Oracle published by Springfield council, No. 12, U. C. T. of A., features a page devoted to the accomplishments and aims of Norwich council, No. 309, U. C. T. The article, which is headed Norwich Council Does Big Things in a Big Way—and Thrives On It! says in part:

Norwich council, No. 309, is fast making a name for itself as a civic organization to be conjured with. There is scarcely a work of a civic nature in eastern Connecticut that they are not interested in and do more than their share of the work and in many instances they are the initiators and promoters. Such a thing they have just released to the public. It is the proposed re-location of the Norwich and Putnam road. An extract from their Conn. U. C. T. Monthly gives you an idea of the grand support they received from the whole of eastern Connecticut.

"We wish we had space to reprint all the articles in the different papers. But that we can not do, but they are on file at Secretary Dinsmore's desk, and we hope you will all read them. It fills our hearts with gladness and also sorrow. Gladness to know that there is one council of Commercial Travelers who have a civic committee and one that will tackle an enormous job such as this. They are the biggest bunch of fellows of any council in this section and I dare say, in the U. S. Sorrow that our council has no such spirit of usefulness or members who will exert themselves outside of their own pleasures. We have written many editorials on civic pride and work but have not received one word of encouragement in any form.

"Of course they are blest with a Chamber of Commerce who are glad of their support and look to them for help and co-operation. They work together for the good of all. Our Chamber of Commerce has in the past antagonized us in most everything we have undertaken. We have been to them for co-operation but have been turned down flat. What a fine thing is a Chamber of Commerce that isn't sufficient unto itself. How much better off a community is if the Chamber of Commerce will condescent to acknowledge that there are other organizations in their respective cities. A Chamber of Commerce is only a unit in any city's organizations and cannot be great and useful unless the lesser organizations which are a part of the whole machine fit in and function at the same time. We look forward to a time when all organizations will work in harmony and usefulness to the good of Springfield."

WILL CHANGE EQUIPMENT FOR 192ND FIELD ARTILLERY

Connecticut military authorities are attempting to change the equipment of the 192nd Field Artillery regiment from 155 howitzers to 75 millimeter guns in order that the big gun command may be able to do its firing in this state.

It was stated Monday at the office of Lieut. Col. William Clark, regular army instructor on duty with the regiment in New London, that a war department order changing the equipment from the 155 to the 75 was expected in about one week. Col. Mogens J. Mogensen of New Haven, commander of the regiment, announced Monday that he was about to close negotiations for a tract of 1525 acres in the town of New Fairfield, about four miles north of Danbury. It was said that the land which will be for use as an artillery range will take on a 49-year lease and a 25-acre camp site will be purchased for about $3,000 in these negotiations. Col. Mogensen is acting for Maj. Gen. Morris B. Fayne of New London, the state's quartermaster.

The conversion of the regiment to a smaller gun unit brings up the question of whether or not it can be made a part of the 43d New England National Guard division. A previous attempt in this direction failed, due to opposition from Maine. Battery band the combat train are units of the 192nd regiment which are located at the Norwich armory.

STORRS BEGINS DAIRY COURSE OVER RADIO

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Oct. 19—"Profitable Dairy Farming" was the subject of the first lecture in the radio and correspondence course of Connecticut Agricultural college, which was given here tonight by Allen W. Manchester, professor of farm management, from station WCAC, Storrs.

The opening of this course is significant in that it marks the beginning of effort in a new field by this college to carry the message of better agricultural practices and principles to the farmers of the state. So far as known it is the first agricultural college in the country to offer such a course to the people it serves.

Professor Manchester, in his lecture, asserted that appreciation of three economic facts is essential to an understanding of the opportunities in dairying and the conditions necessary to profit. These he described as first, that the great majority of dairymen must sell their milk at wholesale; second, that only a small part of the milk produced can be sold at much premium over ordinary wholesale price; and third, that the wholesale price of milk is not likely to be high.

Explaining why the majority of dairymen must sell their milk at wholesale, Professor Manchester said many are too far from market to retail, many of those near the market are not adapted to carry on a successful retail business, stringent regulations and market demand necessitate equipment and processing that a small dairyman cannot afford, and retailing frequently keeps the farmer away from the farm so much as to seriously damage his farming.

Connecticut milk producers were indirectly complimented by Professor Manchester, as he gave the reasons why only a small part of the milk produced can be sold at a premium over the ordinary wholesale price. This is because the ordinary wholesale milk, as produced by Connecticut dairymen, is so good that it meets the demand or a large part of the market. Good farms, healthy herds, and clean milk have become the rule in Connecticut, according to Professor Manchester.

Keen competition among dairymen in the wholesale market, said Professor Manchester, is the reason why the wholesale price of milk is not likely to be high. Every increase in price brings over-production, he said, and a market with a higher price than others attracts a flood of milk from producers for surrounding markets.

Summarizing the economics of the situation, Professor Manchester declared that the majority of Connecticut dairymen are faced with the necessity of getting their income by selling milk at a rather low wholesale price.

"The dairy business does not look like a bonanza," said Professor Manchester, "but on the other hand there are many who secure reasonable earnings from it. The methods which they follow in whole or part may be summarized under three general heads: first, produce at low cost; second, produce in fairly large quantities; and third, combine the production of other farm products with that of milk."

"A careful study of cost figures and profits and losses on hundreds of Connecticut dairy farms," continued Professor Manchester, "has made possible the selection of the conditions and practices which most commonly lower costs and increase profits. Briefly, these are good cows; a plentiful supply of clean and good forage crops; knowledge, skill and care on the part of the feeder; and a low labor cost."

Discussing good cows, Professor Manchester asserted that under present conditions in Connecticut, the 100 average yearly sales for each cow in the herd should be around $200, as much less than this fails to meet ordinary costs.

In order to keep the labor cost low, there should be twelve to fifteen cows for each worker on the specialized dairy farm producing ordinary wholesale milk, according to Professor Manchester.

Other costs to be considered are those involved in replacing worn-out or unprofitable cows, horse labor, and building costs.

COLLEGE CLUB HEARS INTERESTING BOOK REVIEW

The Norwich branch of the American Association of University Women the local college club, met at three o'clock Monday afternoon in Slater hall annex. The president, Miss Nancy True presided.

Miss Margaret Perry, sec-pro tem, read the report of the previous meeting. Miss Anne Brown presented the treasurer's report. On recommendation of the exec-committee Mrs. A. H. Abbott was appointed as a director of the club. Proposed investments were referred to the treasurer and executive committee with power to act. The credentials committee presented names of new members to be voted upon at the next meeting. A brief report was given of the meeting of the State Federation of College clubs, held in Waterbury Oct. 3. Miss Flora Davidson was announced as the representative of the local club to co-operate with the state committee on international relations.

Notice was given of a lecture and reading by Padraic Colum to be given in the Conn. college gymnasium Saturday evening, Oct. 24.

Notice was also given of a conference on modern parenthood, to be held at the Waldorf Astoria, New York City, Oct. 26-28, under the auspices of the child study association of America. Local members interested will be welcomed at this conference and at the institute which follows it, Oct. 29-Nov. 7.

The business meeting then adjourned and Miss True introduced Miss Helen Marshall as the speaker of the afternoon. Miss Marshall gave a very interesting review of Michael Lupin's book, "From Immigrant to Inventor," showing how the indomitable little Serbian who landed at Castle Garden with five cents in his pocket had grown to be an international scientific authority. Her audience listened very attentively and gave her a rising vote of thanks at the end of her talk.

A social hour followed during which tea and wafers were served under the direction of Mrs. Frederick Shenk, chairman of the program committee.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel.

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "logy" and "heavy." They "clear" clouded brain and "perk up" the spirits. 15c and 30c.

ARRANGING CELEBRATION OF OUR NAVY DAY

The one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the birth of the United States navy will be celebrated throughout the United States and wherever our navy's ships may be abroad, on the 27th day of October 1925. Civic and patriotic organizations throughout the country have co-operated with the Navy league of the United States to make this anniversary the most extensively celebrated in the memory of friends and veterans of the navy.

President Coolidge has approved the celebration of Navy day, and with his well wishes the Navy league has perfected the plans for the country-wide acknowledgment of this nation's faith in its navy. Secretary of the Navy Curtis D. Wilbur has set the day aside as a day on which the navy and its ships and stations will be "at home" to the public, and the public is invited to become acquainted with the officers and men who are so vital a part of the nation's first line of defense.

At the request of the Navy league the Navy department has made arrangements to send all naval vessels that can be turned aside temporarily from their daily drills and maneuvers and target practices, to various ports on both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts on Navy day. Not all requests from coastal cities can be met, but every effort has been made to provide at least one vessel for as many cities as possible.

The radio broadcasting program for Navy day and the week preceding the 27th of October, will be the most extensive ever arranged. A number of important stations have agreed to broadcast including WJZ, New York city, Admiral Edward W. Eberle, USN.

A dozen of the great high-powered stations will be connected to the transmitter of station WCAP, Washington, D. C., which will broadcast a program by three naval aviators, Commander John Rodgers, hero of the Hawaiian flight, Lieut. Comdr. Charles E. Rosendahl, senior survivor of the Shenandoah, and Lieut. Comdr. R. E. Byrd, USN. (retired) of the MacMillan Arctic expedition. These three speakers will tell radio audiences for the first time of their personal experiences in three branches of the navy's pioneering work. The secretary of the navy will introduce the speakers.

RELIGION SOLE CURE FOR PREVAILING LAWLESSNESS

President Coolidge Told the Annual Council of Congregational Churches That Without Faith an Enlighted Civilization Cannot Endure—Declared There Was No Adequate Remedy For Evils Which Beset Society Except Through the Influences of Religion—Chief Executive Explained That He Was Not Referring to Religion in "Any Denominational or Any Narrow and Technical Sense."

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—(AP)—More law observance and more religion are needed in this country, President Coolidge told the annual council of Congregational churches in an address tonight.

"Lawlessness is altogether too prevalent," he said, "and lack of respect for government and the conventions of enlightened society is altogether too apparent."

"If there are any general failures in the enforcement of the law it is because there have first been general failures the disposition to observe the law. I can conceive of no adequate remedy for the evils which beset society except through the influences of religion."

The president said there was no room of education, government or renewal "which will not fail;" that "regeneration must come through sacrifice; and sacrifice is the essence of religion." He bespoke untold benefit through a broader comprehension of this principle of the public and continued preaching of it by the clergy.

"It is only through these avenues," he declared, "by a constant renewal and extension of our faith, that we can expect to enlarge and improve the moral and spiritual life of the nation. Without that faith all that we have of an enlightened civilization can not endure."

Asserting that if the people are the government, "it will be what they are" and "will be able to get out of the people only such virtue as religion has placed there" the president went on:

"If society resists wrong doing by punishment, as it must do unless it is willing to approve it through failure to resist it, for there is no middle ground, it may protect itself as it is justified in doing by restraining a criminal, but that in and of itself does not reform him. It is only a treatment of a symptom. It does not eradicate the disease. It does not make the community virtuous.

"No amount of restraint, no amount of law can do that, if our political and social standards are the result of an enlightened conscience, then their perfection depends upon securing a more enlightened conscience.

"If we are to preserve what we already have and provide for further regeneration, as the clergy tell us, we must become partakers of the spirit of the Great Master. This way is outside the government. It is the realm of religion."

The government can and is aiding in solution of some of the present day problems, Mr. Coolidge said, believing that the law undoubtedly acts to deter wrong doing and to repress crime.

"But this," he held, "reaches its highest application only when there is a very healthy and determined public sentiment in favor of the observance of the law. The utmost ingenuity on the part of the police powers will be substantially all wasted in an effort to enforce the law, if there does not exist a strong and vigorous determination on the part of the people to observe the law. Such a determination cannot be produced by the government. My own opinion is that it is furnished by religion."

The executive explained that he was not referring to religion in "any denominational or any narrow and technical sense," saying:

"While I regard the clergy as the greatest power for religious teaching that we have, I do not refer to them alone.

"I am conscious that the example of devoted men and women, the result of the inevitable social relations, and above all the influence of piety in the home, are all forces of enormous significance. While certain formalities of the past may have lost the hold they once had, I do not see any diminution in the instances of the religious convictions of the people.

"The very fact that amid all the complexities and distractions of our present life we are still maintaining unimpaired the foundations of our institutions, constantly increasing the rectitude with which the great business affairs of our country are conducted, all the while improving our educational facilities, observing more generously to the calls of public and private charity, continually enlarging the field of art, giving more and more attention to the humanities, and becoming more and more responsive to spiritual things, appears to me to be incontrovertible evidence that, though it may be practiced in a somewhat different manner than formerly, the deep and abiding faith of our people in religion has not diminished but has increased."

GILPATRIC DEFALCATION MAY INVOLVE THE STATE

HARTFORD, Oct. 20. (AP)—A special audit of the books of the state treasury department is now being made because of a report that the state has in its possession bonds purchased by former Treasurer G. Harold Gilpatric in 1921 with funds from the First National bank of Putnam and estates of which he was trustee. The amount involved is given as at least $135,000 and possibly $230,000.

Deputy State Treasurer Thomas H. Judd said today that the audit was being made.

Suit against the treasurer of the state of Connecticut for the recovery of this money is being considered. The bonding companies, the First National bank of Putnam, and other interests sustaining losses by the mismanagement of Gilpatric and who can trace the misuse of their funds to replacements in the state treasury, are the interested parties, one or more, of which might institute the action.

This disclosure started with the testimony of Receiver George M. Coffin of the First National bank of Putnam, given in Hartford before Judge Ernest C. Simpson, in the trial of the action of the Hartford-Connecticut Trust company, trustee of the estate of Joseph Cutler, against the United States Fidelity & Guaranty company of Baltimore, Md., and the Royal Indemenity company of New York. Receiver Coffin testified that $43,675 of the funds of the Cutler estate, of which Gilpatric was trustee, had been used by Gilpatric toward the purchase of $135,000 in liberty bonds for the state of Connecticut. These bonds were purchased on Feb. 13, 1921, delivered to the Federal Reserve bank of Boston and turned over to the state the next day.

The bonds purchased by Gilpatric on Feb. 13, 1921, are claimed to have been purchased to replace bonds stolen by him in October, 1920.

PRESIDENT ORDERS COURT MARTIAL OF COL. MITCHELL

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20. (AP)—What is believed to be the highest ranking courtmartial ever assembled for trial of an army officer in the grade of colonel today was ordered by direction of President Coolidge, Oct. 28.

On that date or as soon after as possible, Colonel William Mitchell, storm center of the air service controversy, will be brought before the court on charges specifying violation of the 96th article of war.

Under the provisions of this article, conviction could, in the discretion of the court, be made punishable by dismissal from the army. Presidential approval, however, would be required before such a verdict could be put into effect.

Secretary Dwight Davis is credited with having picked the members of the court himself. All of them are senior in point of service and rank to Colonel Mitchell and all hold medals of honor, or distinguished service crosses or medals. The court was assembled by special effort only of officers free from duties connected with the war department and general staff administration.

Mr. Davis' action today came as the culmination of several years of disagreement between Colonel Mitchell and the war department officials and general staff officers over policies connected with the administration of the air service.

FRENCH SUPPRESS REVOLT OF TRIBESMEN IN DAMASCUS

DAMASCUS, Syria, Oct. 20. (AP)—An open revolt in the Moslem section of Damascus, into which bands of rebel Druse tribesmen had infiltrated, was put down by the French late today, but only after artillery, armored cars and tanks had been called into action and heavy damage done in the insurgent quarters of the city.

Moslem insurgent leaders, at the end of 24 hours of fierce resistance by the rebels, offered to surrender to General Sarrail, the French high commissioner, and later accepted his terms. These include a heavy fine and the delivery of several thousand rifles.

Bands of the Druses, who have been fighting the French in Syria for the last three months, had filtered into the southern part of Damascus. There they were joined by the local population, and at 9 o'clock last night suddenly attacked the French occupants.

The French troops managed to retain possession of the public utilities, public buildings and military establishments, against which the insurgents maintained a continuous rifle fire. The rebels set fire to many stores and private houses, erected barricades and carried on a vigorous resistence to the French counter-action.

The French replied by training their artillery on the Moslem section, and bombarded the insurgent quarters throughout the night and today. Armored cars and tanks were called into action. The Moslem quarters suffered heavy damage both from the work of rebel incendiaries and the French artillery bombardment.

ULLMAN FACTION OF REP. PARTY WINS IN NEW HAVEN

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 20—(A. P.)—The so-called Ullman faction of the republican organization in this city won a decisive victory tonight when it carried 25 wards in the republican caucuses. Seven wards were carried by the so-called Willard faction and returns from one ward were missing. The city convention will be held tomorrow night.

John H. Tower, it was said tonight, appears to be the choice of the Ullman organization for the mayoralty nominee. Town Chairman Joseph F. Morrissey also has been mentioned as has Judge A. McClellan Mathewson.

The Willard organization has announced that it will present a candidate to the convention but who he is remains somewhat in doubt.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS

BERLIN, Oct. 20.—(AP)—A movement to have the Nobel peace prize awarded to Gustav Stresemann, the German foreign minister, has been started by the National Zeitung. The proposal has as its motive the desire for international recognition of the minister's efforts and achievements toward establishing world peace.

DENIAL OF IMPLICATIONS MADE BY MRS. FARLEY

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 20. (AP)—Under arrest here on a murder indictment pending against her in Pike County, Kentucky, after she had tried to surrender, Mrs. F. F. Farley, denied implication in the alleged murder and $35,000 insurance plot, today and expressed wonder that she was detained.

The accusation of her brother, William H. Turner, that she had given him $10,000 as his part in the plot after he had been "killed" in a mine explosion which cost two miners their lives, brought a denial, sobbed as she told her version in the Dade county jail today. Turner said he gave the money to his son, Theodore, with instructions to turn it over to his stepmother, the present Mrs. Turner.

"I did not see him," Mrs. Farley said. "I did give some money to my brother's wife, who I believed to have been his widow, and I am sending my brother's son through school."

Returning to the Kentucky hills from Detroit for the funeral, Mrs. Farley said she "begged them on my knees to let me see the body but they would not open the coffen. They told me that his body was mangled."

When she received a newspaper clipping saying her brother was alive and suspected of murder, Mrs. Farley went to the police headquarters here with the clipping and was told that she was not wanted.

"And then they suddenly arrested me," she sobbed today.

NEW YORK'S "FLYING COP" DISMISED FROM FORCE

NEW YORK, Oct. 20—(A. P.)—Dismissal of Robert A. McAllister, New York's "flying cop," a former famous sprinter, was announced today by Police Commissioner Enright. His retirement ends a stormy career which began when he joined the force in 1921.

No explanation of the dismissal was offered, but Commissioner Enright's order stated that he had been "tried on charges before a deputy police commissioner and found guilty."

McAllister first got into difficulties when he raided the home of a theatrical publisher and confiscated a quantity of whiskey. Witnesses testified that the cellar door of the home was locked and McAllister maintained it was open. He was in $500 bail for the grand jury. McAllister was indicted by that body for perjury but was acquitted.

In August, 1924, McAllister was charged with the murder of Vincent Figliera. McAllister was indicted but was later acquitted and restored to duty.

A charge against McAllister of accepting a bribe of $600 from Mrs. Joseph Castro, sailor's rooming house proprietress, led Hylan to order an investigation into "graft conditions" in the police department.

SONS TESTIFY AGAINST SLAYER OF FATHER

WATERBURY, Oct. 20—(A. P.)—Three sons of Donato Gaudiosi today took the stand against the alleged slayer of their father. Felix, James and Fred Gaudiosi, aged 15 and 13, and 11 respectively, told of events in the Gaudiosi family on the day and evening preceding the murder, and identified the shotgun with which James Gizzi is said by the police to have shot Gaudiosi, and the revolver which Gizzi said Gaudiosi was carrying at the time. The boys and their mother maintain that the revolver was stolen more than a month before the day Donato Gaudiosi was found killed.

One of the most affecting bits of testimony was the confession by Felix, who is a student of Crosby High school, that a few days before Gaudiosi met his death, the latter dictated to his son a separation agreement to be entered into by Mr. and Mrs. Gaudiosi. Attorney William K. Lawlor, counsel for Gaudiosi, told of the separation action and of the fact that Gizzi was to have been named as the one who had alienated Mrs. Gaudiosi's affections.

DEPUTIES FIGHT IN THE HUNGARIAN PARLIAMENT

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Oct. 20. — (AP)—The floor of parliament was the scene of a fight between deputies today in which one man and his ears nearly torn off and the aggressor was thrown bodily out of the chamber.

Herr Gombos, former leader of the "awakening Hungarians," was accused by the social democratic Deputy Fabian of having made common cause with Rumanian enemies of Hungary last week at a secret anti-semitic congress held in Budapest.

Gombos in a fury rushed across the floor and seized Fabian by both ears and nearly wrenched them off. Fabian was in sore straits when the herculean social democratic Deputy Herr Payer intervened. He picked up Gombos and tossed him over his head out to the lobby. Gombos did not return to the chamber.

BRITISH STEAMER SIGHTED WRECK OF A MOTOR BOAT

BOSTON, Oct. 20—(A. P.)—Captain George A. Murley of the British steamer Hethpool, Halifax, N. S., for Boston, today reported sighting the wreck of a motor-boat 65 miles east by south of Boston lightship. The vessel was partially submerged, and the bow which projected ten feet above water carried no name or number.

The boat was described as thirty to fifty feet long, painted white, with brown bottom and brass railings leading to the bow. No motorboat answering the description has been reported missing, and coast guard officials here said none of their patrol boats had been in battle with a rum runner recently.

ASKS REMOVAL OF NAME FROM WARD VOTING LIST

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 20—(A. P.)—William H. Hackett, for many years tax collector of the city of New Haven, has asked the general registrar of voters to erase the name of William A. Hendrick, member of the board of finance, from the first ward registry list of voters eligible to vote at the city election November 3, on the ground that Mr. Hendrick resides in the town of East Haven.

Mr. Hackett, some time ago, secured a supreme court decision which found Mr. Hendrick not to be a resident elector of the city and as a result, not eligible to sit on the board of finance.

Would Repeal Earned Income Tax Provision

New Schedule Submitted by the Treasury to the House Ways and Means Committee.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20. (AP)—A new schedule of normal tax rates, differing materially from that presented yesterday, and contemplating the repeal of the earned income provision of the existing law, was transmitted today to the house ways and means committee by the treasury.

The committee now is informed that the rates on which the treasury's estimate of a $140,000,000 cut in the income tax revenue was based are one per cent. on the first $3,000, three per cent. on the next $4,000, and five per cent. on all over $7,000.

This compares with the rates given yesterday of 1 1-3 per cent. on the first $4,000; three per cent between $4,000 and $8,000, and five per cent. on all over $8,000.

The surtax rates proposed would begin at one per cent. on the sum between $13,000 and $15,000 and go up gradually to per cent. on all over $150,000. The surtax rates as set out in the schedule are:

One per cent., $13,000 to $15,000.
Two per cent., $15,000 to $17,000.
Three per cent., $17,000 to $19,000.
Four per cent., $19,000 to $21,000.
Five per cent., $21,000 to $23,000.
Six per cent., $23,000 to $25,000.
Seven per cent., $25,000 to $30,000.
Eight per cent., $30,000 to $35,000.
Nine per cent., $35,000 to $40,000
Ten per cent., $40,000 to $45,000.
Eleven per cent., $45,000 to $50,000.
Twelve per cent., $50,000 to $60,000.
Thirteen per cent., $60,000 to $70,000.
Fourteen per cent., $70,000 to $80,000.
Fifteen per cent., $80,000 to $90,000.
Sixteen per cent., $90,000 to $100,000.
Seventeen per cent., $100,000 to $110,000.
Eighteen per cent., $110,000 to $120,000.
Nineteen per cent., $125,000 to $150,000.
Twenty per cent. all over $150,000.

After hearing Secretary Mellon and other treasury officials yesterday, members of the committee were under the impression that there was no proposal for repeal of the provision on which a 25 per cent. reduction in tax is allowed on earned income up to $10,000. Some of them said after a hasty review of the schedule submitted today that repeal of this provision would meet with little support in congress.

TO BEAR GERMANY'S FINAL REPLY TO THE ALLIES

BERLIN, Oct. 20—(A. P.)—B. Herr Von Hoesch, German ambassador to France, who has been in consultation with the foreign office, will shortly return to his post in Paris bearing the German government's final reply to the allies recent disarmament note.

Fundamentally the German government is prepared to meet the requirements upon which the evacuation of the Cologne area was made contingent; the only point on which an accord has not yet been reached concerns the demand of the allies that designations as to rank in German public organizations shall be abolished.

The German government is inclined to consider this as a point of minor importance, but believes that the efficiency of the security police demands rigid organization and that continuance of rank designations, such as major, captain, lieutenant, cannot be substituted by other classifications.

"Even much efficient organizations as the New York and Chicago police forces are adorned with captains, lieutenants and sergeants," said a government official today, "and as Germans have a natural penchant for titles, there is considerable sentimental opposition among the security police to any attempt to convert that body into a civilian agency for the maintenance of law and order."

On most other points the German government is reported to have yielded to the allies' criticism that the security police are a quasi military organization.

COOLIDGE SEES VIRTUE IN LOCARNO SECURITY PACT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20—(A. P.)—President Coolidge sees in the Locarno security pact a gratifying evidence of Europe's ability to help itself, but still is unable to say what the action of the United States will be regarding proposals of bringing about new armament limitation agreements between the world powers.

It was made clear today at the White House that the attitude of the Washington government respecting participation in any European armaments conference or the calling of such a conference in this country could not be foretold at this time. A specific proposal would be required before a decision on that point could be reached, and no such proposal as yet has been made to or by the Washington government.

The Locarno pact, the president believes, has an important influence on the armaments question. He recognizes it not only as a step in advance of the Dawes plan, but as evidence that European political leaders have been able to reach an agreement of the "mind achieved, moreover, their work has been endorsed by public opinion and to the president, these factors mean that Europe has become sufficiently settled since the armistice for the governments, and peoples as well, to give the world clear proof that they had overcome suspicions and hatreds engendered by the war.

OBITUARY

Prof. Henry Hollister Robinson

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 20—(A. P.)—Professor Henry Hollister Robinson, director of the Connecticut Geological and Natural History survey since 1899 and a member of the Yale faculty, died today at New Haven hospital where he had been a patient for eight weeks.

Dr. Robinson was born in Hartford in 1873. Following graduation from Yale, in the scientific department, in 1895, he was employed by the Mexican international railways as assistant engineer. He returned to Yale and attained his C. E. degree, after which he became connected with the Southington, Conn., Water company. Again returning to Yale he received the Ph D degree in 1903.

He spent many summers in the west in research work in the Grand Canyon and in California under the federal geological survey. His studies of extinct volcanoes are notable. Mr. Robinson returned to New Haven in 1913. He was secretary of his Yale class, a member of the graduate club of New Haven and the Yale club of New York.

Using Other Fuels Than Anthracite

Deductions Made by Eugene C. Hultman, Emergency Fuel Administration in Bay State.

BOSTON, Oct. 20—(AP)—Many consumers in Massachusetts are turning permanently to fuels other than anthracite coal, Eugene C. Hultman, emergency fuel administrator and vice chairman of the executive committee New England governor's fuel committee, said in a letter tonight to the Scranton, Pa., chamber of commerce.

The letter was written in reply to a questionnaire sent by the Pennsylvania body to the Boston chamber of commerce and turned over to Mr. Hultman as a member of the chamber's fuel committee. Regarding available stocks of anthracite in this state, the administrator said:

"The retail dealers in Massachusetts had a very large stock of domestic anthracite in storage on September 1. Other figures indicate that about 670,000 tons of domestic size anthracite were in the yards of the retail dealers on October 1. This large stock in spite of suspensions of mining indicates to us that consumers must be using fuels other than anthracite to a much greater extent than we had expected. Most of the reports received at this office indicate that the consumer who turns to other fuel at the present time regards his change as permanent. The public demand for other fuels than anthracite has caused practically every retail dealer to put in a stock of substitute household fuel.

"Those who have studied this matter realize that the recent and frequent disturbances in the anthracite industry have been paid for at usurious rates of interest by the consumers," the letter continued. "At the present time we are trying to find out whether or not the consumers can win a strike against them. These efforts are meeting with surprising support and interesting from the consumers up to date and it is hoped that this year the strike will not be settled on the basis of past settlements—the necessity of the consumer."

DE WOLF HOPPER TAKES UNTO HIMSELF HIS SIXTH BRIDE

HARTFORD, Oct. 20.—(AP)—William De Wolf Hopper, much-married, often-divorced actor, slipped down from Boston to Hartford today and after taking out a marriage license was married to his sixth bride by Judge Walter H. Clark of the Probate court, who waived the five-day waiting period regarding licenses to out-of-town couples. His bride was Lillian Glazer, who gave her age as 29, her occupation as "singer" and her residence as Oakland, Cal. De Wolf Hopper, who for registration purposes said he was William Hopper, stated he was 66 years old, an actor, and said his residence was in New York city. As to his previous marriages, he stated he had been married five times and was divorced. The whole proceeding was quickly accomplished and when the brief ceremony had been performed the couple dashed away in an automobile.

The advantages of this settlement are already evident in the improvement of our trade in international exchange."

M. CAILLAUX IS WORKING TO RESTORE FRENCH TREASURY

One of the Finance Minister's Projects is the Issue of an Additional 10,000,000,000 Francs Paper Money Early in November—At His Request Convening of Parliament Has Been Postponed Until October 29—French Gold Loan Has Been a Disappointment.

PARIS, Oct. 20—(A. P.)—M. Caillaux is encountering difficulties in elaborating his plan for the financial restoration of the French treasury. This he outlined to the cabinet today, but he requested some delya in order to complete his work. At his request the convening of parliament, which had been fixed for October 27, was postponed until October 29.

The finance minister explained that he and his assistants were still working on the projects for which France was waiting expectantly.

It is no secret in official circles that the French gold loan has been a disappointment. Subscription amounting to probably not more than seven billion francs were entered, whereas twice or thrice that amount was expected. It was said in semi-official circles after the cabinet council today that one item of M. Caillaux's project calls for the issue of an additional ten billion francs paper money early in November.

MORE CHARGES AGAINST CREW OF THE COMANCHE

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Oct. 20. — (By the Associated Press)—Sensational charges, tending to corroborate statements in New York by passengers of the Comanche, which burned last Saturday night off Mayport, were made by three passengers testifying before a court of investigation here this afternoon, called by General George Uhler, supervising inspector general, and Captain George Harney, supervisor of the third precinct, U. S. Steamboat Inspection service. Captain E. E. Curry, of the Comanche, at the morning session, denied statements that the crew acted in an unseamanlike manner and that members of the crew were drunk and panicky during the fire.

The three passengers were Fred Rau, of Paterson, N. J., and Adolph Jachncke and Bertaold Mayer, both of Jacksonville.

Charges that "whiskey bottles flashed" following the discovery of the fire, that some of the crew in lowering and getting the life boats from the Comanche did not obey orders and that crew members in the boat in which he escaped fought among themselves were made by Rau. He charged that the operators of the lifeboat did not know where the signal flares were kept. He said that this was the next to the last boat to leave from his side of the Comanche and that its passengers were picked up by a sailing boat.

Jachncke and Mayer, young sailors, both testified there seemed no panic among the passengers. Both of them in testimony declared that they saw no officers and that negroes were in charge of the lowering of the boats. Jachncke said those lowering the boats did not seem to know how to handle them. When questioned both of the lads said they assisted in the lowering work, declaring however, that the boat which they helped lower got away from the ship safely.

They were on board one of the lifeboats which was crushed between the Reaper and the Comanche, but were not injured by the meet.

Testimony by Jachncke and Mayer concluded the first day's investigation which saw the three passengers and nine Clyde line men testify.

Captain Curry at the morning session of the investigation denied alleged statements that the crew acted in an unseamanlike manner, characterizing such reports as "positively untrue." He denied that the members of the crew were drunk with the exception of one person, "a negro waiter."

None of those who testified today were able to give the source of fire, Captain Curry saying that "the dense smoke prevented the crew from going between decks and for that reason the source of the fire could not be determined."

The officers supported the captain's testimony that the order of "children and women first" was rigidly observed during the life-boat lowering.

SUPPLIED THE NEW YORK GUNMEN WITH SILENCERS

NEW YORK, Oct. 20—(A. P.)—The law gained the ascendancy today in its struggle to crush the latest great New York crime wave.

While the state's judicial machinery ground out indictments against members of the notorious "Cowboy Gang" of gunmen and police arrested a Connecticut inventor charged with supplying them with pistol silencers, federal authorities began action to close 23 fashionable supper clubs and restaurants.

Meanwhile, after an outbreak of holdups and robberies that totalled more than $200,000 loot yesterday, the underworld was quiet. Its only advantage of the day was gained when Assistant Attorney Peora, disclosing the deal that resulted in the return of the $685,000 worth of jewels stolen from Mrs. James P. Donahue, admitted that the thief is no nearer arrest than ever and that $65,000 was paid for the return of the gems.

While he was conferring today with police, Eugene Reising, inventor and head of the Reising Arms company of East Hartford, Conn., was indicted by the grand jury for selling silencers to the "Cowboy Gang" and was arrested. After an attempt on Saturday to trick him into coming to this city with a silencer for delivery to the gang failed, he was brought here ostensibly for questioning concerning a stolen automobile.

It is alleged that he supplied the "Cowboy Gang" twelve of whose members are under arrest, with at least 60 silencers, paying for each an automobile stolen by the gang or its cash equivalent. He will be arraigned tomorrow, charged with violating a section of the Sullivan law forbidding the sale of silencers.

The arrest of Reising was brought about by one of the cowboy gangsters, Peter Stroh, who is alleged to have supplied arms used in scores of crimes attributed to the "mob."

LONDON'S WARM WELCOME TO AUSTEN CHAMBERLAIN

LONDON, Oct. 20—(A. P.)—Austen Chamberlain, Great Britain's foreign secretary, received a warm welcome on his return this evening from Locarno, where he played a leading part in the negotiation of the Rhine security pact and collateral treaties.

When his train pulled into the Victoria station he found on the platform awaiting him a distinguished gathering, including Premier Baldwin and Mrs. Baldwin, representatives of King George and of the Prince of Wales, diplomats of all the nations that were represented at Locarno and a large number of the general public.

After receiving many congratulations on his achievements, the foreign secretary said to the newspapermen:

"My heart is very full as I come back to my native land. I am proud of the part my country has played and in the confidence placed in her word by all the nations whose representatives assembled at Locarno.

"I rejoice the more because in these records is sealed our common reconciliation with Germany and because the peace, with its foundation in the west, finds fulfillment in the east. I pray that the sunshine of Locarno may be reflected in the hearts and minds of men."

COL. MITCHELL TO FEATURE AT HARTFORD'S AIR MEET

HARTFORD, Oct. 20—(A. P.)—As a feature of Hartford's fourth annual air meet here Saturday afternoon, Colonel William Mitchell, former assistant chief of the army air service and storm center of the present nationwide furor over the government's aviation program—or lack of it—will take part in a radio program to be broadcast on the eve of the flying exhibition by WTIC, the Travelers Insurance company radio broadcasting station.

This announcement came from Washington today from Major Talbot O. Freeman commander of the forty third division, air service, C. N. G., now in Washington arranging details of the Hartford meet.

Arrangements have been made to have Colonel Mitchell speak over the long distance telephone from Washington about ten o'clock Friday night. His talk will be broadcast from the Travelers studio in connection with the program planned by the air meet committee as a prelude to the meet Saturday.

Inasmuch as this will be the first time that Colonel Mitchell has made a public utterance since being called to Washington for court martial proceedings, it will undoubtedly be an event of great interest to those interested in aviation. Colonel Mitchell expressed a desire to come to the Hartford flying exhibition and take part in its program but as this was impossible, he hit upon the next best plan.

Major Freeman is expected to return to Hartford today.

While in Washington, he also planned to ask the navy department's permission to allow Commander John Rodgers of the PN-9 number 2, who made the remarkable San Francisco to Hawaii flight a few weeks ago, attend the meet. Commander Rodgers and the entire crew of the ship have expressed a wish to be present.

AMERICAN RELIEF WORKERS WERE HELD-UP IN CAUCASUS

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 20—(A. P.)—Six American members of the Near East Relief were among the victims of a daylight holdup by brigands in the Caucasus. A despatch from Tiflis says that the Americans were proceeding by motor lorry along a mountain road with several Georgians, when the brigands fired from ambush. One shot struck the car, and the chauffeur stopped. Two robbers appeared and ordered the passengers to leave the car. Jewelry and money to the amount of about $200 were taken from them. They were then ordered to return to the motor and depart quickly.

The Americans were Barclay Acheson and Miss Pauline Ritter, of New York, Joseph W. Beach, of Bangor, Me., Dr. and Mrs. Turrentine, of Little Rock, Arkansas, and Theodore Elmer, of Oberlin, Ohio.

PIGS CAUSED DRIVER TO LOSE CONTROL OF MACHINE

WILTON, Oct. 20—(A. P.)—Two pigs on their way to market caused quite some excitement at the Kent school house in Wilton this morning when they caused the driver to lose control of the machine, which was wrecked against a tree. In addition to this, the pigs were instrumental in securing a half holiday for the school children who were assigned by the school teacher to round up the pigs after they disappeared in the woods after the crash.

The driver of the car, Isidore Tarlov, of Norwalk, was slightly injured in the crash. The accident occurred when one of the pigs broke his fetters in the truck and climbed to the front seat where his appearance caused Tarlov to lose control of the machine.

WILLIMANTIC

Willimantic Day was observed at the regular meeting of Willimantic Rotary Club, held at the Y. M. C. A. Tuesday noon, with President John F. Ahern in charge. Dick Dodge of the program committee has arranged for seven speakers who gave two minute talks under the general topic, The Improvement That I Think Willimantic Needs Most and Why. The position of Bill Back on the oratical eleven was vacant, due to the absence of Tim Weatherhead; so Dr. Edward J. Ottenheimer, a guest of Doc Jones was called upon to pinch-hit. The meeting was one of the most interesting and best attended in some time. Enthusiasm was high, as Professor Dodge announced that the speeches would be on a competitive basis. He appointed Jerry E. Sullivan, William A. Dawson and Fred L. Avery judges. They were to render a decision and as a prize pay from their own pockets for the dinner of the winner. Ernest Bottomley was guest of the club, being accompanied by P. D. Donohue.

President John Ahern was the first speaker. His subject was in relation to co-operation and confidence and learning to think in bigger terms.

Secretary Gerard E. Loisell urged the Need of Additional Hospital Facilities. The present hospital is under ideal management, both from standpoints of efficiency and economy, but it is handicapped for lack of room. There is a total of but 45 beds in the hospital, including wards, and the hospital is at present serving an estimated local and surrounding population of 35,000.

James B. Fullerton stressed vital points in his talk, The Development of Civic Character, Co-operation and the Necessity for Community Leadership.

A. E. Greene advised the improvement and expansion of the city sewerage system and the purification of our streams and rivers.

Dr. R. Bullock Jones recommended systematic dental hygiene examination of all school children and told of the success of an attempt made in this work at the State Normal School.

G. Everett Harrington said that the inauguration of a tourists' camp in or near the city would work to the advantage of the community, from advertising and financial reasons.

Walter Abbe's talk was on Sanitation. He brought out the need of a comfort station in the city and sanitary playgrounds.

James P. Mustard reviewed the recommendations made previously, and proved the futility at all attempts to progress on a sound and safe basis until the city was provided with an adequate and reliable water supply.

Dr. Ottenheimer emphasized the necessity of a larger hospital as pointed out by Secretary Loisell, adding that he considered it the one vital necessity at present.

Albert B. Smith chose as his subject, Relaxation and Recreation Among Business Men and Children. He asked that steps be taken to purchase a suitable site for a playground and park, where swimming facilities are available.

Charles B. Pomeroy brought out interesting thoughts in his talk, Loyalty Among Merchants, in which he advocated a trade-at-home program.

Herbert W. Huber, treasurer of the club was called upon to review the topics and point out methods of carrying out the propositions.

Bishop W. C. Norris, recognized as an old war-horse on the civic improvement question, commented on the suggestions made and added several of importance including, the combining of the dual town and city governments, revaluation of city property, water system improvements and improved street and ornamental lights about the city.

P. D. Donohue arose in rebuttal to the talk given by Charles Pomeroy and explained that much of the alleged lack of loyalty among merchants was due to misunderstandings.

The three judges retired and after a conference returned to pronounce James P. Mustard the winner, for importance of subject and manner of delivery.

Harry W. Standish reported that plans for the joint evening meeting with the Exchange Club at the Y. M. C. A. next Tuesday were practically completed.

Doc Jones made a report that the music committee composed of himself, Valentine L. Murphy and Dick Dodge, was preparing a welcome song for Governor John Allison on his approaching visit to the local club. Adjournment was taken at two o'clock.

Of interest to local residents are dispatches which state that in one of the New York district criminal courts Monday, William Berry entered a plea of guilty to a charge of attempted robbery and will be sentenced next week. His plea was made just before Kitty Landrigan, a model, was to take the stand against him. Miss Landrigan, who is also under indictment, was arrested with Berry in an automobile fleeing from the scene of a jewelry store hold-up. She declared she was dragged into the car and knew nothing of the attempted robbery.

Kitty Landrigan, who was formerly Miss Kitty Conety, of Willimantic, is accused of participating in the attempted robbery a few weeks ago. She fell from the running board of the fleeing automobile and was taken into custody by a police officer who was making chase on foot.

Three automobile drivers drew fines in Mansfield town court within the past twenty-four hours as a result of a drive by the Mansfield authorities to eliminate speeders from that section. All appeared before Justice of the Peace George H. Andrews, and each was fined a total of $35 and costs, amounting in all to $96.35.

John Chabot of Holyoke, Mass., was arrested by State Policeman Edgar D. Auld of the Stafford Springs barracks charged with reckless driving, after his car collided with another machine near the Mansfield State Training School. He pleaded guilty and was fined $20 and costs, amounting to $39.40.

Richard Andrews, another Holyoke man, was charged with speeding on the Eagleville road and pleaded guilty. His fine was $10 an costs, with a remittance of five dollars of the fine. He paid $18.40 total. The arrest in this case was made by State Policeman Harrison J. Hulburt.

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, October 20.—Unusual developments are the outcome of the case of Joseph T. Diffley, of 170 Broadway, Norwich, charged with breach of the peace and operating an automobile without a driver's license. Diffley is inspector of state highway construction work which is being carried on in South Chaplin, on the Danielson-Willimantic highway. Monday afternoon he and H. C. Legraw, of North Scituate, R. I., apparently had words at the Sherman gasoline station in South Chaplin. Legraw telephoned to the local state police barracks and on his instigation State Policeman Frank Kulowsky who responded placed Diffley under arrest, about 4:30 o'clock.

Diffley was given a hearing before Justice of the Peace Charles R. Russ, in the Chaplin town court at two o'clock this afternoon on the above named charges. Through his counsel, Attorney H. C. Hunt of Hartford, he pleaded not guilty. The charge of breach of the peace was nolled, but he was fined $5 and costs for operating without a license. Grand Juror Frank W. Tarbox prosecuted the case. Diffley paid the fine and to all appearances the case was concluded; but as Legraw was getting into his Ford car to drive away, he was approached and an assessment of $1,000 was placed on the Ford as the opening move in a civil suit for slander, which Diffley is instituting against Legraw. Methodist worshippers last Sunday morning listened to an earnest appeal by their pastor for a Thanksgiving offering of $500 to be applied to the church improvement fund. At the time of the remodeling in 1925 the expenditure exceeded the amount of the fund originally planned, but the pledges were not asked at that time for additional subscriptions to make up the excess. Subscribers to the original $6,000 fund did remarkably well in paying up their pledges, only a few still remaining delinquent, and now after a two-year interval the board has authorized this further appeal for $500 to reduce the remaining indebtedness. DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

District Deputy Henry P. Dubuc installed the officers at a meeting of Rose of Lima council, K. of C., at their rooms in the Gallup building Tuesday evening. The officers installed were Grand Knight, Frederick Goulet; deputy grand knight, Omer Hubert; chancellor, Theodore Lamoureaux; warden, Alfred Moulin; treasurer, Lucien Lambert; financial secretary, Henry Lambert; recording secretary, Theodore Malihot; inside guard, Arthur Vives; outside guard, Edward Moran; trustees, James R. Walsh, Bernard Casey, James Moran. Following the installation the members had a smoker.

There was interest in Killingly and surrounding towns in the conference with the tax commissioner at Hartford Monday of tax collectors from Connecticut towns having a population fo 4,000 and less. Having a population greater than 4,000, Killingly was not represented in the meeting. But some of the tax collection problems considered at the gathering are known in Killingly. For instance, the commissioner advocates that collectors go right after tax delinquents rather than put a lien on their property. It is an established fact that a lien does not disturb in the slightest some tax delinquents who are well able to pay, but will not do so. These are the people that the commissioner wants subjected to the full pressure of the law, even to the extent of selling sufficient of their property to pay all tax obligations overdue to the town. Killingly has a few such delinquents. In one instance the tax due is about $2,000, and the person could pay today if he would, but he just does not.

A meeting of the newly elected directors of the Danielson Rotary club, scheduled for Monday evening, was held instead on Tuesday evening and plans for further development of the club considered.

A warning sign of the sharp turn at the head of Reynolds street will probably be erected on the Providence highway at the Gallup farm. Several accidents have occured on the curve referred to, and it also happens to be at the top of a rather steep hill.

The talked of team of former high school football players is a matter of interest to those who like the great fall game. If the team gets into action promptly, it is likely to draw heavy attendance.

A daily chore fo rpolice officers on duty in the borough is to keeping cars from parking in "No Parking" areas. Many drivers ignore the signs, or do not see them, though they are all conspicuously placed. The majority of offenders in this way are non-residents.

One hears little about it here in Danielson, but old-fashioned husking bees are on the present card of diversions in nearby agricultural districts. These affairs are very like those of the alleged good old days, and they are great fun for those privileged to attend.

Degrees were conferred on candidates at a meeting of Killingly grange Monday evening. There were various features to make the evening program one of interest.

It is likely that as many as a score of aeroplanes will fly over Danielson next Saturday, including the giant Sikorsky plane, when officials of the government and newly formed all mail service for the Boston-New York route take a ride over the course.

Henry Ford for King of Poland! John M. Bowe amends to make it Poland Springs.

The teachers' extension course, arranged for teachers in the schools of Killingly and the lectures to be given by a member of the faculty of Yale will open here Thursday, Supt. Parker announced Tuesday.

Bishop Nilan will come to Danielson on a date in November to confer the sacrament of confirmation on a class at St. James' church.

Now that many of the leaves are off the trees, hunters report they are having better success on their expeditions after game birds.

This year motorists who wish to retain the registration numbers they are carrying on their machine must have their applications filed with the commissioner of motor vehicles on or before November 15. Some already have taken time by the forelock and applied for their numbers

The detour between Morin avenue and Elmville is becoming irksome to motorists because of the delay and rough going, but there is no help for it, other than using the Maple street route or traveling by Manchenteuk, out of the way options, to be sure.

A Killingly dealer was quoting $20 per ton for chestnut coal Tuesday. This, however, is less by considerable than the $23.50 being asked in some sections of New York city last week. No great amount of hard coal has been received in this town for some time.

The fox mentioned as having been killed when struck by a trolley car of the local line was having some kind of a struggle with another fox when it was injured. The other fox, hurt though it was, managed to make off, though the operator of the trolley was trying to hold it by the tail—the fox's tail, of course. And the tail pulled off.

J. C. Witter was in Hartford Tuesday on a business trip.

It is interesting to hear the discussions now going on in Danielson about the chances of making a fortune overnight in Florida. The pros and cons are very decisive in their opinions.

Only about ten days remain for filing tax returns in Killingly if one would avoid the 10 per cent. penalty assessors will impose for delays beyond the present month.

It was said here Tuesday that it is not likely that anything definite about the Green Hollow improvement project will be done before spring, if then. It likely will come in time, and likely, too, is the prospect that the state will continue to maintain the present Danielson-Wauregan trunk line. The wise ones say it will come out in the wash.

At Tuesday evening's meeting of the Girls' club Miss Sylvia Wheelock of Puntam gave a talk on cooking and related subjects, all of which was very interesting and instructive.

It is indicated from what may be learned in talks with people that Danielson residents, as a whole, are fairly well supplied with fuel, at least for part of the winter. The many weeks of talk of a coal strike prior to its actually going into effect was ample warning for many to get ready for winter. There are those who are without a supply of coal and some with only part of the winter's supply, but it appears that there will be little real fuel shortage here before mid-winter at the earliest.

Only ten days remain of the open season for black bass. A check-up on catches of black bass in Griswold, as far as reported fish are concerned, shows a greater number of large fish taken than in any preceding summer. Jerald Wolf stands high line. One midsummer day, while trolling with a plug bait, he caught a bass that weighed 7 pounds and 2 ounces. It seemed strange to local anglers that no bass were taken in Tadpole pond during the season of 1923 now within ten days of its close. Last summer every fisherman, from the boy with the alder pole and bent-pin hook, to the chap with the split bamboo equipment that visited Tadpole was rewarded with a string of bass. Previous to two summers ago, bass were never heard of in Tadpole pond.

MAY WITHDRAW PUPILS FROM SCHOOLS TEACHING IRISH

DUBLIN, Oct. 20—The Technical committee of County Mayo has reduced from 670 to 400 pounds the money provided for the teaching of the Irish language, and forecasts a further reduction next year.

Monsignor D'Alton who introduced the motion said that "I know mothers who threaten to withdraw their children from school if the teaching of Irish is not dropped. He declared that the spoken language is losing ground even in districts where it was generally spoken till comparatively recently.

The government recognizes this, but thinks it regrettable, and is making steps in all directions to remedy it. Irish is now made a compulsory subject in the primary school all over the country, and the government has appointed a commission which is taking evidence as to the condition of the language in the Irish speaking districts and the reason for its decay. The chief reason is economic.

Honesty wouldn't be considered such a valuable trait if it weren't so scarce.

Why You Should Take Beecham's Pills

Beecham's Pills are purely vegetable. They contain no calomel, coal tar derivatives or other dangerous ingredients, and are easier to swallow than tablets.

Beecham's Pills are not harsh in action, as are artificial purgative waters and salts, nor do they leave the feeling of flatulency which often follows the taking of yeast. Above all, Beecham's Pills are not habit-forming.

S. O. S. CALL FROM AUSTRIA FOR TEN AMERICAN BONES

DANIELSON, Oct. 20—About all the time somebody, somewhere is observing one kind of "a week" or other. Neidererwaldkirchen, Upper Austria, seems to have an "Iron Nerve" celebration on just now. Letters from that place are being received here asking for donations of money.

Dr. Paul Thafer writes to request the head of a local manufacturing concern to send him $10, no less, and suggests that the quickest and best way to get it to him is by money order or United States currency, which, it would seem, continues to be acceptable in about every land where it is known.

"I dare to apply to your charity without being ashamed of myself," says Dr. Thafer, and he further relates that he has experienced "a bad illness lasting for years and other hard reverses have brought me into an awful trouble. I had to sell or pawn already everything dispensable a long time ago.

"The way in which I live and am almost starving is hardly to be believed," comments the hard-pressed doctor.

In considering all of this and more in the same vein, it must be believed that the doctor still has confidence in himself as to withstanding starvation and getting money without working too hard for it. It may be pointed out that about six weeks would elapse between his writing to the United States for money and his receipt of it, providing his prospects were prompt in replying and sending some over. One starved as badly as the good doctor, does not wait on any six weeks arrangement to produce himself some hamburg steak and other things to eat. He yelps for help nearer home, though he relates "it is utterly impossible to get help in my totally impoverished country."

Well, if the doctor ever sees this copy of The Bulletin he will learn that he is due to starve to death if he awaits receipt of money from Danielson—and the Lord be with him. His is a modernized version of the old Spanish prisoner letter—a shop-worn fake, and blessed if his handwriting does not look exactly like that of the man who had a hidden fortune to share with the man who could send money to effect his release from a Spanish dungeon.

SECRETARY MELLON'S IDEAS

It was inevitable that the ways and means committee of the lower house of congress should get the views of Secretary Mellon concerning the revision of the revenue bill. He is so in touch with the conditions through his department and he is so well grounded in the nation's finances that his views and ideas are vital to any change.

When revision was contemplated before, it will be remembered that Mr. Mellon advanced a plan which was subjected to attack chiefly because it was put forth as his project. And yet as matters have worked out it has been established that his scheme of tax reduction was just what was claimed for it, a sound and scientific course of action. As the situation worked out it went to prove what the secretary of the treasury had maintained, and for that reason there has been and is a disposition to place greater reliance in the recommendations of the head of the treasury department.

According to Secretary Mellon's statement before the house committee he favors a cut of something like $300,000,000 in the taxes collected and to accomplish that he would cut the surtax to 20 per cent. and make a cut in all the other rates, but would not eliminate from income tax all those with incomes of $5,000. He believes the estate tax should be abolished, along with gift taxes and some other of the miscellaneous taxes and he would rescind the publicity provision concerning income taxes because it does no good, is generally opposed and amounts to no more than a nuisance. He would continue the practice of applying the surplus to debt reduction and would maintain the present method of wiping out the indebtedness of the nation instead of distributing it over a longer period—a period when little is known about what the conditions are going to be whereas at the present they are excellent for debt cutting.

Secretary Mellon warned against trying to plunge too deep into tax cutting. He didn't say to avoid the political element and keep it on a sound basis but that is what he meant. The desirability of being able to make steady progress in the tax cutting and debt reduction, rather than a big cut this year and an increase rather than a decrease in taxes next year was given due emphasis.

The statement of the secretary of the treasury was one that could not fail to make its appeal to those who give careful consideration to such matters. There was nothing radical about it. It was based upon the conditions as they exist and that is what should be taken into consideration. He gave his reasons for his suggestions and back reasons for his suggestions and backed them up with sensible explanations.

RELIEVING PARKING SITUATION

Parking problems are increasing from day to day, especially in the large cities. Likewise the trolley lines are feeling the effects of the inroads which the autos are making into their business.

It is therefore an ingenious plan which has been hit upon by the traction interests in Philadelphia which plan to open up a large parking area out of the center a bit, charge a small fee for parking and then give those who park their cars the transportation over their lines to their places of business after leaving their cars and when going after them. This means that there will be a reduction in the number of cars parked in the public streets if there is an acceptance of the idea and the matter of covering the distance between the parking place and the business center will be solved. Car owners will be able to get quick service to such a central point and thereafter can utilize their own means of transportation but there will be marked relief for the streets and there will at the same time be an additional bit of sustaining business for the electric lines.

It is a test that will be watched with interest by other large cities as it is worked out. In the smaller communities the car owners might as well use the trolleys to ride to and from business as to use them to go to a parking place, but there seems to be a real appeal in the big city idea where long rides in the street cars and the delays can be overcome by utilizing the autos in going to outlying districts.

The question of providing a proper amount of parking room in cities and yet furnish the traffic with that part of the streets to which it is entitled is an important one, and one that grows more serious every year. Perhaps the Philadelphia idea will yet prove to be the much sought solution though in cities of this size it would not have any attractions.

ARCTIC FLYING

When Donald B. MacMillan declared that he would not take flying machines with him for exploration purposes north of Labrador he spoke as the result of his experience with them on his recent trip during which time they covered about 6,000 miles in flight. He is, of course, fully conscious of the conditions which exist in the far north and knows the difficulty in obtaining landing places for the airplanes. It is very difficult to find smooth ice and almost as hard to find open water which is not thickly dotted with ice which makes the descent of seaplanes perilous. Knowing what difficulties were experienced and knowing how conditions remain unchanged from year to year in the polar regions, MacMillan understands the handicaps which the flying machines must continue to face.

But when he declares that he will never again take airplanes with him for exploration it is not to be supposed that he failed to appreciate their value in covering territory. Neither was he inclined to say that the aviators were lacking in ability or daring. In fact he spoke just to the contrary. But the good points of the airplane in the north were to him greatly overbalanced by the handicaps.

MacMillan is expressing his opinion, however, in regard to the flying machines of the present day. He would not be so rash as to include any that might be developed, for he must have known that they are steadily undergoing changes and being brought nearer to perfection. Much time is being given to the development of the helicopters which permit a machine to rise straight in the air, to remain stationary in the air and to descend wherever desired without the danger of crashing. When the time comes that such an idea is fully worked out and the advantage applied to the airplane there will be chance for changing his views regarding the value of such machines in the far north. Landing places under such conditions would be less important. Smooth surfaces would not be required. But there is no telling when the helicopter will be perfected. MacMillan may never have a chance to make use of it.

DEAD AT THE THROTTLE

Not asleep at the switch but dead at the throttle is the situation that was recently disclosed in the cab of a locomotive which was hauling a fast train. Something like 15 miles had been covered by the express before the fireman discovered that the engineman had expired. It was possible for him to bring the train to a stop without any harm to the train and the hundred or two passengers, because during that time that death had taken charge of the train all signals had been favorable to full speed ahead. It was however only because the fireman was attracted by the unusual speed being made through a railroad yard that he learned what the real situation was.

How easy under such conditions it would have been for that train to have been wrecked, to have plunged into another or been thrown through an open switch! It would have been natural under such circumstances to have charged the engineer with running past signals had they in fact been set against him, and put the blame upon his inattention to duty.

Death in this instance served to demonstrate the importance of having railroad systems equipped with automatic train controls. The human agent may fail, or he may be stricken at his post. It is important that as much safety as possible should be thrown about the traveling public, and as a protection against such and similar conditions the automatic device stands out as highly important.

BACK TO MEXICO CITY

Shortly after Ambassador Sheffield returned from Mexico City it was claimed that he would not return. Such claims were discounted for it could not be believed that he would abandon his effort in behalf of having the rights of Americans recognized by the Mexican government, and failure to return would have been an admission of such a fact. Likewise it would have been open to the interpretation that this government did not back up its ambassador.

As was believed he would at the time and since, Ambassador Sheffield has returned to Mexico City. It has been a matter of five months since he left there and his return to Washington resulted in the issuance of a sharp note by the department of state in which attention was drawn to the situation in Mexico. There has been time for the Calles government to do a bit of thinking over its attitude toward the rights of foreigners in Mexico and it is to be hoped, as the result of the return of the American ambassador, that conditions are less tense and in a position to bring about a better understanding.

It is the task of Ambassador Sheffield to accomplish now what he found impossible when he left. He has the full backing of his government and favorable results are anticipated from his renewed efforts.

OBSTINATE HUSBAND

"It has happened too often to be merely casual," the righteously indignant lady remarked after she had taken a long breath. "And it doesn't happen in this family alone. Robert Likerish! I haven't a bit of doubt that up and down this street the same thing is occurring in dozens of homes!

"There is some sort of combination among you men and I'm going to root it out! Probably you all get together on the 8:05 train and concoct these things! Whenever I ask you at breakfast if you will fix the door hinge or the cabinet drawer or clean up the basement or get me something down from the attic you invariably agree most cheerfully and then when the time comes and I pin you down to it you apologize and say of course you'd be glad to do it, but naturally you can't with your best suit on.

"And you always have on your good suit unless what I want is that you should go call on the Joneses or attend a lecture, and then you can't because while you have on a good suit, it needs pressing—the trousers, as I can see, bag at the knees and the coat is wrinkled.

"No, you can't wear the one that just came back from the tailor's, because there is an important meeting tomorrow at which you must make a good impression, and I know how these New York men are—dressed up to the minute! You are saving the freshly pressed suit for that.

"Mrs. Goodheart next door has precisely the same trouble. She says Henry Goodheart will look her straight in the eye with the expression of an innocent child and say now isn't it too bad, he'd like so much to do whatever it is that he hasn't the remotest intention of doing, but he has just that minute got into fresh garb, and she can see how foolish it would be to mess himself all up cutting grass or repairing the steps.

"If she grabs the chance and says, well, all right, they'll take the evening to go make that call on the Pennys. Henry never blinks or swallows. He is right there with the goods. No, he can't go calling, either. He has put on those new shoes that are a trifle too tight to see whether he can't stretch them out around the house, but he simply wouldn't attempt to walk any distance in them! Foiled at all points, Mrs. Goodheart shrieks, retires and bites several nails in two to relieve her feelings.

"Esther Locksmith vows that it is only by strategy she can induce Lionel to raise his finger around home. She has to see that when Saturday comes around all his good clothes are at the tailor's and his old things lying around handy in a careless sort of way, and she is repairing something about his golf clothes. He'll just have to wait till she has finished—and meantime, dearie, it is a good chance for you to paint those screens, all piled up for you down in the basement. She has to make sure that the paint brushes are in perfect order and the paint fresh and nice, or he squirms out of the job on that score, so usually she just goes ahead and does whatever it is herself.

"I can't for the life of me see what good a man's wardrobe is if it is always in such an unsatisfactory state! None of you seem to have clothes suitable for any enterprise except reading and smoking and running the radio. Anything beyond that strikes you dumb with appalled horror—you just haven't the right kind of clothes to wear for it!

"Masculine garments seem to run to extremes, they either are far too grand or not good enough. It's a wonder you can find any garments to get downtown in and tend to business at all. I am perfectly positive that some bright soul among your crowd accidentally stumbled on the scheme and put all of you wise, and that you elaborate on it as the time goes on. You've got the idea nearly perfected and presently you'll be entirely emancipated.

"None of you will be required to do, go, breathe or listen to anything on earth which does not precisely strike your fancy. And while I can see what a Utopia it is that lures you on, I may say right here that I'm calling a turn in this household. No more am I going to swallow any of your favorite brand of excuses and you might as well give up! What I want to know is—can't you fix that pantry door which sticks so hard? I asked you dozens of times—"

"Madeline," said the gentleman to whom the distribe had been addressed, "I suppose you will say I am making it up, but honestly I can't do carpenter work with this hand—I am sure a felon or a sty or a hiuraroundarosy is about to develop on this finger—"

"You just can't beat 'em!" the talkabout lady said with great hopelessness and sublime resignation.—Chicago News.

Stories That Recall Others

Ready to Swear

Little Mary had heard one of the college yells in which was included the word "hell." It gave her some concern that it should be used that way but her father explained to her that it was not swearing when so used but otherwise would be.

It was not long after that Mary did something which was not according to the family rules which had been inned into her. Her father admonished her not to repeat it and said, "Mary, I want you to swear you will not do it again."

Why She Hit Him.

"I had an appointment with the medium or fortune teller at 4 o'clock," said the woman just up from the south. "When I was ushered into his presence, he did not look up for a minute or two. When he glanced toward me, he rose and started at me with outstretched hands, saying: 'I am so happy to see you, so happy to see you.' I stepped back to the door, but he continued to follow me with the words, 'so happy, so happy.' To save myself, I slapped his face. He stopped and asked: 'Why did you do that?' I said, me father always told me that when I could not agree with another person to strike a happy medium, if possible. 'Oh!' he replied."

From Small Beginnings

John G. Paton, the Great Missionary

One of the most saintly men who ever lived was John G. Paton. Those who still remember him will recall the long white beard, the long white hair, the extremely rosy cheeks, the bright eyes and the general appearance of Santa Claus. "God bless you, my dear," he said to everyone, and he meant it, too. In his heart he had "God bless you" for all men, and that is why he was able to go to the savage New Hebrides, then almost unknown cannibal islands, to live there and to make the cannibals his friends.

He was born in a little Scotch cottage of only three rooms, one of which his father used for making stockings. The family had just enough money to live on without starving, but it was a self-respecting, sincerely religious family. It was no small task for the stocking-maker to support his wife and their five sons and six daughters, but he managed to do it, and to find time to teach his children religion and to send them to the little village school.

When young John was 12 years old he had to help feed the hungry mouths; so he went to work with his father, and made stockings from 6 in the morning until 10 at night—no union hours—and still found time to study Latin and Greek, with a hope of becoming something better than a stocking maker. He took some of the money he made and went for a little while to a higher school at Dumfrics. In this way, largely by study after long hours of work, he fitted himself to become assistant in a church at Glasgow, with permission to spend much of the time in study at a seminary. By the time he was 32 years old he had won his ordination, had had experience as a city missionary, and gladly took the appointment to go as missionary to the savage New Hebrides. Even today, when most of the South Sea Islands have become little more than trading posts, there are islands in the New Hebrides where the people still are cannibals. When John G. Patron landed, he landed in the heart of cannibalism. For some 50 years he lived and worked among these naked, brutal people, and he brought goodness into islands that had known nothing of it before.

The cannibals pointed weapons at his breast—and he smiled and said "God bless you." They attacked his mission, killed some of his friends, tried their best to annoy him—and still he smiled and said "God bless you," and kept on doing good. Again and again his life seemed lost, but he lived to the ripest old age, and died full of honors and glory—a smile on his face. He was a beautiful, childlike man, who had always kept the heart of a child and the deeply sincere religious faith that his father had taught him while they sat making stockings in the three-room cottage. Of such is the kingdom of heaven!

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

PAGO PAGO

Pago Pago, visited by United States naval vessels, on their return from Australia and New Zealand, is the capital of American Samoa, which is the only bit of American soil that lies south of the equator, according to a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society.

Pago Pago, practically fell into the lap of a none too willing America, while powers were seeking island territory in the Pacific," continues the bulletin: "but if the entire South Seas had been combed, with all the other nations standing deferentially by, a better location for a naval base hardly have been chosen. Most South Sea harbors are little more than crescent bays, protected by coral reefs, their safety largely dependent on the direction of the wind. At Pago Pago ships sail into the heart of a huge extinct volcano crater, only a narrow entrance open to the sea. Furthermore, there is a sharp turn inside, the whole harbor being shaped much like the ankle and foot of a stocking.

"The United States Naval station is situated on the 'instep,' its back toward the sea, but with high mountains intervening. Pago Pago town lies at the 'toe.' Most of the anchorage is entirely out of sight of the sea, and the ships lie in deep placid water even when destructive gales are blowing outside.

"Giving Pago Pago the premier place among South Sea havens does not do it justice. Many famous harbors are more commodious; but it is hardly too much to say that Pago Pago is at once one of the safest and most beautiful harbors in the world. A narrow strip of level land rims the harbor. Immediately beyond this strip the sides rise up steeply to mountainous heights, the sloping walls covered with varying shades of green, tropical vegetation. In addition to the naval station and Pago Pago town, three or four villages nestle close to the water's edge around the harbor, their thatched huts half hidden by cocoanut palms.

"The harbor of Pago Pago almost cuts the island of Tutuila in two. This is the largest isle of American Samoa, 17 miles long and about 5 wide. The other American islands lie about 60 miles to the east. Only one, Tau, about 5 miles in diameter, is of importance, though two smaller isles are inhabited. Altogether the population of American Samoa is about 8,000 some 6,000 residing on Tutuila.

"American Samoa has been little spoiled by the civilization of the mother country, or that of other whites. Few whites reside in the islands besides the small group of missionaries and the officers, men and nurses at the naval station. Only one plantation is owned by a white man and only three or four whites have leaseholds. Practically the entire surface of the islands is owned in small tracts by individual natives. The United States even bought from individual landlords the 40 acres needed for its naval establishment.

"In the past the lava-lava, a sort of skirt or kilt was the only garment worn by both men an women. Now slight concessions are made. In Pago Pago or in the presence of whites the men add a sort of undershirt and the women a sort of jacket or smock. Among themselves, however, and in the outlying districts, the natives still let the lava-lava, tucked about the waist, serve in place of the white man's and white woman's more complex costume.

"In government matters, too the United States has practiced laissez faire to an extent highly appreciated by the natives. The system employed so successfully by the Dutch in the East Indies has been adopted. An American naval officer stationed at the Pago Pago depot is appointed governor, but all officials under him actually exercising supervision over the natives are native hereditary chiefs. The Islands are divided into three districts (ancient native divisions) with a native governor for each. Under the governors are chiefs of 'counties' (also ancient districts) and under the county chiefs are the village chiefs. The village chiefs have councils composed of the heads of families.

"The United States practices a certain measure of paternalism over its South Sea island wards. Copra, the dried meat of coconuts is practically the only article of export. The government handles this crop for the natives, so assuring them a fair price. Free medical attention is furnished through naval medical officers, dentists, nurses and hospital corpsmen. The health of the Samoans is excellent and their numbers are increasing. During the 21-years of American control the population has grown 41 per cent."

First Water Mains of Wood

LONDON, Oct. 20, (AP)—Remnants of London's first water mains which were of hollowed oak were unearthed in Red Lion Square. Experts estimated the wood was laid approximately 300 years ago by one of the first utility companies in this country.

Another Harvester of Seeds

But for the harvesters of seeds
The earth would overrun with weeds.
—Old Mother Nature.

Peter Rabbit was still wondering if Danny Meadow Mouse was laying up seeds. He had started to go over to the Green Meadow to find out. You remember he was over in the Green Forest. He had gone but a little way when he heard the rustle of little feet in the leaves. He turned quickly but there was no one to be seen. He waited. All was still. Still Peter sat without moving. Peter has a great deal of patience at times. When he is curious enough he can be very, very patient. He was curious now. Right in front of him lay a lot of reddish-brown leaves newly fallen from the trees. Presently some of these leaves moved, although at that moment there was no wind. Then Peter saw a familiar little form. At least it seemed familiar.

"Why, Danny Meadow Mouse, what under the sun are you doing way over here in the Green Forest?" cried Peter.

"Were you speaking to me?" inquired a squeaky little voice which sounded much like Danny's voice.

"I certainly was," replied Peter. "When did you come over here and when did you get that red coat? I have never seen you wear that coat before."

"That's funny," replied the squeaky little voice, "for it is the only coat I have ever worn."

"Eh? What's that?" cried Peter, looking very hard at the speaker.

"I said," replied the speaker, "that it is the only coat I have ever worn. What is more, I'll thank you not to call me Danny Meadow Mouse."

Peter hopped a step nearer and stared with all his might. It was most impolite of him. Yes, siree, it was most impolite of him. "Why," said he talking more to himself than to the stranger, "you aren't Danny Meadow Mouse at all. Your ears are just a little bit bigger than Danny's and your tail is just a little bit longer."

"Of course," said the stanger, "I should hope so."

"Why should you hope so?" demanded Peter.

"Because I don't want to look like Danny Meadow Mouse," retorted the stranger.

"But you do look like Danny Meadow Mouse," said Peter, "only you have a red coat."

"Then I don't look like Danny Meadow Mouse," said the stranger.

"Anyway, you're a Mouse," declared Peter.

"Yes, I'm a Mouse and proud of it," replied the little stranger.

"Then if you're a Mouse you must be cousin to Danny Meadow Mouse," said Peter.

"My goodness, how smart we are getting!" declared the stranger. "Of course I am cousin to Danny Meadow Mouse. I am cousin to Whitefoot the Wood Mouse, too."

"You haven't told me your name yet," said Peter.

"You haven't asked me for it yet," replied the stranger.

Peter grinned. Then he chuckled. "Excuse me," said he. "I guess I am most impolite. You sort of surprised the politeness all out of me. My name is Peter Rabbit. May I ask your name?"

"My name," said the stranger, "is Ruddy. I am Ruddy the Red-Backed Mouse, cousin to Danny Meadow Mouse and all the other Mice. Now, if you'll excuse me, Peter Rabbit, I must go about my business."

"Certainly I'll excuse you," replied Peter. "May I ask what your business is, Ruddy?"

"Just now it is collecting seeds," replied Ruddy. "Winter will soon be here and I must have a good supply of seeds. Then when the weather is bad there will be no need of worrying about food. There is nothing like being prepared, Peter Rabbit, nothing like being prepared. I hope you'll excuse me now."

"Certainly," replied Peter.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Bad Spot in Washington Square.

Mr. Editor: A place of great annoyance, and in no small degree, of danger, exists at the present time on Washington square where the new paving of Main street edges up to the old macadam of the square.

The street commissioner would indeed do a beautiful act for the benefit of an appreciative public, if this "terror" spot could be repaired without a moment's delay.

Sincerely,

OXFORD COLLEGES CRUMBLE BUT ALWAYS GET NEW FACE

OXFORD, Oct. 20. (AP)—Oxford colleges are crumbling away, but they have never done anything else. Nearly all Oxford is built of a soft local stone which carves easily into rich and fanciful shapes but begins to flake and rot away after the first decade. After a century or so it is necessary to dress down the whole outer surface of the buildings and lay on an outer surfacing of new slabs.

Some of the larger colleges are never without builders' scaffolding. One Oxford firm has been occupied for eighty years in mending the stonework of a single college.

The great expense of rebuilding led to the destruction of all college ivy. Before it was stripped from the walls this hardy climber had done an immense amount of damage, often destroying the stone to a depth of several inches below the surface. After the ivy is removed its work still remains and there is grave danger of falling stones until the wall is resurfaced.

DEATH RATE AMONG INFANTS ALARMS JAPANESE GOVERNMENT

TOKYO, Sept. 20.—(AP)—The death rate of infants in Japan is on the increase, principally because of the deficiency of relief and sanitary measures. Official statistics disclose that more than 1,300,000 babies die in the Empire every year. In the light of these facts the home ministry has decided on the establishment of sanitary stations in every city throughout the country in which the population is more than 50,000. It is expected that more than 3,000,000 yen will be expended in this work. Physicians and nurses will be on duty at each of these stations.

PRODIGY AT AGE OF FOUR ENTERS COLLEGE AT FOURTEEN

BERKELEY, Cal., Oct. 20. (AP)—Matthew Marsh, of this city, who at the age of four was declared by Dr. Maria Montessori, noted educator, to be "the brightest boy in California," has entered the University of California at 14.

Marsh is small for his age and so has been barred from the R. O. T. C. ranks, but otherwise he is taking part in all the normal activities of a freshman. In celebration of his admission, Marsh donned his first long trousers.

SUGGESTIONS FOR SOLVING CROSS-WORD PUZZLES

Start out by filling in the words of which you feel reasonably sure. These will give you a clue to other words crossing them, and they in turn to still others. A letter belongs in each white space, words starting at the numbered squares and running either horizontally or vertically or both.

Instant Beauty

Gleamy, Thick, Wavy Hair in a Moment

Girls! Try this! When combing and brushing your hair, just moisten your hair brush with a little "Danderine" and brush it through your hair. The effect is startling! You can dress your hair immediately and it will appear twice as thick and heavy, an abundance of gleamy, wavy hair, sparkling with life, incomparably soft, fresh, youthful.

Besides beautifying the hair, a 35-cent bottle of refreshing, fragrant "Danderine" from any drug or toilet counter will do wonders, particularly if the hair is dry, thin, brittle, faded or streaked with gray from constant curling and waving which burn the color, lustre and very life from any woman's hair.

"Danderine" acts on the hair like fresh showers of rain and sunshine act on vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates, nourishes and strengthens them, stopping falling hair and helping the hair to grow thick, healthy and luxuriant.

CORNS AND CALLUSES

Lift Off with Fingers

Doesn't hurt a bit!! Drop a little "Freezone" on any aching corn, callus or "hardskin" on bottom of feet. Instantly it stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers.

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the hard calluses, without soreness or irritation.

"HAIR-GROOM"

Keeps Hair Combed, Glossy Well-Groomed all Day

"Hair-Groom" is a dignified combing cream which costs only a few cents a jar at any drug-store. Millions use it because it gives that natural gloss and well-groomed effect to the hair—that final touch to good dress both in business and on social occasions. Even stubborn, unruly or shampooed hair stays combed all day in any style you like. "Hair-Groom" is greaseless; also helps grow thick, heavy, lustrous hair.

BURGLARY CHARGE IS NOLLED IN COURT

In the city court Tuesday morning case against Donato Porcelli, 38, of this city, charged with burglary, was nolled by the court. Porcelli was arrested on the strength of a cap found in the Cipriano store on Thames street after a burglary at the store, as he was supposed to have been the owner of the cap. In court Tuesday morning it was stated that the proprietors of the store did not think Porcelli was the man who broke into their store and were willing to drop the charge. Porcelli, it is understood, denied charges against him, and stated that he did not own the cap.

One man charged with breach of the peace was discharged for lack of evidence and another man, charged with the same offense was fined $10 payment being suspended.

GOVERNOR TRUMBULL URGES CITY TO WORK FOR AVIATION FIELD

The annual banquet of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce held Tuesday evening at the Wauregan hotel was honored by the presence of His Excellency, Governor John H. Trumbull of Connecticut and Hon. Ernest E. Rogers of New London, treasurer of the state of Connecticut and president of the Connecticut State Chamber of Commerce. Both Governor Trumbull and State Treasurer Rogers addressed the gathering, and the principal speaker was Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, pastor of the United Congregational church and retiring first vice president of the Norwich Chamber. Governor Trumbull, in his splendid address, emphasized the importance of aviation as a means of transportation and urged the establishment of suitable aviation fields in every city and town of any size in the state. Just before the close of the meeting announcement was made that the award of directors at a meeting during the late afternoon had elected James L. Case president of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce for the ensuing year. The 200 members as guests of the chamber were seated at the long tables shortly after 6:15 o'clock. Following the singing of America the invocation was pronounced by Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., pastor of the Central Baptist church. A delicious menu was served and there were favors of boxes of candy for the ladies.

JOHN H. TRUMBULL, Governor.

Mayor Waters Extends Welcome

ERNEST E. ROGERS, State Treasurer.

It was my good fortune a few weeks ago, said the mayor, to be invited to extend a welcome to Governor Trumbull. At that time he was here with his staff. Tonight he is here as a business man as well as governor. I heartily welcome Governor Trumbull here tonight as a business man and governor. Governor Trumbull, you are welcome. I hope you will come again.

President Story then presented First Selectman William S. Murray, who, on behalf of the town, extended a cordial welcome to Governor Trumbull and State Treasurer Rogers. In behalf of the town of Norwich, I extend to the chief executive of the state a very cordial welcome here tonight, said Mr. Murray. I am sure I am voicing the sentiment of those here at this gathering.

Following a community song number, there were three rousing cheers, led by Song Leader Parks, for Governor Trumbull.

State Treasurer Rogers Speaks

Hon. Ernest E. Rogers of New London, state treasurer and president of the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce, was then introduced by Toastmaster Story. It is a very great pleasure to be here tonight and to enjoy your hospitality said Hon. Mr. Rogers. After his preliminary remarks in which he briefly touched on the work of the state chamber of commerce, Mr. Rogers took occasion to speak of the important part Governor Trumbull has and is playing in state finances and legislation.

I had the pleasure of serving with Governor Trumbull at three sessions of the legislature, he said, and I have actual knowledge of the important part he played in state finances and state legislation. The state treasurer spoke of the "Pay as You Go" policy adopted by the state several years ago. Only upon the "Pay as You Go" policy will our state be able to retire its bonds as they become due, he said. It is owing to Governor Trumbull and his policies that we have that policy now.

It is through the chambers of commerce that our cities and towns function in public matters, he continued. Here in Norwich you have a most active chamber of commerce. When I go around the state I hear the Norwich Chamber of Commerce referred to as a chamber that does things. You are like an automobile. You have an efficient driver. In fact you have two efficient drivers, your president and your general secretary, Mr. O'Rourke. (Applause)

The State chamber does not take credit unto itself for its accomplishments. It offers its services wherever they are needed. Whatever credit the chamber has achieved comes from its members. We stand ready to co-operate in any way possible. I'll say to the Norwich Chamber of Commerce, whenever you need help, call on us.

REV. ALEXANDER H. ABBOTT, Banquet Speaker.

Greetings to the Governor

As his excellency, Governor Trumbull was presented by toastmaster Story the audience was on its feet and three rousing cheers greeted the chief executive of the state. Governor Trumbull said he was delighted to be present at the gathering. "I assure you it is a privilege and a pleasure," he said. "For a number of years I have been a member of the local chamber of commerce in my home town," said the governor. "It was my observation that a town that has a chamber of commerce is alive and doing. In a town without a chamber of commerce it seems to me there is something lacking. I am going to talk to you tonight as a member of the state chamber of commerce and of my local chamber.

"I want to say our state treasurer has done a great thing in forming our state policy, especially along financial lines. Connecticut today is on a basis entirely different than it was a few years ago. We have adopted the policy of 'pay as you go.'"

Speaking of the service that should be rendered the state by state officials Governor Trumbull said, "When the elections are over, when we elect our state officers it is their duty to administer the affairs of the state for all the people, regardless of race or creed. (applause). You will never get rich in public office." The governor went on to say that there is no place in Connecticut for a dishonest office seeker. He likened the state to a business corporation, saying that the state does an annual business of about $26,000,000. The same fundamentals that apply to a successful business corporation can be, and as far as I can concerned are being, applied to the state of Connecticut, he said. With regard to the men holding public office in Connecticut, Governor Trumbull said, "The state of Connecticut is extremely fortunate in having such a fine group of men, who are so intensely interested in its affairs.

"We have no use in the state of Connecticut for any one attempting to spread red propaganda. Connecticut, I am proud to say, is not a state where seed of that kind finds very fertile soil. The laws on the books of Connecticut are perhaps the best laws in any state. Other states look to us in the matter of laws.

"The chamber of commerce is one of the greatest institutions we have in the state. One thing I like about the chamber is that it takes a keen interest in public affairs."

Governor Trumbull said he is intensely interested in aviation, and that the time is coming when aviation is going to be an important method of transportation. "We depend on our transportation system here in Connecticut for our existence," said the governor. "It will be possible in the near future to load goods on a plane carrying two or three thousand pounds and to deliver them to Chicago the next morning.

"I believe every community of any size in the state should provide itself with a suitable aviation field at the earliest possible moment. That is something the chamber of commerce can work on. To make aviation possible we have got to have good aviation fields. They are just as important to airplanes as good harbors are to ships. One thing the Norwich chamber of commerce can do, and you will be doing the city of Norwich a favor, is to secure an aviation field for Norwich."

Vice-president Abbott Speaks

Following the singing of "Little Old Connecticut," Song Leader Parks leading, Toastmaster Story introduced as the speaker of the evening Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, pastor of the United Congregational church and retiring vice-president of the chamber. Rev. Mr. Abbott delivered a splendid address, handling his subject in a masterful way.

It was one of the finest addresses ever delivered before a Norwich audience. Forceful and eloquent Rev. Mr. Abbott held the close attention of his large audience throughout. His address was along the line of what may be accomplished by cooperation on the part of the citizens. Cooperation and service was the keynote of his address.

Election Announced

At the close of Rev. Mr. Abbott's address Toastmaster Story announced the names of the incoming board of officers as elected by the new board of directors at a meeting late Tuesday afternoon.

President Case gracefully acknowledged the honor conferred on him and expressed the hope that he would set out into practice during the coming year the ideals of the chamber so finely given by the speakers of the evening.

In announcing the re-election of John J. O'Rourke as secretary for another year Toastmaster Story referred to him as "none better in all New England."

The gathering came to a close about 9.15 o'clock with the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner."

The governor's reception committee comprised: James L. Case, chairman; William A. Anderson, E. LaRue Bliven, Lucius Briggs, Arthur M. Brown, Dr. H. B. Campbell, Dr. J. J. Donohue, Louis J. Fontaine, Oliver L. Johnson, Roy D. Judd, John M. Lee, Arthur F. Libby, Herbert M. Lerou, J. C. Macpherson, Jacob Munn, Charles D. Noyes, William G. Park, F. B. Ricketson, E. O. Rodier, Abner Schwartz, Arthur E. Story, H. A. Tirrell, A. M. Van Wagenen, J. N. Weymouth.

Governor Trumbull motored here from Simsbury Tuesday afternoon, arriving in Norwich about 6 o'clock and was met by the chamber's reception committee. He remained throughout the banquet, leaving immediately afterwards by motor on the return trip to Simsbury.

SEYMOUR, Conn., Oct. 20—Arthur Mitchell of New Britain was elected grand chancellor of the Knights of Pythias of Connecticut at the closing session of the 57th annual convention here today. It was voted to hold the 58th convention in New Britain the third Tuesday of October, 1926.

Other officers elected were: Grand vice chancellor, Charles Andres, of Bridgeport; grand prelate, Walter King, Willimantic; grand master at arms, E. E. Aspinall, Plainville; grand inner guard, Louis Behler, West Haven; grand outer guard, Melville Marquand, Stamford; grand K. R. S. Geo. E. Wright, Hartford; grand M. E., W. N. Potter, Willimantic; supreme representative, Emanuel Cave, Bridgeport.

The officers were installed by General L. Erwin Jacobs as supreme chancellor. A new Pythian home committee and a new committee on finance and mileage were elected. The financial report showed an increase in the treasury of $3,000 over a year ago and a gain of 50 members for the term was reported. It was announced that a site for a new home would be purchased soon.

ELECTED DIRECTOR OF TEMPLE CORPORATION

Nathan A. Gibbs has been elected a director of the Masonic Temple corporation to succeed the late Frederick W. Lester, and E. Allen Bidwell was elected secretary of the corporation, an office which Mr. Lester had held for many years. John A. Ferguson was appointed an incorporator from Somerset lodge to succeed Mr. Lester.

FOOTBALL RIVALRY IS BITTER IN SOME OF GAMES SCHEDULED FOR SATURDAY

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—(By The Associated Press.)—Flames of old football rivalry, fanned by the spirit that goes with years of competition, will flare up this week in the east with the gridiron schedule coming to a stage where additional foes start their annual battles.

Standing out prominently in the list is the clash between Dartmouth and Harvard, at Cambridge. Since 1882, these rivals have met thirty-one times on the gridiron with the Crimson flaunting triumphantly on twenty-five occasions but this Saturday the Indians, boasting another powerful contender for eastern championship honors, will be favored to take Harvard's measure for the third year in a row.

Dartmouth has waited a long time to atone a bit for the smashing reverses she accepted year after year from the Crimson. In sixteen games stretching over the period from 1882 to 1899, Dartmouth failed to score a point against Harvard.

In the last two years the Green has blanked the Crimson by scores of 16-0 and 6-0. Harvard has rallied somewhat this fall under new coaching stimulus but comparative performances so far do not hold out much more than a hope of Crimson victory over Jess Hawley's rugged men.

Another span of rivalry that goes back the better part of a half century is involved in the Yale-Brown game which will have added interest for its dedication of the new Brown Stadium at Providence. These two first met in 1880 and with a few lapses have met regularly since then, with the Bull Dog ascendent in all but three out of thirty games. Brown has not won since 1916 and is not likely to break the spell this week, although the Providence eleven's strength may surprise the Elis.

New York will glimpse two stout Pennsylvania foes in action when Washington & Jefferson clashes with Lafayette at the Polo Grounds. Annually for the past few years, this battle has been among the most furiously fought of all. It promises to be no exception this year with Lafayette, victorious last year by 20-6, favored to repeat but likely to experience the stiffest sort of opposition from the presidents.

Princeton and Colgate also renew an old feud, meeting this week at Palmer Stadium for the first time since 1922, with the Maroon, featuring Eddie Tryon, having at least an even chance of upsetting the Tigers.

Out among the Alleghenies, homebred rivalry will be rampant in the battles that bring together Pitt with Carnegie and West Virginia University with West Virginia Wesleyan. Pitt is out to average a 6-0 setback administered by the Tech eleven last year. Wesleyan's Bobcats also are anxious to square accounts for the 21-6 licking handed out by the Mountaineers in 1924 and has a team which seems capable of doing it.

Another traditional game will bring together Amherst and Wesleyan in the first of the "Little Three" championship series. Amherst is a strong favorite here and appears likely to follow through by upsetting the extended reign of Williams in this New England triumvirate.

ACADEMY SQUAD WILL PLAY AT STONINGTON TODAY

Coach Whitney put his charges through an easy afternoon's work yesterday in preparation for today's game with Stonington High School at Stonington. The entire squad was given a short calisthenics drill which was followed by a long talk by the coach. Following this the varsity were sent through about half an hour's signal practice. In practice yesterday the men did their work with a pep and speed that bodes evil for Stonington when they clash this afternoon. Coach O'Brien of Stonington has worked his squad long and hard this week in preparation for today's contest and realizes that although the Academy has been twice defeated this season his men will not have any cinch in bringing home the bacon, if, indeed, they are able to do so at all. Novogroski and Blake the two Westerly High school stars, who were dismissed from school, have entered Stonington High but it is doubtful if they will be able to play for some time owing to the interscholastic rule which says that no pupil can leave one school and enter another and participate in sports until they have been in the new school at least six weeks.

Last season the Academy defeated Stonington 15 to 0 in Norwich and were held to a scoreless tie at Stonington. The members of this year's squad hope to give Stonington a good trouncing to make up for last year's tie. The entire squad feels optimistic in regards to the game this afternoon. Members of the team prophesied that the Academy would score three times to their opponent's once. Alumni and former N. F. A. athletes, who were on the sidelines yesterday and watched practice had hopes for a decided Academy victory. For a local team to be defeated by Stonington High is an almost unheard of event. Even when N. F. A. teams had year's when they lost nearly all their other games they always managed to either defeat or hold Stonington to a tie. This year's eleven had ought to find it easy going against Stonington.

No definite lineup could be secured from Coach Whitney at a late hour last evening but it is expected that the following men will start the game: Ends, Marks-Sargent; tackles, Stefano-Mousley; guards, Polsky-Fiddle; centers, Schwartz-Murphy; quarterback, Courbois; half-backs, C. Brewer-Capt. Williams; fullback, E. Brewer. Besides those mentioned the varsity substitutes will also make the trip to Stonington. The teams will leave the Academy at twelve m. sharp.

PIRATES UNDECIDED ABOUT A SUITABLE EMBLEM

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—(AP)—The Pirates having won the world's baseball championship, cannot decide on the emblem they want in recognition of their prowess.

Commissioner Landis said tonight that $100 has been set aside to award each Pirate with a suitable personal gift. At first the Pirates suggested a ring, then it was decided a watch charm would be preferable. Now they don't know what they want.

DONOHUE ON COMMITTEE THAT NAMED N. B. A. CHAMPS

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 20.—(AP)—Champions in the seven major pugilistic classes were named by the national boxing association of the United States in concluding its sixth annual convention here today.

Decision of the association was based upon the report of a special committee composed of E. A. McAuley, of Michigan; Louis W. Plies, of Michigan, and Thomas E. Donohue, of Connecticut.

The champions named include Jack Dempsey, heavyweight; Paul Berlenbach, light-heavyweight; Harry Greb, middleweight; Mickey Walker, welterweight; Jimmie Goodrich, lightweight; Louis (Kid) Kaplan, featherweight, and Fidel Lebarbe, flyweight.

The association numbering boxing commissioners and members in many states of the union, Canada, and Mexico, ignored the claim of Pinkie Mitchell as junior welterweight champion. The commissioners of this organization have never recognized this special class, a member stated, as the time and class both were established by a popular voting contest and not by ring achievements. The commissioners took definite action, in that they ruled that Mitchell was eligible to fight in either the welterweight or the light-weight classes.

After consideration of the claims of contenders in the flyweight class, the association ruled in favor of Lebarbe, a California youth, who has defeated Krankie Genaro, claimant for the title.

President Larobe Cogswell, of Baltimore, Md., was reelected president.

Detroit, Michigan, was selected as the 1926 convention city for October 18 and 19.

National legislation for the supervision of boxing throughout North America, Alaska excepted, was favored in a special report by a committee named to consider the subject.

SEAPLANE RACES ARE ONCE MORE POSTPONED

BALTIMORE, Oct. 20.—(AP)—A gusty off-shore wind and a strong outbound tide conspired today again to keep within the flapping canvas hangars the seven entrants in the Jacques Schneider international seaplane trophy race. With the official navigability tests now but two days away, no planes have been in the air at Bay Shore Park, the scene of the coming event, since Sunday. Next Friday the preliminary navigability and qualification trials will take place, with the race itself scheduled Saturday.

The Italians, Giovanni De Briganti and Ricardo Muselli, with their two huge Macchi flying boats, have been hardest hit by the weather's caprices. Under the care of Mario Castoldi, their designer, the Macchis have been tuned and ready to take the runway for the past two days. De Briganti and Marselli have not had an opportunity to try their wings since they reached the United States with their charges.

The United States army entry and one of the navy entries are fresh from the pulitzer race at Mitchell field, where they were flown as land planes. The British ships, the powerful super marine monoplane Napier S-4, which flew 220 miles an hour in England, and the tiny Biplane, the Gloster-Napier ill both have sampled the air above the Bay Shore Schneider course since their arrival.

THIRTEEN HORSES REMAIN IN ENDURANCE RACE

BRANDON, Vt. Oct. 20.—(AP)—The thirteen horses remaining in the three hundred mile eastern endurance test all arrived here tonight within the nine hour time limit, completing the second day of the five day grind. Tomorrow the route of the 60 mile daily ride will be to Shoreham and back to Brandon.

Two horses which completed the first day of the test yesterday were withdrawn by their owners at the start today because they had developed slight temperatures and were not believed to be in the best condition. They were Gladstone Morgan, from the Morgan horse farm, and Vanity Fair, grade thoroughbred, owned by the 101st New York National Guard unit.

Clear, cold weather, favoring horses and riders, prevailed through today's ride, which was from Brandon to Rutland and return. The day was windy but not sufficiently so to hamper the horses. The noon day rest was taken at the Rutland Country club.

IRISH FIELD HOCKEY TEAM BEATE GERMANTOWN TEAM

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 20.—(AP)—The Irish hockey union opened its series of matches with American teams today by defeating the Germantown Cricket club eleven 2 to 1.

On the first play of the game, Miss Dorothy McCann, playing left inside for the visitors, took the ball down the field, passed it and received it again on time to shoot the first goal. A few minutes later Miss Elsie Steen center forward, tallied from scrimmage, giving the Irish players a lead the Germantown team could not overcome.

Miss Margaret Wiener, center forward, scored the lone goal for Germantown in the second half of the contest.

Persson to Come to U. S.

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 20.—(AP)—Harry Persson, heavyweight champion pugilist of Sweden, known as the "slugging stone cutter." Announced here today that he would go to the United States early in 1926 to fight under the tutelage of Tex Richard.

AGGIES HAVE ONLY LIGHT WORK TUESDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Oct. 20.—With a tough scrimmage scheduled for tomorrow and the second team playing against the coast guard academy at New London this afternoon, the Connecticut Aggie varsity received only a light workout under Freshman Coach Alexander here today.

Signal drill in which all the plays to be used against Tufts at Medford next Saturday were used occupied the greater portion of today's session. Some time was also devoted to kicking.

Coach Dole was dissatisfied with the defensive work of his team against Massachusetts Aggies Saturday, and the Connecticut eleven will go through a drill tomorrow afternoon that is planned to correct this department of play. Dole intends to give the team a real scrimmage, one if possible that will give the team just as much of a test as the Tufts game Saturday.

Connecticut's second team, reinforced in the backfield by the husky "Pop" Williams of Danielson, who is ineligible, will scrimmage against the varsity first, with Hube the main burden of the attack carried by Williams. Dole is confident that Tufts has no ball carrier equal to the Danielson boy, who tips the scales in the vicinity of 200 pounds and is as fast as any man on the squad. An afternoon of trying to check Williams will help considerably in developing the defense, in Dole's opinion. Following the session with the second team, Dole will have Coach Alexander's freshman team line up against the varsity for another scrimmage, all of which means the Connecticut Aggie varsity will have a busy afternoon tomorrow.

Captain Brink suffered torn ligaments in his shoulder in the Massachusetts Aggie game, and today he watched practice from the sidelines His arm is in a sling at the present time, but it is hoped that he will be in condition to play Saturday.

COMPLETE SHAKE-UP IN YALE LINEUP MADE

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 20.—(AP)—Following the defeat by Pennsylvania Saturday, the Yale varsity football team has been given a complete shake-up. With the exception of the ends, the entire first team line has been demoted and the second team moved up to take its place. The coaches announced the changes were not permanent.

Ray Lapham, scrub halfback, who narrowly escaped injuries Sunday when he was a member of the Yale geology expedition which tumbled 40 feet into a quarry near Middletown, was injured in football practice today. He was badly cut about the face and hands.

Announcement was made tonight by the Yale Athletic association that the bowl had been completely sold out for the Army game on October 31 and that no further applications will be accepted.

Uncle Sam's split in the 1925 world's series amounts to $118,235 according to the figures made public by the internal revenue bureau. This tax was levied on admissions, but the aged gentleman will likewise receive a further cut in the shape of taxes from ticket brokers and on the income of the players, managers and magnates.

DEMPSEY WOULD HAVE LOST TITLE UNDER NEW RULING JUST PASSED

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—(AP)—Jack Dempsey would have lost his heavyweight boxing title at the Polo Grounds two years ago to Luis Angelo Firpo had a ruling made public today by the New York athletic commission been in effect.

Referees of the Metropolitan district, called before the commission, were told that hereafter if a boxer is knocked through the ropes and is assisted back into the ring by those at the ringside he will lose the decision.

"If there is any fear in your souls you are not the men to be boxing referees," Commissioner William Muldoon told the officials. "When a man is knocked through the ropes those upon whom he falls may move in any manner designed to avoid his weight but if he is assisted back into the ring in any manner whatsoever he shall lose the decision.

Dempsey and Firpo met at the Polo Grounds on September 14, 1923, and in the midst of a series of knockdowns that made ring history the Argentinian's wild right caught the champion flush on the jaw and sent him spinning backwards through the hemp to the laps of newspapermen. Dempsey was pushed back into the arena and, although dazed, fought off his opponent, rushed and conquered him with a knockout in the next round.

Several close students of boxing contended at the time that Firpo had scored a victory and that Dempsey should have been counted over when plunged out of the ring. Under the law as laid down to the referees today the champion would have lost the decision and his crown.

A rule regarding knockdowns has been flouted of late and the referees were told to withhold count over a fallen man until the opponent had retired to a neutral corner.

It was also made plain that the "booing" of crowds will not be allowed to interfere with the program. One attempt at announcement will be made, after which the fighters will be called to the center of the ring for instructions and the battle will be started. Hitherto cards have been delayed for several minutes while announcers endeavored to make themselves heard.

The commission's rooms were thronged with pugilists, managers, promoters and hangers-on, indicating that the indoor season will be lively. Among the visitors was the former featherweight champion, Johnny Dundee, who was told to return on Friday and make known his intentions in regard to meeting Fred Bretonnel, the French battler.

Dundee was accused by the French Federation of "running out" on a bout with Bretonnel in Paris several months ago and the New York official body is working hand in hand with the Parisians to compel him to go through with his agreement.

DARTMOUTH-HARVARD TICKETS ARE NOT TO BE BOUGHT

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 20.—(AP)—Notice that the Harvard-Dartmouth football game schedule for Saturday has entered the "Big Game" category was served today when the Harvard athletic committee returned 150 checks to alumni who had applied for reservations for the contest. All available space in the stadium has been bespoken and the association still has several hundred checks from alumni which are being retained in the hope that some reservations may be cancelled before Saturday. It was said today be the first time other than "Big Three" games here that the capacity of the stadium—53,000—had been reached by reservations so far in advance of the event.

All the invalids of the Harvard squad with the exception of Saltonstall and Coady were in uniform at today's practice which took the form of a 50 minute scrimmage. Saltonstall, regular right end, suffered a leg injury against Holy Cross and will be out for a month while Coady, fullback, received minor hurts. Captain Cheek, Miller, Leo Daly and Nash, all recovering from injuries, took part in today's workout.

LANDIS FAVORS EARLY CLOSING OF SEASON

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—(AP)—Kenesaw Mountain Landis, baseball commissioner, favors concluding the 1926 campaigns of the major leagues a week earlier than heretofore to avoid conflicting with the opening of the football season, and also disagreeable weather for the world's series. He believes the last Sunday in September is the proper time for the teams to finish the season, starting the World's series two or three days later.

"This question will be among the chief subjects for discussion at the joint session of the American and National Leagues next December," Commissioner Landis said tonight.

"I understand the schedules can be arranged so the season can be finished the last week in September without inconvenience to anybody, and without scheduling too many doubleheaders."

The commissioner may place this recommendation before club owners of the two leagues.

If the season is shortened, the usual schedules of 154 games would be maintained, however.

Nutmegs Will Practice Tonight

The Nutmeg football team, which held the Jewett City Speed-boys to a scoreless tie Sunday and whose own goal line has been uncrossed will hold a practice this Wednesday evening, 7:30 P. M. at Chelsea parade to which all the members of the team are requested to be present. In Sunday's game the team showed a lack of practice and teamwork which should be overcome with frequent drills. The he overcome with frequent drills. The Nutmeg's have the material for a good team and if the members play together a championship team will be the result.

A game is in the offing for next Sunday with the Lorraine team of Westerly at Sachem field, Falls. The Rhode Island team should prove a good drawing card as they have a fast team and one which should give the local boys plenty of opposition. Further particulars will be announced later in the week concerning Sunday's game.

YALE CROSS COUNTRY CAPTAIN IS INJURED

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 20.—(AP)—M. L. Smith, of Louisville, Ky., captain of Yale cross country team, was injured today when he fell from a motorcycle, and will be unable to run with his team in the meet with Springfield college here Saturday. He injured his shoulder in the fall. Smith won the intercollegiate championship cross country race over the Van Cortlandt course in New York last fall.

Mandell and Vincentini Matched

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 20.—(AP)—Sammy Mandell, Rockford, Ills., has been matched to box ten rounds with Luis Vincentini, New York, here October 30. They will weigh in at 135 pounds.

MEETING OF EASTERN CONN. INTERSCOLASTIC LEAGUE

The first eastern Connecticut and western Rhode Island Interscholastic Athletic Councils' meeting this year was called to order by E. Stanley Taylor, secretary of the council in the Westerly high school Monday afternoon. As neither the president nor vice president was present, Mr. Taylor was elected temporary chairman. The resignation of William Aitkin, formerly football coach at the N. F. A. and president of the athletic council was read and accepted. O. F. Lincoln, formerly sports editor of The Day and now of Bradford, was present with Mr. Hindle a member of the Bradford soccer team to urge the league to add soccer to the present list of sports. The Bradford team in an effort to get the game going in the high schools of this section are offering to furnish men free of charge to help coach the school players. The proposition aroused considerable favorable comment but as the members had had no time to think it over it was postponed to the December meeting for final action.

The cross country managers and coaches were excused from the meeting and were conducted over the course which has been selected for the meeting which is to be held there on Armistice day.

The championships which had not been awarded were acted upon and with the trophies were awarded as follows:

Baseball, 1925, Norwich Free Academy; basketball 1924-25, Chapman Tech; track 1925, Chapman Tech. The revised league constitutions were distributed and are to be acted upon in the next meeting. The old constitution has been in effect since the league was first started with N. F. A., Bulkeley and Chapman Tech as the members but since that time Bulkeley has dropped out and Stonington and Westerly have joined. Copies of the league track records were also distributed and are to come up at the next meeting for correction or acceptance.

A discussion arose regarding the N. F. A.-Stonington football game which was postponed from Oct. 10th and as the representatives of the two schools could reach no agreement regarding a date for the play-off it was referred to the council which decided that it should be played Wednesday, Oct. 21, in Stonington at 2.30 p. m.

The discussion of the matter of eligibility of scholars transferring from one school to another after being disciplined was started by the fact that two Westerly players, after being suspended, had transferred to the Stonington high school and it was decided that in such cases the scholar would not be eligible to play on any school team for one year. General approval was expressed for the league football games by the Storrs Agricultural college which was picked to furnish all officials for league football games this season. It was moved that each school submit the names of two or three umpires whom they would like to have for their baseball games to the league for action and approval.

The annual league track meet was scheduled for Wednesday, May 19th, to be held in New London. This meet is for the league championship, any dual meets between members of the league are to be arranged by the managers of the schools concerned. The baseball, basketball and track managers who had been out arranging the league schedules reported and the schedules were adopted as suggested. The tennis, football and cross country schedules will be drafted at the next meeting. The next meeting of the council will be held Friday, November 4 at the Norwich Free Academy.

Those representing the schools at the meeting were:

Norwich Free Academy, E. E. Brigham, baseball coach; C. S. Whitney, football coach; A. J. Woods, football manager; J. U. Dion, baseball manager.

Stonington, P. E. Newhall, principal; W. F. O'Brien, football coach; E. Duke, baseball manager; H. Crangin, football manager; M. Pescatello, basketball manager; R. E. McCaffery, track manager.

FOUR E. C. BOYS PLAYED AGAINST WESLEYAN TEAM

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Oct. 20.—Four eastern Connecticut boys played on the Connecticut Aggie Freshmen eleven that yesterday afternoon fought the Wesleyan yearling team to a scoreless tie on Andrus field at Middletown.

They are Bernard Hewitt, of New London, who played the entire game at right end, Allard of Plainfield, who started and played most of the contest at fullback, McNamara of Norwich, who started at left guard, and Gilman, also of Norwich, who was later substituted for McNamara.

The game was a disappointment to Connecticut followers of the yearlings, who made the trip to Middletown to see the contest. Outplaying the red and black frosh in all departments of the game, and making in eighteen first downs to three for Wesleyan the Connecticut first year men lacked the punch to drive across for a score when deep in their opponents territory. A clear forward pass was muffed in the end zone, spoiling what would otherwise have been a sure score.

Except for the last few minutes of play, when Wesleyan worked the ball to Connecticut's twenty-yard line on a couple of long forward passes, they were unable to work in the ball beyond the Aggies forty yard line, so strong was the defense shown by the Storrs eleven.

SAHAGIAN ELECTED CAPTAIN OF AGGIE FRESHMEN

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Oct. 20.—Birch Sahagian of Worcester, Mass., was today elected captain of the Connecticut Aggie freshman eleven, according to the announcement of Freshman Coach L. A. Alexander.

Sahagian plays fullback for the Aggie yearlings, and is a triple threat man, being equally proficient in running, kicking and passing. His defensive work is of high order also. Sahagian is a product of the Worcester, Mass., North High school.

RUMOR THAT ACADEMY WILL WITHDRAW FROM LEAGUE

There is more or less talk regarding a rumor that the Norwich Free Academy will withdraw from the Eastern Connecticut Interscholastic league at the close of the present football season. The chief reason advanced for the withdrawal of the Academy is that the league is not representative of eastern Connecticut, and the title is more or less a hollow honor. Another thing that has brought the matter of withdrawal to the front is the schedule which was arranged this fall for the football team.

On this season's schedule there are very few games played at home on a Saturday, there being only three. From a financial standpoint it is the Saturday home game that pays and if the football team is to be self-supporting there should be more than three games at home on Saturday. The other home games of which there are three, are played on Fridays and are attended only by the student bodies of the two schools. The Academy plays Westerly twice, Stonington twice and Chapman Tech twice and there are three games with other schools. With the Academy out of the league a schedule of nine games with nine different schools could be played, giving the Academy better athletic standing in the state.

The league is not representative of eastern Connecticut in the least as it embraced only three high schools in the eastern part of the state and one in Rhode Island. The three Connecticut schools in the league are Chapman Tech, Stonington, Norwich Free Academy. Outside the league there is Buckeley, Plainfield, Windham, Killingly and Putnam, all producing teams that should be taken into consideration when a sectional scholastic title is awarded.

The theory is advanced that if there is to be a league it should embrace these eight teams in the eastern part of the state, at least. With a league of this size the scedule of a team would include only one in which each team in a season and possibly one of two intersectional games during the football season. In the baseball season the schedule would be more extensive and would include a number of teams outside the league.

It is expected that this subject will be discussed freely among the athletic coaches at the Academy this winter and it is possible that the Academy will not be in the league another season unless the league is enlarged.

YOUNG COULON NOT SATISFIED WITH OUTCOME OF RECENT BOUT

Young Coulon, of Taftville, who lost his state flyweight title to Pinky Silverberg at Ansonia last Saturday night, is not satisfied with the outcome of the fight and the way he was prepared for the bout by his handlers. Coulon is not alone in his belief that things were against the youngster in the fight.

In the first place Coulon was worked too hard and under conditions that were not of the best. The lad was tired out with the training before he entered the ring and his handlers had tried to change his entire style of fighting in a week. The change of style prescribed by his handlers deprived Coulon of his hitting power, the power with which he knocked out Happy Neilson, a better man than Silverberg, in one round.

Then the fight itself. Silverberg was on the defensive practically all the time, according to the local fans. Coulon carrying the fight to Silverberg when he could run him down into a corner. Yet Silverberg was presented the verdict by referee Dan Buckley. In the opinion of those at the ringside the most liberal gift that the referee could have passed out to Silverberg was a draw.

Now Coulon says that he will take on Silverberg for fun, money or marbles at any time but that he will do his own training in own way hereafter. He will fight his own style. The eastern part of the state is giving odds that Silverberg will steer clear of another bout with the Taftville boy now that he has the state crown safely tucked away.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

(By the Associated Press.)

Snooks Dowd, Jersey City International league infielder, ran 200 yards for a touchdown back in the palmy days when he was played quarterback one the Lehigh team. Inches from his opponents' goal line, he became confused on the plunge and started running the wrong way. He ran the entire length of the field in the wrong direction before regaining his sense of direction. Circling his own goal posts, he retraced his steps down the field through the eleven opposing players for a touchdown, the longest run in the history of inter-collegiate football.

Not many years ago a player on one of the smaller New England college teams became confused and started to run in the wrong direction. But he wasn't the only confused one. An opposing player grounded him from behind after he had clipped off 35 yards in reverse gear.

In commenting on a proposed deal which would send Pitcher Luque to the Giants, Jack Hendricks, manager of the Reds has this to offer:

"Luque is not going to the New York club. Wait, I'll qualify that. Luque might go to the Giants if we get Frisch. We are not working to improve the New York club, but our own."

Now the complexion of the deal has changed somewhat and Rouah and Hargrave of the Reds are mentioned in a trade for Kelly, Meusel and Snyder of the Giants.

Lou Gehrig, Yankee first baseman, has organized a basketball team for entrance into the professional basketball field this winter. The team will be know nas "the Lou Gehrig Stars."

Tex Rickard announces that he will install two giant clocks in the new Madison Square garden to keep the fight fans informed as to the progress of each round. The faces of the clocks will be split into four different colored sections, three to show each minute of the round and the fourth to mark off the rest period between rounds.

As a result of Roger Peckinpaugh's erratic world's series fielding, it is likely that the announcement of the American league's most valuable player award will be held off next year, until after baseball's blue ribbon event is over. Peck says entering the series with this honor is so much ball and chain on one's hands.

Joe Engle, veteran Washington scout, was given a $150 gold watch as his share of the world's series spoils. The 25 players receiving a full share of the loser's end voted the ivory hunter the watch although his activities toward losing the series were confined to the combing of the sticks. Veach received $1,320 as his share while the others to share partially include Ballou and Ogden $1,000 each; Jeanes and Myer $500 each and the clubhouse boy and the ground keeper $500 each.

One long mile of motor coaches will convey the West Point Cadet corps to New Haven when the mule meets the bulldog in the Yale saucer, Saturday, Oct. 31. Through Connecticut the caravan of future lieutenants will be escorted by a motor troop mustered from the Connecticut state police. Forty motor buses will be necessary to haul the corps.

MARTIANS FIND HOME BREW NECESSITY, SAYS SCIENTIST

PASADENA, Cal. Oct. 20.—(AP)—Home brew is a necessity on the planet Mars, provided there is life there and also provided that life requires moisture to live, in the opinion of Dr. Charles E. St. John, astronomer and physicist of the Mount Wilson observatory near here.

The water supply on Mars, as revealed in a series of tests just completed by Dr. St. John, is about one-twentieths that found on the tops of the semi-arid mountains of Southern California.

Besides being on perpetual emergency rations of water, the Martians if there are any such creatures, also are short of what this planet calls air. The oxygen supply there is only 60 per cent of that on the heights of Mount Everest in the Himalayas, and on Mount Everest explorers must use oxygen tanks to keep alive.

In the matter of heat Mars is better off than was formerly supposed. In fact, says Dr. St. John, the Mars temperature, often described as excessively cold, may be nearly the same as that of this earth, since Mars absorbs all but about fifteen per cent of the light and heat reaching it from the sun. As a basis of comparison, it is stated that this planet absorbs only one-half the light and heat received from the sun, and reflects the remainder.

Artists to Portray Russian Life

MOSCOW, Oct. 20. (AP)—Soviet educational authorities have decided to send to various places in the Soviet union 73 artists to paint pictures of local revolutionary events, portraits of local leaders, scenes of labor processes and other special features of present day life. The expedition will include a number of noted artists. They will visit the Crimea, the Urals, the Ukraine and the northern provinces. A number of artists are to be sent abroad for the same purpose.

To Tell Age of Deer

The Department of Agriculture says the most reliable way to determine the age of deer is by the teeth. They get their permanent teeth around the age of three and these gradually wear off with age. Some have been known to wear down to the gums. Another way is by the horns, but this is not always accurate, as they often grow more than one antler a year.

Pussy, the Wise One

Apparently we owe the word cat to the Romans. They called the animal "catus," which meant the "knowing one," and the word passed into the romance languages to "chat" and "gato." Other authorities will have it that the word "cat" is a corruption of an old word borrowed from the French, to wit, "acate."

Gravel is the name given to aggregations of water-worn and rounded fragments of rocks, varying in size from a pea to a walnut. When the fragments are smaller the deposit is sand, when larger it is called shingle.

NAVAL INQUIRY INTO RAMMING OF S-51

BOSTON, Oct. 20—(A. P.)—The naval inquiry board assembled here to investigate the ramming of the submarine S-51 by the steamer City of Rome adjourned its hearing late today until October 26, when Captain John H. Diehl, master of the steamer, and his officers will be called to testify.

During the sessions, Lieut. Commander Lockwood, the judge advocate, has attempted to introduce evidence into the record to show that the submarine lights were burning when she was rammed.

Several witnesses, including the steamer's radio operator, have testified that Captain Diehl waited almost two hours before he sent out a message relating to the disaster. The testimony showed that the navy department was not notified until three hours after the submarine was sent to the bottom.

These last two points were brought out today when the steamer's radio log was produced by George W. Nichols, Boston manager of the Radio Corporation of America. Corroborative testimony was given by Harold H. Kelley, radio operator on the City of Rome, and Vincent E. Viall, operator on duty at the Boston Navy yard at the time of the disaster.

Viall testified that he intercepted a message sent out by Kelley which requested the Boston station of the Tropical Radio company to cancel a previous message relating to the sinking of the S-51. When Kelley took the stand, he denied sending such a message and it does not appear on his radio log. At a previous session Whitcomb Ourie, Tropical company operator, said he received the cancellation message from the City of Rome about 4 hours after she rammed the submarine.

The testimony regarding the S-51's lights was given by Boatswain Preston I. Williamson of the coast guard patrol boat 290. He said his vessel passed within three quarters of a mile of the submarine at 5:30 p. m. on the night of the disaster and noted that her mast and side lights were burning. The mast lights could be seen for five miles and the side lights were burning.

During the afternoon session, Michael Lira, one of the three members of the S-51's crew picked up by the steamer's lifeboat, was recalled. He said he did not remember discussing the qualifications of the submarine's officers after he was taken aboard the steamer. A previous witness had testified that Lira had told him that "an inexperienced officer was on watch" when the submarine was struck.

RUDDERLESS ITALIAN FREIGHTER IN HARD LUCK

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—(AP) — The second officer of the rudderless Italian freighter Ignazio Florio has been washed overboard to his death by high seas, the first officer has sustained a fracture of the leg and all the ship's lifeboats have been smashed, a radio message from the President Harding, which has been standing by all day unable to effect a rescue reported tonight.

Two efforts by the President Harding to get boats to the Florio failed today, but the ship was standing by tonight to resume rescue work as soon as possible in an effort to save the crew of 37 board the Florio. Believing that the Florio might capsize in the storm, Captain Brening of the President Harding had oil poured on the water, but seas were not quieted enough to permit use of life boats.

The Florio which left Montreal October 4, bound for Mediterranean ports, lost its rudder in the storm. It sent out S. O. S. calls Monday, the President Harding being the first ship to arrive. The steamer F. S. Elvin was reported tonight on its way to assist in the rescue.

Captain Brening's message said high seas were sweeping the Floria fore and aft and the wind was of hurricane force at times, although the weather was moderating slightly.

BRITISH STEAMER DISABLED 15 MILES OFF BOSTON LIGHT

BOSTON, Oct. 20—(A. P.)—The British steamer King City disabled 15 miles east of Boston lightship by a cracked high pressure cylinder, was towed into this port tonight by the coast guard cutter Tampa, which had been ordered to her assistance by radio after the steamer sent out calls for help.

The King City was on her way to Boston from Swansea with a cargo of coal when the accident occurred. She was athe fourth vessel to receive aid from the Tampa within a fortnight.

CREDIT OF $1,500,000 HAS BEEN EXTENDED TO THE VATICAN

NEW YORK, Oct. 20. (AP)—A credit of $1,500,000 has been extended by New York bankers to the Vatican to insure the Holy See against the fluctuation of European currencies and to establish closer financial relations with the American hierarchy. The loan was negotiated by the firm of Blair and company, which together with the Chase National bank, will act as a depositary for the Vatican. Officials of both institutions withheld comment pending final completion of the deal.

STEAMER MAURETANIA IS TO BEAR LOAD OF TREASURE

LONDON, Oct. 20—(A. P.)—The Daily Mail says that the steamer Mauretania, which sails next Saturday for New York, will carry one of the biggest loads of treasure ever taken overseas in a single ship. It will include gold shipments, which presumably are the outcome of recent big sales by the Bank of England.

Insurance on the gold, which is said to total £5,000,000, has been paid and the normal rate of 15 pence per pound sterling has ben doubled for reinsuring excess liabilities of the Underwriters, who have large commitments.

FILIPINO COURT TO DECIDE STATUS OF POKER AS GAME

MANILA, Oct. 20—Meeting with adverse results in the courts in the prosecution of persons arrested on a charge of playing poker, the constabulary authorities have concluded that further raids on these games would be useless expenditure of time and money until the question of whether poker is a game of skill or chance is decided by the supreme court.

The courts of first instance have held that poker is a game of skill, while the attorney general has rendered an opinion that it is a game of chance and as such is punishable under the laws.

Brigadier General Rafael Crame, chief of the constabulary, calling the attention of the secretary to the subject says:

"Since the attorney general in his opinion of several years ago held that poker was a game of chance and punishable, instructions were given the constabulary to apprehend and prosecute all persons engaged in playing poker and these instructions are still in vogue. However, since judges have taken upon themselves to acquit persons engaged in poker playing, there seems to be no further need of the constabulary spending time and money in raiding these games, if the men caught will be acquitted."

Steps have been taken to bring a case before the supreme court in order that a final decision on the subject may be obtained.

GREAT NUMBER OF WOMEN IN SUMMER SCHOOL AT OXFORD

OXFORD, Oct. 20—The Oxford summer school was outstanding for its great proportion of women students. They were numerous in all lecture rooms and often well outnumbered the men, especially in the libraries. Oxford experience shows that women in a university are more conscientious and work harder than do the men, without winning proportionate honors in final examinations. This fact tends to reconcile the men to the admission of women, for they now are losing their fear of female predominance.

It is often remarked that several Oxford colleges were founded by women, either alone or with their men relations, but that in no case were women students admitted to the foundation. This fact is the more noticeable in that coeducation was not unknown at that time.

ALLEGED NEGLECT OF HOMES BY WOMEN IS CALLED "BOSH"

ATLANTIC CITY, Oct. 20.—(A. P.)—Charges against American women of "neglecting home and children" were characterized as "nothing but a lot of bosh" by Ada Bessie Swann, the home service expert of the American Gas association in an address.

"The only new fashion I know of that has taken permanent hold on American women is to change the word housekeeping to homemaking," the speaker said.

"God gave women a permanent characteristic of the womanly make-up, the ruling desire to be necessary to the happiness of those who make up her family, her husband and her children. It has never been changed, never will be, and is not found in men, because God did not fashion them so."

Without charity for human defects self-esteem would be very scarce.

Rub Away Baby's Colds

A Boon to Mothers

Mothers everywhere who realize the danger to delicate little stomachs of too much dosing appreciate the value of Vicks in treating croup and children's colds.

With Vicks there is nothing to swallow—you just rub it on. The body heat releases the ingredients — Menthol, Camphor, Eucalyptus, Thyme, Turpentine —in the form of vapors which carry the medication directly to the nose, throat, bronchial tubes and lungs.

At the same time Vicks is absorbed through and stimulates the skin like a poultice or plaster.

Colds go overnight, croup is generally relieved within 15 minutes.

BOY SCOUTS REQUIRE MORE LEADERS IN THEIR PROGRAM

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—(A. P.)—The Boy Scouts of America will need at least 300 men to serve as executives and assistant executives in connection with the operation of the 600 first-class councils now operating and the new councils to be organized.

To meet this need plans have been made for a series of intensive training courses in different parts of the country.

The first course will be held with the co-operation of Teachers College, Columbia university, and will open October 24. The course will be restricted to men with such educational qualifications and general aptitude as will reasonably assure their success in this particular field of educational work.

During the summer season approximately 300,000 boys had the benefit of camps conducted by the Boy Scouts of America.

Membership in the scout movement increased during the year by more than 100,000 and now totals 689,000 men and boys. The Lone Scout division has 91,593 members.

In the volunteer service of 710,000 men, there are less than 1,000 men employed professionally. The aim has been to keep the Boy Scout movement as largely as possible on a volunteer basis, but when men are engaged in the work professionally it is desired to have them receive special training.

SERENE GENEVA STIRRED AT ARRIVAL OF RICH MAHARAJAH

GENEVA, Oct. 20—(A. P.)—So accustomed is Geneva to greatness within its borders that it rarely gets excited over an important new-comer, but it awoke with sudden interest with the advent of the Maharajah of Patiala, who came as one of the Indian delegates to the league of nations assembly. The Maharajah is credited with being the world's richest resident.

In the ballrooms of the hotels where various delegations gave receptions with dancing a feature, the Maharajah was the centre of attraction. Despite his rather ponderous body he waltzed gracefully with some of the fairest of the ladies present. His bosom glittered with precious pendants and in the lobes of his ears shone huge pearls encircled with diamonds.

The Maharajah came with a suite of fourteen persons. He proved a source of material delight to Geneva shopkeepers. He is reported to have spent $10,000 alone in the purchase of watches and binoculars, with an accent on binoculars, for which he seems to have a passion as a collector. He developed into such a fantastic and interesting personality that eventually to escape the crowds he was forced to leave his hotel by the kitchen door to attain his automobile unmolested.

But if the Maharajah was ever in the public eye his spouse, the Maharanee, and her two ladies-in-waiting, remained in obscurity. They went not to receptions, dinners or balls, ate their meals in the seclusion of their apartments and only emerged for drives in closed motor-cars.

HAWAIIAN FRUITS PROVE IDEAL FOR SYRUP PRODUCTION

HONOLULU, Oct. 20—The high sugar content of Hawaiian fruits has made it possible to produce syrups at a less cost than synthetic syrups are produced on the mainland, it has been revealed by experiments conducted by Dr. S. E. Oliver, chemist, who is experimenting at the Hawaiian Homes settlement on the island of Molokai. He announced the successful extraction of syrups of varying degrees of concertation through a freezing process on which he has been working several years. The experiments here were confined principally to pineapples, which contain an average of 14 per cent of sugar, but he said he was able to extract a syrup of triple that strength.

REFORESTATION SUCCESSFUL IN OREGON NATIONAL FOREST

EUGENE, Ore., Oct. 20—Reforestation in the Mount Hebo Douglas fir area of the Siuslaw National Forest in Western Oregon has proved successful. Trees planted from 1912 to 1916 are eight to 16 feet high, the average height being 10 feet.

In addition to the replanting started in 1912, approximately 180,000 firs were set out two years ago. Four out of five of these trees are growing, except on the highest mountains, because there is little protection from the elements.

BORN IN A BARN, LITTLE CHURCH NOW IS A MODEL

CHICAGO, Oct. 20—(A. P.)—Thirteen families met in a barn nearly 80 years ago and organized the parish of the Episcopal Church of Our Savoir. Through fire, wars and hard times it survived. Today it is a modern, fully equipped and beautiful little house of worship for 500 communicants, pointed out by Diocesan officials as a model of church living. Weekly pledges have doubled, open offerings have tripled and special offerings amounting to $8,000 paid for the improvements.

SOVIET NEWSPAPERS DECREASE 32 PER CENT IN TWELVE YEARS

MOSCOW, Oct. 20—(A. P.)—The number of newspapers in Soviet Russia in comparison with 1913 has decreased by 32 per cent. There are now published throughout the Federation 536 newspapers, as against 870 in pre-war times, but the circulation of the Soviet papers exceeds the pre-war time circulation by 110 per cent, having reached by July 1 this year nearly 8,000,000. The large political papers, like Pravda and Izvestia have a circulation of more than 1,500,000 each.

The present number of magazines published in Russia is about the same as before the revolution, but owing to their high prices, they are practically inaccessible to the average reader. The magazines seldom find their way to the villages.

COMMISSION URGES AUSTRALIA TO CONTINUE SEARCH FOR OIL

MELBOURNE, Oct. 20—(A. P.)—While the prospects of the discovery of oil in commercial quantities in Australia are generally unfavorable, indications in the Roma district of Queensland and the Kimberley district of western Australia justify the recommendation that further detailed geological mapping should be undertaken and trail boring conducted, says a report of the federal joint committee of public accounts on oil exploration in Australia and Papua.

The prospects in Papua are generally hopeful and the report adds, work should continue to be carried out by a private company on behalf of the federal government such as the Anglo-Persian Oil company, which is now operating in Papua.

NEW ISLANDS DISCOVERED BY JAPANESE EXPLORER

TOKYO, Oct. 20—(A. P.)—The newspapers report that a group of more than ten coral islands, the total value of which is estimated at about 200,000,000 yen, has been discovered in the South Seas by a Japanese explorer, M. Inouye.

The Japan Geographical society has started a technical survey of the islands, it is said. They are situated about 350 sea miles off Mindanao Island, Philippines, and the actual position will be made public after the discovery is reported to the International Geographic association, states Mr. Inouye.

These coral islands are not described in the sea-charts, and the largest one is reported to be some fifteen miles in circumference. They are uninhabited.

An increase of $250,000 in the endowment fund of the Northfield Conference during the past year has been announced to the trustees.

RETURNS WALLET AND GETS FREE BARBERING FOR LIFE

YAKIMA, Wash., Oct. 20—(A. P.)—Because Le Roy Poole hunted up the owner of a wallet containing $100 which he had found, he can sport a clean shaven face and a trim poll the rest of his life, without cost.

The owner of the wallet was a barber. When Poole refused a monetary reward, the barber insisted upon his receiving an order for "free barbering for life" as a mark of gratitude.

TIRED OF BEING A STENO, SO SHE ENTERED MAN'S FIELD

LONDON, Oct. 20. (AP)—Kathleen Britter has become London's first woman conveyancer. And she does not see why any capable woman could not do her sort of work if she was interested in it.

"The trouble with so many girls is that they get into a groove and stay there," she said. "I got tired of being a stenographer, studied real property and persuaded a firm that was advertising for a male conveyancer that a woman who handled that sort of work for solicitors for years could fill the place as well."

Miss Britter is 24 and has been a business woman for about five years. Her mother was housekeeper for the late Lord Leverhulme who took an interest in the ambitions of the young stenographer and encouraged her to study law.

HEAVY BREADSTUFF CROP IN SWEDEN TO CUT U. S. FLOUR

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 20.—(AP)—The breadstuff crop in Sweden this year is more than twice as large as that of last year and the requirements for imports of American wheat flour will be correspondingly reduced. Not since 1921 has there been such a harvest. The greatest gains have been made in ryes and wheat sown last fall. The unusually mild winter is believed to have been chiefly responsible.

The yield of rye has been more than sufficient to satisfy the country's normal needs and the calculated requirements for imports of wheat have been reduced from 350,000 tons in 1923 to 180,000.

There were six mail routes from eastern states to California by 1859.

ENGLISH BARRISTERS TO REVIVE MOOTS TO AID YOUNG COUNSEL

LONDON, Oct. 20—(AP)—A revival of the old custom of holding "moots" in the Middle Temple is being planned for November.

The moot is a mock trial designed to give men in the legal profession—and now women—the opportunity of arguing legal problems arising from established facts, in the form in which cases are argued in the Court of Appeal. Two counsel are assigned for each side and when they have put their case, the judge gives judgment. Justice Sankey has promised to preside over the first moot.

This is considered to be one of the best methods of giving junior counsel an opportunity of putting and arguing a case, as well as gathering hints regarding procedure and pitfalls to be avoided when taking a legal case into the glare of a public court.

As Others Think They Have

There are no fools so troublesome as those that have wit. — Benjamin Franklin.

BACK OF A GOOD NAME

Rarely in manufacturing history has a name entrenched itself so firmly in the confidence of the entire world as the name Dodge Brothers.

Everywhere and to everyone this name means but one thing: a product built honestly of the best available materials and sold at a just price.

Behind this product, this price and this enviable reputation lie certain impressive and fundamental facts.

So important is a knowledge of these facts to the motor car buyer that Dodge Brothers, Inc., have determined to publish them, from time to time, until every newspaper reader in America may be presumed to have read them:

Dodge Brothers, during the past eleven years, have built and sold more than one million four hundred thousand motor cars—and more than 90% of these cars are still in service. This record requires no comment. It stands impressively alone in motor car history.

It has never been Dodge Brothers policy to build yearly models. When an improvement, that is really an improvement, is discovered, it is made at once. Their slogan, "Constantly Improved But No Yearly Models" is familiar the world over.

Dodge Brothers build one chassis and only one. This policy materially lowers manufacturing cost. It also enables Dodge Brothers engineers to concentrate their entire time and thought on the betterment of this one type.

Dodge Brothers have never had an "off year" or an "off car." This is because they have never used the public as a testing ground for "new models" or lowered the quality of their product in the slightest degree. Every change has been an improvement on the original design.

Dodge Brothers pioneered in building the first all-steel open car and the first all-steel closed car. These epochal developments have saved Dodge Brothers owners many millions of dollars by materially prolonging motor car life and by effecting marked economies in manufacture. This construction has also reduced incalculably the danger from accident and fire.

Dodge Brothers sell directly through their dealers to the purchaser. There are no sectional distributing agencies to increase the cost of distribution and the cost of the car.

Dodge Brothers have never given so-called "free service." The car is sold at a fair and honest price. Nothing is added to this original purchase price to pay for service that the owner may never need.

Dodge Brothers Dealers were pioneers in unanimously adopting the flat rate service system. By this system, the owner knows in advance what any service job will cost. There are no unpleasant surprises in his bills.

The sturdiness and long life of Dodge Brothers Motor Car is reflected in its resale value. Comparatively few Dodge Brothers Motor Cars are advertised in the resale columns of the newspapers. The values they bring testify unanswerably to their goodness—and the public's belief in their goodness.

The time has passed when transient novelties can lead a thoughtful buyer to overlook the great essentials of motor car worth. A few of these essentials, outlined above, go far to explain why Dodge Brothers name is accepted, the world over, as the hall mark of dollar-for-dollar value.

WESTERLY

The shortest sitting of Westerly Probate court in many sessions was that held in the probate court room of the Westerly town hall Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, before Probate Judge Edward M. Burke. It lasted less than ten minutes.

The business transacted was as follows:

A winter schedule of auction bridge games has been arranged between three Westerly clubs and one from Stonington. It is planned to have two months of card playing before the Christmas holidays and two months afterwards. James Lathrop of Pine Orchard, Branford, Conn., was the driver of a Studebaker touring car, A-1171, Conn. and Herbert L. Noyes, of 91 Mechanic street, Pawcatuck, the operator of a Ford touring car, N-5666 Conn., which collided Monday morning about 8:30 o'clock at the junction of School street and Chester avenue. The Ford touring car was being driven up School street while the Studebaker was headed through Chester avenue to Cross street. The machines were occupied only by the drivers who escaped injury. Patrolman George Madison investigated the accident.

John H. Higgins taken into custody on the 15th of September by the late Sheriff John R. Wilcox of Washington county on a nuisance complaint as a common gambler, on two counts, that of maintaining a room occupied for the puposes of gambling, and also the operation of a wheel of fortune, when presented before Judge Antonio A. Capotosto, in the Westerly session of Superior court for Washington county, by Assistant Attorney General Louis V. Jackovony Tuesday morning, withdrew his plea of not guilty and entered through his attorney, John J. Dunn, a plea of nolo. Attorney Dunn told the court that Higgins was about to go to Florida and there still remained to be produced evidence of his guilt. Attorney Jackovony said that his department recommended a fine.

Judge Capotosto, in imposing a fine of $500, said that he realized what the state's position was in the case under the circumstances, it having been shown that the arrest was made by the late Sheriff Wilcox, although participated in at the time by present Sheriff Mitchell, then deputy, and Westerly Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown, and trusted that the defendant would not have to come before him again.

More pleasing to him, stated the judge, was his next duty that of making citizens of the United States. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Anderson, who appeared before him, and forswore allegiance to the king of Sweden. They were given a rating of 100 per cent American by their witnesses. They own property in this country, have children, and have lived in the United States since 1906.

Before taking up the consideration of the civil docket, Judge Capotosto who was not quite satisfied with the papers of intentions filed, just missed the opportunity of marrying a couple of Jewish descent, possibly related, who came to Westerly from New York city.

The case of Annunziata Serra vs. Gabriele Falcon, in which the plaintiff was represented by Attorney John J. Dunn and the defendant by Attorney John F. Gallagher and Attorney Charles L. Stewart of Norwich, was taken up for the first trial by jury. Attorney Gallagher asked that the case of Angeline G. Falcone vs. Mary A. Serra in which the parties to the suit were the same, be tried as one. Objection by Mr. Dunn was not sustained by Judge Capotosto, who directed that the cases be tried together on the basis of one instead of two. Following the empaneling of the jury, when it appeared no other case would be ready for trial at this term, Judge Capotosto directed the remaining jurors to receive their pay for services and assured them that they would not be molested on this account for two years.

The jury chosen for the Serra-Falcone assault case, in which damages are asked for, follows: Harry N. Chesey, civil engineer, Narragansett; George W. Jordan, painter, Hopkinton; Alexander W. Lewis, farmer, Hopkinton; Newman F. Tuckerman, garage, Westerly (later challenged by Attorney Gallagher); Fred K. Crandall, farmer, South Kingston; Walter H. Greene, weaver, Westerly; Patrick H. Kelley, blacksmith, Charlestown; Elmer L. Tucker, mill operator, North Kingstown; Stephen B. Wells, farmer, farmer, North Kingstown; Herbert H. Richmond; Carlos B. Hamilton, Gardiner, state road, North Kingstown; Walter E. Palmer, laborer, Hopkinton and Charles J. Davol, North Kingstown, appointed foreman.

Attorney Dunn stated that suit was brought by Mrs. Annunziata Serra for injuries alleged to have resulted from an attack made upon her when she went to the store of Demetrio Belvido corner of Pierce and Pond streets Dec. 10th, 1924. As trial proceeded, it was brought out that Mrs. Falcone, said to her that she was satisfied that the plaintiff's daughter ran away with the defendant's son. As a result of the exchange of words, a fight resulted in which Mrs. Serra claimed to have been knocked down, kicked in the left leg, "like a horse," bruised, her hair torn out and her arm bruised and wrenched.

Mrs. Annunziata Serra, the plaintiff, testified through Interpreter Pasquale Salemano, as she spoke only in Italian. The second witness was Mrs. Rose Mary Serra Erickson, a student nurse at Norwich Hospital for the insane, who testified to treatment given by her to her mother. The plaintiff rested its case at 12:30 o'clock.

POLAND IS THREATENED WITH "DREYFUS CASE"

WARSAW, Poland, Oct. 20. (AP)—Poland appears to be threatened with a "Dreyfus Case" arising out of the attempted assassination of President Wojciechowski by a mob at Lemberg last year. A Zionist student, Stanislaw Steiger, who was seen running away after the bomb was thrown, was arrested by the police on the deposition of a ballet dancer, Mlle Pasternak. Steiger vehemently protested his innocence from the beginning, declaring he ran away when the bomb was thrown from self-preservation.

The Jewish population is greatly agitated over the case, regarding Steiger as a martyr, and is doing all it can for his defense.

The criminal court found sufficient evidence against Steiger and sent the case up for trial before the regular tribunal. In the meantime the Jewish community charged the Communist organization with responsibility for the attempt. On investigation the court ruled this conception had not been proved.

Now, when the case has been resumed, a sensation has been caused by news that the Socialist deputy Badt of the German parliament has addressed an interpellation to that body asking why Germany allowed another Dreyfus case to arise in Poland, since she knows perfectly well who the guilty party is.

Badt is alleged to have stated that there was no doubt the bomb had been thrown by the Ukrainian Communist Teofil Olshanski, who was aided by the German consulates to escape from Poland.

The Polish government has instructed its embassy at Berlin to investigate these allegations.

P. E. HOUSE OF BISHOPS TO MEET NEXT IN WASHINGTON

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 20. (AP)—Washington, D. C., was named as the meeting place of the 48th triennial general convention of the Protestant Episcopal church by the house of bishops today. The date will be Oct. 11.

Adoption of the budget by the bishops as approved by the deputies disposed of one of the more important items left for the last week of the general convention. The total to be raised by quotas remained at $3,510,000 each year for the next three years.

The Rt. Rev. John Gardener Murray, New England presiding bishop was formally presented to the house of deputies today.

Declaring that "vast numbers of Christians, both of our own and other communions are in serious distress, perplexity and doubt as to their Christian duty in relation to the problem of war," the Right Rev. Charles H. Brent proposed a resolution in the house of bishops for a committee to study the question.

The resolution as unanimously adopted by the bishops ordered appointment of a committee of five bishops charged with the task.

A proposal to change the name of the church was made in a resolution introduced in the house of deputies by Charles M. Clement of Sunbury, Penna., and J. R. Anderson of Savannah, Ga. The resolution would strike out the word "Protestant" on the title page of the book of common prayer and substitute the word American. Favorable action will be necessary by both houses of this convention with approval at the next, to make the change effective.

Both houses agreed today to send a copy of the report of the joint committee on the ministry of healing to the American Medical association.

SEES HARD TIME AHEAD FOR AMERICAN INDUSTRY

CHICAGO, Oct. 20. (AP)—F. Edson White, president of Armours & Co., believes that American industry within the next two decades, will face the most severe competition it never has experienced. He expressed this opinion in an address today before the Institute of American Meat Packers, which is holding its 20th annual convention.

"Although world commerce is at present repressed dand staggering under the shadows of World war and post-war debts, there is a leashed power which will break loose within the next 20 years. This competition will not only meet us in our markets abroad, but will reach us at home."

E. A. Cudahy, Jr., made an emphatic plea for lower prices for pork.

Charles H. Swift, vice-president of Swift & Co., said he was looking forward to 1926 as the most satisfactory year in the beef industry, with fair prices and some profit for the packers and industry in general.

ATTEMPTED TO OUST SHERIFF FROM STORE

BRIDGEPORT, Oct. 20. City Sheriff William N. Jackson, who was attempting to make the attachment, says Kahn attempted forcibly to throw him out of the place. Kahn says he merely told him to go out and take a look at the fine gold-lettered sign on the store front. Sheriff Jackson took Kahn to the police headquarters and charged him with assault and breach of the peace. Kahn is at liberty on a bond of $50 and will be arraigned in city court Wednesday morning.

VICE-PRESIDENT DAWES PRAISES GERMAN LEADERS

CHICAGO, Oct. 20. (AP)—Initiative of German leaders and their "loyalty to unpopular common sense" played an important part in leading to the four-power treaty of Locarno, Vice-president Charles G. Dawes said today in addressing the Chicago council of foreign relations.

Dr. Joseph Wirth, former chancellor of Germany, and member of the Reichstag, in speaking of the Locarno treaty, said that "liberty and security will come, I hope, for Germany, and will come for France."

"The basis of peace is economic, according to Dr. Wirth, who thought Americans could not overestimate the importance to the peace of the world, of their charity in Germany and of the Dawes plan, and its stabilizing effect.

"If given a chance in foreign markets we will become a good partner," he assured his listeners.

Replying, Mr. Dawes said, "Dr. Wirth must have found in this country a lack of comprehension of the experts' plan. It is not always realized here that the experts' plan is a permanent settlement because it makes payment of reparations secondary to the maintenance of German economic health."

The governor's decision, it was indicated, is the result of a statement by Senator Moses, New Hampshire, that such an appointee would not be seated by the senate.

The governor previously had announced that he would not call a special election to choose a new senator, state officials have estimated that such an election would cost nearly $200,000.

EXHIBITED AT NEW YORK ELECTRICAL SHOW

LUMBER DERRICK BOOM SNAPS, MANUEL DIAS, NEW LONDON, KILLED

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 20.—While at his work at the plant of the Thames River Lumber company, north of the Thames river railroad bridge, Manuel Dias, 33, of 93 Lewis street, was struck and instantly killed when a boom attached to a huge derrick collapsed. Dias was struck on the head by a section of the falling boom and sustained a fractured skull, which lacerated the brain, possible internal injuries and a compound fracture of the left leg. The man is married and has a family.

Dias with several other laborers, was engaged in transferring a quantity of huge pieces of lumber from one section of the yard to another and the derrick was being used. It was a part of Dias duties to guide the boom after the lumber had been attached to it for its transfer. A pile of timber having been raised clear of the ground, the boom started to swing and Dias began guiding it to the section of the yard where it was intended to deposit the timber. Without any warning, the boom snapped and crashed to the ground. One section of the boom weighing several hundreds of pounds, struck Dias on top of the head for the laborer did not have an opportunity to jump from the path of the falling boom. Before his fellow workers reached the location where he had been struck down, the man was dead. Medical Examiner Chas. Kaufman was notified and going to the lumber yard, conducted an investigation, after which he gave the cause of death as accidental and ordered the body of Dias removed to an undertaking establishment.

Both cars were damaged.

The automobile owned by George Sistare Jr., of Station 13 1-2, Waterford, was operated by the owner to the rear of the Soldiers' and Sailors' monument, State street, shortly after 5 o'clock last evening. At 11 o'clock when Sistare returned to where he had left the machine he discovered that it had been stolen. The youngster suffered a fractured skull, the fracture of both legs and lacerations of the face and scalp. His condition is considered critical.

The boy, with several companions, was at Butler's Beach, Green harbor, Pequot avenue, which is used during the summer by children for bathing. The child started to cross the highway and in running to the street did not see the swiftly approaching automobile. Ferro could not bring the car to a stop when he saw the danger of the boy. The child was struck and hurled to the macadam highway with such force that his head was cracked. As soon as Ferro could bring his car to a stop he returned to where the boy lay bleeding from ears and nostrils, and placing him in the automobile, rushed with him to the hospital. After delivering the child at the institution Ferro went to the police station and made a report of the accident.

It is understood that the land at the corner of Church and Main streets which the city is negotiating for is priced by the owner, Sidney Sulsman, at about $3,000. The strip needed is fifteen feet in width at the corner of Main street and then narrows up to about a dozen feet at the corner of Union street. The house at the corner of Union will not come within the space to be acquired by the city, but the residence of Tyler R. Earl, next east on Church street, may be pushed back a bit. The Main street corner was for years the home of the Misses Lockwood and is a landmark of the city. In recent years it has deteriorated in condition so that its value when it passed to the ownership of Mr. Sulsman was not at its highest. The purpose of the city is to widen the entrance to Church street from Main.

There was a let-up to business before the police court this morning, only three cases were on the blotter, in two of them the allegations were alike. The accused were a couple of young fellows who were beating their way on a railway train on the Newhaven road. They are trespassers for no good causes and often are there for criminal purposes.

Hendel was discovered by Constables Frank Peabody and Chester H. Brigham Sunday night. Judge Fred Dimmock imposed a fine of $10 and costs.

Miss Martha Heusey, of New York was fined $25 and costs on a charge of reckless driving, but in view of the fact that the accused had already incurred a serious loss by the accident that brought about the charge, Judge Dimmock imposed a fine of $25 and costs, but remitted the fine. Miss Heusey, on Oct. 16, operated her car in a reckless manner, attempting to pass a machine owned and driven by William Murray, of Mamaroneck, N. Y., on the New Haven turnpike. The Heusey car sideswiped the Muray car and then crashed through a state fence, demolishing the front of the car and causing injuries to Miss Heusey that compelled her to receive hospital treatment.

BAY STATE RUNAWAYS GOT A LIFT FROM NORWICH

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 20.—Elmer W. Keane, 17, of 39 Houghton street, Somerville, Mass., and Steward Edwards, 17, of 58 Oak street, also of Somerville, were arrested as runaways this afternoon by Traffic Officer William Corcoran. The youths admitted having run away from home, headed for nowhere in particular. Keane was possessed of $5, but Edwards, who is colored, was without funds. The youths promised to start back to Somerville if they were given an opportunity to do so and they were given that chance.

SPENT RENT AND SHOE MONEY —HIS WIFE ARRESTS HIM

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 20.—Alfred Morin, a sailor attached to the N-1, submarine base, a prisoner at the police station, was in reality taken into custody by his wife, who preferred charges of intoxication and breach of the peace against her husband. He was locked up and will be given a hearing in the police court tomorrow morning.

Today was pay day in the navy and after Morin had received his semi-monthly compensation he started out to get drunk. He was successful in his mission, for shortly before 5 o'clock he arrived at his home carrying a considerable cargo. His wife reprimanded Morin for his condition, and the husband talked back. So demonstrative did Morin become that Mrs. Morin threatened to have him arrested, and this Morin defied her to do. When Mrs. Morin started from the house to locate a police officer Morin accompanied her and instead of turning Morin over to the first officer she met, Mrs. Morin continued to the police station, where she delivered her husband to Sergeant Frank Howard and preferred the charges that will result in Morin being given a court trial. Mrs. Morin declared that the money her husband had expended for drink was to have been used in paying for house rent and for purchasing shoes for their children.

JOSEPH FERRIS HELD IN JAIL "MARY DOE" DISAPPEARS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 20—Joseph Ferris, about 40, was in the city court this morning for adultery with a woman known in the complaint as Mary Doe. He was arrested in Fall River and brought here last evening. Ferris is in jail now to remain till Saturday, because he could not furnish bail in the sum of $1,000. Mrs. Ferris and her eight year old child were in court during the formality that held her husband. He has confessed his crime and is endeavoring to excuse his conduct in one way and another, but he finds his wife a pretty determined person to deal with in the matter. Ferris lived in adultery here several weeks before he went to Fall River with his paramour, the prosecutor told the court. The woman who is connected with Ferris in the crime cannot be found. She evidently was aware of the fact that the court was seeking her arrest and she disappeared. It is hoped she may be located by Saturday.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

"Give me the open space any day of the year," says Victor Fleming, Paramount director whose latest picture, "A Son of His Father," comes to the Palace theatre on Sunday. "I like to shoot my pictures away from the artificiality of the Klieg lights. No matter how far studio facilities have advanced since I entered pictures, they never hold any feeling of realness for me.

"When I see a studio tree, no matter how natural it may look to the spectator's eye, I know there's something missing. I like to feel there's live sap running through its limbs, and when I see the property man putting it up, I know that's impossible.

"There are some directors who think a glass enclosed studio the only place in which to work. To me, any location is ideal that has the grass for a floor and the sky as a roof.

"It may appear strange that most of my pictures have been of the outdoor variety, those that take one out into "the great open spaces where men are men." But those same open spaces affect me the same way. Out there is the only place I really feel like an honest to goodness man.

"In the past I have directed three Zane Grey "Westerns," also "Code of the Sea," "Adventure," "Empty Hands" and "The Devil's Cargo." I don't know which I enjoyed making most, but I do know that "A Son of His Father" is well up and beyond anything I have ever attempted before."

"A Son of His Father" was adapted for the screen by Anthony Coldewey from the "best-seller" novel of the same name by Harold Bell Wright.

Broadway Theater

Tomorrow night prize night at the Broadway theater. They are all useful and valuable gifts for the men, women and children. Here is something worth getting and it costs you nothing. The show alone, that is scheduled for Thursday, is worth far more than the regular prices that will be charged.

Five acts of Keith vaudeville, the best kind available and as diversified a program as one could wish for.

Harold Armytage sentenced to prison for a crime he did not commit, plans his escape and succeeds in breaking free. At liberty, he assumes a new name and sets about proving his innocence. He is soon rewarded for he discovers the actual criminal responsible for his arrest. Here is a thrilling story and, of course, there's a real love interest too. Everyone is familiar with George R. Sim's sensational melodrama Lights of London and now it has been presented in a film by Lee-Bradford Corporation. Wanda Hawley and Nigel Barrie are the leading stars in a superb cast of well known favorites. Lights of London is the attraction at Broadway theater on Thursday on the picture program.

Palace Theatre

Bebe Daniels and Harrison Ford—there's a combination which should tickle the comedy-loving public's palate.

These two laugh-makers play opposite each other in Bebe's latest Paramount starring picture, "Lovers in Quarantine," coming to the Palace theatre for a three days' run on Thursday.

Frank Tuttle, who made "Miss Bluebeard" and "The Lucky Devil" directed the production, which was written for the screen by Townsend Martin and Luther Reed from F. Tennyson Jesse's New York stage success, "Quarantine."

The story is one of a ship's bride and a strange honeymoon—of Bebe, as Diana Gordon, a daring little society miss who elopes with her sister's fiance. It's fast and furious fun from start to finish.

Alfred Lunt, Eden Gray and other big stage and screen favorites appear in the cast.

Breed Theater

John Ford, who rode into the motion picture Hall of Fame astride The Iron Horse, directs a horse picture of a different sort in Kentucky Pride, the William Fox supreme attraction soon to be shown at the Breed theater. It tells the life story of a thoroughbred filly and was shot in the picturesque Blue Grass region. Some of the world's greatest thoroughbreds, including Man o'War, Fair Play, Negofol, Morvich and The Finn are characters in the story, each acting himself.

The superb human cast is headed by J. Farrell MacDonald, who attained his full measure of screen greatness as Corporal Casey in The Iron Horse.

"Tess" Pleases Mrs. Hardy

LONDON, Oct. 20.—(AP)—Thomas Hardy was unable to come to London for the first presentation in England of his dramatization of his novel, "Tess of the D'Urbervilles," but Mrs. Hardy made the trip to London and after seeing the play expressed her approval of the portrayal of Tess by Miss Gwen Ffrangcon-Davies. Mrs. Hardy said her husband is only slightly indisposed and is ordinarily enjoying good health in spite of his 85 years.

Women See Danger in Liquor

BERLIN, Oct. 20. (AP)—Women doctors, lawyers and economists of Germany favor local option and see in the excessive use of alcohol one of the worst dangers confronting Germany. They held a joint conference with delegates from the Association of German Women Physicians, the Federation of Women Lawyers, and the Association of Women Economists, at the conclusion of which a resolution was adopted memorializing the Reichstag in favor of local option.

WEINGARTNER'S APPOINTMENT CAPS LONG OPERATIC CAREER

BERLIN, Oct. 20 (AP)—Felix von Weingartner, the famous musician and equally famous French philosopher, Henri Bergson, have been elected chairmen of the newly founded League of Nations Commission for International Collaboration.

Weingartner was born in Dalmatia in 1863 and called to the Berlin Royal Opera as alternating chief conductor in 1891. In 1898 he went to Munich to conduct a series of guest performances and subsequently also in Vienna, without the permission of Count von Huelsen, at that time the intendant of the Berlin Opera. Thereupon Count von Huelsen charged von Weingartner with having broken his contract. The court finally ruled that von Weingartner was to be prohibited from conducting in Berlin for the term of 16 years.

In 1912, however, he severed this Gordian knot by giving a series of symphonic concerts in Fuerstenwalde, a suburb just beyond the precincts of Berlin. The event a that time was the talk of all Germany. Weingartner was married to the American singer, Lucille Marcel, who died in 1921.

WASHINGTON HOPES TO BREAK GRID JIE WITH CALIFORNIA

SEATTLE, Oct. 20.—(AP) — The universities of Washington and California, monarchs of the north and south on the Pacific coast football field, have each won four games and two have been tied. The dearest wish of the husky heart this season is to defeat the golden bears.

Not since California renewed playing relations has Washington been able to triumph. Enoch W. Bagshaw, Washington coach, who at the Everett high school built a team that won national championships is in his fifth year of trying to defeat California. Last year his team in the closing minutes made it 7 and 7.

Washington reaches farther from home than usual this season, meeting the University of Nebraska at Lincoln October 17. The huskies play Leland Stanford here November 7.

Confident that the veterans in his backfield could take care of most comers, Bagshaw concentrated on the line and kicking.

LONDON EXPECTS TO HAVE WORLD'S FINEST AIRDROME

CROYDON, Sept. 20.—(AP) — A scheme, which it is stated will make the London terminal airdrome the finest commercial station in the world and which will cost nearly a quarter of a million pounds, has now been begun in earnest.

Much work will have to be done before the airdrome is complete. Trees and hedges are being removed and a road diverted in order to take in an adjoining stretch of land. When this additional ground becomes available the air expresses will have a clear unobstructed space of between two and three miles upon which to take off and alight.

POETRY

The Spirit of Mt. Washington

Have you answered the mountain's summons
In the crimson and gold of fall?
Have you wandered out in the forest
And heard the outdoors call?

Have you stood on the mountain's summit
And gazed down the sunset's trail,
And watched the mists of the evening
Wrap the silent hills in their veil?

You will feel the joy of living
In the beauty of earth and sky,
And your ear may catch the murmur
Of angels passing by.

Come out, ye weary people,
Lift up your eyes from the sod.
Come drink in the mountain's grandeur
And list to the voice of God.

And high in the silent mountains,
As you gaze on the hills below,
The taint of the earth will leave you,
The pride in your heart will go.

You will see the smile of the Maker,
In the midst of the sentinels grand,
You will get a glimpse of the power
And skill of the Master's hand.

—By Margaret I. Simpson.

The Maiden and The Lily

A lily in my garden grew,
Amid the thyme and clover;
No fairer lily ever blew.
Search the wide world over,
Its beauty passed into my heart;
I know 'twas very silly,
But I was then a foolish maid,
And it—a perfect lily.

One day a learned man came by,
With years of knowledge laden,
And him I questioned with a sigh,
Like any foolish maiden:—
"Wise sir, please tell me wherein lies—
I know the question's silly—
The something that thy art defies,
And makes a perfect lily."

He smiled, then bending plucked the flower,
Then 4gone it, leaf and petal,
And talked to me for full an hour,
And thought the point to settle:—
"Therein it lies," at length he cries:
And I—I know 'twas silly—
Could only weep and say, "But where—
O doctor, where's my lily?"

—John Fraser.

Thayer Wilshire, of Augusta, Me., claims the junior eating championship of Maine. After getting his pay the boy felt slight pangs of hunger. Before his appetite was appeased Wilshire had eaten thirteen 10-cent ice creams, six bottles of soda, two ham sandwiches, two hot dogs, two chocolate bars, a box of potato chips, and several glasses of water. And after this demonstration he ran half a mile to prove that he was physically fit.

New York's "poorhouse" for former millionaires, known as the Alexander Freedman Home after its founder, has rounded out its first year, with 57 "guests." These have 28 servants to wait upon them. They live in a beautiful furnished home free of expense to seventy persons selected by the admittance committee, "guests" being limited to that number, although the building is larger than many institutions that house 1,000 "inmates," a word that is tabooed in the Freedman home. Applicants must be not less than 60 nor more than 80 years old, and preference is given to those who are husband and wife.

Smokers are tending away from cigars and toward the cigarette, according to figures collected by the United States department of agriculture. This tendency for the demand for cigar tobaccos to slacken and the increased demand for cigarette type began to be noticeable shortly before the war. During the war cigarette demand increased greatly and has continued growing since the armistice. Producers of the crop are accomodating themselves gradually to the changing demand, but not quite so rapidly as conditions justify. Stocks of cigar tobacco have accumulated and have been utilized to some extent in the manufacture of other products. The estimated acreage of cigar-type tobacco for 1925 is 143,000, which is 39,000 acres less than in 1923.

Investing For Large Profits

At no time in our history has money been made so rapidly and so easily as it has during the last few years. Business has boomed, immense dividends have been and are being declared, yet the man with a few hundred dollars to invest is just as much "at sea" to know how to place his money so that it will be safe and bring him some of the large returns about which he is constantly hearing.

There is a style of investing, just as there is a style in clothes, and so far as investing goes, to be safe and make money, one should adopt the styles while they are new and not just after they have passed.

Let us explain: Some years ago the popular investments were railroad securities. The railroads were new and very profitable and the investments proved good. Those who invested early reaped large profits, but those who followed in late years got only meager returns, and in some cases almost complete losses.

The style then changed to coppers. The first copper mines made millionaires of those who financed them. Later, when the public made up its mind to invest, it found a large number of fictitious mines, highly capitalized, with stock being floated to catch the public's money.

Then came the oil wells. Again those who invested early in the most part invested safely and won fortunes. A year or two later the chances were about one in ten in favor of the investor picking a winner from the hundreds of oil companies whose stocks were offered for sale.

The reason for this is perfectly plain. When a new enterprise starts the company is honest as to purpose and management and if properly financed is carried through to success. Then the news spreads abroad that money is being made in a new field. The public shows a desire to buy and is instantly accommodated by hundreds of promoters with shares in companies, many of which have merely been organized for that purpose.

The style is again changing. Today there is a field of investment that has not yet attracted the attention of the wildcat promoters. It is that of marketing articles over advertised, trademarked names. Profits from these businesses are in many cases stupendous.

As a rule these businesses are capitalized low and are managed by men whose sole purpose is to make them successful. If any stock is sold it is to properly finance the business, and the stockholder shares in the big returns.

The returns are greater than the public imagines. Five hundred or a thousand dollars invested in an original company of this kind has returned besides dividends as much as $170,000.00. Think of the good fortunes of those who backed the present day patent medicine successes, the infant foods, the popular toilet articles, and other advertised preparations.

Probably you have never been offered an opportunity to invest in properties of this kind, for as a rule most of them are started and financed by a few men, but occasionally there is an opening, and when such comes to you by all means investigate it, it may be the big opportunity of your life.

The investor with a few hundred dollars would be wise to divide his resources into five parts and invest one-fifth of his fund in each of five such companies. He should first assure himself of the quality of the article being marketed; second, of the ardor of competition that article is likely to meet; third, the approximate demand for such an article; fourth, the amount of gross profit there is in it; fifth, the character and experience of the managers of the business; sixth, what the new money is to be used for, and, seventh, that the article is trademarked and is being or going to be advertised.

If care is taken to look up all these points, the inexperienced investor is not likely to meet with losses. It is almost certain that four out of the five will prove successful, but suppose that only one proves a winner. The changes are that one will bring such enormous returns as to make the loss of investment in the others of small consequence.

There are two splendid companies, both of which opened their stock to the public instead of offering it to a few wealthy individuals. One of these is BROOKS BARLEY CO., Inc., of Boston, Mass. This company makes the well known infant food, Brooks' Baby Barley, which is now on sale throughout the United States, Canada, and many foreign countries. Recently this company has added to its lines some toilet articles made of barley which are so remarkable in their benefiting action on the skin that it has been predicted they may revolutionize the toilet goods industry of the world. Brooks Barley Company offered its stock in blocks of 10 shares of 8 % Preferred and 5 shares of Common for $100.00. We suggest that you write to this company direct and see if you can pick up any of this stock around this price. If you can, by all means buy it and put it away. It should pay you enormously.

Another company is E. A. HUGHES CO., owners of Salicon, the remarkable medicine that is displacing aspirin, which is said to be the largest selling drug in the world. A wonderful future and enormous profits are predicted for this company by the drug trade. The business is increasing by leaps and bounds. Dividends of 8 % are regularly declared on the Preferred stock, but the management say that this is a trifle to what the Common stock will eventually pay. E. A. Hughes Co. stock was sold to the public on a basis of 10 shares of Preferred and 5 shares of Common for $115.00. If you can get any of it at this price it will pay you handsomely. Write direct to the Treasurer of E. A. Hughes Co., at Boston, Mass.

One of the very rich men of this country is a man whose name is probably not known to more than a hundred persons. He has built up his fortune by investing consistently in companies of this kind which have paid him enormous profits.

MARKET WAS STRONG

NEW YORK, Oct. 20—(By the A. P.)—Constructive forces were at work in today's stock market, which moved to higher ground as strong buying, support developed for the rail, oil equipment and other high grade industrials shares.

Motors, whose violent fluctuations had been the spectacular feature of the tumultuous trading of the three previous sessions, also displayed a distinctly better tone on the apparent subsidence of selling pressure. Trading which was large in volume, did not approach that of Friday and Monday, the day's sales aggregating about 2,170,000 shares, making it the sixth consecutive "two million share" session.

Speculators for the advance resumed operations on a broad scale. They were aided by another lowering of the call money rates, the announcement of American credits to Belgium, publication of the details of Secretary Mellon's proposals for reduced taxes, the virtual consummation of the Ray-Nevada Consolidated copper merger, and reports of improvement in the oil industry which were reflected in the resumption of dividends on Skelly Oil and the unusually favorable earnings statement for the first nine months of the year by the Marland Oil company.

The railroad "averages" established another record top, Southern Railway assumed the leadership of that group by moving up 3 points to a new peak price for all time at 112. New York Central, Louisville and Nashville, Baltimore and Ohio and Pere Marquette broke through to new high levels for the year, or longer. Substantial gains also were recorded by a number of other carriers including Atlantic Coast Line, Southern Pacific, Chicago and Northwestern, Jersey Central and Colorado and Southern, all up two to 5 points.

Oils bounded upward under the leadership of Marland, which recorded an extreme gain of 3 points at 53 3-4 a new 1925 high, Houston and Standard Oil of California were other outstanding strong spots in that group.

General Railway Signal, which soared 37 ½ points to a new record high at 377½, was the spectacular performer in the equipment group. Baldwin, American and Lima Locomotives each closed about a point higher.

United States Steel common closed fractionally higher at 125 3-8 on a relatively light turnover, but a strong demand developed for some of the independents. United Alloy was run up nearly 3 points to above 30 on reports of a substantial increase in orders. Crucible, Gulf States and Republic all advanced about a point. Unusually heavy activity also developed in Penn Seaboard, which touched a new high on the current movement.

General Motors fluctuated within a range of 2 points, closing ½ higher at 124 ¾. Chrysler, Mack Trucks, Hayes Wheel and Pierce Arrow preferred advanced a point or so. White and Hudson were heavy.

American Can developed a sudden outburst of strength and crossed 251 on a record high. Foundation Company responded to reports of an unusually large increase in unfilled orders by moving up to a new top at 158. American Safety Razor, United Drug, Howe Sound, and Cerro de Pasco also bettered their previous 1925 peak prices. Armour A and B were in brisk demand at the close.

Call money opened at 4 ½ per cent., and then declined to 4. Time money rates hardened, 60 to 90 day funds being quoted at 4 ¾ to 5, instead of 4 ½ to 4 ¾. Commercial paper rates held steady with 6 ¾ per cent. The ruling rate for prime names.

Foreign exchanges displayed a firm undertone. Demand sterling advanced three-sixteenths of a cent to $4.83 15-16, despite the announcement of additional gold shipments from England to the United States. French and Italian exchanges also received better support, each advancing about 3 points to around 4.44 and 4.01 cents, respectively. Norwegian kroner 3 points to 20.62.

The parade was one of the features of the gathering, district No. 8 having over 200 in line and accompanied by the Willimantic band of 25 pieces. The march was made to Springdale park, where there were drills, speeches and a dinner. It was reported at the meeting that the society had shown a growth of over 27,000 members in the past four years, the greatest gains being made by Maine, Massachusetts and Connecticut.

Mrs. Jane E. Rennard and Herbert Rennard of Norwich avenue have been recent visitors in Thompson.

At a meeting of the A-o-wa-ki-ya Camp Fire Girls held Friday evening in the parlors of the Taftville Congregational church the following officers were elected: President, Miss Edna Krodel; vice-president, Miss Mary Martin; secretary, Miss Selena Adams; treasurer, Miss Freida Sarossi; scribe, Miss Louis Unsworth; song leader, Miss Elizabeth Newton.

A number of the ranking officers of Castle Perilous, K. O. K. The ceremony began with a procession of knights, esquires, pages and members of the peerage in full regalia through the big church headed by a crucifer and two heralds with banners. When the procession passed into the castle hall the members took their places about an immense round table on which stood a replica of the Holy Grail. During the conclave letters from the original members of the castle, now scattered throughout the world were read. Charles E. White, founder of the castle, was present and made an address. There were also other high officials of the order present who spoke, and the benediction was pronounced by Rev Henry Hulbert, D. D.

MURDER CHARGE AGAINST MAN FOR DEATH OF HIS TWO SONS

After spending all day alone in the house with his two dead sons, 4 and 6, whom he had chloroformed early Tuesday morning before he cut his own throat in an attempt at suicide, Eugene J. Berry 31, of 324 Boswell avenue, called for the police about 4 o'clock in the afternoon and revealed the tragedy. A quarrel with his wife Monday night, after which she left the house was the reason for the double murder and attempted suicide, Berry told the police.

The call to Chief George Linton at police headquarters came from Mrs. Arthur Duhaime who lives in a tenement adjoining that occupied by Berry who is a mill employe. When Sergeant Myron Morgan and Officer William Sharvan arrived at the Boswell avenue house they found Berry sitting in a chair in the dining room. He showed them the wound in his throat and with the words, "that isn't all" led them into the back bedroom where lay the two boys dead in bed. The pillow beside them where Berry had lain was soaked in blood.

The man was taken to the hospital at once where it was disclosed that his wound was only a superficial one, although the cut ran from ear to ear. He will recover.

Searching the rooms at the house, the officers found a razor, a blood spotted mirror and a small bottle that had contained chloroform.

To Medical Examiner C. C. Gildersleeve at the hospital Berry stated that he had bought the chloroform Monday night and had given it to his two sons about 5 o'clock Tuesday morning. He expressed no remorse for his deed and answered questions with apparent indifference.

Under orders from Coroner J. J. Desmond a police guard is maintained at Berry's bedside at the hospital and the man will be presented in court on the charge of murder as soon as he is able to leave the hospital.

Mrs. Berry has not been located yet, although her husband said he thought she would be found in some rooming house in the city.

The Berry family lived in a small tenement which occupied one half of the top floor of the two story and basement house at 324 Boswell avenue, with the Duhaime family occupying the other tenement on the top floor. There is a connecting doorway through which Berry came when he asked Mrs. Duhaime to summon the police, but she had no idea then of the terrible tragedy that had been enacted on the other side of the partition between the apartments.

The Berry tenement is three rooms deep, a parlor on the front, a combination dining room and kitchen in the middle and the bed room at the rear. It was comfortably furnished, neat and orderly, indicating that Mrs. Berry was a tidy housekeeper.

Berry was sitting on a chair in the dining room when the officers arrived and there was nothing to indicate anything unusual had happened until Officer Sharvan asked the man what the matter was. Then Berry raised his chin and showed the long wound in his throat, where the blood had already clotted and stopped further loss of blood. The two little boys lay on their backs, side by side in the bed, with their heads close together on the pillow as if asleep and had evidently died without a struggle. The older, Eugene, was on the side nearest to where his father had lain and the other, Joseph, was close to his brother. Both were in their night clothes.

Finding that the children were cold in death, the officers decided to take Berry to the hospital at once and Officer Sharvan drove him there in the police patrol with Sergeant Morgan, who notified headquarters, and word was sent to Medical Examiner Gildersleeve, who quickly reached the house. He gave permission for Cummings and Ring to take charge of the bodies of the little boys, which were conveyed to the undertakers' rooms.

The wound in Berry's throat was sewed up at the hospital by Dr. Varney and he was placed in a ward with an orderly to watch over him as it was feared he might attempt to escape or do something else desperate. Later in the afternoon Sergeant Morgan was assigned to duty there and he was relieved in the early part of the evening by Officer Coburn. A police guard will be kept over Berry until he is presented in court on the charge of first degree murder.

Dr. Gildersleeve visited Berry at the hospital and questioned him on one or two points in order to report to Coroner J. J. Desmond. Asked if he was sorry for what he had done, Berry replied "No," speaking in a lifeless tone in answering the questions put to him. He said it was 5 o'clock when he chloroformed the boys, but the medical examiner believes it was probably nearer 3 o'clock. Asked when he got the chloroform Berry replied "last night." This was found to be a fact as the Greeneville druggist whose name was on the bottle told the police that the man bought it there Monday night.

Nothing has been learned as to what was the cause of the quarrel because of which Berry says his wife whose name is Helen, left their home. It is understood she lived in Jewett City before they were married.

A report came to the police late Tuesday night that Mrs. Berry had been seen in Hartford Monday night, but this has not been verified and it is not known yet whether she knows of the death of her children.

Berry has been employed in the makeup room at the United States Finishing Co. for a number of years.

FARMS IN CONNECTICUT INCREASED IN 5 YEARS

Farms in Connecticut increased from 22,635 in number in 1920 to 23,237 in 1925, according to the report of the census bureau. Vermont and Rhode Island were the two New England states in which decreases were shown the former having 27,786 farms which was a decrease of 1,289 since 1920, and the latter 3,013 farms, a decrease of 175.

The establishment of small truck and poultry farms, especially near the cities, is largely for most of the increase shown for New England and the other parts of the east. This is to be seen in Massachusetts where there was an increase of 1,454 farms, giving a total of 34,455 in New Hampshire where the present number of 21,065 is an increase of 542, and in Maine where the increase of 1,803 gives 50,035 farms. The whole number of farms in New England is 159,489, an increase of 2,925.

In the United States there was a decrease from 6,448,343 farms to 6,372,608.

A "farm" for census purposes is all the land which is directly farmed by one person, either by his own labor alone or with the assistance of members of his household or hired employes. When a landowner has one or more tenants, renters, croppers, or managers, the land operated by each is considered a "farm."

The net decrease of 75,735, or 1-2 per cent. in the United States total is the result of considerable decreases in some sections of the country, partly offset by increases in other sections. Among the reasons given for decrease in the number of farms are the following: the ravages of the boll weevil in some of the cotton states; the migration of negro farm workers; a succession of dry seasons in parts of the northwest; the consolidation of farms; and a general recession from the wartime expansion in agriculture, which still persisted in 1920. Increases have resulted from the opening up of new lands in parts of the west; from the sub-division of ranches and large farms for more intensive operation; and from the development of orchards, truck and poultry farms.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 20.—The department of commerce announces that the 1924 death rate for Connecticut was 1,130 per 100,000 population as compared with 1,201 in 1923. This decrease in 1924 is largely accounted for by decreases in the death rates from pneumonia, all forms (from 116 to 95 per 100,000 population), influenza (from 21 to 15 per 100,000 population), tuberculosis, all forms (from 99 to 82), measles (from 11 to 3), nephritis (from 87 to 82), whooping cough (from 9 to 5), diabetes mellitus (from 23 to 19.)

An increase in 1924 is shown in the death rate from cancer (from 99 in 1923 to 105 per 100,000 population).

SUPREME COURT SESSION TAKES RECESS HERE

The supreme court of errors for the second judicial district, which is New London county, convened here Tuesday. Deputy Sheriff George H. Stanton opened the session and several minutes later an indefinite recess was announced due to the fact that but one case had been scheduled that of Winifred Douglass of New London against Sidney A. Hart, owner of Hart's Fur shop. This case is to be argued at Bridgeport.

The case arose over a fur coat which the plaintiff alleges was damaged extensively through poor workmanship and when tried drew a verdict of $400 in favor of the plaintiff. A motion to set aside the verdict was granted by Judge George E. Hinman in the superior court and Attorney George Curtis Morgan, council for the plaintiff appealed to the supreme court of errors.

RESERVES DECISION IN NOANK DIVORCE COURT

Judge Allyn L. Brown in the superior court at New London Tuesday morning heard the evidence submitted in the contested divorce case of Olga Radiciono Galli of Noank, against Angelo Galli, also of Noank, after which he took the papers in the case. Two other cases went off the calendar.

The Galli case was one which brought out much sordid testimony in which Mrs. Galli charged her husband with a statutory offense. The couple were married in July 1917 and have two children.

The plaintiff alleged that certain conditions which had been existing in her household for some time were brought to light last February when her cousin a man of 35 who recently married her younger sister accused Galli of serious conduct. She alleged that Galli left the home the next morning.

Galli stoutly denied the accusations in court Tuesday morning and said that he left the next day when he was ordered to do so by Mrs. Galli's mother. Judge Brown stated that $12 per week from a date fixed some time ago by the superior court at Norwich would have to be paid to date, for the care of the children, and that he would then render decision on this action.

The cases of Harry G. Gidley against May Lind Gidley and Kelly, trustee against the Norwich Savings Society, and others both went off the list.

JUSTICE BEACH RETIRES AT THE AGE LIMIT

Justice John Kimberly Beach sat with the Connecticut supreme court of errors for the last time as a member of that tribunal at the session held in the county court house at New Haven, Saturday. Connecticut law provides that the age limit for a member of the bench shall be 70 years. Justice Beach attained that limit on Saturday, hence he automatically retired and his place will be taken by Judge Frank D. Haines of the superior court.

Justice Beach was signally honored by the Middlesex County Bar association, a dinner being tendered him by that organization at the Highland Country club, in Middletown Saturday night. Former Associate Justice of the Supreme Court Silas A. Robinson, a president of the association, acted as toastmaster, and he and Judge Haines, Judge Edwin C. Dickenson and others paid a high compliment to Justice Beach.

Justice Beach is the last of the high court judges whose original appointments came from ex-Governor Simeon E. Baldwin, and he was appointed to the supreme court bench from private life without having been a trial judge. Justice Beach graduated from Yale in 1877 and took the degree of LLB two years later. In 1908 Yale conferred upon him the honorary degree of master of arts and in 1914 that of master of laws.

The retired justice is one of the best known members of the bar and has for years been held in the highest esteem. Although he has reached the age limit under the provisions of the state law as a member of the judiciary, Justice Beach is as active today as he was 25 years ago. He has for years been Phelps professor of commercial law and admiralty in the Yale Law school and is a former president of the New Haven County Bar association.

NIANTIC YOUTH WAS ON BURNED STEAMER

Mr. and Mrs. James Metcalf of Pine Grove farm, Niantic, have received a telephone message from New York city, stating that their grandson, Leroy Blake, was a passenger on the ill-fated steamer Comanche that was burned at sea off the Florida coast Saturday night.

Leroy, who is about 14 years of age, left his home in Niantic in company with another lad during the late summer, seeking adventure and thrills, not having any particular destination. A few weeks after leaving their homes they reached Jacksonville, Fla., where they found employment. While there they dissolved partnership, Leroy remaining in Jacksonville and his chum, Kirk Parker, going further south.

Both lads are well known in Niantic. Leroy's destination, when he took passage on the southern steamer was New York city, where his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thompson, reside. They are anxiously awaiting their son's arrival.

STONINGTON WOMAN SUES DEAD WOMAN'S ESTATE

Suit against William J. Sullivan of Froyidence, executor of the will of Annie M. Sullivan, who died in Pawcatuck, Stonington, Sept. 30, 1924, has been brought by Grace Leclaire, formerly Grace Henley, of Stonington, to collect a claim for $2,450 for board, care, nursing and services rendered to the decedent.

The plaintiff's claim contains the following items: April 14, 1924, automobile trip to Providence for testatrix and at her request, $20; April 22, 1924, property tax of Annie M. Sullivan paid for her and at her request by plaintiff, $100; board furnished to Annie M. Sullivan by the plaintiff for 190 weeks next preceding her death at $5 per week, $950; care, nursing and services rendered to Annie M. Sullivan by the plaintiff during 138 weeks next prior to death of the testatrix at $10 per week, $1,380; total $2,450.

The executor disallowed the claim on June 24, 1925. The plaintiff's suit is returnable to the superior court in November.

DECLARE MOTOR TAXES ARE HARD TO COLLECT

A suggestion that town taxes on automobiles be collected by the state motor vehicle commissioner and by him turned over to the collectors in the several towns in the state provided considerable discussion at the afternoon session of the tax collectors at the state capitol on Monday. The collectors reasoned that procedure was the only sure method of collecting this form of tax, but as the question was one of legislation and not administration, it was not finally settled at the meeting.

At the opening of the afternoon session Commissioner Blodgett explained further the process of putting liens on property for unpaid taxes. He told of practice of state and towns to operate under the budget system which does not work well with the placing of liens. He stressed the obligations of tax collectors to collect taxes rather than place liens, and from the person who owned the property on the tax date. The towns which have caught the spirit of the Connecticut law are working themselves clear of debt while the others are shifting their burdens by the place of liens.

Chairman Jewell of New Hartford told of a man in his town who was his ideal of a tax collector. He stopped a funeral procession to collect a personal tax. He failed of re-election but had a glorious record.

Charles F. Lewis of Berlin, discussing motor vehicle taxation, would have automobile taxes collected by the commissioner of motor vehicles as the only method by which all taxes on this classification will be paid. The commissioner does not favor the plan, however. The suggestion met with general favor among the collectors. He told of some purchasers of second-hand cars who did not have money enough to pay for a drivers' license

He related instances of auto owners declinining when they register their desire to pay the tax in certain towns but never had intention of living in those towns. He strongly urged the payment of taxes when markers are obtained.

Deputy Motor Vehicle Commissioner Malcolm D. Rudd of Salisbury told of the efforts made by the department to furnish assessors with information relative to cars registered, to aid in the taxing of those cars. Thirteen towns receive this information on different dates, the remainder as of October 1.

Mr. Rudd considered Mr. Lewis' plan the line of least resistance so far as collectors are concerned, but would create an additional burden on the motor vehile department, already pressed for space, and even if it were legally possible to make such collections, it would entail an additional expense to motorists. Many motorists declare the reason for delay in registering cars is because they have no money. The collection of taxes would create an additional financial burden on the owners.

"In the name of Heaven," said Mr. Lewis, "if a motorist has difficulty in paying for registration, what is he doing on a highway? What would he do if he had an accident? Such a man should not be on the highway."

A. B. Collor of Norfolk, an assessor and representing Collector J. N. Cowles, told of efforts in his town in the collection of taxes. He inquired of some standard for the fixing of valuations of second hand cars. Mr. Blodgett said many towns are working out the plan according to their best judgment. He considerd the method employed in Winchester as good as any.

Commissioner Blodgett stressed the point that the list furnished by the motor vehicle commissioner is not a list from which taxes should be levied, but merely for the information of assessors in locating the property to be taxed.

A roll call showed seventy-seven towns represented either by collector or selectman, and in some instances by both.

Personal Taxes

Dr. William L. Higgins, first selectman of Coventry, discussed "Personal Tax Problems." He gave Walter H. Holcomb of Torrington, state's attorney for Litchfield county, credit for starting the personal tax idea in 1905, and it was finally adopted in 1906. The women were included in the tax on their own request.

He believed town officials should serve for two years, and he preferred a separate collector for the collection of the personal tax. He read a list showing the percentage of personal tax collections by counties, Middlesex county is first with 95.57 per cent.; Tolland county, 94; Hartford county, 92.99; Litchfield county, 92.97; Windham county, 92.21; New London county, 89.95; New Haven county, 68.7.; Fairfield county, 39.21. But forty-two towns in the state have perfect records in the collection of personal taxes.

Dr. Higgins suggested that stenographic copies of the proceedings be forwarded to all tax collectors and selectmen, whether represented at the hearing or not, and which Mr. Blodgett promised to do.

It was voted that a committee of eight collectors, one from each county confer with the commissioner, relative to collecting taxes, and whether periodic meetings should be held.

Commissioner Blodgett and his assistants, Arthur F. Potter and J. P. Egan, spent some time in answering questions deposited in the question box.

The first question brought forth the information that monthly audits of the collectors' books must be made by town treasurers Many of the other questions had been answered during the day's discussions. Mr. Blodgett declared an automobile owned by a religious society and used exclusively by the rector is not exempt from taxation.

BUILDING LOAN ASSOCIATION DOING LARGE BUSINESS

With President Ernest O. Rodier presiding the regular monthly business meeting of the Norwich Building and Loan Association was held Tuesday evening at the office of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce. The usual reports were given, the report of the treasurer showing the past month to have been a busy one with a large volume of business.

Following the shareholders meeting the directors held a meeting. This meeting was delayed somewhat to allow those of the directors who were at the annual banquet of the Chamber of Commerce an opportunity of attending. A large number of loans completed since the last meeting were read and approved by the board. John W. McKinley was elected a director to fill the vacancy on the board caused by the recent death of Edward Crooks.

COMMON HOUSEHOLD MEDICINES

Otherwise known as "simples" have for centuries been derived from medicinal roots and herbs. They are still used and recognized by many of our best physicians as unequaled for certain ailments. In many countries roots and herbs are cultivated purely for commercial purposes. It is said that the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., of Lynn, Mass., is the greatest user of crude herbs in this country. The success of their Vegetable Compound for ailments of women is now world-wide, and it will certainly pay any woman who suffers from any ailment peculiar to her sex to try it.

ST. JOSEPH SCHOOL WILL TEACH GOOD COOKING

Henry the Fourth was considered as one of the most chivalrous of the French kings. On assuming the throne he expressed the wish "that each one of his subjects could have a fowl in his pot for a Sunday dinner." That was promising a great deal to a war ridden country.

Chicken dinners are within the means of most of the American homes. No country has the great abundance of food that we have in America. Fresh vegetables and meats can be had in our stores the whole year round. We perhaps waste more than some consume. We found that out when we were told that "food will win the war."

Some times the choicest and most expensive cuts of meat will be spoiled if the house wife does not know how to prepare them. Many times the cheaper cuts will make delicious roasts and stews, providing the average housekeeper knows how to cook them. To know how to cook well and at the same time how to be economical, how to "make things over," how to save foods is a great asset to any home.

Many of the young women who spend their time working in the factories or offices are badly handicapped when it comes to cooking and housekeeping. Mother or mother-in-law must often feed the young couple. They never had a chance to learn the first fundamental principles about cooking, housekeeping and other things pertaining to the duties of a young housewife and mother.

Father Ieiek, who boasts of being a good cook himself, is anxious that the daughters will be able to bake as good a pie "as mother used to make." He would like to have the young ladies and young married women not only in his congregation but in the city become good cooks and neat housewives. For that reason, ample provisions are being made to teach domestic science in the new St. Joseph's school. The privilege of using the domestic science department and the club facilities will be opened not only to the ladies of the parish but to all other ladies who wish to come there.

All this makes one of the reasons why those supporting the drive next week for the equipment of St. Joseph's school say that those who contribute will be doing a share towards the equipment of the domestic science department of the school, and will be helping many young ladies to become good cooks and housewives.

MERCIER ASSEMBLY HEARS STATE CONVENTION REPORTS

Mercier Assembly, No. 13, C. L. of C., held its bi-monthly meeting in the assembly rooms Tuesday evening at which the president, Mrs. Thomas J. McVeigh presided. The meeting was well attended and reports of the various committees were read and accepted. Several new names were balloted upon. Miss Loretta Gadle, chairman of the Hallowe'en social to be held Monday evening, reported all plans made and asked for the donation of refreshments by the members. This committee is to hold a meeting in the assembly room Friday evening of this week. Reports were also made by the delegates attending the state convention in Hartford at which Mercier Assembly was greatly praised for their good standing and showing. Also in the honor of having the newly elected state president, Mrs. James J. Dutton as a member of their assembly. Mrs. Thomas J. McVeigh spoke a few words in honor of this occasion and presented her a lovely basket of flowers. After an address of appreciation by the state president the meeting then adjourned. A meeting was then called of the gymnasium and bowling classes.

ENROLLING AT STORRS FOR TWO-YEAR COURSE

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Oct. 20.—Registration for students in the two-year course in agriculture at the Connecticut Agricultural college got under way today, and it is expected that the number of students to be accepted in this course will number close to 25. Classes will begin tomorrow morning at eight o'clock.

Richard E. Dodge, dean of the school of agriculture, announced today that only the livestock and poultry courses would be given this year, with next term. Heretofore, all four courses have been offered yearly, but now the plan is to give them in alternate years.

The purpose of the two-year course is to train men for farming or for positions as farm superintendents. It is taken by many who are unable to take a full four-year course. It is planned so that the major agricultural subject elected occupies about one-half of the student's time, with the remainder being devoted to closely related subjects of value.

Students taking the livestock course, for instance, will take in addition to animal husbandry, these subjects: veterinary practice, agricultural economics, mechanics and English. Those enrolling in the poultry course will receive, in addition to poultry, the courses: farm management, marketing, forestry and English.

REQUESTS ARE POURING IN AT TAX REVISION HEARING

Chairman Green of the House Ways and Means Committee Aproves Secretary Mellon's Proposal For a Reduction of the Maximum Surtax Rate From 40 to 20 Per Cent—Witness Advocated Exemption From Taxation of Incomes of All Municipal Employes—American Medical Association Proposed That Physicians Be Allowed to Deduct From Taxable Income Money Spent in Post-Graduate Work and in Traveling to Medical Meetings.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—(AP) — Promise of a "very substantial" reduction in the income surtax rates was given today by Chairman Green of the house ways and means committee, in reply to such a request presented by the Iowa tax clubs.

Mr. Green mentioned no figure, but in effect he expressed approval to Secretary Mellon's proposal for a reduction of the maximum surtax rate from 40 to 20 per cent.

The request of the Iowa tax clubs was one of many urging various forms of revenue revision or relief submitted to the committee at its third day of public earings preparatory to the drafting of a bill for consideration of congress in December.

Repeal of the estate and gift taxes again was advocated by witnesses, together with exemption from taxation of incomes of all municipal employes and of Americans resident abroad and engaged in American trade, while the American medical association proposed that physicians be allowed to deduct from taxable income money spent in post-graduate work and in traveling to medical meetings.

The treasury, meanwhile continued work on estimates coverings its entire revision program. Indications were given that it might propose an increase from $400 to $500 in the exemption allowed in income taxes for each dependent.

Treasury figures forwarded today to the committee estimated that receipts for this fiscal year on the basis of present rates would total $4,880,500,000 from income taxes $864,000,000 from miscellaneous taxes and $555,000 from customs. Of the miscellaneous taxes, tobacco and counted on to yield $365,000,000: estate taxes $110,000,000 and automobiles $150,000,000. Repeal of the state levy and reduction of the automobile tax has been recommended by Mr. Mellon.

The present tax on mah jong sets was estimated to yield $3,000 this year and $1,000 next year.

On the basis of the treasury's estimates, Secretary Mellon on Monday proposed a reduction in taxes of $290,000,000, the amount of the surplus over government expeditures which he said would result from the receipts. Of this reduction he would make $140,000,00 in the income rates.

The Iowa tax clubs' delegation including fifty representatives of most of the industries of that state, presented appeals for deduction of the surtax rates and repeal of the estate tax.

The Chicago stock exchange, through William S. Bennett, asked that partnerships be permitted to elect to be taxed as corporations. Partners desiring to reinvest profits in their business were penalized, he said, under the present law.

Voicing some disapproval of the proposal, Representative Mills, republican, New York, asked if this problem would not be solved by reduction of the surtaxes to a maximum rate of 20 per cent. Mr. Bennett agreed such a change would obviate to a great extent the necessity for the revision he sought.

Appeals or exemption from income tax from employes from municipally owned utilities, particularly water works, met with suggestions from the committee that this was a question for the courts to determine.

It was pointed out that the internal revenue bureau had ruled only recently that such employes were subject to the federal income tax. Attempts to collect taxes for past years under this ruling was said to be causing considerable difficulty. Representative Johnson, republican, Washington, appearing for the municipal employes of Tacoma, Wash., and B. C. Little, of Rochester N. Y., speaking for the American Water Works association, presented the arguments for exemption of these workers.

The American Bankers association, through W. H. Baden, of Washington, sought repeal of provisions taxing the grantor of a trust for that part of it over which he retains power to regain title. He argued the provision taxed a creator of a trust rather than the actual beneficiary. Committee members replied that the provision was inserted in the law last year at the request of the treasury to eliminate a loophole for evasions and suggested that the trust creator could make arrangements with the beneficiary respecting taxes.

Requests for increased exemptions of members of the medical profession were advanced by Drs. C. W. Richardson, of Washington, and William C. Woodward of Chicago appearing for the American Medical association They also asked that the tax on physicians dispensing narcotics be decreased from $3 to $1 a year.

O. K. Davis of New York, speaking for the national foreign trade council, made the appeal for exemption from taxation of American citizens residing abroad who were engaged in American trade. Similar exemptions were allowed by all other nations, he said, and as a consequence American foreign trade was handicapped.

"OBEY" ELIMINATED FROM P. E. WEDDING CEREMONY

NEW ORLEANS, La., Oct. 21.—(By The Associated Press.)—Fights of women and enforcement of laws were prominently before the general convention of the Protestant Episcopal church here today. Both subjects claimed conspicuous places in the two houses.

Women taking marriage vows under the Episcopal marriage ceremony were definitely relieved from promising to "obey" their husbands when the bishops concurred with the deputies in eliminating the word from the service. The elimination was not accomplished without a contest, however, and the victory was won without a vote to spare. The test ballot showed 66 to 27, sixty six being the necessary constitutional majority. With "obey" went the bridegroom's announcement to the bride "with all my worldly goods I thee endow."

The deputies refused to declare women eligible for membership in the general convention, and almost at the same time the bishops refused to authorize to license women as lay readers.

Possibility that the Episcopal church may become more actively connected with the Federal Council of Churches, appeared when the deputies passed a resolution to that effect, offered by George W. Wickersham, of New York.

Removal of disabilities preventing certain bishops from election as presiding bishops was approved by the house of bishops but the action must be ratified by the deputies and next general convention.

The proposal to omit from the prayer book a rubric forbidding the use of the burial office for unbaptized adults and those "who lay violent hands on themselves," was rejected.

Edison, was celebrated tonight in special radio programs broadcast from 20 stations throughout the country. WORKING ON MURDER OF BACHELOR BROTHERS

DOYLESTOWN, Pa., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Police working on the mysterious murder of Thomas and Joseph Erwin, bachelor brothers who conducted a farm on the outskirts of this town, tonight expressed the hope that finger prints found on the glass in a door of an automobile would materially aid them in their search for the slayer or slayers.

The Erwin brothers, who lived alone and did their own housekeeping in addition to the farm work, had been dead several hours when their bodies were found today.

The bodies of the men were pierced by bullets of small calibre. Thomas' left arm was broken, which led to the theory that Joseph was shot first and that Thomas, coming to his aid, fought with the slayer and probably was kicked.

Police have not established a motive for the crime, although robbery was given the greatest credence. Both men were said to have always carried large sums of money on their person. In Joseph's pockets police found $178, while but 56 cents were found in Thomas's clothing.

Authorities appeared convinced that more than one person participated in the crime. They are looking for five men seen near the Erwin farm yesterday afternoon, about the time the brothers are believed to have been slain. They were recognized by neighbors as farm hands formerly employed in this section.

Sea Captain Shot Dead While Asleep In Cabin

ANTWERP, Belgium, Oct. 21—Captain A. H. Clews, commander of the Canadian Pacific liner Melita, was shot and killed in his cabin on the Melita here early today while he slept. Thomas Towers, first officer, was arrested, charged with the murder, and will be handed over to the British authorities at Southampton when the lines arrives there tomorrow morning.

Captain Clews was a nephew of the late Henry Clews, Wall street financier, who, English by birth, died in America in 1923. Captain Clews served with distinction in the world war.

Two other officers of the Melita were wounded by the captain's murderer and are in Antwerp hospital in a serious condition. They are David K. Gilmour of Glasgow, assistant chief engineer, and John Holliday, of Bootle England, second engineer.

The account of the tragedy gathered by the Antwerp police is that Towers went to the captain's cabin at 2.40 o'clock this morning. A pistol shot was heard and the captain was found with a bullet wound in his head. The police say that Towers then entered Gilmour's cabin and shot the engineer in the face.

The noise of the firing brought other officers to the scene and in a struggle with Towers the second engineer was shot twice in the lungs. Other members of the crew eventually overpowered Towers and disarmed him.

Towers was arrested by the Antwerp police, who took formal evidence and then returned him to the Melita to be taken back to England. He is said to have told police he shot Captain Clews because the commander and other officers had tried to wreck his career.

Captain Clews, whose home was in Birkenhead, was born in Liverpool. He joined the Canadian Pacific line in 1904. In the world war he served first in the Cameroons, returning from there to England in command of a German prize ship. Afterwards he was made commander of the transport Montezuma and made fifteen voyages between Canada and England in command of troopships. He held the Royal Humane Society's diploma for life saving.

Surgeons have succeeded in extracting a bullet from one of Holliday's lungs, and he is considered out of danger unless complications set in. The condition of Gilmour, however, is still serious, as a bullet lodged behind his ear.

MRS. FRY TELLS STORY OF HER MARITAL TROUBLES

MINEOLA, N. Y., Oct. 21.—(AP)—With the eyes of her husband and Miss Wilda Bennett, actress from whom she seeks $100,000 for alienation of her husband's affection, focused upon her, Mrs. Katherine W. Frey today took the stand in the supreme court. She described how her husband, Charles C. Frey, forcibly ejected her from his New York apartment, after she heard a woman's voice—she believed it Miss Bennett's—inside.

This incident, Mrs. Frey told the jury, occurred in July, 1923. As her husband opened the door, she heard a woman's voice, which she asserted, she was positive was Miss Bennett's, having heard her in plays.

When she attempted to enter, she said, Frey "grabbed my arm and dragged me downstairs. I knocked my thumb against the stair railing, almost breaking it. He had pushed me up against the railing, when two workmen interfered and ordered him to stop."

A month after Frey left her, in July, 1923, Mrs. Frey said she saw him seated with Miss Bennett in her Maroon sport racer. When she protested, she said, her husband ordered her to "get home."

Married in 1919 after a "school day romance" in Louisville, Ky., Mrs. Frey testified she and Frey were very happy in their New York apartment. At the time, she said, he was running a fashionable gambling establishment in New York and Saratoga.

FUNERAL OF THE HEAVIEST POLICEMAN IN PENNSYLVANIA

LEBANON, Pa., Oct. 21. (AP)—Funeral services for Harry H. Petteiger, believed to have been the heaviest policeman in Pennsylvania, had to be held in the rear yard of his home today because it was impossible to get the casket in the house due to its size. Thousands of persons passed by the casket when the body was exposed to public view in the yard.

Petteiger weighed 456 pounds. His casket weighed 450 pounds. Fence posts had to be removed to permit the twelve stalwart members of the city police force, who acted as pallbearers, to take the casket from the yard to the house. A number of additional policemen, were required to lower the body in the grave.

Petteiger was widely known as a heavy eater. Friends said it was not uncommon for him to consume two chickens at one meal in addition to vegetables and other things that go to make up a pot-pie dinner.

Convicts Are Taxing Capacity of Prisons

Any Substantial Increase in the Number of Convicts Might Present a Serious Problem.

BOSTON, Oct. 21—The federal court here is beginning to wonder what is to be done with persons when it sentences to jail. The federal penitentiaries at Atlanta and Leavenworth are reported so crowded that they can accommodate no more prisoners.

Federal officials attribute the jail-crowding to the numerous convictions in rum and narcotic cases.

MAKING A SURVEY OF STATE AND LOCAL JAILS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21—Prison facilities are still available in federal institutions for the "average" number of convicts coming from the federal courts, department of justice officials asserted tonight, but to make this possible it has been necessary to house a considerable number of federal prisoners in state and municipal penal institutions.

The department for some time has been engaged in a survey of the state and local jails, to ascertain how many federal prisoners they might accommodate. As a result, officials are confident that prisoners can be taken care of at the present rate of convictions, but any substantial increase in the number of convicts would present a more serious problem.

BEET SUGAR PROCEEDINGS HAVE BEEN DISMISSED

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—(AP) — The federal trade commission's proceedings against beet sugar manufacturers, which were a factor last spring in the successful fight to prevent confirmation of Charles B. Warren as attorney general, today were dismissed by a 3 to 2 vote of the commission.

The commission's complaint, issued thirteen days after Mr. Warren's name was sent to the senate by President Coolidge, was directed against the Larrowe Milling company of Detroit, and eighteen concerns engaged in the manufacture of beet sugar. Among them was the Michigan Sugar company, of which Mr. Warren had been the head. He resigned from the presidency of the company while his name was under consideration for the cabinet post.

The companies were charged with suppressing competition in the sale of beet pulp, and the commission's complaint was cited by Senator Couzens of Michigan and others as a basis for opposing Mr. Warren's confirmation.

The Michigan company, together with others, denied the charges contained in the complaint, declared its contract with the Larrowe company had expired, and asserted its willingness to accept without opposition any restraining action the commission might think necessary.

RELATIONS BETWEEN GREECE AND BULGARIA STRAINED

LONDON, Oct. 21.—(AP) — Greece and Bulgaria are at a delicate point in their relations over the shooting of frontier guards near Demirhissar on the Greco-Bulgarian border, last Monday.

The Bulgarian telegraph agency asserts that a Greek soldier entered Bulgarian territory near Demirkapu, Macedonia, and wounded a Bulgarian sentinel, who in turned fired and killed the Greek. This was followed by fusillades across the frontier until a Bulgarian officer managed to get in contact with the Greek commander at Demihissar.

Meanwhile the Greek government has demanded an idemnity and an apology from the Bulgarian government.

OBITUARY

Heinrich Von Angeli

VIENNA, Oct. 21.—(AP)—Austria's most famous portraitist, Heinrich Von Angeli, is dead at the age of 85 years. Among hundreds of notabilities of all countries, Von Angeli painted Queen Victoria and most of the British royalty of her period, Disraeli, Henry Stanley, the explorer, and Emperor Francis Joseph, several times.

He did not, however, paint the portrait of Empress Elizabeth, who would not consent to a sitting. The most she agreed to was to permit Von Angeli to memorize her features at a banquet and allow him an hour's interview afterwards. The artist declined, saying he was not a wizard, and the picture was never produced.

Heinrich Von Angeli may just be called the painter of royalty. Born July 8, 1840, at Oedenburg, Hungary, he studied at Vienna with Gustav Mueller, and at Duesseldorf.

Among his masterpieces are Mary Stuart on her way to the gallows (1157); Louis XI, king of FFrance, begging Saint Paula to prolong his life (1859); are Anthony and Cleopatra, young love, and the rejected absolution.

His portraits in addition to Queen Victoria, included Emperors William and Frederick of Germany; Empress Victoria of Germany and the Empress of Russia, Maria-Feodorovna; Field arshal Moltke, and the Prince of Wales, later King Edward, in the uniform of a Prussian field marshal in 1883. He was in his time considered the greatest living celebrity in portraiture.

MANHATTAN PROVIDES ITS DAILY CHAPTER OF CRIME

Youthful Bandits Held-up, Bound and Gagged Four Men and Women Below the "Dead Line" and Escaped With Jewelry Valued at $50,000—Seven Robbers in Brooklyn Overpowered a Watchman and Stole 47 Barrels of Grain Alcohol—Secret Service Officers Uncovered a Counterfeiting Ring—Hartford Inventor, Charged With Supplying Gunman With Silencers, Held in $50,000 Bail.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21—(A. P.)—Justice proceeded today to handle a heavy criminal calendar while crime in New York showed little indication of abatement.

The chief move of justice to date was to "round up" in court, members of the gang headed by Frank "Cowboy" Tessler, upon whom has been placed the blame for a series of recent depredations.

Meanwhile, below the criminal "dead line" in lower Manhattan, two youthful bandits held up, bound and gagged four men and a woman and escaped with two wallets containing diamonds, the total value of which was placed at nearly $50,000.

Before Judge Allen in general sessions "Cowboy" Tessler pleaded not guilty to robbery, and was held without bail after the court was told that he faced a murder charge also. Two members of his gang, Fred and Arthur Leslie, brothers, pleaded guilty to robbery. The former was committed for sentence and the latter was told he wanted to make a "clean breast" of it all in order to save himself. Hymerling, another alleged member of the gang, was sent to the Tombs to await indictment.

Charged with possessing one of the silencers with which the guns were equipped, Eugene Reising, an East Hartford, Conn., inventor, appeared before the court and was held in $50,000 bail. He is alleged to have supplied the gang with silencers and to have received stolen automobiles.

Harry Steinberg, a jeweler who is alleged to have acted as "fence" for the gang and who faces three indictments, Peter Stich, alleged "go-between," and Murray Markule, alleged informer, were each held in $50,000 bail.

In Judge McIntyre's court a jury took ten minutes to return a verdict of guilty of first degree robbery against Joseph Hinshey, painter and ex-convict, alleged to have been one of a gang of seven men who held up a restaurant last September.

The downtown diamond robbery occurred on the eighth floor of the Fulton building. The two young bandits worked quickly and quietly, rendering their victims helpless only a few feet away from a stenographer who was unaware of their presence.

One of the victims worked himself loose, spread the alarm and within 10 minutes reserves from the Old Slip station surrounded the building, but the robbers had escaped.

Secret service men today uncovered what they believe to be a powerful counterfeiting ring with the arrest of Peter Benatt and Joseph Lapuma, and the confiscation of a suitcase filled with bogus $20 bills and two bags filled with bad nickels, dimes, quarters and half dollars.

The arrest followed the shadowing for several weeks of Benatt who allegedly slipped counterfeit five ten pieces in subway slots.

Another depredation of the day occurred when seven robbers overpowered the watchman at a chemical plant in Brooklyn and stole 47 barrels grain alcohol, using a five-ton truck to take away their haul. In another part of Brooklyn thieves backed a truck to the entrance of a tenement, ran a hose through a window and carried away $2,500 worth of merchandise.

Four Chinese members of the crew of the steamship Iowa Maru, bound for the Canadian port of Vancouver, B. C., and the Orient, were arrested on charges of smuggling opium aboard their vessel. Customs officials said that more than 100 tins of opium were found secreted in the engine room.

Federal Deputy Arthur Madden announced today that he was conducting a campaign against night clubs. Owners of restaurants would receive warning letters from the agents, New York police and federal narcotic agents are employed in the raids.

Mr. Buckner stated his campaign was not against Broadway night clubs, but was aimed at "beer parlor" operators.

Before the federal grand jury two months ago, Madden said, Mrs. Mary Dennett, author of "Who's Next," one of the first books to expose secret diplomatic documents, and Morris Ernst, counsel for the American Civil Liberties Union, had been subpoenaed because of certain statements. Although warned, he continued to do so, and was ordered by Judge Hand to be committed to jail until he would answer.

NEW YORK MAYORALTY CAMPAIGN IS DORMANT

NEW YORK, Oct. 21. (AP)—Democratic and Republican campaign managers today continued their efforts to pump life into a deflated mayoralty campaign, but with not much apparent success.

Ambitious speaking programs for Senator James J. Walker, Democratic nominee and Frank D. Waterman, Republican candidate, have been mapped out and while the attendance has been fair, spontaneous enthusiasm has been lacking. The explanation, politicians believe, is that the campaign is an anti-climax to one of the most sensational primary campaigns the city has ever seen.

Walker managers claim the election by a big majority, all the way from 300,000 up. The Republicans counting on a supposed split among the Democrats, due to the bitterness of the campaign against Mayor Hylan for renomination, to aid their candidate. The Democrats deny a split and say everything points to unity.

There is more general interest in the campaign for district attorney between Attorney Joab D. Banton, Democrat, and former governor Charles S. Whitman, Republican. Mr. Whitman, a former district attorney, has attacked Banton's administration as being responsible for the prevalence of crime. Mr. Banton has denied this vigorously.

JOHN B. TOWER REP. NOMINEE FOR MAYOR OF NEW HAVEN

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 21. (AP)—With the regular Republicans, or so-called Ullman faction in complete control, the Republican city convention tonight nominated John B. Tower for mayor. The nomination was seconded by Clarence G. Willard and the vote was unanimous. The so-called Willard faction was defeated at the Republican caucuses held last night.

Mr. Willard said that while last night there was an Ullman faction and a Willard faction, tonight there was a united Republican party. He said that while his faction of the party had planned to place a candidate in nomination this plan had been abandoned.

The balance of the ticket nominated follows: Controller, Frank G. P. Barnes; city clerk, Joseph S. Blinn; treasurer, Harry V. Whipple; collector of taxes, Edward J. Stanford; city sheriff, Nicholas Ferradino; town clerk, Catalido Masca; registrar of vital statistics, Arthur M. Beebe; registrar of voters, August Ehrich, Jr.; selectmen, Israel Jacobs, Alfred Mazzarella, Marinda D. Allen; constables, C. Franklin Baker, Michael Mancina, Benjamin Levine.

GERMANY WOULD APPROVE DISARMAMENT CONFERENCE

BERLIN, Oct. 21—(A. P.)—Any American initiative in favor of calling a disarmament conference may count upon the unqualified approval of German official circles, which go even so far as to declare that such an undertaking would automatically suggest itself as a logical sequel to the Locarno conference.

While no formal action seconding an American proposal would likely be forthcoming from German quarters before the Locarno agreements were ratified at London, government leaders believe that a second international arms parley would hold out more auspicious prospects of ultimate success than the Washington conference as the signatories of the Locarno pact are freely pledged to joint co-operation to promote universal disarmament as proclaimed by Article VIII of the covenant of the league of nations.

LAST AMERICAN CLIPPER SAILS ON FINAL VOYAGE

NEW YORK, Oct. 21 (AP)—A requiem was sung today for an American institution.

The last American clipper ship has "set sail" on her final voyage, a journey from the realm of things material to the land of memories. While in a few weeks she will be junked ground to bits under the hard heels of progress, torn down because she has outlived her usefulness.

A little group of select friends and the crew, members of the Nepenah association, men who scrubbed her decks and oiled her masts in yeargone by, men who toiled with her round the horn, comprised the few who gathered today on the docks of the Benjamin F. Packard, last of the clippers to bid her farewell.

There was not much to be said nor done. Somehow speeches seemed out of place. It was all too real to these men who realized that the last emblem of America's greatest sea achievement, the last sign of her old supremacy on the waves, the love and devotion was passing forever.

Some little ceremony was planned. Captain D. J. Martin, who brought the Packard safely through her last trip, was to haul down her ensign. He grasped the halyards, the little group in the west faced aft, and with bared heads watched the ensign flutter to the deck.

But it did not stay down, for Captain Martin sent it aloft again immediately. It was a moment before anyone grasped just what was happening, that the clipper was to be permitted to go proudly to her doom with flags flying, but when they did the response was instantaneous. Shoulders bent with the weight of years were drawn a little further back; eyes dimmed by the lash of driven spray, sparkled a trifle brighter; and hands, once firm, but shaking now, held hats aloft as an involuntary cheer broke from husky throats.

"Champagne be good, and so is rum," boomed Captain P. B. Blachard. In a flash the "crew" was at the main sheet, tailing away, and roaring the chorus: "whisky for my Johnny."

The little note of the old sea song, "Whiskey Johnny," floated over the harbor.

The main sheet was dropped and reminiscences were in order.

Cobb conducted the services. Burial was in Windham Center cemetery. JEWETT CITY

Priceless souvenirs were on exhibition at the Riverside Grammar school Wednesday, during the morning session, when Superintendent F. H. P. Clement, addressed the pupils in connection with the drive to finance the rehabilitation of Old Ironsides. These souvenirs were presented W. H. Brown, (who courteously loaned them) by H. E. Mosie, a machinist on the "Constitution." He was once a resident of Jewett City, and went to school here to the late Miss Mary E. Soule. There is an oak cane, made in artistic design, from one of the great oaken ribs, that first went into the construction of the vessel, with an engraved head, made from the original copper sheathing. A pen holder made from a wooden trunnel, and one of the forged copper spikes, which the donor had flattened on one end, and fashioned into a paper cutter, the duplicate of which, is not in existence.

The finest exhibit is the framed signature of William McAbee, written at the age of 105, by the last living survivor of the crew who fought in the War of 1812. He died at the age of 107. Mrs. George H. Prior and her father at one time talked with this little, old, dried up man. The frame is of wood from the Constitution. The mat is the copper sheathing from the hull. This sheathing was first done at a cost of $5,000 by Paul Revere. He later replaced it at a cost of $30,000.

Over 400 pupils were keenly interested in the souvenirs, and gave heed to the address of Supt. Clement, which he had prepared from material furnished by the Norwich Order of Elks. Many of his listeners are acquainted with the stirring tales in which the Constitution has figured, and "Tear Her Tattered Ensign Down" is not unfamiliar to them. A hearty local response to the call, is assured.

J. E. Phillips has received a letter from Superintendent Hallock, of the Masonic home at Wallingford, telling of the death of Mrs. Minerva Burdick, a resident of the institution. Mrs. Burdick lived in Jewett City close to 80 years ago. She having been born in 1836, was 89 years old, on the day of her death. As touching years of continuous connection with a church, her death has at once ended a membership, and established an outstanding record, that can hardly be excelled. She joined the Jewett City Baptist church in 1850, ten years after its founding in 1840.

Her husband was George Burdick. Charles H. Ray, of Jewett City, now a few years over 80, remembers well how Mr. Burdick taught him the mysteries of cotton weaving. Mr. Ray was only 12 years old then, and cotton cloth manufacture by power looms was in its infancy. Later a few years, Mr. Burdick went to New Hartford, Conn., to take charge of a mill as superintendent. There was of course, a boss weaver, but, secretly Mr. Burdick sent to Jewett City for Mr. Ray and hired him to come to New Hartford, where he paid him 50 cents more a day than the boss weaver received, to act as second hand in the weave shop.

Miss Jennie Crawford, of New York, has returned home after a visit with Mrs. Dona Ballou.

The borough was horror stricken at the news of the tragedy which took place in Norwich Tuesday, as the mother of the children was formerly Nellie McKenna of this place. Her parents and several brother and sisters live here.

The Baptist Missionary society met for the October gathering in the church vestry Tuesday afternoon.

The devotional part was conducted by Mrs. A. M. Brown, following which the several features of the "Back Home" program were taken up in order. Mrs. G. H. Prior with all possible realism entered in travelling garb and carrying the conventional suitcase. It is no great stretch of realism for Mrs. Prior to impersonate the "traveler," and it seemed to the 19 members present that she had of a truth, just returned back home from the great Seattle convention. There were to be seen, as a part of her section of the program, pictures and facts telling of the recent meeting in the great northwest. Four sections of Baptist history were of much interest, and were taken as follows:

1. What is the history of the Baptists? Mrs. Hyde; 2. What did they suffer in England? Mrs. Babcock; 3. Where was the first Baptist church in America? Mrs. Lee; 4. Who was the first Baptist missionary? Miss Guy.

The explanation relative to the northern Baptist convention had the following assignments: When was the northern Baptist convention organized? Mrs. Armstrong; what does it include? Mrs. Campbell; what prominent men have been convention preachers? Mrs. Church; how many Baptists are there? Mrs. Davis; how many attend the conventions?

The talk Sage given to the Seattle convention proved of special enjoyment, being able presented by the members here in connection with the sections which the Seattle convention —Who was president of the convention? Mrs. Gray; What pleasing feature opened the convention? Miss Morgan; convention addresses, Rev. Clinton Wunder, the Baptist Temple, Rochester, Mrs. Swift, Dr. Abernethy, Mrs. Sparks; Dr. Holyoke of Providence, Mrs. Scates; The lone star fund, Mrs. A. M. Brown; The convention heights, Mrs. B. R. Gardner; The new president, Miss Thornton.

The pleasant discussion, over tea and wafers at the close, gave this meeting the reckoning of one of the most enjoyable of the season.

An entertainment for the benefit of the Missionary society of the Congregational church was held under the direction of Mrs F. E. Robinson in the vestry Tuesday evening. Mrs. Frink of Brooklyn, Conn., who gave so much pleasure with her readings at a previous entertainment had been invited to read again. She kept the audience in audible good humor, and was recalled again and again. She gave Lilly Minks Reads a Paper, Giving a Tea, Enroute to the Ferry and Whispering Hope, their encore being The Could Blast; Miss Verna Tarbox by request, Her First Club meeting and responded to all the encores. In addition there were musical numbers which were pleasing. Mrs. T. D. Ballou and Mrs. L. G. Buckingahm, accompanied by Miss Ruth Ballou, sang sang I Never Knew How Much God Gave to Me, her encore was Little Bit of a Fellow. Miss Sadie Thompson sang Land of the Sky Blue Water and One More Day for an encore. Both were accompanied by Miss Ethel Thompson. Earl Robinson played a saxophone solo, If You'll Only Make My Dreams Come True, the encore being Sweet and Low. He was accompanied by William Stebbins. Home made candy was sold by Mrs. John Whalley and Miss S. K. Adams. Miss Helen Hull was ticket collector. Carnations and autumn foliage were the decorations.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest L. French, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Hiscox, Mrs. J. T. Stewart and Everett Thornton attended the harvest supper held in Central Village Congregational church vestry Wednesday evening.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

November 7 has been selected as this year's date for the annual Civic Federation Tag day. Advance mention is made of this that the federation may have the field to itself on that day. The federation does a wonderful work for humanity. The public has come to enjoy expressing its appreciation by generous giving on the annual tag day.

Another meeting to take up matters pertaining to Danielson Rotary club is scheduled for this (Thursday) evening. Organization is being gradually perfected, and likely will be practically fully outlined after tonight's meeting. Another meeting is planned at which a study of the by-laws will be made by the members and to decide upon a day for the regular weekly luncheon. It is likely the day selected will be Thursday.

Wednesday, in schools of Killingly, essays written by pupils in the old ironsides week observance were read. These essays were valuable in a number of ways—valuable largely as teaching history and, again, valuable as inspiring patriotism. Awards were offered for the best of these essays.

Al Fairbanks, representing a Norwich wholesale house, announced here Wednesday that he has arranged with a local retail establishment to put on a a special sale of an article of household use Saturday of next week, all the profits from this special sale to be given to the American Legion Building fund in Danielson. Detailed announcements relative to the plan will be made later.

In the local drive for the American Legion Endowment fund marked success has been achieved in the past ten days. Wednesday afternoon the total received in cash and pledges was between $1,850 and $1,900. Other pledges that have been made and will be kept will put the fund over the $2,900 mark. The apportionment for this area was $2,600. While the intensive drive has been completed, pledges will be taken, as well as cash, in order that the full apportionment of $2,600 may be obtained for a very worthy cause.

A little problem presents itself, as to parking regulations, in the making of Center street a thoroughfare where only one-way traffic is to be allowed. At present parking is allowed on only one side of this street, the north side. With traffic moving only from Main into Center parked cars under this regulation will be on the left hand side of the street. While this is about out of regular, it is possible, it was stated Wednesday, that the arrangement likely will be continued after the one-way parking rule becomes effective.

Tire fabrics from mills of Killingly go into numbers of the most widely known and highly thought of automobile shoes made in America. It has been suggested that Killingly is one of the few towns that gets as much or more out of the automobile industry as is put into it. This may be explained by comparing the payrolls of Killingly's mills that make tire fabric with the amount of money the people of the town put into automobiles and the operation and upkeep of them. The balance is on the side of the town, so naturally this town is happy in the prosperity of the automobile industry, though one often hears the remark that "people spend too much money on cars." If there were no cars, Killingly would suffer severely industrially. But few have ever considered the automobile from that viewpoint.

The recent theft of three automobiles in Danielson has resulted in a demand for parking arrangements around School and Center streets with a watchman on duty. This service has been provided at a nominal cost to those who leave their cars unattended while they go shopping, or attend the theatre.

Brick work of the addition to the School Street garage is well advanced. The new addition, which is 60 feet in length, will greatly increase the space heretofore available at this establishment.

It was stated here Wednesday that the usual All Saints' day service will be held at Old Trinity church, Church street, Brooklyn, this year. The custom of holding a service on this day has been maintained for many years. Trinity is the oldest Episopal church standing in Conneticut.

Attorney and Mrs. Arthur G. Bill recently made a motor trip to Antrim, N. H.

Work is well advanced on the enlargement and improvement of the Jodoin block in Main street. This block will have three stores on the lower floor and apartments above.

No further construction of concrete sidewalks in Water street will be made this year, but the long stretch recently completed is appreciated by the hundreds who walk that way every day.

Mrs. Clara Nadeau will entertain a number of her women friends at a whist party today (Thursday.)

J. C. Witter was at Ashaway, R. I. conducting an auction sale Wednesday.

Henry Babson is to leave within a few days to spend the winter season in Florida, as he has done for years.

John C. Williams of Springfield was a visitor with friends in Danielson Wednesday.

Work on the laying of a concrete apron and sidewalks at the central fire station Academy and School streets, is well advanced and indicates the very great improvement that will have been accomplished when the work is completed.

PUTNAM

The open meeting of the Putnam Chamber of Commerce was attended by about 70 members and proved one of the most enjoyable gatherings ever held by that organization. The committee in charge stated that the program was in no sense educational or instructive but to provide an evening of pleasure. It was the unanimous verdict that they had carried out the idea successfully.

The principal speakers were two well-known business men of Boston, James Higgins and Charles Gilman. Both frankly avowed that they believed in laughter and trying to create a kindly mood and that if they accomplished that they would feel repaid. Although far apart in their methods both arrived at the same goal.

Mr. Higgins devoted most of his time to reciations from the newspaper poets, giving selections from Edgar A. Guest, up or down, just as it pleases the reader to put it. All of the poems were well chosen, many in dialect in which he shone, and the audience applauded heartily.

Mr. Gilman, whose parents lived in Pomfret at one time and who knew Putnam in his boyhood, told a lot of amusing stories. He was as complete a mastery of dialect as Mr. Higgins and he proved a most accomplished raconteur. Both men were enthusiastically applauded.

Rev. James F. English, pastor of the Second Congregational church, talked briefly, but he made a fine impression. He welcomed the opportunity, he said, to meet Putnam people informally and he expressed his appreciation of the way he had been received in Putnam and declared he could not have found a more delightful place in which to live.

T. H. deCoudres, president of the Chamber of Commerce, also spoke briefly and his timely reminder that there was a good deal of work for every one to do yet to make the dedication of the Memorial bridge a success, was the only business touch of the evening, and it was a fitting one.

During the talks there was music by Rudolph Metty"s orchestra. Refreshments were provided in the dining room adjoining the hall, with a detail of Boy Scouts seeing to it that everyone was served. A large amount of provisions was left over, and next day Selectman William P. Warren had it distributed among needy families.

Friday, Oct. 23, convention day for the public school teachers of the state, all public schools of Putnam will be closed and nearly all the teachers are planning to attend the convention.

This will permit many of the students to attend the Older Boys' conference at Hartford on the same day. There will be delegates from each of the four classes of the high school, from the Hi-Y club and from the Sunday schools of the city.

At New London the same day there will be the Older Girls' conference at which there will be a number of delegates from Putnam in attendance.

Putnam troop of Boy Scouts of America, eager to outstrip their older competitors in appearance for Armistice day parades, have ordered complete new uniforms. The troop promises to have its full equipment in dazzling new outfits of khaki.

Mr. and Mrs. William E. Rogers are moving into the James B. Tatem house on Grove street.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest B. Kent motored to Jamaica Plains, Mass., and visited Miss Estes, who was a former music teacher in the Putnam schools

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Chase and son, Waldo, of Walnut street and Mrs. Hugo Carlson of Worcester, have been visiting in Boston. They made the trip by automobile.

Edward Conroy has returned to his home in Shenandoah after a week's visit with Mr. and Mrs. Martin J. Hogan of Tatem street.

Mrs. C. Burton of Danielson has been the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mr. Deneri Duval of North Grosvenordale.

Mr. and Mrs. Rene Beauregard of Southbridge, Mass., and Mr. and Mrs E Pion of Taftville, Conn., were recent guests of Hermenogilde and Zoel Beauregard at North Grosvenordale.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hughes and little daughter Virginia of Manchester have been guests of Mr. Hughes' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bernier.

Miss Jean Walker of Haverhill, Mass., formerly of Putnam has been the guests of local friends.

The Drop-in class of the Second Congregational church is to meet this (Thursday) afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Annie C. Child.

Miss Ruth Chase of Providence has been spending several days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence W. Chase of Walnut street.

Mrs. John Bagardus of the Thompson road has been the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Maxwell Hutchinson at Andover, Mass. While there she attended the Pomona Grange at Bolton, Conn.

Roy Sherman of Abington has returned from West Palm Beach, Fla., where he has been for some time and has a position in Putnam.

To pay a bet on the game between Pittsburgh and Washington, Mr. Durand boss weaver gave Mr. Reardon, boss spinner, at the Fabyan mills a wheelbarrow ride from the mill to the store and back. Boys with tin pans as drums headed the procession.

Professor and Mrs. Waldo S. Pratt of Hartford have returned to their home, having spent several weeks at the Ben Grosvenor inn at Pomfret.

Mrs. Lindsley Coleman has returned to her home in Nashville, Tenn., after spending the summer at Pomfret.

AILMENTS OF YOUNG GIRLS

Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound School Teacher's Experience

Evanston, Wyoming.—"A few years ago I had troubles every month such as girls often have, and would suffer awfully every time. I was teaching school and it made it hard for me as I had to go to bed for two or three days. One day my mother suggested that I take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which I did, and it did wonders for me. In the course of a year I married and after my first baby was born I got up too soon and it caused a displacement. This troubled me so that I could hardly walk or do my housework. I knew what the Vegetable Compound did for me before so I took it again. It strengthened me and now I have five little kiddies. The eldest is six, the baby is five months old and I have twin boys three years old and a boy of five years. I do all my own housework, washing and ironing, and I never felt better in my life. I owe my health to your wonderful medicine." — Mrs. VERBENA CARPENTER, 127 2nd Avenue, Evanston, Wyoming.

Next Sunday the fall schedule of masses becomes effective at St. James' church. A change of importance to several hundred communicants is that the third mass will be at 9:15, instead of 9.00, as has been the rule for many years.

Due to the efficiency of Attorney Louis A. Woisard, personal tax collector, Killingly is one of the towns that has a very good record, a matter of state-wide discussion just now, in getting this revenue from the public.

Rene Caron motored to Rockingham, N. H., to see automobile races scheduled to be held at the wonderful new board track recently completed there. Rain caused a postponement of the races just as the cars were ready to start, but the Danielson people saw some amazingly fast workouts.

Many local friends of the gifted preachers will read with interest the following from the Middletown Press:

The mission for the men of St. John's church which has been in progress for the last week under the direction of the LaSalette Fathers, Rev. Thomas Conlon, M. S., and Rev. F. T. Ledwith, M. S. was brought to a most successful close Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. At the 7 o'clock mass the church was filled with the men of the parish who received Holy Communion. At 3 o'clock the service was conducted by Rev. Father Ledwith, assisted by Rev. Charles M. Savanagh of St. John's, who recited the Rosary and gave Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament. Father Ledwith urged the men to live up to the good resolutions that they had formed: to keep in touch, as it were, with their Heavenly Father; to receive Holy Communion frequently and promised them if they did so that their lives would be much pleasanter and happier.

The men renewed their baptismal vows; it was a beautiful sight as over 1,000 men held aloft each in his right hand, a lighted candle and took anew the vow. Then Father Ledwith gave the Pontifical Blessing. It was a very solemn moment when Father Ledwith pleaded with the men to live clean, pure lives; he said he might not meet them again on this earth, but he sincerely hoped to in the next. He would always remember them in his prayers at mass and requested them to pray for him that God would give him strength to continue in his work as missionary.

An amateur boxing exhibition, such is scheduled for Danielson, gave Hartford followers of the sport a great evening Tuesday. Boxing fans in this territory read of it with interest because of the fact that Joe Howard, who is to show here put Frankie Gans of New York away in a little more than a minute of the first round, it was the 24th knockout in a row for the Hartford boxer.

Hartford fans seemed to like the amateur bouts fully as well as the matches that have been served them on professional cards. The theory that they will be as pleasing to patrons of the game hereabouts as professional affairs is what has prompted Manager Frank Barber to arrange an amateur card. In this first amateur exhibition the boxers will come here from various parts of the state. At a later date local amateurs, in fact all eastern Connecticut amateurs, will have their chance.

There is a reminder of the approach of Halloween in the spooky souvenirs, gimcracks and other things that have come into such popular use in the observance of this fall feast. Here in Danielson, within a very few years, the children have taken up the Hallowe'en date as a wonderful opportunity for having a good time, and legion are the numbers that don ghost regalia and mask for a parade about the town. This year, providing the weather is pleasant, there will be great numbers of them out. They will tell you now "We are getting ready."

If motor bus service is established through this territory in replacement of electric car service, it is likely that an hourly service will be maintained between Central Village and Putnam. Between Central Village and Norwich the service will be every two hours. This can be arranged by having some busses run through direct from Putnam to Norwich, while other buses will run only between Putnam and Central Village.

NAVY DAY PLANS

Next Tuesday there will be a nation-wide observance of Navy day. This is an annual event but it has added significance this year in view of the fact that it is also the 150th anniversary of the navy, the first vessels of war having been authorized by congress a century and a half ago. It is an unusual anniversary. Since the first naval vessel was authorized there have been great strides in ship construction whether intended for war or commerce. We know for instance what a contrast there is between Old Ironsides and the latest of our battleships, plane carriers and submarines. We likewise know what importance is attached to our navy in the defense of the nation and what it has accomplished during the long years since it was first considered necessary.

Particular interest is taken in this locality in the submarine branch of the service because of the submarine base on the Thames river. In the observance of Navy day this reconstructed "navy yard" will be open for the reception of all those who are desirous of getting closer to and learning something more about this branch of the navy. The special programme that has been arranged and the opening of the submarines for visitors, together with the equipment which is needed to keep them in repair and to properly instruct the crews should develop such interest among the people of this part of Connecticut as to provide a large attendance of visitors throughout the day.

For those who have often expressed a desire to go through the base and see a submarine Navy day provides an unusual opportunity, and it is fitting that there should be a keen interest in making such an inspection on the part of the citizens. Here is the chance to see how the navy department is employing public funds for the maintenance of a necessary part of the first line of defense. The chance to know something more about our navy through first hand observations should never be neglected.

COMPLIMENT TO BUTLER

For two years Philadelphia has had the service of General Butler of the United States marine corps as director of public safety. His job has been no sinecure. Much has been expected of him, far more than he was able to accomplish, and yet that does not mean that he has not entered into his duties with determination and a disposition to carry out an almost impossible programme.

General Butler was loaned in the first place to Philadelphia for a year. At the end of that time an extension for a similar period was obtained but with the understanding that it could not be prolonged. Only recently, General Butler has declared that he was ready to quit at the end of this year and go back to the marines. He was cognizant of the fact that he had not done all he planned and he pointed out the handicaps that had stood in the way of such accomplishments. He had failed to get support from those who should have given it in upholding of law and the elimination of undesirable conditions in the Quaker city.

Others as well as General Butler understand what difficulties he has had to face and recognize, in view of that fact, what effect his stand for better conditions has had in that city. There is a desire for a continuation of his movement and it is a compliment to General Butler when it is believed that he is the man to carry it on. How successful the efforts will be in getting the government to extend his leave of absence that he may continue to direct his work is uncertain. He can of course resign from the marines and remain in Philadelphia as long as he desires, or as they desire him, but that will mean that he must dip into politics and that is contrary to his inclination.

One thing stands out prominently in connection with his two years' service in Philadelphia and that is the recognition of the conscientious and wholehearted manner in which General Butler has worked for the clean up. That will not be shaken whether the effort to have his leave extended is successful or not.

COASTAL DISASTERS

With close interest will the investigations concerning two marine disasters be followed by the general public. Within a few days there has come the serious charges concerning the conduct of the crew of the Comanche which was burned off the Florida coast and the claims of most of the passengers that if they had relied upon the crew for assistance in getting away from the vessel all would have been lost. The claims are that the crew even depended upon passengers to launch the small boats and then proceeded to crowd the passengers out that they and their baggage might have a place. In addition it has been freely asserted that the crew was intoxicated, although until the facts are established it is only just to note that the steamship company has denied any such condition.

The case of the Comanche comes soon after the loss of the S-51 when it was rammed by the City of Rome off Block Island on a clear night, when the light of the submarine had been visible for sometime and when the character of the light indicated that the submarine was going in the same direction as the steamship. It was in connection with the efforts to rescue the sailors in the water and the failure of the steamer to remain at the scene of the collision that called forth much criticism. Likewise it has appeared exceedingly strange that no effort was made by the City of Rome to send out information about what had happened until hours after.

From the inquiries which are underway in each case it will be possible to learn whether the charges and criticisms which have been made are justified. Also to learn what made such conditions possible if those charges are not true. Either there has been a gross exaggeration or else there was a highly deplorable situation on each of the steamships. Whatever is learned will have no effect upon those lost or the damage caused, but it should have a most wholesome effect upon navigation along our coast in the future.

THE PRESIDENT SPEAKS

President Coolidge has something to say to the gathering of Congregational church representatives in Washington and he said it in that clear cut and and pointed manner which characterizes his addresses.

He laid due emphasis upon the importance of religion and declared that religious influences alone "appear as the remedy for the evils that beset society."

He made the most of the opportunity to direct attention to the fact that there is a constant clamor for government to do something when as a matter of fact there are limits to which government can go. Its hands have been tied in various ways and yet it is relied upon to do that something which is considered necessary to meet a particular situation. In regard to law enforcement he insisted that "the utmost ingenuity on the part of the police powers will be substantially all wanted in an effort to enforce law if there does not exist a strong and vigorous determination on the part of the people to observe the law. Such a determination cannot be produced by the government. My opinion is that it is furnished by religion."

In the same way he maintained that religion offered the only method of dealing with lawlessness which he termed as altogether too prevalent and set forth that it is through religion rather than government that morals should be reformed and evil diminished.

What the president had to say to the Congregational council was intended for nationwide consumption. He had a strong message for his hearers but also for all others who are interested in religion and the extension of its influences as well as those who expect to enjoy the fruits of civilization.

THE RESULT AT LOCARNO

It is inevitable that there would be claims that the treaties agreed upon at Locarno are not perfect, that they do not give positive assurance that peace will prevail in Europe henceforth, but in spite of such an attitude it is generally recognized that they show progress in that direction and whatever step is taken toward making peace easier, or in preventing warlike demonstrations, must be regarded as being constructive and commendable.

Here is to be seen a disposition to look upon and associate with other nations without maintaining all the time a spirit of distrust. There is to be recognized a willingness to adopt new methods and to depart from past practices in the common expectation that the destructiveness of former methods may be eliminated. It marks a new era for Europe. It at least serves as a basis for hope that it will be successful in its undertakings. Not only Europe is concerned, but the entire world. Some of the hollow sound that has accompanied former peace efforts is at least eliminated.

Europe, its troubles, politics and wars have stood in need of reform. Getting started is a matter of much importance. There might be endless talk, but no progress could be made without some such action as that which was taken at Locarno. Now it behooves the participants to put forth as much determination in carrying out the terms of the treaties as was evidenced in reaching them. It was intended that they be respected and not ignored and through such an attitude commonly maintained the goal can be reached.

IT DIDN'T WORK

"Well, why don't you get them?" Ida Kildare queried. She was stretched out on the chaise longue with its faded cushions in the sunroom of the Outmann, watching Cora Outman skillfully darning silk hosiery.

Cora looked up, a tiny frown carrugating the white between the sweep of her beautifully pencilled eyebrows. "Oh," she said mechanically, "we can's afford it."

Ida Kildare sat up suddenly. Her nostrils dilated a bit. "She here, Co," she said, "let me tell you once for all that I'm dead sick of seeing you made a fool of yourself! You're all wrong. Of course, you can't afford it—and the reason you can't afford it is that you've never spent money since you and Bill were married.

"Men are exactly, precisely like other human beings, and who is going to work like a nailer if her doesn't have to? If a man's wife spends all he makes and keeps him scared to death that she's going to spend more, reproduces the coin, I guess if you sent home some new furniture that Bill liked he'd manage to pay for it."

Cora stood for a long time watching the dust that Ida's smart little car spun into the air when she departed. Ida certainly had everything, and the best of it, though Jim was not a rich man. He was a silent, rather grim-faced person, very different from the gay young chap whom Ida had married.

But Ida's theory produced. It worked.

So, a trifle awkwardly, Cora experimented with it. "We really needed them," she said casually when the first of the month Bill whistled over the $35 set of table linen on the charge account. And they did need them. She bought a rug later at a bargain and ordered new sunroom curtains. She had an orgy in crepe de chine lingerie and she bought a dinner dress outright.

"Hey, woman!" Bill said when he had added the account three times and failed to make it less than a couple of hundred dollars more than he thought it ought to be. "I haven't inherited money, you know, and my income stays put. I can't save a thing this month toward those bonds."

Cora looked her prettiest and she added a touch of helplessness. "Can't you make some more some way?" she murmured. Bill stared.

"My little gold digger!" he said amusedly.

Bill took things too easily, she reflected somewhat indignantly. If he had some wives—so the next week she bought a table she had coveted and some jade beads which looked wonderful on her black crepe. Even Bill admitted as much, though he did not seem exactly happy about it.

Once started it was easy, and even at that she had nothing compared with Ida, nothing more than she really needed. Bill had stopped mentioning her expenditures to her and it had worked out just as Ida had prophesied. What a goose she had been all these years, what an idiot to do without and pinch pennies.

She was hanging up Bill's overcoat when she observed how the nap was worn off the collar—he had not got a new one this spring, as her had planned to do and she had never noticed. Mentally she saw his carefully pressed suits that were wearing shiny and his dear old ties. His straw hat she had had cleaned instead of getting a new one. He had not smoked much lately, either. And when the invitation had come to join the coveted golf club he had declined; said he was too busy to play much. And for some reason he had not yet bought the radio set.

It struck her that he did not riot around the house like a boy on a vacation as he had always done—that was it! His face was in some absurd way taking on the same grim look worn by Jim! She stood there a long time, rubbing one finger across the worn velvet collar, thinking. A man on a fixed salary certainly couldn't increase it at whim. That came at long intervals after a steady pull. And he had never said a word of protest in all these months when she had spent as she chose.

When he came home to dinner that night, Cora, as a sort of sop to her own soul had on one of her last year's linen house gowns and a serious expression.

"I wish you'd help me work out a budget system for us," she said after the meal was over. "We—we're spending too much money and you need an awful lot of things, Bill! You haven't spent anything on yourself for ages."

"Oh, my things!" Bill protested. "But really, will you go on a budget? That'll be bully! It's been kind of hard sledding of late."

He sat with an arm around her as they figured. "I'll bet Jim and Ida haven't sat like this for a thousand years!" Cora told herself as she marked down a grocery total. "Poor girl!" —Exchange.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Another Bad Street

Mr. Editor—I read with sincere approval the complaint by Norwichite, and I would like to call attention to the condition of Connell street. This street was once in good condition, but it has been neglected so long it is little better than a stoneheap.

Is it too much to hope it may get some attention before the city has to pay the equivalent in damage claims?

Women Who Smoke

Mr. Editor—Look up and not down; look out and not in; look forward and not back. Whatsoever we do, there are events which we need to look at very closely—and perhaps the most important of all is the increasin vice among women smoking cigarettes. I have heard physicians say that when women smoked the race was doomed. No woman who saturated her system with nicotine could give children sane minds in a sane body. There may be some excuse for the young flappers for they do not understand that the vitalities of the human body are governed by well-defined laws. They are well acquainted with the saying, "As ye sow, ye shall reap," but they do not really know that nicotine is a real poison and that cigarettes contain other poison in the paper like lime, lead and arsenic used to toughen the paper. Henry Ford tells how he secured papers given away with tobacco to make cigarettes. He took two small bottles, each holding about three tablespoons of water. Into one he placed 15 of these papers and in the other the equal thickness of tissue paper. He found that after a few days that a few drops of the water from the bottle containing the cigarette papers would kill a mouse quicker than he could say "Jack Robinson," while the water from the other bottle had no effect whatsoever.

It is high time that we "looked," not "up" or "down," but into this terrible habit that is so rapidly enthralling our young women, as well as our young men. They must be made to realize that with every breath of cigar te smoke they inhale they are committing a slow suicide by weakening the heart, lungs, stomach and destroying their nervous systems, if the future generations are to have a chance to lead a normal life. Mike Donovan, athletic director of the New York Athletic club, says, "If any young man expects to amount to anything in athletics he must let smoking and all kinds of liquors alone. They are rank poisons to his athletic ambitions."

We need no greater proof of the deteriorating effect of nicotine. If it disqualifies a boy for athletics then it will unfit him and the flapper for any line of endeavor. As bad as it is for the boy it is much worse for our young womanhood, for she is the mother of the race. God crowned her with the highest honor. Whatever men may do to display their manhood, women must live up to the high and holy responsibility. From the scientific standpoint they have a solemn duty to the race.

Let us look at it also from the spiritual and ethical side of the question. Recently I was at a picnic. In our group was a young man, who, when one of the older men told of being at a banquet in New York and in response to a toast to "women" admister said, 'Once our superior, now our equal," he exclaimed emphatically "now our inferiors." The contempt in his voice told how he rated the womanhood of today. He is not an exception—there are many of the first grade of men who lament the headlong plunge of our young women, especially our village women into this vortex of vice; for smoking is a vice it might say a crime against the future generations. Men may condone the bobbed hair, the lipstick and paint, as they do not poison the vital organs but thoughtful men will not marry them. I have heard them say so—because they know that women who smoke no matter what their natural endowments or conditions of intellectual culture may be show decidedly inferior moral perceptions and cannot be the mothers of children whose relations to life can be considered as favorable as though they had not formed the habit of smoking. This is not mere talk. Insurance companies are giving more and more attention to the effect of tobacco upon the user. Six Canadian insurance companies found that while the mortality rate of non-smokers was 82 that of smokers was 93. Injured hearts and blood vessels are the price usually paid for by the smokers. These are hard facts that cannot be disputed. It is a sad sight to see men and women thus slowly committing suicide. They have no vision such as led Ruskin to say, "We are all intended not to carve our work in snow that will melt, but each and all of us to be rolling a great white gathering snowball—higher and higher—larger and larger—along the Alps of human power."

Is it too late to convince our young people that there is no truer saying than, "He who sows to the flesh reaps corruption?"

Stories That Recall Others

Shooting the Poor Rapids

Little Alice came running into the house while the family was away on its vacation the past summer. "Oh, mother," she exclaimed, "may I shoot the rabbits some time?"

"Why, honey, you don't want to hurt the poor little rabbits, do you?"

"It doesn't hurt them, mother. You just shoot them down into the water out here in the park."

There'll be Murder Some Day

Harry likes to have his jokes, so when a well known acquaintance dropped into his office the other day and asked if there was anything new, he merely said with a drawl, "No, nothing much, only a fellow just fell off a four-story building."

"Is that so!" exclaimed the questioner excitedly, and then asked, "Did the ambulance respond?"

"No," said Harry, "you see he wasn't hurt."

"Wasn't hurt!" was asked in astonishment, "How was that?"

"Well, you see, he had on a spring suit and a light fall overcoat."

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Captain Ralph Earle, U. S. N., retired who is to be inaugurated today into the office of president of Worcester Polytechnic Institute, at Worcester, Mass., is a former officer of the United States navy and a noted authority on ordnance. Captain Earle was born in Massachusetts in 1874 and was appointed to the Annapolis academy from that state in 1892. Making the study of ordnance his specialty, he served as ordnance officer of the new battleship Maine, as inspector of ordnance at the Indian Head proving grounds, Maryland, and in 1916 became chief of the ordinance bureau of the navy. During the World war he served in important capacities and remained in the navy until a few months ago, when he resigned to accept the offer of the presidency of the Worcester institution.

From Small Beginnings

"Kit" Carson, the Great Frontiersman

Missouri about 1830 was a very different place from the present Missouri. Where there are now delightful homes, excellent roads and whirring automobiles there was then a great wilderness, with prowling Indians, quick-shooting whites and dangers on all sides. In one of the outpost villages of the Missouri of 1830 a small boy, "Kit" (otherwise Christopher) Carson worked making and mending saddles, for he could ride; and he was as tough and hard as any of the men who came to buy saddles. Whenever he could get away from work under a roof he set out on horseback and had a mad ride out in the wilderness. In this way he soon learned all the trails and all the hunting places for miles around. In other words, he made the most of the opportunities that lay near at hand and learned about new ones.

"Kit" Carson was too active an outdoor boy to be contented with work indoors and he quickly became nothing else except a hunter and a guide through the wilderness. He could bring in more game as food than could almost any other hunter. He had a quick eye, a tireless spirit, a love of danger and he shot "as quick as a wink." When John C. Fremont went on his great explorations of the west, "Kit" Carson, then 33, was one of his trusted men—a man who knew the west with all its Indians and all its dangers.

When Kit" Carson was a little over 30 he was one of the guides whom the gold seekers going to California most wished to employ to take them through the Indian regions. Wild his interested mind Carson studied the redskins, learned their ways and their languages, and, what was more, he won their confidence. He was acquainted with many tribes and at home with all of them simply because he found them worth studying. Out of the great adobe pyramid of Taos, in New Mexico, far from civilization, he was agent for the United States, and there today he is remembered with love. In both the Mexican war and the Civil war "Kit" Carson fought as a scout, was honored for bravery and given the rang of brigadier general. His mental power, as well as his superb physical courage and ability, made him, out of a saddler's boy, one of the greatest American frontiersman.

NEW ANIMALS FOUND IN ARCTIC

Climbing Arctic cliffs barefoot, fishing with bare hands in glacial waters, skinning specimens in a tossing ship with icy waves threatening both the specimens and supplies—these are some of the adventures of a naturalist in the Arctic as related in a radio message to the National Geographic society about the work of Dr. Walter N. Koelz, chief naturalist of the MacMillan Arctic Expedition.

"It appears from Dr. Koelz's summer work that there are a number of kinds of animals in the far north which have not yet been named," the message says.

"Dr. Koelz recently had the benefit of long conferences with Dr. Lehn Schioler, world famous Danish ornithologist, and we were congratulated on the number and variety of our specimens.

"Dr. Schioler and his artist companion, Mr. Larsen, have studied the fauna of Greenland for more than 20 years and were warm in their praise of one whose specialty is ichthyology but whose range of knowledge as a naturalist is such that his conclusions are listened to with respect and some of his specimens are considered so valuable they have been requested for Danish museums.

"Some of the most interesting results of th expedition have been connected with the gyrfalcons and red polls. The former became progressively darker as they go south. North of Cape York both young and old birds are predominately white but in Godthaab, Greenland, many of the birds taken show no white at all. If protective coloration in rock and snow regions is a reason the mystery is no more simple since in neither region has the gyrfalcon any enemy which it must fear. In the north it is the only bird of prey equipped with hooked beak and sharp claws.

"Farther south there also are the tiercel duckhawk, favorite of the falconers, the giant sea eagle and the snowy owl. All except the last are fairly common along the south Greenland coast where they prey for the most part on the birds, the only fur bearing animals which they might kill being foxes and hares. The falcons often menace the poultry and pigeons which the Danes have introduced into Greenland.

"Among the many birds now changing their homes in a more or less extended migration, the Arctic tern is the champion distance flyer. This bird is now on its annual migration to the Antarctic. It is barely larger than a robin but with a wing spread which makes its progress as even as that of a two-oared racing scull. This light grey courser, with sharp tipped wings and accentuated swallow-tails, whizs its way from one end of the earth to the other a distance of eleven thousand miles.

"The species which had life possible in the tropics are many but the number of individuals in each species is relatively low. In the far north the species are fewer but myriads of individuals exist especially in the water whose oxygen content is high.

"One day Dr. Koelz was trouting in a small stream which empties into a small arm of Godthaab fiord. In fresh water the trout become brightly colored, affords a picture which would drive any fisherman to envy. Color photographs were secured by Jacob Gayer of some of these trout, which weigh five pounds. While Eskimo boys were catching one, Dr. Koelz caught six in his hands. He is keenly enthusiastic over the results of his brief but strenuous work in the Arctic and is obtaining further important data of the varied fish life in Labrador."

Dr. Koelz was loaned to the National Geographic society for the MacMillan expedition work by the U. S. bureau of fisheries.

NORWICH SCHOOL CHILDREN 100 PER CENT PATRIOTIC

Something over $90 with not all reports in was reported Wednesday for the "Save Old Ironsides" fund after representatives of the Norwich lodge of Elks had visited and spoken in the schools of the town and outlying districts. One of the 27 speakers remarked Wednesday night that they had gone out to talk patriotism to the school children, but they had received wonderful lessons in patriotism from their school audiences who had registered 100 per cent in patriotic spirit, as shown by their contributions, however small individually.

At every school there were exercises consisting of a salute to the flag, the American creed, the singing of the first and third verses of America and the address by the Elks representative. Then followed the school children's contribution in which the response was so general that the supply of buttons was exhausted. These, however, will be secured and will be distributed so that every contributor will have a button.

The officers of the Elks were especially grateful to the school superintendents and teachers who gave them the opportunity to reach the children so satisfactorily.

CALLS ON CITIZENS TO REALIZE VISION OF A GREATER, BETTER CITY

A call for the membership of the Chamber of Commerce and citizens generally to realize the vision of a greater, better city was sounded before the annual banquet of the Chamber of Commerce Tuesday evening by Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, retiring vice president, who delivered the address at the banquet.

Rev. Mr. Abbott spoke as follows:

One of our American scholars has recently written these words, "there are three possible attitudes which one may take to existing social institutions; one may accept them as they are without question and yield them willing and loyal allegiance; one may protest against them as corrupt and negligible and find in one's own life a refuge and compensation; one may believe that society itself is in the process of remaking and that in the progress toward better things each man and woman may have a part."

Progress Towards Better Things

These general statements are applicable to a particular institution like a Chamber of Commerce. Our attitude is the third, a belief that this institution is in the process of remaking and that in the progress toward better things for the community which it serves each man and each woman may have a part. We do not accept the efforts of the Chamber of Commerce without questioning, yielding only a perfunctory allegiance, nor do we think that those efforts are corrupt or negligible. We have a strong belief that the work of the Chamber of Commerce is a living work in process, and that in the progress toward better things every citizen in the community may have a share.

Now anything that compels belief to be transformed into action is valuable; so I want to take that belief which is ours tonight, indicated by our presence here, and attempt to interpret the spirit of the Chamber of Commerce; in order to make our belief in it project itself out into more valid action for the community. In order to interpret the spirit of the Chamber of Commerce I want to discuss with you the vision that the Chamber of Commerce has, the facts in which that vision is grounded and the actual deeds done toward making the vision come true.

The Vision

First, then, the vision of an institution like the Chamber of Commerce. Let me start this part of our thought together with two quotations. I am going back first to a man who lived in the first pont of the first century of our own era, an Alexandrian Jew one of the greatest philosophers of that century, whose writing had great effect upon the thinking of his time, Philo writes these words. "When any city is founded it happens that some man, seeing the advantageous character and beauty of the situation, first of all sketches out in his own mind nearly all the parts of the city which is about to be built, the temples, the gymnasia, the markets, the harbor, the docks, the streets, the arrangement of the walls, the situation of the dwelling houses, the public and other buildings. Then, having received in his own mind, as on a waxen tablet, the form of each building, he carries in his heart the image of the city perceptible as yet only by the intellect which is innate in him, and still further engraving them in his mind like a good workman, keeping his eyes fixed on his model, he begins to raise the city of stones and wood." That is the prose vision of a man who sees in his dream a city that can be.

Now let us come down twenty centuries and listen to another man who writes of the city of his vision:

"Said the Lord God, 'Build a house.
Smoke and iron, spark and steam.
Speak and vote and buy and sell.
Let a new world throb and stream
Seers and makers, build it well.'

Yet though worn and deaf and blind
Force and savage, king and seer
Labour still, they know not why
At the dim foundation here.
Knead and plough and think and ply.

Till at last, mayhap, hereon,
Fused of passion and accord,
Love its crown and peace its stay
Rise the City of the Lord
That we darkly build today."

Our world literature, of prose and legend, of poetry and fiction, of philosophy and religion, of government and economics, is rich in the vision of what a city can be. I think it would do us all good to go back into our shelves and take down some of the books that belong to the race, the books of the seers, who knew the city as it was, and visioned the city that could be. We would re-read the "Republic" and "Timaeus" of Plato and we would take down Plutarch's "Life of Lycurgus" and hear him depict the new Sparta. We would go back to the ancient prophets as they thought of the Holy City to the Apocalypse as it depicted the new Jerusalem; the parables of Jesus dealing with a kingdom yet to be; the "City of God" of Augustine; the "Utopia" of Thomas More, we would take down "The Dream" of H. G. Wells and "New Worlds for Old." We would go to them again and again and read their revealing hopes of what might be, even when they knew what actually was.

Now, we should remind ourselves that any great thing that has lasting effect is always touched by the seer, by the man who dreams his dreams, not of what is but of what can be. When we come to the vision of the Chamber of Commerce of Norwich we find two elements in it. We recognize first that like all good dreams, it is never of the past merely, but mostly of the future. It recognizes, it reverences the past, but has no unquestioning loyalty to it. Again and again we are told things like this, "If you could only have seen our city twenty-five years ago." "If you could only have seen these downtown streets shaded with noble elms." "If you could only have seen the giants who were here in those days." "If you could only have recognized that it was a benevolent population that existed here, men and women of large frame and large minds whose beauty touched all of our community life." Such are the things that we hear from those in our city whom we love and whom we respect. But our present vision, though it respects and reveres all that, has no unquestioning allegiance to it; for though we recognize most clearly the bad things that have come to us from it. Not all has been good; some has been pernicious and some of the things that we are experiencing in this our day, of difficulty and obstacle, of traditional conservation and of inertia in action, are the definite result of the things that have been bequeathed to us by that same generation whose gifts of beauty we admire and respect. Our vision, therefore, is not facing backward, but our vision is a dream of new streets and new buildings, new industry, new education and new play-grounds, and our minds leap over even this building to something that may be even finer. These are our dreams; they are the visions of any man who seeks to serve the common good. I want to say just this, that a Chamber of Commerce is something more, Mr. President, than organized business; the Chamber of Commerce is business organized cooperatively with other forces, to bring a community into the possession of a finer character; and any Chamber of Commerce that is devoted merely to one type of organization is an organization that does not dream of our whole unified life. Our vision, then, is not of one particular interest alone, nor does it confine itself to the past, it leaps into the future. We dream of knowledge twenty-five years hence, we dream of The City that is better than the one we now have; we dream of life here in this community lived on higher levels than the levels on which we now live. Such is our vision in this chamber.

Vision Founded on Reality

Now any vison is grounded in reality. So it is necessary for us to consider what that vision is grounded in. What are the facts in our contemporaneous life in which this hope exists? There used to be a time, you know, when a vision was thought to touch only an unreal thing. A dream had no relation to reality. A phantasy was connected with something that did not exist and never could exist, a mere hallucination. This is what we mean when we toss off with sarcasm the phrase, "That man is merely an idealist, he is merely a dreamer." But we have come to the time when we now recognize that every dream has roots in something that is real. One of our friends here present tonight could tell us something most interesting about the new art and the new science of interpreting dreams. One of the things that our minds have discovered is that every vision, every dream goes back into reality, into something that is vivid and something that is actual, and something that is positive. Now what are these actual and positive grounds in which this vision of the spirit of our Chamber of Commerce is grounded? Many things. Just two I want to mention. Two things that should always be remembered by the seer and the practical man. The work of any chamber of commerce and particularly ours, is grounded in the weakness of the community, and it is grounded in the strength of the community, and both these elements the candid mind should face, in order later on to make action bend toward great results. It is the wise individual who sits down again and again with his weakness, recognizes it, finds out what's the matter with him, seeks clearly and honestly to face himself in order to become a better self. So let us like ourselves into our own confidence, and here as men and women, dreaming of what the city can be, let us sit down with ourselves for a moment and without fear face those elements of weakness in which our vision is grounded.

Elements of Weakness

One of the elements of weakness in this community of ours is our exaggerated sectionalism. Now immediately to our minds come the geographical divisions in the city. We know section by section as a matter of geography. We know Taftville and Greeneville, the East Side and the West Side, Norwich Town, the Central District. These sections immediately come to mind as places we inhabit, for "a place is always where the mind is and a place is always a matter of the mind." Now, suppose we do not think about the geographical section so much as about the sectionalism within it. Then we will have to admit that one of the elements of weakness in our community life is the fact that our sectionalism becomes exaggerated again and again. Remember we are viewing the community as a whole just now. We are trying to see the elements of weakness in our united life, and here right into the very heart of that life comes one section with its claims and its demands over against another section, its claims and its demands. There is instance after instance when such sectionalism has become exaggerated We do not have to go far back into our history to remember the time when Taftville blocked a city dream. We do not have to go far back into our history to remember when Greeneville came down and outvoted the other districts. We do not have to go far back into our history to remember that the Central District held in its hands certain policies which it superimposed on the others. We can call to mind many instances when one section has blocked a certain educational project or ideal of another Here we have the evidence of one section exaggerating its power, its ability, its authority, its claims, its spirit. Now let us not be unfair. We should not say that sectionalism is all bad. We delight when some crowd gathers together in some corner of our life and forms for its district those things that are stimulating: as for instance, when play there is at best and the element of rivalry is keen and sportsmanlike. We have nothing except praise for those districts of our city which rear great monuments to their vigorous life. But this is the thing we also say: that, when sectionalism becomes so exaggerated as to break down the vision of the whole, then we have an element of weakness in community life. If it is created in Norwich Town, or the East Side, or in Taftville or Greeneville, or in the Central District, then is produced a sectional momentum which obstructs the unified effort for the good of all. Therein is a tremendous element of weakness.

A Divisive Individualism

There is another element of weakness in our city: our divisive individualism. That sounds so strange in a time like this. We are all taught that we are bound together by circumstances that no man can live to himself, no man is independent in this last day of our Lord. We are all dependent upon one another; and by the circumsiances of science, by the gifts of transportation, by the necessity of importing our foodstuffs, our iron, our steel, our coal and our copper, by the operations of trade, by what-not, we are all united in a nexus that binds us indissolubly together. We cannot be separated, whether we will or no. Why, then, should we speak of a divisive individualism?

We speak of it because we must always remember the difference between a mechanical unity and the unity which is a moral responsibility. At this specific moment I have a body. With the exception of adding my strength to the growth which the years have brought, my body exists through nothing I have done. It is the creature of biological forces preceding the power of this present moment. My brain, my muscles, my voice were created for me. This body of mine is a unity. It is a mechanical unity so far. There is no unity of moral responsibility within it until I take this aggregate of things that now constitute me and transfuse them into some purpose. Then the unity becomes a moral thing. Here is a family. A family is, up to a certain point, only a mechanical unity created by marriage, birth and the ties of blood. It is nothing but a mechanical unity until that family takes the forces

WEDDINGS

Brosmith-Comeau

At 9 o'clock Wednesday morning at St. Patrick's church, in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends Allan E. Brosmith of Hartford and Miss Georgette L. Comeau, daughter of Mrs. George A. Comeau of No. 17 Elmwood avenue, this city, were united in marriage by Rt. Rev. Msgr. Michael H. May, pastor of the church. Prof. Frank L. Farrell of New Haven, formerly organist at St. Patrick's church, this city, was in charge of the musical part of the ceremony. The church was most attractively decorated in ferns, palms and chrysanthemums.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Arthur W. Brosmith, sister-in-law of the groom, and the best man was Edward J. Daly of Hartford. The ushers were John J. Nagle and Daniel F. Cotter of Hartford. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Berthold H. Comeau. As the guests were assembling, Prof. Farrell, who is now organist at St. Mary's Dominican church, New Haven, rendered the following programme:

During the mass the musical programme was:

Baritone solo, Frank R. Murdy; Forest Murmure, Farrell; Barcarole, Offenbach; Wedding Roses, Frank R. Murdy; Wedding March, Mendelssohn.

The bride's gown was of white chiffon velvet, cut entrain with old duchess lace. Her veil was of tulle with bandeau of duchess lace caught with pearls and orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley. The matron of honor was gowned in Spanish lace over honey dew colored chiffon and she carried an arm bouquet of Aaron Ward roses.

With about 50 guests present a reception was held at the Norwich Golf club immediately after the wedding ceremony. The Golf Club was attractively decorated with autumn foliage and chrysanthemums and music was furnished by Caron's orchestra of this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Brosmith left during the day for a wedding trip, and on their return will reside in Hartford. They will be at home to their friends after January 1st at No. 30 Farmington avenue, Hartford. The bride's traveling gown was an ensemble costume of gray mirofeen with coat of burgundy needlepoint, trimmed with squirrel and hat of burgundy satin. Among those present at the wedding were guests from Hartford, New Rochelle, Gardner, New York and Boston.

Mr. Brosmith is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Brosmith of No. 30 Farmington avenue, Hartford. He is a graduate of Holy Cross College and of New York Law school and is a member of the firm of Brosmith, Dickenson and Brosmith, attorneys at law.

His bride is the daughter of Mrs. George A., and the late Dr. George A. Comeau and is popular with her many friends. She is a graduate of the Norwich Free Academy, class of 1917, was a member of the class of 1921, Connecticut College, and is a graduate of Katherine Gibbs school, Boston.

ROTARIANS HEAR TALKS ON BUSINESS METHODS

A business methods meeting was the feature of the weekly luncheon of the Norwich Rotary club held Wednesday noon at the Wauregan hotel. The meeting was in charge of the business methods committee. Charles Taylor is chairman, but owing to his absence, Frank Davis conducted the meeting. Mr. Davis in opening the programme said that the committee would discuss the benefits of the standardization of products and the cooperative advertising plan.

Herbert B. Cary of the Eaton, Chase Co. was the first speaker of the day. He took his own business, hardware, as an example where a standardization of products would be beneficial in many ways to the trade. He cited us an example the various sizes of screws, hundreds of sizes and qualities being carried in stock. If there was a standard and the odd sizes eliminated it would mean carrying of less stock, smaller chance of being out of the sizes and would result in a better quality of the product. He also spoke of tacks where there are various odd shapes and sizes and also of many other products such as bits and augurs where there are many metric sizes and others. Paint makers have come to realize the uselessness of producing so many colors and are now endenvoring to make only about 20 standard colors.

Following Mr. Cary's talk Eben Learned was called upon to speak on the standardization of business practice. Mr. Learned, like Mr Cary, used his own business to illustrate his topic. He said that in the insurance business a code of ethics has been adopted and stringent laws laid down to govern the writin of insurance. Every effort is made to standardise the business and every agent must now pass stiff examinations in order to be permitted to write insurance. This means that a certain standard has been set that every agent must come up to or not be allowed to write business. This insures the prospective policy holder of perfect satisfaction and tells him that he is doing business with a qualified agent and that there will be no errors made in transacting his business.

The third speaker was Herbert Ferguson who spoke on co-operative advertising. Mr. Ferguson dealt interestingly with his subject quoting the numerous campaigns that had been put on during the past few years, saying that the manufacturers were beginning to realize that co-operative advertising was bringing splendid results. Advertise to get the people interested in a certain commodity rather than advertise to get the dollars and cents. Advertisers are devoting large sums of money to instructive advertising and when a person becomes interested in a certain line he will patronize your store.

Mr. Davis spoke briefly on the benefits of trade and professional organizations and urged that all members of the Rotary club become affiliated with the organization to which they are eligible through their business. He said that the individual is bound to be broadened by coming in contact with others in the same line of business, in comparing ideas and considering the business trend in various sections of the country.

F. Russell Smith, the five minute speaker of the day, took for his subject the restoration of the Constitution (Old Ironsides), that ship which is rich in traditions of the navy of the United States. The cost of restoration will be approximately $500,000 which is too large an appropriation for the government so it has been decided to ask the school children to give of their pennies to save this old ship which played such an important part in the naval history of our country.

ACADEMY AND STONINGTON BATTLE TO A SCORELESS TIE AT STONINGTON

Coach Whitney's charges gave the best account of themselves so far this season, when they held Stonington High School to a scoreless tie Wednesday afternoon at Stonington. Throughout the entire game both teams fought hard and fast. The local boys had several chances when it seemed as if they would score but they failed to do so. The best of these chances came in the second quarter when the Academy had the ball on Stonington's ten yard line and were only stopped from scoring a touchdown by the referee's whistle ending the half.

Stonington completed several pretty forwards that gained considerable ground for them. On the other hand Norwich was unable to complete a single pass. AGGIE SQUAD HAS AFTERNOON OF SCRIMMAGE

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Oct. 21.—Coach Sumner A. Dole gave his Connecticut Aggie squad a stiff dose of scrimmage this afternoon when he had the varsity and second team mix on Gardner Dow field It was a gruelling affair throughout, and after the second team had given the varsity a real battle, Coach Alexander's freshman eleven was shoved into the fray.

Planned to give the varsity a real defensive test before taking on Tufts at Medford next Saturday, the afternoon's work did all that it was expected to do. With the husky "Pop" Williams, a star backfield man, who is ineligible, playing behind the line for the second team, the varsity forward wall was taxed to the utmost to stop the onslaughts of the Danielson boy. After the second team had scrimmaged for twenty minutes, the frosh took their turn for the same length of time, and they too furnished the varsity with plenty of opposition.

Both varsity and freshman teams will make a determined effort to break into the victory column this Saturday; the varsity at the expense of Tufts on the latter's home field, and the Aggie freshmen at the expense of Milford Prep school at Storrs. The varsity has dropped three of its four games played to date, and the freshmen have yet to win a game. Two scoreless ties have been played by the yearlings, and one defeat has been sustained.

BRAVES PAY DOUBLE TRIBUTE TO MATHEWSON

BOSTON, Oct. 21.—(AP)—The Boston National League baseball club paid double tribute to its late president, Christy Mathewson, at its annual meeting today. It elected his son, Christopher, Jr., as a director and adopted resolutions offered by Mayor James M. Judge Emil B. Fuchs of New York was elected president, and Albert H. Powell vice president and treasurer. Young Mathewson is a sophomore at Bucknell college, of which his father was a graduate.

It was announced that all the Braves players had signed their contracts for next season except Jim Welch, outfielder, and Dick Burrus, first baseman.

The resolutions said that Mathewson "by his exceptional intellectual and physical attributes, indomitable perservance and clean sportsmanship elevated the game to a higher standard than ever before attained, won the admiration and confidence of an exacting though generous public and gained for himself an imperishable name in the annals of American sports."

CHRISTY JR. IS A JUNIOR AT FATHER'S ALMA MATER

LEWISBURG, Pa., Oct. 21.—(AP)—Christy Mathewson, Jr., elected a director of the Boston nationals today, is a junior at Bucknell university and ranks high in his scholastic standing. Unlike his late father Young Mathewson does not go in for athletics. He is a member of the Phi Gamma Delta fraternity, plays a saxophone in the college orchestra, and is well liked by students and faculty.

Born in New York city in October, 1906, Mathewson attended public schools in that city, Lewisburg, Marlin, Texas, and Los Angeles, Cal. He was an honor student at Saranac Lake, N. Y., high school, where he was graduated in 1923. He then entered Bucknell, selecting the electric engineering course.

Mrs. Mathewson, widow of "Big Six" left her mother's home here today for Saranac Lake to look after some of her affairs. Until she has made a search of her home there, she said, she could not say whether Christy left a will.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 21.—(AP) — Captain Henry O. Biard, senior pilot of the British team, tonight characterized as "all rubbish" London reports from the Evening Standard that new Napier engines, secretly shipped to the United States were to be mounted tomorrow on the British entries for the Jacques Schneider trophy. No changes in engines have been made in the British planes since their arrival in this country, Captain Biard said, and the proximity of the race makes changes impossible, were any such contemplated.

Aside from the scrimmage general drill in football tactics filled the day's work. Slagle was given intensive drill in drop kicking, while Tom Dignan was kept mainly at throwing passes. Danny Caulkins who had been absent from the lineup until the day before the navy game, was in uniform. Jeff Rosengarten was put back in his old tackle position. The second team was unable to penetrate the varsity line.

MANY CLEAN SLATES WILL BE SMEARED AFTER SATURDAY'S FOOTBALL GAMES

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—(AP)—The ranks of unbeaten elevens, already well thinned in the east by early season upsets, will be depleted further by the time the smoke has lifted from this Saturday's gridiron battles.

Unless ties develop, at least four prominent teams will be added to the list for eight of the unbeaten outfits are arrived against each other in this week's schedule of conflicts.

Outstanding in this collection are Pennsylvania and Chicago, rivals for eastern and mid-western laurels, who come to grips in the leading intersectional encounter of the day on Franklin field. The Quakers, if they come forward as rapidly as they have in conquering Brown and Yale in the past two weeks, may upset the Chicagoans although the veteran Alonzo Stagg will bring an impressive defensive squad to Philadelphia. Although neither team has tasted defeat, Chicago has a tie with Ohio State on its record.

Washington and Jefferson will invade the Polo grounds for its annual battle with Lafayette in another skirmish between unbeaten outfits. The Presidents have a more imposing record while Lafayette has been tied once by Colgate, but the eastonians have a habit of springing upsets. They staged one for Pittsburgh's benefit a few weeks ago and may do so against W and J. in spite of injuries that have hit the squad.

Colgate and Princeton each has been tied once but they promise to put up a stirring battle in Palmer stadium to keep off the list of defeated combinations. The Tigers are the only "big three" team yet unbeaten. If they go down before Eddie Tryon and the Maroon attack, the East will have the novel spectacle of Harvard, Yale and Princeton trailing the pack in mid-season where as a usual thing one or all dominated the situation.

The Georgetown-Bucknell engagement at Washington involves two more undefeated combinations, with the former outfit favored to keep its string intact at the expense of "Uncle Charley" Moran's boys.

Among the other Eastern elevens that have not yet tasted defeat, Dartmouth and Carnegie appear to be facing the most danger. The Green invades Cambridge a favorite to conquer Harvard for the third straight year, but the Crimson fighting to regain lost prestige, may upset the Hanoverians, who have yet to get a real test. Carnegie defeated Pittsburgh last year but is not favored to repeat this victory.

Army, Syracuse, Boston College, New York University, Fordham, Holy Cross and Lehigh all appear likely to keep their unbeaten records intact, while Cornell runs no risks, having an idle Saturday this week in preparation for the contest with Columbia here on October 31. Gil Dobie's Ithacans, incidentally, share with Syracuse and Dartmouth the distinction of being the only outstanding teams whose goallines have not yet been crossed.

West Point is priming her formidable forces for a fourth successive intersectional triumph at the expense of St. Louis while Fordham also will seek an intersectional scalp by invading Ohio to meet Akron University.

Lehigh has the disappointing Rutgers outfit for its opposition, while Holy Cross and Boston College face minor opposition in Vermont and Allegheny, respectively. Syracuse should not be extended by Providence while Chick Meehan's unbeaten N. Y. U. eleven figures to take Middlebury's measure.

SOUTHERN TEAM WILL PLAY IN NORTH SATURDAY

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—(A. P.)—A tropical football team that plays against a background of southern palms, gets first taste of cold weather football Saturday in the inter-sectional game between Tulane and Northwestern in Chicago.

And the purple, which for years has met only Northern foes, has in prospect as its guest an eleven boasting among its members an intercollegiate golf champion in Fred Lamprecht and "Cajin" Lorrio, who spoke no English until he was 18 and who is started on trick plays by signals called in French. The entire Tulane team, except Flournoy and Plackedge, Mississippians, comes from the Louisiana Bayous where men live and die without seeing snow or frost.

Though the weather may be cold, the reception will be warm, if Coach Thistlethwaite's preparations mean anything. He is trying available substitutes for the injured "Moon" Baker's place in the backfield and may use either Gustafson or Edmunds.

What other games on Saturday's mid-west card may lack in the picturesque they make up in importance in their bearing on the western conference title race.

Confident Michigan, "Big Ten" leader, is polishing its effective strategy for the Illini, who, nettled by two defeats, are working strenuously to perfect more assistance for "Red" Grange.

Iowa is stressing kicking with "Cowboy" Nick Kutsch' toe bearing the brunt, in it rehearsals for Ohio state, which is worried over injuries to Jenkins, big tackle and several others.

The first stiff western opposition for Notre Dame is being marshaled at Minnesota.

Tom Hogan, end, and Henry Miorau guard, are back in Purdue's line for the Wisconsin game. The Badgers are improving their plunging attack. Chicago is set for its invasion of the east to meet Pennsylvania and India in tapering off its workouts for Miami.

CARNEGIE LOSES TWO PLAYERS BY INJURIES

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 21.—(A. P.)—Carnegie Tech's football supporters are downcast at the announcement that two of its star players will be unable to oppose the University of Pittsburgh eleven in the city championship contest which is to dedicate the new $2,000,000 Panther stadium Saturday.

Max Bastian, regular quarterback and star of the Skibo outfit along with Bennie Kristof, right end, will view the contest this week end from the bench. Bastian has a torn leg ligament and may not be able to don a uniform before the Notre Dame game at South Bend November 14. Kristof was injured in the Washington and Jefferson game last Saturday.

CELMARS WINS ON FOUL FROM TUCKER IN SECOND

NEW YORK, Oct. 21—(A. P.)—Joe Celmars, who recently held Babe Herman, to a draw decision, won from Andy Tucker of New York here tonight on a foul in the second round of a 12-round match. Celmars weighed 128 1-2, Tucker 134. The latter substituted for Tony Vaccarelli, who was stricken with appendicitis two days ago.

In the semi-final Ruby Goldstein, New York featherweight, scored a technical knockout over the veteran Earl Baird of Seattle in the first round of a six-round match.

TWO ENGINES SECRETLY SHIPPED FOR RACES

LONDON, Oct. 21.—(AP)—The Evening Standard reveals that two new Napier engines have been shipped secretly to the United States to be mounted tomorrow on the Gloster Napier planes, which will be piloted by British aviators in the race for the Schneider seaplane cup, at Baltimore October 24.

When the British fliers, Captain C. B. Wilson, Captain Henry Biard, Hubert Broad and Bert Hinckler sailed for the United States Sept. 26, it was reported that they had "something up their sleeves" for the Baltimore races, and the team was said to be the best equipped flying expedition that ever left England.

A speed of 226.753 miles an hour was attained with a Napier engine of 630 horsepower, but the new engines develop 700. The Napier company, the Evening Standard says, guarantees the machines to stand this terrific strain for twelve hours, which is an ample margin, as the race will take no more than six hour.

Lieutenant George T. Cuddihy, who will pilot one of the navy entries, familiarized himself with the course with a trial spin in the powerful Curtiss, which, equipped as land plane, won the Pulitzer trophy race at St. Louis in 1922. Finishing touches were being placed on the three American entries and they were not taken from their hangars.

The British entries, the monoplane Supermarine Napier S-4, and a biplane Gloster-Napier III, were trundled from their hangars for motor tests. The plant runways quivered as the Napier-Lion engines roared and strained at the lashings. No attempt was made to take the ships aloft. Captain Hubert Broad, who will pilot a Gloster-Napier III in the race, went over the course as a passenger in a United States navy seaplane.

RACING WILL BE RESUMED AT JUAREZ

EL PASO, Texas, Oct. 21—(A. P.)—Racing will be resmed this winter at the Juarez track which was closed in 1916, during the Mexican revolution.

Colonel Matt J. Winn, general manager of the Kentucky Jockey club one of the owners of the Juarez track, yesterday notified Fred Fenchler of the Jockey club, Juarez, that he had concluded arangements for a three year lease of the track to prominent and responsible eastern racing men. The lessees were said to be on their way here and plan to spend a large amount of money immediately in putting the track in shape with the view of starting racing as soon as possible.

The Juarez track was the fastest in the world and because of the mild winter weather broke all records for "weather fair, track fast" days.

"GOOSE" GOSLIN GETS A WALK—AUTO STOLEN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21—(A. P.)—"Goose" Goslin, slugging outfielder of the Washington senators, gets his "walks" out of season as well as in. His automobile was stolen last night.

The "Goose" was calling on Miss Helen Gould Sweeney, "Miss Washington" of 1924, whose name and that of the "Galloping Goose" have been linked as possible batteries in matrimony. He parked his car in front of the house, and later when he discovered its absence, the "Goose" grumbled a far different grumble than when he gets a walk in a ball game. The car was recovered a few hours later.

GREENEVILLE TIGERS TO PLAY AT JEWETT CITY SUNDAY

Sunday afternoon at Ashland Park, Jewett City, the Jewett City Speedboys will open their home season when they line-up against the fast Greeneville Tigers in what should be an interesting contest from start to finish. The grounds have been put in first-class condition so that everything should be in A-1 shape for Sunday's game.

In the first meeting between these clubs two weeks ago Sunday at Mohegan Park the Tigers emerged the victor after a hard tussle by the score of 6 to 0. All the breaks were against the Jewett City aggregation, many people thinking that they should have won. Sunday the Speed-boys will be out to avenge this defeat, having signed up many new men, among whom are one from U. A. C., two from Plainfield High and one or two local Jewett City star amateur gridiron players. While the Greeneville line-up has not been announced Jewett City will pick their lineup from the following players: Cobb, Davis, Eichelberg, Mondor, Smith, J. Barry, E. Barry, Parkhurst, Sawicki, Jones, Murphy, O'Brien and McCaffery

Pittsburgh Drops Baseball

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 21—(A. P.)—Baseball has been dropped from the athletic curriculum of the University of Pittsburgh, according to announcement made by graduate manager of athletics K. E. Davis. Inability to complete a schedule and the fact that the weather is usually unfavorable in Pittsburgh during the period which the games must be played, was given as the reason for dropping the sport.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

Yale's football chief leaders have been trained well and they can quell uprisings as well as bring them forth. All through Saturday's game with the Pennsylvania the Blue's professors of noise refused to allow a mouth to open when their team gained a first down on a penalty. Perhaps the time will come when baseball enthusiasm will remain pent up while the home team score a run on an error.

Washington—First in peace, first in war, second in baseball.

The Mohardt who is playing in the Amherst backfield this season is a brother of Johnny of Notre Dame fame.

Knute Rockne, Notre Dame coach is credited with the assertion that the Army is the best since the war.

New York's boxing commission has decided that hereafter when a boxer is knocked out of a ring he will be counted out unless he climbs back of his own free will. In case he is aided by those at the ringside he will be disqualified.

"Call them the Ben Franklins," said an enthusiast in the press box during that Pennsylvania victory Saturday "They've got a kite in the air. Watch the lightning."

John Gully, the champion pugilist of England, became speaker of the House of Commons and continued as such for thirty years.

Harry Person, six-foot slugging stone cutter from Sweden is the latest foreign envoy to the American congress of crash. Harry, who has never been knocked out, is joining the pugilistic forces of Tex Rickard next year. "He may be another Firpo," says Tex.

Only box seats, and comparatively few of them, are left for the Army-Navy game in New York. The Harvard stadium has been sold out for the Harvard-Dartmouth contest. All Yale Bowl seats for the Army-Yale contest have been disposed of. Football needs more room.

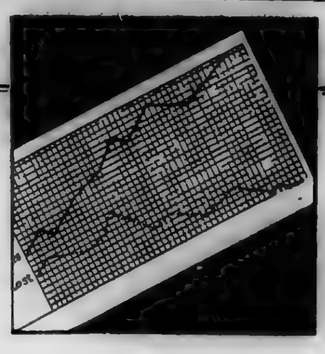
A municipal football coach, hired by the department of recreation to coach sandlot elevens, is an innovation in Kenosha, Wis. Herb Steger, former university of Michigan star, now assistant coach at Northwestern university, has been hired as city gridiron coach.

Irish Levy, Tulane guard, playing his fourth season with the Louisiana team, is famous in southern gridiron annals as the man who cannot play until he has rolled the sleeves of his jersey above his elbows. Another star on the team is Shorty Norman, 5 feet tall and weighing 128 pounds, who is the smallest halfback in big conference football.

Twenty-one years ago Miss Georgianna Bishop of the Brooklawn Country club at Bridgeport, Conn., won the national women's golf championship played over the Merion course. Yesterday she came from the national women's senior competition at Westchester, Baltimore, with another title, one has to be over 45 years old to play in the seniors.

Commissioner Landis, who favors an earlier World series has good reason. He sat through more than an hour of downpour on the day at Pittsburgh and the next afternoon bore up under several hours of it. His chair was in a box well out from the protection of the grandstand roof.

Harry Greb of Pittsburgh, middleweight boxing champion, is reported eager to lock with the Welter champion, Mickey Walker, once again. Greb, it seems, intends thereby to deal a blow to Jack Kearns, manager of Walker, for remarks that Kearns is said to have made regarding Walkers poor condition on the night that Greb mauled him about the Polo Grounds ring. The bout, if any, will be staged in the new Garden this winter.



The key to greater profits

INCREASED sales volume at decreased sales cost inevitably yields greater unit returns.

That is a truism. The aim of every efficiently managed business is to bring this about.

The question is how.

Any program which will enable manufacturer, jobber, wholesaler, to visit his trade more often will bring more orders. But selling cost, in time and travel, must be kept down.

Toll telephone service meets these requirements.

Sales managers, here in Connecticut and throughout the Nation, have found that by means of toll telephone calls their salesmen can keep in frequent contact with their customers, secure their staple orders, and suggest special offerings for which they can create a maket.

Personal contact with the customer is maintained while sales cost is kept low.

WESTERLY

Records on file at the office of the Westerly town clerk show that on Oct. 20th, Louis Leone and wife, Margaret Alice Leone sold to George Valentine Smith and wife, Eugenie Hand Smith of Philadelphia, Pa., a parcel of land with buildings to them as joint tenants and not tenants in common, at Watch Hill, bounded south by the ocean east by land of John W. Anderson, north by the highway and partly by land of C. A. Griscom and west partly by land of Griscom and the Watch Hill Bathing Beach association.

On Tuesday the condition of Mrs. Charles Devaney, of Mechanic street, Pawcatuck, who was taken to Lawrence hospital in New London a week ago and who was operated upon last Saturday, was reported as more comfortable.

Simon P. Nichols has been seriously ill with pneumonia at his home on the Potter Hill road during the past week.

All records for attendance were broken Tuesday evening at the Community House of the Lorraine Community association, when the second anniversary celebration was held of the opening of the building on Mechanic street, Pawcatuck, the gift of the Lorraine Manufacturing association to their Westerly employes and friends. A formal speaking program at which Alfonse Dubuc presided was followed by an entertainment by Boston stars, lasting from 8:30 to 10:30. Dancing with music by the Mohican orchestra of New London, followed until 12:30. On the speaking program were Stuart D. Fisher superintendent of the Westerly branch, Robert E. Steere of Pawcatuck, a former superintendent of the Westerly branch and now general superintendent of cotton; Chancey Lovering, president of the Employes' Welfare association of Pawtucket and Stanley Emery of the main Pawtucket office. The entertainers were Marion Babette Wilkins, reader and the Garden City trio. The committee of arrangements consisted of Grace Smith Fred Morey, Miles Brennan, Jennie Kerr, Margaret Fishwick and Harold Jones. Attractive decorations of autumn and Hallowe'en favors were used in the assembly hall.

Westerly Zoning Board held a special meeting in the council chambers of the Westerly town hall Tuesday evening to act on the petition of Bessie M. Fancher for permission to erect a six-car garage on Franklin street, three to be commercial cars and to conduct a service business, in residential district C. There appearing no objectors she was granted a five-year temporary permit.

Strenuous objection in the form of a counter-petition was read to the application of Fred O. Lanphear Co. for permission to erect and maintain an automobile service station and salesroom in residential district C on the northerly side of Newton avenue at the junction of Park and Newton avenues. As a result, G. B. Langworthy, of the Lanphear company withdrew his petition, when he learned that the board was not going to act on the petition. Attorney Ferguson of the board explained that in contrast with the Fancher petition, which was granted temporarily on the basis that the outlying district was not yet built up, in the case of the Newton avenue location, a built-up area, it was going further by adding to business already conducted there and action could be taken only if "for a less restricted use." Mr. Langworthy withdrew his petition and the zoning board voted acceptance of his withdrawal. Signers of the petition were William C. Smith and wife, 4 Park avenue, John C. Anderson and wife, Henry R. Segar, William Williams and wife, George Smith, Anna Thornton Williams, E. B. Sharp, J. E. Wilbur, John Stillman, William Grant and Antonio Antonari. Mr. Langworth said there was nothing he could say about his petition outside of what was stated in it. Chairman Perry stated that it was clearly in a residential section, as had been passed by a vote of the Westerly town council when the ordinance was adopted.

Archie Meikle, speaking for the Westerly Sanitary corps, of which there were also present William Crandall and Charles Davey, wished to know in the proposed erection of a building for housing their ambulance and the creation of a drill shed 82x60 feet, in a wooden building on the Main street property owned by them, where their front line would be placed. He learned that it would be 30 feet from the center line of Main street, which would place the front of the building about 8 feet to the rear of the present line of buildings there. The Sanitary committee stated that they appeared before the zoning body as a feeler, to know what the board's action would be when a building permit should be asked for by them.

Up to noon Wednesday about 2000 taxpayers had paid their assessments for this year, it was announced at the collector's office in the town hall.

There are still about 2900 more on the books, but there are still ten more days left for them to meet their obligations. After Oct. 31, interest on the levies will be charged at the rate of 12 per cent.

Wednesday, the second day of the state convention of the W. C. T. U. in Grace Methodist Episcopal church there was but one change in the re-election of officers. The slate for the year follows: President, Mrs. Ethelyn B. Roberts, Providence; vice president at large Mrs. J. J. Hall, Providence; recording secretary, Mrs. J. C. Barber, Providence, corresponding secretary, Mrs. Mary E. Olney, North Providence; treasurer, Miss Lena W. Sparks, Providence. Miss Sparks succeeds Mrs. Eva H. Smith of Washington, whose ill health has forced her to relinquish the office of state treasurer after serving 20 years.

Miss Ruth Barton of Centerville, representing the Young People's branch and Mrs. Henry E. King of Providence, were appointed delegates from Rhode Island to the national W. C. T. U. convention to be held in Detroit, Mich., Nov. 11 to 18.

The morning session opened with a devotional service led by Mrs. Annetta Buck of Central falls, president of Blackstone Valley District W. C. T. U. After the election and presentation of reports by committees, a memorial service for members of the Rhode Island W. C. T. U. was held. During this impressive ceremony, in charge of Mrs Mary Tefft of Providence, a white ribbon representing each deceased member was pinned upon a large memorial wreath, ribbons also were placed in memory of William Jennings Bryan and Mrs. G. B. Cook, of Vinton, Ia., prominent W. C. T. U. worker, who was shot and killed Sept. 7 by an unknown assailant generally believed to to connected with the illegal liquor interests against which she had battled.

A pageant, The Welfare of Progress was presented in connection with the afternoon's session, which opened with a song service, reading of the W. C. T. U. declaration of principles and a devotional service. Members of the Westerly women's clubs and church societies were invited to attend the program, which was based on the subject of women's work at home and abroad.

The trial of the Serra-Falcone case for alleged assault, in which two cases with the same parties are being heard as one, before Associate Justice Antonio A. Capotosto in the Westerly session of superior court for Washington county, will come to a close this (Thursday) morning when the jury will be charged.

Annunziata Serra and Mary A. Serra are one and the same person, as is also the case with Gabriele Falcone and Angelina G. Falcone. The women brought cross suits as the result of a fistic battle they engaged in at Servidio's store on Pierce street, on the morning of Dec. 12, 1924. Both claimed to have received injuries in the battle and each is now suing the other for damages.

The case was opened yesterday morning, and after Attorney John J. Dunn had called his two witnesses for Mrs. Serra, the Falcone side of the argument was heard in the afternoon. Attorneys Charles L. Stewart of Norwich and John F. Gallagher of Westerly summoned the following witnesses: John Terranova, Charles Royster, Peter Sacco, Lucy DeBartolo, Beatrice Gencarella and Angelina Falcone.

Argetina Falcone, defendant in one suit and plaintiff in the other, was again on the stand Wednesday morning to tell her version of the affair. After she was heard, Attorney Dunn brought in Charles Serra and Michael Serra as rebuttal witnesses.

Wednesday afternoon when court convened at 2 o'clock, the other attorneys put several rebuttal witnesses on the stand.

There was a slight flurry in the courtroom today when Mrs. Serra, the plaintiff in one case and defendant in another, suffered an attack of hysterics when her daughter was testifying. She had to be carried from the room.

Under direction of Adjutant Walter Thorp, of Merrill post, American Legion, a meeting was held in the legion rooms Wednesday evening to which had been invited representatives of Harley P. Chase post, Veterans of Foreign Wars and the British-American Colonial veterans. Plans were made for an observance of Armistice day with a street parade, to be followed by an Armistice night ball in Westerly town hall.

For the Armistice day observance it is planned to hold a street parade in Westerly. Besides the American Legion, World War Veterans and British-Canadian Veterans other patriotic Westerly organizations will be invited to participate. Following the parade arrangements are to be perfected to have a presentation of two American flags and a flagpole to the Westerly hospital, the gift of Harold W. Merrill post, No. 16, American Legion. A committee consisting of Rogers Trainer, Elvin Byers and William Clachrie, representatives from the three bodies will interview Wilcox park trustees, to see if the presentation ceremonies can be made in the park. John Sullivan was made a committee of one to interview Capt. John Datson, of Governor Pothier's staff to secure a speaker for the exercises. Following the ceremonies the British-Canadian Veterans will have a family party and in the evening the American Legion will hold an Armistice ball.

The meeting Wednesday night was held with George Kemp, chairman, for the observance committee. Lawrence Rooke, secretary and John W. Whitaker, assistant secretary. It was voted to extend an invitation to the Westerly and Moore's bands to parade; and announcement was made that the Westerly Kilty band was to parade with the British-Canadian Veterans. Action was taken looking forward to making a permanent Armistice day observance committee. It was agreed that the organization which had the right of line was to call the next year's committee to assemble and make arrangements for the day's observance. This year the British-Canadian Veterans were chosen for the right of line, the American Legion for the left and Harley P. Chase post, veterans of Foreign Wars, for the middle. A committee is to take up with the Westerly Chamber of Commerce the declaring of a holiday with the closing of stores and places of business. It was left for the British-Canadian Veterans to name a marshal for the parade from their membership.

There was an attendance of 20 at Wednesday night's meeting. The second is to be held a week later. The American Legion members of the committee are: John Sullivan, John Smith, James Reale, Frank Macomber and James Donahue. The time of parade and the line of march will be decided upon at the next meeting.

Richard J. Rooney was recently appointed an aide to represent Amos P. Chapman post, Sons of Veterans, on the staff of Commander W. E. Comrie of the department of Rhode Island, G. A. R. Mr. Rooney is treasurer of the local post.

Mr. Rooney's military service dates back to 1882, when he enlisted in Company B, Third Connecticut National Guard, and served five years, being made a non-commissioned officer in 1886. Re-inlistments followed in 1887, '89, '91 and '93. He was appointed sergeant in 1887 and quartermaster sergeant with discharge for non-residence in Connecticut in 1894. He re-enlisted in Company C, Third regiment, home guard, serving two years, and was appointed corporal, later being promoted to supply sergeant. He re-enlisted for two years in 1919, when the organization became Company F, Connecticut state guard, but was mustered out that same year. Mr. Rooney as an active worker in Amos P. Chapman post, was instrumental in having the two brass field pieces placed on a cement foundation west of the railroad station last spring.

WESTERLY, R. I., Oct. 21.—Angelo Patti, 35, a shoe repairer or 28 Mechanic street, was thought to have taken a dose of rough-on-rats and arsenic preparation about 6 o'clock Wednesday night. This was not learned for certain until after 7 o'clock, when Patrolman Vernon A. Burdick visited the home where Patti resided with his second wife and five children, the oldest child being about 12. The officer found a glass and the empty package and upon questioning the man learned that he had taken poison. Patti said that he wanted to die, if he didn't then, he would later. Drs. William A. Daniel O'Keefe of Stafford Hollow pleaded guilty in the borough court Monday morning to the charge of parking his automobile on the left side of the road. He paid a fine of $1 and costs amounting in all to $12.76. Another car driven by Emil Pequette turned out to pass O'Keefe's car and in doing so collided with a car operated by Police peso. State Policeman Abild investigated the matter and claimed that the parking of O'Keefe's car on the left-side of the road caused the accident. The cars of Peso and Pequette were considerably damaged, but there were no personal injuries.

constituting that created thing, and transforms them for the common good. Then it becomes a unity of moral responsibility. Here we are this night a unity of individuals. We are brought together by certain circumstances. These create our unity at this precise moment. But that unity is merely mechanical, unless the individuals so comprising it work together for a moral purpose. Then your mechanical unity is changed into a moral responsibility.

Whenever such transformed unity has not been achieved, you have a divisive individualism. Men and women go their peculiar ways without adjusting themselves to the goal of a common purpose. That phenomenon is all too frequent, not only in our own community, but also in our entire social order. One of the most pitiful things in the world is this fact: that men, constituted by circumstance as the repository of some fortune, do not relate that fortune to another, and make the two combined work for the common welfare. Whenever they do not do that, they remain divisive individuals. Many extract wealth from the community, and do not let it cooperate with the wealth of others; they have not turned it back. We see a man successful in his individual business. Now you and I are not so foolish as to believe, are we, that success in an individual business necessarily means good citizenship? We have seen men successful in some profession. We are not so foolish, are we, as to believe that success in some particular profession necessarily means good citizenship? I would not decry the ability a man shows in this or that field; he may in that particular field display the power of the Almighty working through him. I am saying this, however: regardless of his success in an individual field, if that success does not stand side by side with the success of another man in a contiguous field for the sake of the community in which he lives, that individual man becomes a divisive set and unrelated hobby, the man who cannot play the game together with others, the man who, having strength and ability, withdraws from force in his city. The man with a common duties, the man who will not meet the dream of another man with the dream of his own, for the sake of a combined vision both may see, —those men are examples of a divisive individualism. They create chasms which can scarcely be bridged. They remain mechanical, when they might become moral, in the unity of a city's life.

Interlocked Relationships

There is another element of weakness in our community life. It is that of interlocked relationships. Now, there was a governmental decree, a few years ago, that was supposed to remove for all time such a phenomenon as the interlocking directorate. You business men and women know far better than I, whether the decree has been successful. Every single instance of an interlocking directorate is but representative of the human and ancient habit of interlocking relationships. This group of men, or that band of ladies, get hold of one thing and then another thing and still another thing, until your whole social system is locked so fast that it cannot be broken into, nor will it yeld of itself. Of course, every minister who goes into a new field recognizes immediately the fact of the interlocked relationships within his parish, because presently he is made aware that Mr K has his wife', brother-in-in-w. living off in the far corner of the parish, and the minister never suspected the relationship until too late. Or Mrs. W has a sister whose name is Mrs. J., and Mrs. J did not look at all like Mrs W. Many and many a pitiful and humorous mistake has been made by the minister, when he was not on his guard in remembering the fact of the interlocked relationships.

If we were to take a census tonight here of the individuals interested in by actual ownership or directorship, a number of our Norwich institutions, we would probably find the evidences for the existence in our own midst of the interlocked relationships. I am not attacking the benefits of such a system. The benefits have been and are many. I am asking that we likewise recognize the glaring defects in it. Feudalism had its benefits; but it likewise had grave and disastrous defects; and the interlocked control of institutions, in our present American life, in our American democracy, is the direct descendant of that feudalism. It is the gathering of the interests in public institutions, in government, in charity, in education, into the hands of a small group of able men and women. Now you may sit there and say that this shows strength. I will agree with you. It does. But I would like to call to your attention the fact that it shows weakness. It shows the weakness of distrust. It shows the weakness of lack of faith in democracy. It shows the weakness of unwillingness to spread out the ability of being responsible. It shows the weakness of the failure to call out of the normal man and woman on the street the resident abilities in them. These are facts of weakness. And they are evident in our community life. I ask you to face them.

Elements of Strength

Now, the picture is not wholly black. Vision goes back into the ground-soil of our weaknesses. But it also goes back into the ground-soil of our strength. Every dream touches negligible things, and every dream vivifies constructive things. Let us, therefore, see some o ourf elements of strength.

We should never forget our strength in personal powers. When I first outlined this speech, I thought of putting it down as "strength in man-power," but that was too generic a term and too easily misunderstood. Then I thought of "strength of human power" but that was too broad, and I wanted to be more specific. So I put down "strength in personal powers," meaning strength in the powers of the persons now living here. The giants of the past are dead, but how gigantic has become the common man! A governor lived here once, but there are many persons in this city able to govern. Leaders of industry had their residences here once upon a time; but there are living here now men who are able to see and to manage, to control, to direct the present industrial life of the city. It is an astonishing thing, again and again, to meet a man who reveals something that we never suspected existed in him. We ask him to do something. He does it. We say to him, "I never knew it was in you." The personal powers in this community are just as great, just as strong, just as capable, just as ingenious and creative, if you will only hunt them out, tap the resources of personal powers that are here. If you will take the minds of the community and challenge them, call them out to work and construct for operations that you have held in too few hands too long, you will be made alive by the responses they make. Strength here, enough to carry forward a dream and make it come true! Strength here in men and women and children, to renew the belief in giants, who will anew shoulder the responsibilities of the common good.

Economic Stability

Another element of strength is our economic stability. Have you not been proud of the fact that Norwich was the last to feel the effects of the recent period of depression? That has been your boast. Do you not claim today that we are now coming back? Our bankers, our merchants, our manufacturers, are saying it. The mills are beginning to drive again, getting into full time. Has there ever been any financial drive that failed? Has there recently been any project in the community that has not enlisted adequate support? On every occasion you have digged down into your economic strength. We have no great problems of widespread poverty, nor do we have outstanding examples of inordinate wealth. Our common economic life is sound, clear, strong, stable. On such a basis, action should be forward looking.

Beauty of Location

We are strong in personal powers, strong in economic stability. We are likewise strong in the configurations of our land. Why should we forget that? The beauty of our situation, its unusualness, its uniqueness, situated on our seven hills! Here we can receive the gifts from other towns and cities, and hence you can send out easily your products and your influence. Where there is a section that seems commonplace, you begin to transform it into an uncommon lustre. Where something was dormant, you plant new life. Your dwelling-place is lovely, your strength in that is sure. Remember the words of the prophet "There shall come a day when the mountain of the Lord's house shall be lifted up above the mountains, and all nations shall flow unto it and call it holy." Even this night the governor from Hartford and the state treasurer from New London come to Norwich. Something of beauty here we should never forget, and element of our strength.

These, then, are the elements of weakness and strength in which our vision is grounded. A question remains: Are there any actual deeds starting from such a vision, thus grounded which help in making the vision come true?

The Spirit of Work

I would like you to take the printed record of the deeds of the Chamber of Commerce, and read it, not as a cold hard statement of cold, hard facts. It is an indication of a spirit at work. A little while ago, Studdert Kennedy produced a volume, entitled, "The Wicket Gate." He relates the event on a dark stormy night, when, walking down the street, he bumped into the lamp post, and exclaimed, "My God!" Then he looked up at it and said "That's just what it is—my God." Something was at work in the lighting of the city, at work with the darkness, at work with the gloom, and instead of a shadow had come a great illumination. The work in the city was the work of God. Ladies and gentlemen, it is my firm belief that the things done for the common good are the things of God, the work of a spirit that hallows commonplace drudgery, organized business, the gutter, the bench, the school, the home. These are the works of the Almight. In that printed record of work done, you read between the lines, and see your representatives sitting in counsel week after week, attempting to interpret your vision. You who have dreamt of a new school house, of new lights, of deepened waterways, of finer sanitation; you who have felt the call of little children for finer educational environment; you who have desired to have government become more efficient; you who have wanted transportation to take your products with greater safety and speed; boats going up and down the river with exchanges; you have been dreaming your visions of a new orderliness to take the place of old disorders. Of course you have had opposition and misunderstanding, obstacles in your way, withdrawals from your fellowship. But you have kept your visions, and have continued fighting for them. That is the spirit in which we have met tonight. I bid you Godspeed, with courage to look at your vision, to know the facts of your weakness and your strength, and to keep on with the effort to make the vision come true. The city has long been loved. You love it now. Keep on making it great.

Why Quaker Oats "stands by" you through the morning ending premature fatigue

DO you feel tired, nervous, hungry, hours before lunch?

Don't jump to the conclusion of poor health. Almost 90% of the time you'll find it's premature fatigue, brought on largely by an ill-balanced breakfast ration. Thousands have "draggy" mornings for that reason.

To feel right, you must have well-balanced, complete food. You can't deceive nature into accepting breakfasts that lack even a single element toward correct food balance.

That is why Quaker Oats is so widely urged today. It is almost a perfectly balanced dish.

Contains 16% protein, food's great tissue builder; 58% carbohydrate, the great energy element; is rich in minerals, and in vitamines. Supplies the "bulk" your diet needs to make laxatives seldom necessary.

Few foods have its remarkable "balance." That is why it stands by you through the morning.

2 Kinds — The Quaker Oats you have always known and Quick Quaker Oats—Cooks in 3 to 5 minutes.

GREECE HAS DEMANDED INDEMNITY FROM BULGARIA

ATHENS, Oct. 21—(A. P.)—Greece has demanded an indemnity of 2,000,000 French francs gold from Bulgaria for what Greece contends was an unprovoked attack on Greek soldiers on the frontier near Demirhissar. Other demands are set forth, such as an apology and punishment of the responsible Bulgarian officers, in an ultimatum sent to the Bulgarian government, fixing, it is reported, a time limit of forty-eight hours.

Premier Pangalos declared tonight that Greek troops have not entered Bulgarian territory, but have been stationed along the frontier. The initiative for additional military measures, he added, was left to the general commanding the third army corps with headquarters at Saloniki.

A man may work for all he is worth and yet not work a great deal.

WOULD PRESERVE RESOURCES FOR FUTURE GENERATIONS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—(AP) — Recommendations for a broad conservation policy covering the nation's natural resources, were made by Secretary Work tonight in a survey of the year's work of the interior department.

This policy, he said, should not be based upon the idea of hermetically sealing the nation's resources to preserve them for future generations, but upon the common sense plan of using what is needed, but eliminating waste.

The secretary further recommended co-ordination of all Alaskan activities in one bureau under one cabinet officer in the interest of economy.

INSPECTION FLIGHT HAS BEEN POSTPONED TILL NOV. 7

WATERBURY, Oct. 21—Major Gus Parsons, general manager of the Colonial Air Lines, Inc., air mail contractors, announced tonight from Boston, that the inspection flight over the route, originally scheduled for Saturday, has been postponed until November 7. It is understood that suitable arrangements could not be made at the Boston airport.

HAS BEEN USING UNFAIR METHODS OF COMPETITION

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—(AP) — Harriet Hubbard Ayer, Inc., of New York city, described as the third largest manufacturer of cosmetics in the United States, with 8,000 customers, principally retail merchants, was ordered by the federal trade commission today to discontinue certain business practices involving the fixing of resale prices as constituting unfair methods of competition.

NAVAL SEAPLANE FELL INTO DORCHESTER BAY

BOSTON, Oct. 21.—(AP)—A seaplane from the naval air base Squantum with two ensigns aboard fell into Dorchester Bay and capsized late today. The ensigns, G. W. Von Colln of Wollaston, and H. W. Wicker of Winthrop, escaped injury and the plane was little damaged. It was taken in tow by a coast guard boat and was beached.

DUNKIRK, N. Y., CUT OFF BY SNOW AND HIGH WIND

DUNKIRK, N. Y., Oct. 21.—(AP) — Dunkirk was without outside communication by telephone or telegraph during last night and part of today. The fall of wet snow followed by a high wind caused havoc, poles were blown down, trees sighted to the ground and in places were broken by the strain.

SUMMARY OF YESTERDAY'S EVENTS IN WASHINGTON

Treasury officials foresaw a long series of exchanges on the French debt.

American destroyers were ordered in readiness to protect Americans in Syria.

The house ways and means committee heard another long list of witnesses on taxes.

TO WORK WITH TACNA-ARICA PLEBISCITARY COMMISSION

SANTIAGO, Chile, Oct. 21.—(AP)—The government has officially invited former President Alessandri to go to Arica and co-operate there with the Tacna-Arica plebiscitary commission. Senor Alessandri resigned the presidency October 1.

A get-rich-quick scheme whereby Indians on a reservation at Griswold, Manitoba, collected municipal bounty on wolf ears manufactured from skins of wolf cubs was discovered this summer by municipal officers. To collect bounties on wolves slain, the animal's ears must be turned in. The redskins received bounty on the artificial ears for some time before officers discovered the ruse. Three men and a squaw pleaded guilty and were warned with a year's suspended sentence.

Nerves On Edge? —Look Out For Chronic Fatigue

When a man or woman is continually cross and irritable, easily upset by trifles, jumps at unexpected noises, complains and criticises unjustly, worries about every little thing, and is always tired, weak and ailing—it is almost a sure sign they are suffering from nerve force exhaustion, due to chronic fatigue.

Don't confuse chronic fatigue with the ordinary fatigue—the kind of "healthy tired" you feel after a long hike or any vigorous exertion. Ordinary fatigue is perfectly natural, and nothing to worry about. But chronic fatigue—the serious kind—comes from within. Your nerves and all your body tissues have become debilitated and cannot function properly.

In such cases it is simply foolish to take mere stimulating nerve tonics and drugs which merely whip up the fagged nerves temporarily. To conquer chronic fatigue you must go to the root of the trouble.

Your nerves and all your body tissues get their nourishment from the blood. Doctors have found that it is almost invariably when the blood is thin and pale, lacking in sufficient strength-giving organic iron, that the system—especially the nervous system—becomes run-down, and you are a victim of that fearful tired feeling, weakness, nervousness, dizziness, poor appetite, headaches, sleeplessness, and numerous other tortures, both physical and mental. This condition, if not corrected, may easily lead to far worse.

What you need is to strengthen and build up your exhausted nerve cells, incidentally rebuilding your entire system, by getting more organic iron into your blood. Don't take the mineral iron medicines used in the past, which many doctors now say do little good. Take organic iron—Nuxated Iron—which is like the organic iron in the blood, and like that in spinach and lentils. Nuxated Iron is entirely different from the older mineral iron medicines—does not injure the teeth or disturb the stomach. It is promptly assimilated into the blood and begins at once to revitalize worn-out nerves, muscles and organs, and give you new strength and endurance.

Take Nuxated Iron for just two weeks, and you'll be astonished how much stronger and better you feel, how your disposition improves, and life becomes a pleasure instead of a constant series of irritations. Results are guaranteed or money refunded. At all good druggists.

Peter Gets Better Acquainted

When you have nothing else to do
Go search for something that is new.
Peter Rabbit.

Peter Rabbit was greatly delighted with his new acquaintance, Ruddy the Red-backed Mouse, living in the Green Forest. He was delighted for the reason that he is always delighted when he learns something new and it was news to him that there was such a small person as Ruddy the Red-backed Mouse cousin to Danny Meadow Mouse. So, having made this new acquaintance, Peter spent considerable time in that part of the Green Forest where he had found Ruddy. He didn't always find Ruddy when he wanted to out on the Green Meadows. The truth is, to be exact, Ruddy usually found Peter instead of Peter finding Ruddy. Peter would go over there and just sit around until he would hear a squeaky little voice say, "Hello Peter Rabbit." Then for a while Peter would gossip. You know he dearly loves to gossip.

"Do you have a lot of private little paths like your cousin, Danny Meadow Mouse" asked Peter.

"Why do you ask?" inquired Ruddy suspiciously.

"Oh, for nothing in particular," replied Peter. "I just wondered, that's all. Over on the Green Meadows I am forever finding Danny's private little paths. But here I have not found any paths that I thought were yours."

Ruddy grinned. "I'm glad to know it," said he. "Of course I have a few little paths but they're mostly hidden where you wouldn't see them. You see here in the Green Forest I don't have to run in paths as Danny Meadow Mouse does in the grass. He has to cut paths through that grass because it grows so close. Here I can run anyway. I have lived where it was damp and moss grew very thick and there I had little paths. I couldn't help it. But paths are very likely to get you into trouble."

"Speaking of home, I must get right back there now. Good by, Peter"

"They don't me," declared Peter. "They get me out of trouble. If it hadn't been for the little paths I have cut all through the dear old Briar-patch, I would have been caught and eaten more than once."

Ruddy began to chuckle. He chuckled and chucked. It was a funny, squeaky little chuckle. "What are you laughing at?" demanded Peter.

"I was just wondering how any one could be eaten more than once," said Ruddy.

Peter wobbled his wobbly little nose at Ruddy. "You know what I meant," said he. "You know that I meant that there's been more than one time when those little paths have saved my life."

"That because you live in such a tangle that you have to have little paths through it in order to move quickly. Now I don't. If I had little paths they would be likely to lead some enemy right straight to my house," said Ruddy.

"That reminds me," exclaimed Peter. "Where is your house? I've been wondering about that for some time."

Again Ruddy chuckled that funny little chuckle of his. "A lot of people have wondered about that very same thing and are still wondering," said he. "I'm afraid you'll have to wonder with the rest of them unless you are smart enough to find it. If you can find it I'll be glad to have you make a call on Mrs. Ruddy and myself. Speaking of home, I must get right back there now. Good by Peter."

Gas in the Stomach is Dangerous

Recommends Daily Use of Magnesia to Overcome Trouble Caused by Fermenting Food and Acid Indigestion.

Gas and wind in the stomach accompanied by that full, bloated feeling after eating are almost certain evidence of the presence of excessive hydrochloric acid in the stomach, creating so-called "acid indigestion."

Acid stomachs are dangerous because too much acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach, often leading to gastritis accompanied by serious stomach ulcers. Food ferments and sours, creating the distressing gas which distends the stomach and hampers the normal functions of the vital internal organs, often affecting the heart.

It is the worst of folly to neglect such a serious condition or to treat it with ordinary digestive aids which have no neutralizing effect on the stomach acids. Instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This will drive the gas, wind and bloat right out of the body, sweeten the stomach, neutralize the excess acid and prevent its formation and there is no sourness or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and the best form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

INDIAN'S WHIPPING TREE AND CAPITOL STILL SERVE

OKMULGEE, Okla., Oct. 22 (AP)—The ancient whipping tree and the old capitol of a vanished Indian nation still are doing service in this city.

In the heart of Okmulgee stands the council house of the Creek nation, erected in 1878. The Y. M. C. A. and the Chamber of Commerce have their headquarters in the building, and a bus line uses one corner for an office.

The building and its grounds occupy a block in the center of the business district. Among the numerous trees on the grounds are two where executions and the legal whippings took place.

The Creeks had no jails. They had only two methods of punishment—whipping and shooting. The punishment for robbery, for instance, was 50 lashes for the first offense, 100 lashes for the second, and death for the third. In cases of execution, the condemned Indian was tied to the tree and shot. Damage suits were settled in cash, work or 50 lashes on the bare back.

The council house is a two-story building of native sandstone. On the first floor were the departments of government on the second the legislative halls.

The Creeks were one of the five civilized tribes moved by the government from the southeastern part of the United States to this territory about 1830. They established here a complete system of government, similar to the American republic, but with much simpler forms.

Their legislature was composed of the House of Kings (Senate) and the House of Warriors. The head of the state was the principal chief, elected for four years by a majority vote of the males of the nation. His assistant was the second chief elected in the same manner.

There was a high court and a district court, each district having a prosecuting attorney, a judge, and a company of light horsemen, which were in the nature of mounted police.

The council house belongs to the city of Okmulgee. Efforts are now being made among the remaining Indians to move the building to a national Indian park planned near here.

SINGLE MAN WANTED IN CITY JOB IS DESIRED BY MARRIED MAN

BRADFORD, Eng., Oct. 22. (AP)—The city officers have enacted a law prohibiting an unmarried man from holding a municipal job when there is a married man looking for it.

The Bradford councillors could not understand why there should be any unmarried men inasmuch as reports show that there are almost twice as many maidens in the city as bachelors.

The city medical officer replied that the precarious condition of the wool trade, which is the chief industry of the city, is responsible for many of the local young men shunning marriage.

POETRY

The Crossroads

Here I am at The Crossroads,
Watching the world whirl by;
Caught in a traffic bedlam,
Dizzying soul and eye.
Shrieks of policeman-whistles,
Flashes of "Stop" and "Go";
Motors and feet entangled—
God pity feet grown slow!

Try as I will to hurry,
Speed seems my greatest lack;
Dreams of the past deter me—
Always holding me back.

Yes, I well knew The Crossroads
Back in the years agone;
Hours then were not mere moments,
Dark did not crowd the dawn.

Folks then were folks, I'll tell you,
Neighborly—never a doubt—
Teamsters mired at The Crossroads
Knew they would be pulled out!

Men had pride in their horses,
Loved them with human zeal;
Horses have souls within them—
Not that cold iron and steel.

What's that you say, Lieutenant?
Your traffic sign says "Go!"
Ain't horsemen-eyes deceiving?—
I thought you signaled "Whoa!"

—By William Herschell in Indianapolis News.

His Majesty

I'm king of the road, I gather
My toll on the world's highways.
They pave the street for my royal feet,
And the man in the wagon pays.
With my sturdy back I laugh at wheels;
I hurry at no man's will.
For the rich who ride my meat provide,
They must feed the king to his fill.

I'm the king of the road! Before me
My way lies over the land,
With a wild rose train from meadow and lane
And the hail of a song-bird band.
They are slaves who foam by wagon or stream;
The footman carries the crown.
What cares the tramp whom supper and camp are waiting in every town?

I'm the king of the road all summer;
In winter I still go free,
Let the snow-blast came, in a nook I'll churn
With a gypsy crew like me.
I'll ask no shares with home-proud heirs;
They're the scorn of my soul, while I
Can tread the floors of the great outdoors,
And nobody asks me why.

—Theron Brown.

FRANCE WORKING ON NEW DEBT PROPOSAL

PARIS, Oct. 21. (AP)—Finance Minister Caillaux is preparing a counter proposal for the settlement of France's debts to the United States, and the substance of this new offer, which is expected to go forward to Washington next week, was discussed by Premier Painleve and M. Caillaux at luncheon today. Other members of the French debt mission which visited Washington also attended the luncheon.

This question was considered at the last meeting of the cabinet, which approved the suggestion of the finance minister that another effort be made at once to a compromise with the American debt funding commission before presenting to the chamber of deputies the provisional settlement, France was to pay $40,000,000 annually for five years as full current interest on the consolidated debt of approximately $4,200,000,000 which France owes the United States.

The cabinet decided that another attempt to come to a definite, final arrangement with America was preferable to an effort to get parliament to ratify the provisional accord. A strong current of opinion against the provisional agreement has set in both the chamber and the senate.

What France can offer in addition to the proposals the Caillaux mission made at Washington was the subject of today"s discussion between the premier and finance minister. It is generally agreed in official and political circles that France's capacity to pay her foreign debts depends on the solution of the pressing difficulties of her treasury.

The key to M. Caillaux's plan to renovate French finances in the provision of a sinking fund for both domestic and foreign debts. A settlement with Washington, it is remarked by officials here, would be easier when the financial measures now in view have been accepted by parliament, but the minister of finance is unwilling to delay the renewal of negotiations with the American government until domestic political problems are out of the way.

Therefore, with the authority of the cabinet, M. Caillaux probably will send a new offer to Washington before the end of next week.

The terms of the new offer remain to be fixed, it was said in official circles tonight, but the opinion of persons close to M. Caillaux is that he can only raise the figures of the last French offer at Washington by asking in return that the American debt commission accept a clause safeguarding France from making payments that would gravely embarrass her in case her financial restorations.

It is recalled in this connection that the financial committee of the radical congress at Nice last week passed a resolution demanding that the French government undertake to pay no more o nthe war debts than France received from Germany on the reparations account. While this action was adopted by the financial committee, the congress as a whole refrained from discussing it. There is good reason to suppose, however, that M. Caillaux will disregard this action of one group of his party in his new offer to Washington and will make no effort to link the debt payments with reparations.

No Gray Hair

No falling hair, no dandruff

By Edna Wallace Hopper

Mine is a grandmother's age, but my hair is a glory. I have never had falling hair or dandruff, and never a touch of gray. My hair is thick and luxuriant, finer far than 40 years ago. Yet as a girl it was scant.

That is because I searched the world for the best hair helps men know. And I have kept up to date. Every new hair help has been brought to me. No woman in the world has spent what I have to attain luxuriant hair.

Now I have combined those helps in a product called Hair Youth. It contains many ingredients, concentrated. I apply it with an eyedropper, directly to the scalp.

There it combats the hardened oil and dandruff which stifle hair roots. It tones and stimulates the scalp. It keeps the scalp healthy and clean.

That is all you can do. The scalp is like a garden. It must be cleaned, it must be cultivated. Then hair will thrive as flowers thrive in a well-kept garden.

Here is the best men know, all combined in a single tonic. You apply it in a minute. And you know you are doing all that science can do for the hair.

My hair shows one result. So I know that every woman, every man, can obtain from Hair Youth benefits nothing else can bring.

Edna Wallace Hopper's Hair Youth is now supplied by all toilet counters at 50c and $1 with eyedropper. But I will gladly send you a sample if you will mail this coupon. Do that to learn how the greatest treatment in existence can benefit your hair.

INDIANS BACK TO RICE FIELDS AS HARVEST MACHINERY FAILS

CASS LAKE, Minn., Oct. 21. (AP)—Machinery, ally of the pale face, has failed in its effort to collect rice in the innumerable lakes in Minnesota and the Indians have been temporarily successful in defending their traditional monopoly of the wild rice harvest.

F. J. Scott, acting superintendent of the Consolidated Chippewa Agency here, said this was due to the impracticability of modern rice harvesting machinery rather than to the counter efforts of the red man.

The Indians were greatly alarmed at the appearance of rice harvesting machines. They not only threatened to remove an indispensable means of making a livelihood but literally destroyed the precious fields. The heavy boats necessary to carry the binder-like contraptions ripped the tender stalks from the shallow water, spoiling virtually all rice that the reaper missed.

Now the tribesmen and their families in birch-bark canoes and awkward, but light flat-bottom boats, are proceeding as in the days of old.

RUSSIANS NOW MARRY ON A THREE YEAR PROBATION

BERLIN, Oct. 22 (AP)—Marriages on three year probation have been authorized by the Soviet government, writes the Berliner Lokal Anzeiger. After this period both partner will be privileged to contract on a new and permanent marriage, if mutually the bond has proved satisfactory. Otherwise, each party will be at liberty to separate without going through any of the usual divorce formalities.

The law was passed to clarify the state of matrimonial confusion existing in Russia, said the Anzeiger. The probationary marriage needs only to be registered at the city clerk's office. If the marriage ends in failure, the registrar will simply draw a blue pencil mark through both names, whereby, officially at least, the marriage will be shown never to have existed.

The present age at which a young man in Russia may marry is 18 and that of a girl 16. The wife may either adopt the name of her husband or retain her own. A third contingency is that the husband may adopt his wife's name.

The children again may also be named after the father or mother, or one child may assume the name of one parent and another that of the other.

Intervention in love is equivalent to a declaration of war.

ONE-PROFIT
Facilities Alone Make Possible

this Sedan of fine quality—at the lowest price ever placed on a Sedan by Studebaker

THERE was a time when the automobile buyer seeking greatest value for his dollar was justified in considering a car of second-grade quality, which was reasonably satisfactory from the standpoint of transportation alone.

But with the advent of Studebaker's One-Profit manufacturing policy, cars of the finest quality, such as the Standard Six Sedan illustrated below, are now only slightly higher in price than those of second grade.

This small difference in price is practically nothing in comparison to the vast difference in materials and workmanship—plus increased pride of ownership, and the extra service—that a Studebaker gives.

Under this One-Profit system we build in our own plants all bodies, engines, clutches, steering gears, differentials, springs, gear sets, axles, gray iron castings and drop forgings. Thus we eliminate extra profits and overhead that all other manufacturers (except Ford) must pay to outside parts and body makers—and what we save goes to the buyers of Studebaker cars.

And because we have facilities for manufacturing all vital parts on this One-Profit basis, we are able to design, engineer and build every Studebaker car as a complete harmonious unit. Being Unit-Built, the Studebaker functions as a unit—with all the advantages of unit over assembled construction.

The result is years longer life—scores of thousands of miles of excess transportation—greater riding comfort—minimum repair costs—and, finally, higher resale value.

A UNIT-BUILT CAR

Value Stabilized by "No-Yearly-Models"

THE fine Studebaker Standard Six Sedan illustrated below is upholstered in genuine wool cloth. Carpets are wool. Windows are real plate glass. Four wide doors.

Equipment includes an 8-day clock, gasoline gauge, coincidental lock to ignition and steering gear, automatic windshield cleaner, ash receiver, rear-vision mirror, stop light, dome light, safety lighting control on steering wheel, and full-size balloon tires.

This Sedan has many superiorities—hidden as well as obvious. Body pillars are of fine northern white ash, cross-members of hard maple. We pay a premium for the best steels.

Slam the door and the sound says "quality." Swing on the door. Run one wheel up on the curb and note how the doors still open and close—how the motor still runs smoothly. Sit on the firm, heavy fenders. Try the steering gear. See how easily it handles the full-size balloon tires. Test the comfort of the deep, wide seats.

Run the engine—the most powerful in any car of its size and weight, according to the ratings of the N. A. C. C. and the Society of Automotive Engineers. This is Studebaker's lowest priced Sedan. Make comparisons—then realize why no car at a comparable price has more than superficial resemblance.

Come in and let us demonstrate this sturdy One-Profit car.

WALTER S. CALVERT, NEW LONDON, STRUCK BY GAS TRAIN ON CROSSING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 21—Walter S. Calvert, about 75, and a resident at 15 Lewis street, proprietor of a general store in the Plant Building, State street, was fatally injured this morning when he was struck by a gasoline car train of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad. Mr. Calvert sustained a compound fracture of the right arm, four fractured ribs and lacerations of the scalp, dying from his injuries this afternoon at Lawrence hospital.

Mr. Calvert started from his home at 7:45 o'clock to go to his place of business. When he reached the Harrison street crossing a freight car was on the west siding which prevented Mr. Calvert from observing the approach of the train, which was enroute from Norwich, in charge of Engineer Jeremiah J. Connors and was due to reach New London at 7:55 o'clock. As Mr. Calvert stepped from behind the freight car to cross the rails he walked directly in the path of the train. Engineer Connors observed Mr. Calvert's danger and sounded the whistle, at the same time applying the emergency brakes. Mr. Calvert, however, was struck by the car and hurled to the roadbed. He was picked up by Engineer Connors and passengers and placed aboard the car and conveyed to the union station, where he was given medical attention, after which he was transferred to the hospital. From the time that Mr Calvert was admitted to the institution his life was despaired of.

Mr. Calver's son many years ago was killed by being beheaded by a Central Vermont railroad train a short distance from the site of today's fatality, the youth being killed while on the railroad tracks awaiting the rowing of the boat race between Yale, Harvard, Columbia and Pennsylvania.

John Duc, a sailor on a vessel that is at the shipyard on the Thames for repairs, took occasion of his leisure to become intoxicated yesterday. When he was drunk he bunked in on a verandah on Main street and there was found by police officers called to take him away. He was not punished in the way drunks are penalized generally for he was allowed to go to his vessel and to seek wet notions from the river.

Alfred Morin, a sailor from the submarine base was complained against by his wife for conduct unbecoming a husband and father. He was guilty, but his wife and children were to be considered and they were so regarded by the court. He is a young man who has been married ten years and has seven children. His troubles come when he drinks liquor and yesterday they came in abundance. The only reason why he should not be punished was that Mrs. Morin and the children must bear any penalty that was imposed upon him. He was placed on probation for a period of six months to give him the opportunity to make good.

Anthracite coal is so scarce here that only steady patrons of the dealers can be sure of getting a supply.

Norwich sent a considerable number of music lovers to this city last evening to attend the concert of the Philharmonic orchestra. They came principally by automobile.

It is claimed that the New Haven railroad is carrying more freight over its lines via New London now than it has ever transported through here. The trains are unusually long and are well filled with freight.

Miss Marjorie Morgan Winship, 21, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. E. Dover Winship, of Monument street, Groton, a nurse at Lawrence Memorial hospital, died at the institution late yesterday, where she had been under treatment for septic poisoning. Miss Winship was a member of this year's graduating class of the hospital, but did not graduate because of being a patient at the institution when the class exercises were held. Miss Winship sustained the injury which resulted in the poisoning several months ago, when the automobile which she was operating collided with a tree at the corner of Hillside avnue and Lower Boulevard. The crash resulted in Miss Winship sustaining a laceration of the wrist and because of the wound not healing developed.

A commercial automobile, owned by the New London Glass company, Bank street, and operated by Teemar Carmen, and a machine owned and driven by Edward J. Smith, of Morris Lane, Great Neck, N. Y., were in collision this afternoon on State street, at the corner of Huntington street. Both cars were damaged. Following the crash, Smith, operated his car from the location of the accident, and did not stop even when he lost his cap. Complaint was made to the police by Carman and a short time later Patrolman William Graham found the New York machine parked on Federal street, between Union and Meridian streets. Sergeant John Cavanaugh went to where the car was found and a short time afterwards Smith was located and taken into custody, charged with evasion of responsibility. Smith had been drinking, but was not intoxicated. He will be given a hearing in the police court tomorrow morning.

Henry P. Bullard, about 75, a former resident of New London, died last night at the residence of his daughter in Providence where he was visiting. He suffered from asthma and a weakened condition of the heart for several years. Mr. Bullard was for many years in business in New London, for many years conducting a grocery business at the corner of Main and Williams street, acquiring the business from the late Charles J. Hewitt. He was latterly employed as manager of the grain business of the former Arnold Rudd company at Niantic and resided in that village a number of years. A short time ago he moved to the home of a relative in Hartford and about a week ago he went to Providence for a visit with his daughter. His condition did not appear to be serious until Tuesday afternoon when he suffered a sinking attack and died a short time later. Bullard was a past master of Union Masonic lodge and was a member of the Chapter and Commandery.

Simon C. Nelson, 174 Pearl street, Hartford, a representative of the Aetna Insurance Company, notified the New London police this evening that he had lost a portfolio containing valuable papers. Nelson did not know where he lost the folio.

William Scmoline, 6, son of Rosie Grenoline, 26 East street, was struck by a commercial car of the Connecticut Power co., on yesterday, sustaining a fractured skull, fracture of both legs and possible internal injuries. His condition is unchanged tonight at Home Memorial hospital, to which institution the child was moved by Santo Ferro, 310 Chestnut street, operator of the automobile, a short time after the lad had been struck on Pequot avenue. Whether the youth will recover is problematical and will not be determined for several days.

Mr. and Mrs. John McDonald, 14 Center street, are entertaining Mr. and Mrs. James Burnes, of Springfield, Mass.

DESK SGT. J. C. SULLIVAN ADVANCED TO LIEUTENANT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 21—James C. Sullivan, desk sergeant of the New London police department today was promoted to lieutenant in charge of the night force, the appointment being made by City Manager William A. Holt to succeed Former Lieutenant Benjamin Beebe, who was retired a year ago. The city manager also appointed Patrolman William T. Babcock desk sergeant to fill the vacancy caused by the promotion of Desk Sergeant Sullivan and appointed Supernumerary Patrolmen Clarence Martin, Edward Riordan and Dennis Murphy to the regular force. All of the appointments will become effective Nov. 1.

The appointments made today resulted following a conference yesterday afternoon between City Manager Holt and Captain of Police Charles A. Pinney at the office of the city manager in the municipal building. The conference was of long duration and resulted in the capabilities of several of the members of the department being considered for the lieutenancy.

Lieut. Sullivan is the oldest member of the department in years of service. He was made a sergeant several years ago and for the past seven years has been desk sergeant.

Desk Sergeant Babcock is one of the youngest members of the department having been appointed to the force following the world war, in which he served overseas. He has done considerable patrol duty, but his duties have been confined principally to motorcycle duty. Within the past few months he has been acting desk sergeant.

Patrolmen Martin, Riordan and Murphy are among the youngest members of the department and have served over a year, performing regular patrol duty.

Desk Sergeant James D. Gaffney, who has been acting lieutenant since the retirement of Former Lieutenant Timothy C. Sullivan, who has been filling the duties of desk sergeant the past year will be assigned to a patrol beat.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 21.—The New London police last night received a request from the authorities of Bridgeport for the arrest of Edward Marmula, who is wanted in Bridgeport for embezzlement of $255 from his employer. Marmula formerly resided at 7 Hill street, this city, but inquiry at that place did not reveal any trace of Marmula's whereabouts. When Officers John Foley and Edward Daniels went to the home of John Lawsky, 31 Shapley street, however, valuable information was obtained, for Lawsky, who is a friend of Marmula, declared that the latter was at the Lawsky home on the 12th inst., and that Marmula would probably be found at the home of Frank Kranick, 25 Central avenue, Norwich, as Marmula stated that he was going to the Norwich house to pay a visit to Bertha Kumrach. The Norwich police have been given the facts in the case and are making a search for Marmula.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre

It was not for artistic reasons alone that Kentucky Pride, the William Fox supreme attraction which opens today at the Breed theater, came to be filmed in the picturesque Blue Grass region. The principal actors in this thrilling screen drama are horses, and the cast includes some of the most famous race track champions of recent years, each playing himself. In the list are Man o' War, the world's greatest thoroughbred, Fair Play, Negofol, Morvich and other kettled Kentuckians.

The ordinary two-legged screen actor gladly follows the camera to the ends of the earth, if such be orders. Not so with the four-legged stars. No trips to Hollywood and waiting around studios for them. They had to be photographed in the old Kentucky homes or not at all. And that's how it was done.

Kentucky Pride is the life story of Virginia's Future, a royally bred filly, as told by herself. This daughter of Negofol was born on the splendid estate of Roger Beaumont. Beaumont lost great sums gambling. He bet the remnant of his fortune on Virginia's Future in her first race. She did her best to justify her master's confidence but fell and broke her leg just when the race seemed won.

Beaumont was ruined and disappeared. The crippled filly, useless except for breeding purposes, soon fell upon evil times, ultimately passing into the hands of a peddler, who treated her brutally. Not until her daughter, Confederacy, grew up and restored the family fortunes by winning one of the most thrilling races ever screened, was she redeemed from bondage and returned to her beloved blue grass pastures.

Quaker Oats

Now comes the cooler days of autumn, with winter just around the corner—days of blustering winds bearing sometimes rain and other times snow—days of wet feet, heavier clothing and changing temperature, bringing colds and "grippe and sometimes pneumonia lurks in the background.

Now is the time for vigorous food, for things to eat which build vitality, tim and the resistance to ills and ailments common to the changing season.

Ask your doctor, "What to eat?" Almost the first food he will name, for children, for women and for men alike, will be rolled oats.

With all the vitality-building elements in them, just as nature grew them out of the sunshine, the rich earth and soft showers of summer, rolled oats not alone contain the elements which build vigor, but these elements come, in this food, unchanged—vital, quickly assimilated.

Get down the Quaker Oats package for a breakfast which does not overload digestive systems, but which brings to them a quickly digested, readily assimilated flood of the food elements which grow muscle, which give the blood richness for repairing tissues worn by the morning's play or work.

Oh, serve Quaker Oats for a luncheon which will give no feeling of stuffiness during the afternoon, yet which will contain sufficient vitality building substance to keep the mind and body fresh and vibrant all afternoon.

At the first cold day, the first rainy day, the first day when the winds blow gusty and chill, bring out the familiar round cardboard box with the old Quaker on it—not to "heat on the blood," as the old saying has it, for food doesn't do that; but to supply the family with vigor-building, easily digested food with a tastiness which says "more."

Save time, too: no use getting uncomfortable and disheveled over a hot stove. Daylight comes so late these days, that breakfast time is upon you before you realize it. Use Quick Quaker—less than five minutes and breakfast is ready. No half-hour at luncheon; the same Quick Quaker cuts it to five minutes.

Meet the rigor of the weather with the vigor of Quaker Oats.

PHILIPPINE SOLDIERS BUY OWN UNIFORMS TO LOOK NEAT

MANILA, Oct. 21. (AP)—By purchasing their own uniforms rather than wear "the cheap shoddy clothing issued here," Major General Ell A. Helmick, inspector general of the United States Army, said the enlisted men of this department made a good appearance during his inspection.

General Helmick described the shoddy issue as an oversupply of World war times, which he said were unfit for any use except as work, fatigue or field clothing.

"It illustrates the fine spirit of the enlisted personnel, both native and American, that they have willingly gone into their pockets and paid for the material and making of good uniforms," said the General. "I hope that they will not long have to do this and I shall do everything in my power to remove this hardship."

General Helmick commended the Philippine soldiers of the Philippine scouts. In the General's opinion, the Philippine soldier easily submits to discipline and when properly trained and led would always acquit himself well in the field.

SICK CREWS TREATED BY RADIO ALL OVER PACIFIC

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 22 (AP)—The chart for radio-treated patients in the receiving hospital here is mostly blank. The physician who reaches ships with ill crews in all parts of the Pacific frequently does not know whether he or Davy Jones won.

Ships that do not carry doctors are making increased use of the radio when sickness visits their cabins. San Pedro picks up these calls for medical assistance and relays them to the hospital here.

A physician digests the symptoms and prescribes a remedy. In a few minutes the answer to the distressed query is flashed back to the ship. If the case is serious, a continuous flow of messages between the hospital and vessel is maintained. But in the majority of cases, the results are never known.

Efforts are being made to have all ship lines operating tankers and freighters adopt a standard medicine chest. By this means the police physicians at the hospital will know what medicinal supplies are available for their prescription.

Palace

There is no doubt that the theatregoers will be pleased with the bill of vaudeville and pictures the Palace has lined up for today, Friday and Saturday, it being one of the best balanced bills ever yet offered. Heading the vaudeville will be the "Scampers of 1925," a company of five with four pretty girls and with nineteen changes of costumes. There is all special scenery with the act which changes four times. The act is one of the fast-est acts of its kind and hasn't a dull moment of its 23 minutes running time, yet it isn't too speedy to be appreciated. "Bendy and Golden" will open the show with a comical xylophone act. Evans-Wilson-Evans will no doubt be a very pleasing act and will appeal very highly. Wilson is another Irish tenor. Walter and Lee have a novelty act of dancing on the silver cord. McCunn and O'Donnell are a pair of fun getters and will sure get them.

It might have been a terrier, but it wasn't an Irish terrier, or a wire-haired terrier, or a Scotch terrier. He probably has some terrier ancestors—his ears seemed evidence of it, but there was dash and blood in his veins, also a mixture of plain pup; he drew $25 a day for two days at the Paramount Long Island studio and his owner collected another $16 per.

Which is proof that he wasn't just an ordinary dog.

All this pup had to do was sit between two steamer chairs in a yacht scene and sit on his hind legs, when his fellow players picked chocolates out of a nearby box. The secret of his high salary was the comic-tragic look he could assume whenever Bebe Daniels caught a chocolate thrown in his direction. His acting amounted to genius. That was why he was doing a "bit" which raised him above the salary classification of the extras.

Raymond Hatton doesn't want to see an egg for the next year.

Playing the part of an invalid who comes west for his health in Harold Bell Wright's "A Son of His Father," which was made on location in southern Arizona, Hatton was required in many scenes to drink eggnog and eat fried and boiled eggs. As the scenes had to be taken a number of times, the actor was required to go through the process again and again.

A special arrangement was finally made whereby Hatton was not forced to eat eggs outside of working hours.

Featured players in "A Son of His Father," which was directed by Victor Fleming, are Bessie Love, Warner Baxter and Raymond Hatton. The picture begins a four-days' engagement on Sunday at the Palace theatre.

New Thousands Won by Improved Jewett

Jewett Coach

Now $1245

Unquestionably the finest Jewett ever produced. Months ago our sales jumped to a new high peak. Jewett Coach did it!

With even greater success the improved Jewett Coach has captured the country all over again.

August sales mounted to 131% over August sales of last year. September again more than doubled.

Easily explained. Jewett Coach offers a combination of quality—performance—riding ease—roominess—never before available at such a price.

Here is substantial day-in and day-out performance that settles its own arguments. Performance that's respected wherever motor cars are known. That's a matter of record and reputation.

Fine quality is your first and lasting impression. For in smart coloring and artistry in design Jewett Coach in outer appearance bespeaks inherent quality.

And we have added length. Amazing new riding ease is the result.

Come to our showroom today for definite facts of this car's outstanding value. Surely you want to see and drive the car that more than doubled our business. (627-T)

MARKET WAS BUOYANT

NEW YORK, Oct. 21—(By the A. P.)—Speculation for the advance gained increased momentum as trading broadened in today's stock market, both the rail and industrial averages attaining new record high levels. Total sales ran just above two and one half million shares, being exceeded this year only by the wild markets of Friday and Monday.

Bullish sentiment was created by a variety of factors, including the publication of additional favorable railroad and oil company earnings statements lower call money rates, hardening steel and non-ferrous metal prices, and last, but not least, by the orderly manner of the advance. Brokers reported an increase in public participation.

Rising of the oils was given impetus by rumors of increased dividends and another sharp drop in crude oil production last week. Marland crossed 95 to another new 1925 peak price and net gains of two points or more were recorded by Associated Oil, Houston, Independent Oil and Gas, Mexicanbo, the Pan-American issues, Phillips and Barnsdall Oil of California.

Profit taking interrupted, but failed to halt, the advance in the railroad shares Baltimore and Ohio, which is expected to go on a $6 dividend basis before the end of the year, crossed $6 to a new high, and New York Central, which is said to be contemplating raising the rate from 7 to $8, attained a new top at 127 3-4. Southern Railway, Erie common, Pere Marquette, and Western Pacific also bettered their previous 1925 high prices.

A brisk demand again developed for tiny copper shares. Utah Copper sold above 2100 a share for the first time since 1917; Cere de Pasco was run up over four points to a new year's high at 72 1-4 and American Smelting advanced over three points to 113 7-8.

Trading in the Armour Packing issues again assumed enormous proportions. Armour B, the first sale of which was a block of 11,000 shares at 19 3-8 later advanced to 20 1-2, a new top in speculative expectation of an early inauguration of dividends at the rate of $2 annually.

Spirited bidding also took place for United States Rubber common, which crossed 80 to a new peak for an extreme gain of over four points. Among the other two-score issues to reach new high ground for the year were American Tobacco A and B, American Safety Razor, Columbia Gas and Electric, Continental Insurance, Cushman's Sakery, International Business Machines, New York Canners, Paige Detroit, Texas Gulf Sulphur, Union Bag and Paper, United States Realty and Yellow Truck preferred. S. S. Kresge jumped 51 points on a few sales.

Call money renewed at 4 1-2 per cent. and then dropped to 4. Time money continued to rule firm, with 4 3-4 to 5 per cent., the prevailing rates. Commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Confused movements took place in the foreign exchange market. Demand sterling climbed above $4.84 despite additional gold shipments from England to the United States, but several of the continental rates were heavy. French francs hovered around 4.41 cents or just above the year's low, and Italian lire again sank below 4.00 cents. Danish Kroner broke over fifty points to 24.50 cents and Norwegian krone dropped about 95 points to around 20.25 cents.

TAFTVILLE

After spending several weeks in town, David Seddon has returned to his home in New Bedford.

Mrs. Herbert P. Hoyle of South B Street is in Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Foisey and family have moved to the village from Canada.

Now that the cold weather is coming on many of the local trappers are getting their equipment in shape for the season. It is said that New England muskrat will not be as popular this year, as trappers from Louisiana are putting that state in the leading rank of fur-producing states. Not many years ago the fur demand was arising, someone started to raise muskrats on the Louisiana shores, and the industry has grown until last year it reached the enormous proportions of 600,000 skins which sold at an average of $1 each.

This industry is making use of some marsh lands which have laid idle beyond the recollection of man and which have been long regarded as utterly useless. The raising of muskrats requires no labor or attention. The animals take care of themselves and are responsible for rather large and frequent families. The fur raised under these favorable conditions is quite fine, and makes up into garments very nicely, being masqueraded under various names other than its own. Some of the neighboring states are endeavoring to share in the industry and one state has engaged a well-known naturalist to investigate the matter and to outline a scheme for fostering the industry.

The Taftville Girls' Athletic club has appointed a committee to arrange for a Hallowe'en social and dance.

Miss Loretta Grenier, R. N., of Pawtucket, is at the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fortier of Norwich avenue, caring for Mr. Fortier, who is ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Octave Bousquet of South C Street have given up their house and gone to reside with Mrs. Bousquet's mother, Mrs. Alexandria Lavigne of South B Street.

William H. Whitehead of Boswell avenue was a business caller in Jewett City Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. William Malone, Miss Theresa Hanley and Mrs. William Nolan of Providence street, Mrs. Denis C. Murphy of South A street and Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Caron of North Fourth avenue have been in Providence, R. I., this week attending the funeral of John Casey.

Assistant Postmaster Edward V. Murphy said Wednesday that many people who send postal cards to Europe are not affixing sufficient postage. All European countries, Great Britian included, take the 3-cent rate. Letters to Great Britain still go for two cents, and this is probably the cause why many people affix only 2 cents to post cards. The rate to Canada is 2 cents for post cards, but Newfoundland takes the 3-cent rate.

Mr. and Mrs. George Kramer, who were married last week, have reached Montreal. Mrs. Kramer was before her marriage Miss Sophie Thoma of Lisbon.

MILLS ASSOCIATION PLANS FOR ANNUAL MEETING

At a recent meeting of the executive committee of the Eastern Connecticut Mills association, arrangements for the annual meeting were made to date being Wednesday, Nov. 11. At this meeting the election of officers will be held. A nominating committee was appointed to draw up a slate for the approval of the meeting, the committee appointed being Fred P. King of Goodyear, George Robertson of Danielson, Alfred Boutilier of Occum, Fred Taylor of Danielson and Charles A. Anderson of Jewett City.

The report of the secretary-treasurer, Prentice W. Chase, showed the association to be in good financial condition. He and Walter King of Mechanicsville were appointed to make arrangements for the annual meeting and were instructed to give the boys something pretty good in the line of eats. Mr. Chase informed the meeting that every account in connection with the textile products exhibit which was promoted at Danielson last June had been closed, and that everything was ready to turn over to the incoming officers without a semblance of unfinished business.

Bishop School Public Inspection

The new Bishop school on Main St., East Side, is to be open to public inspection this (Thursday) evening from 7.30 to 9 o'clock. The pupils will be at their places in the class rooms, with the teachers in charge, and those who visit the school will see one regular work of the classes in operation. The school board hopes that there will be a very large response to the general invitation to the public to visit and inspect the school.

Life is full of checks and many of them are forgeries.

REACH SETTLEMENT IN SUIT OVER CLAIM TO WASHINGTON ST. HOUSE

Two sons of the late Mrs. Annie M. Fillmore, each with a deed from her for the dwelling house at 48 Washington street, were the litigants in a case tried here Wednesday morning in the superior court before Judge Allyn L. Brown. Alvin T. Church of 48 Washington street was the plaintiff against William Church of Broadway, but when the plaintiff and Judge Nelson J. Ayling had given testimony, Judge Brown suggested a recess through which the litigants arranged to adjust the case. Attorney John H. Barnes appeared for the plaintiff, Thomas M. Shields and Edmund W. Perkins for the defendant.

Each son sought a court decree vesting title in him, and Alvin Church who has been occupying the property since his mother's death claimed that allowance to him should be made for expenditures for taxes and interest in case the court decision was adverse to him. William Church claimed that if the decision was in his favor, he would be entitled to the value of the use and occupancy of the house since the death of Mrs. Fillmore on June 26, 1921.

As it appeared in the evidence that what Alvin Church had paid in taxes and insurance would about equal the value of his use of the property, it was agreed that these claims would not be considered by the court.

According to testimony it was shown that the deed from Mrs. Fillmore to Alvin T. Church was prepared by Judge Nelson J. Ayling after Mrs. Fillmore had called him to her home on September 22, 1920. She reserved life use of the property to herself, giving the deed to Judge Ayling to keep and with directions that Alvin was not to know of the transfer until after her death.

After being in the Backus hospital, to which she was sent by Selectman Casper K. Bailey after she broke her hip in March, 1921, she returned to her home on April 18 and remained with Alvin until May 9. At this time she was examined by two physicians and was committed to the Norwich state hospital.

Early in June, Mrs. Fillmore sent for her son William Church, the defendant in the action, and she requested him to take her out. He had two other physicians examine her, and she was then declared sane, and was allowed to go from the institution, Dr. Wilcox, superintendent, offering no objection.

Before leaving that institution, Mrs. Fillmore sent for Attorney Thomas M. Shields of this city, and she requested the lawyer to draw up a deed of the property at 48 Washington street, conveying it to her son William and his wife, with whom she went to live afterward, and died on June 26, 1921.

INVITATIONS TO ATTEND NEW ENGLAND CONFERENCE

Invitations to send delegates to the New England conference at Worcester on November 12 and 13 have just been sent to 46 chambers of commerce, business men's associations and boards of trade and to 85 local and state-wide organizations including advertising clubs, automobile clubs and others. START DIGGING TRENCH FOR RESERVOIR PIPE

Several hundred feet of trench were opened Wednesday by employes of the water department when they began work at Norwich Town on excavating for the pipe line to the new Deep River reservoir that is to be built. The pipe line work was begun in the meadow along the Shetucket river, west of Town street and at a point across the highway from the Lowthorpe Meadow entrance. The trench was dug northerly from there nearly to the road from Norwich Town green towards East Great Plain. The pipe line goes under this road and continues to the north on the other side.

COLCHESTER MAN IS SERIOUSLY INJURED

Peter Nelson of Hartford was arrested on a charge of driving a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor and Nathan Kaplan of Colchester, lies in his home in a serious condition as a result of the large Pierce Arrow sedan driven by Nelson crashing into the rear of a horse and wagon driven by Kaplan about two miles out on the Norwich road from Colchester at 7 o'clock Tuesday night. John Denison of Hartford, occupant of the Nelson machine was also taken into custody. Both were later released on bonds.

It was said that the big machine was being driven in a reckless manner when it suddenly crashed into the rear of the wagon driving the wagon with much force against the horse and throwing Kaplan over the horse. The horse was so badly injured that it had to be shot. The wagon was completely demolished as was the front end of the automobile.

The accident occurred near the residence of Constable J. J. Sullivan, who investigated and took the two men into custody. A hearing in the case will be given in a few days.

He entered a plea of guilty and was fined $50 and costs, a total of $60.35. In default of payment of his fine he was committed to jail.

The charge against him was obtaining $17.60 from a local merchant on a bad check.

MRS. BERRY IN HYSTERICS AT UNDERTAKERS PARLORS

Mrs Helen McKenna Berry, wife of Eugene J. Berry of 324 Boswell avenue and mother of their two small sons, Eugene and Joseph, who were chloroformed by their father Tuesday morning at their home, came to this city from Jewett City Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock and visited the undertaking parlors of Cummings & Ring where she went into violent hysterics at the sight of the bodies of the two boys prepared for the double funeral which is to be held this (Thursday) afternoon.

Mrs. Berry had to be restrained by relatives and attendants at the parlors and was removed to an automobile where she lapsed into a comatose state as she was driven away in the care of relatives.

A quarrel with his wife on Monday in consequence of which she left home was given by Berry as the cause for his attempted suicide and the chloroforming of the two boys as they slept beside him in bed.

Following the tragedy, Mrs. Berry was first here from here about 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon when she called at police headquarters from Hartford and between sobs asked where her boys and husband were and if funeral arrangements had been made. She said she was coming to Norwich in the bus leaving Hartford at 2 o'clock which would bring her here at about 4. Then the telephone receiver was hung up.

Mrs. Berry did not arrive in the 4 o'clock bus and a relative of her husband said Wednesday night that it had been learned she had collapsed after making the telephone call from Hartford. Some Hartford woman, he said, found her upon learning of the conditions and brought her in an auto chib to the home of her father, William McKenna, in Jewett City.

Mrs. Berry's father and her brother John McKenna visited Berry at the Backus hospital Wednesday morning.

A warrant charging Berry with murdering his two minor sons has been drawn up by City Attorney Leo Roy Robbins under which Berry will be presented in the city court as soon as he is able to leave the hospital. This will probably be in about ten days.

When Berry became sick at the station late Tuesday night it was supposed that he had swallowed the poison in his suicide attempt and had also slashed one of his wrists but had inflicted only slight injury. A police guard is maintained at his cot in the hospital ward.

The tragedy was a general topic of discussion in Greeneville and other parts of the city Wednesday. People in the Greeneville neighborhood and others who professed to know, spoke in the highest terms of the industry and steadiness of Berry and mentioned his wife's desire for a gay life outside her home as being at the foundation of the family troubles.

A SHRINERS RECOMMENDATION FOR POLISH PRIEST

Religious bigotry or racial prejudice is no credit to any nation. The American Constitution guarantees to all comers liberty of conscience and of speech. Millions of immigrants came to this country for that very reason. they became good and loyal citizens because neither their religion nor their language were forbidden here.

All nations and creeds contribute their share to Americans greatness. You find them together at play, you meet them at work, you saw them side by side, fighting the common foe, on the battle line. Although national antipathy and religious bigotry spring up at times, in different sections of the country, they never assumed the form of a national movement. All good, loyal, broadminded and true Americans should always counteract such religious or national prejudices.

When people get to understand one another better, when they get to know their religious beliefs, their national traits and customs more fully, they soon lose their antipathies and become fast friends. The war has helped to eliminate a lot of that religious and racial prejudice. We should not permit it to return.

Father Iciek, pastor of St. Joseph's church in this city, took very active part in all the war activities in Duluth and made many warm friends among the Protestants in that section. One of his best friends is a Shriner and the Past Potentate of Aad Temple Mr. A. A. Farrington K. C. C. H. When Father Iciek was leaving Duluth for Camp Niagara, to join the Polish army, Mr. Farrington presented him with an introduction card to the Shriners which reads as follows: "To All the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine. Introducing Capt. S. A. Iciek, American Priest, Patriot and Friend of the Mason and Shriner equally With his Catholic kind. Extend to him the hand of warmest fellowship—he is wholly worthy of it—and so please Allah and yours in the Faith, A. A. Farrington, Past Potentate Aad Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S."

Father Iciek thinks a great deal of that little card; he always carries it with his Fourth Degree membership of the K. of C. The Masons and Shriners came to his aid on different occasions and he hopes to gain their co-operation and support at all times, especially during his school drive, next week.

CELLIST SCORES TRIUMPH IN NORWICH CONCERT

His well chosen programme was full of interest and was interpreted with a marvelous richness and charming delicacy of tone that enchanted his audience. His execution was at once brilliant and beautiful, bespeaking his mastery of technique and the sensitive soul of the great artist. Rex Tilson at the piano provided acceptable accompaniments.

The programme was given as follows: Adagio; Allegro—Boccherini; Sonata—Haydn; Ancient group, Grave—Corelli, Les Cherubins—Couperin, Largo,—Marcello, The Bee—Schubert; Concerto—Saint Saens; Modern group—Reverie—Debussy, Danse—Granados, Hindoo Song—Rimsky-Korsakow, Fantasy—Nadia Boulanger.

The concert was recognized as one of the finest that has been given in Slater hall and many came forward afterwards to greet Mr. Marechal and his wife, who before her marriage was Miss Lois Perkins of this city.

BOGUE CO. EMPLOYES SEE FORD MOVIES

The regular monthly meeting of the employes of the Irving E. Bogue company took place Wednesday evening in the show room of the local Ford agency on North Main street. The feature of the program was a two reel moving picture entitled "The Ford Age" furnished through the courtesy of the Ford Motor Co., showing the marvelous way in which a Ford is made and assembled.

The picture was shown by Mr. Berndt of the New York office. After this a general discussion was held led by Harlow L. Bogue in order to find out the best way to improve the service so as to furnish the car owners of this community the best service possible 24 hours a day all the year around. Many valuable suggestions were offered by the employes and these will be given immediate tryouts. After the meeting refreshments were served and arrangements were made by the employes to hold a bowling match, the organization being divided into two teams. The tournament will start on Monday evening in one of the local alleys.

FINE MODERN RESIDENCE FOR ARCHITECT THOMPSON

One of the best of the modern houses in Norwich has been completed by Contractor Archibald Torrance for Architect Arthur M. Thompson, in Chelsea court and is now occupied by Mr. Thompson and his family. Much attention has been paid to the outside appearance of the house as well as to the rich interior work and fixtures, making it one of the most attractive residences in the city. It is beautifully appointed and equipped with the last word in modern house conveniences.

The house is of the English type with half-timber sections and is constructed of tapestry brick and stucco exterior and is roofed with colorblend asbestos shingles, the first of the type in this part of the state. All the flashings, gutters and conductors are of copper. The first floor is constructed with steel girders and pressed steel floor joists. The stucco work is very unusual being a combination of spatter and troweled effect.

The floors throughout, except the hall and sun porch are oak finished in dull varnish. The hall and sun porch are floored in rubber tile laid in squares of varying color. All the windows have steel casements imported from England. The entrance hall is furnished in antique oak with rough plaster walls with built-in closets of unusual design and closets for coats. The doors are all solid oak plank with special wrought iron strap hinges and hardware.

The stairs to the second floor have wrought iron rail and the light fixtures are in wrought iron in keeping with the treatment.

The living room is large, being 15x27 feet, with fireplace designed in combination of tapestry brick and tile. The ceiling of this room and also of the dining room is done in textured paint called Craftex and its effect is very pleasing.

The sun porch is on the south side of the house and is 10x15 feet with casements on three sides. The walls are of rough plaster as are the ceilings. The lighting fixtures are very attractive.

The dining room is of good size with built-in China closets and recessed buffet. This room is one of the most attractive in the house.

The kitchen and breakfast alcove are finished in cream enamel. The sink is of white porcelain and the floor is covered with cream and blue tile effect linoleum.

The second floor has three large chambers and an alcove and also two baths. All the chambers are finished in ivory enamel and the bathrooms are floored and wainscoted in colored matt tile. The baths have colored accessories built into the walls. The tub is tiled in. The bath rooms are the last word in the point of equipment.

In the rear of the house is a heated garage that conforms to the type of the house. The house is heated by a Spencer heater with a Webster vapor system.

The general contract was carried out by Archibald Torrance. The plumbing and heating was installed by J. A. Fitzgerald, the electrical wiring and fixtures by the O'Neil Electric Co. and the painting by A. S. Buchanan.

Y. M. C. A. BIBLE STUDY ON "UNREASONABLE COMMANDS"

Wednesday evening there was a full table at the Bible study at the local Young Men's Christian association. The topic was "A command that seemed unreasonable," and the scripture used was from the eighth chapter of the Acts, the experience of Philip and the Ethiopian. Following are some of the points brought out in the discussion: The stoning of Stephen was the beginning of the terrible persecution of the early Christians, and they were scattered abroad in many places. There is a great deal of truth in the saying that "every knock is a boost". Many a time opposition or criticism has been the very best thing for those who were opposed or criticised, it was so in this case, the persecution proved a splendid way to spread the gospel by scattering the followers of Christ. Philip who was among the number, was probably the most successful preacher of the group and he went to Samaria, where he did wonderful work in the name of Christ. Just as his efforts were being crowned with success, for some was God communicated with him and commanded him to leave the city and go out into the country into what might be called a desert place, certainly seemed unwise from a human standpoint, but God had a way as he always does. Ordinary and unlikely thing has proved a real blessing.

When Jesus was hung on the cross the disciples felt sure that their cause was lost; they had been misled in their leader, but Jesus was just then securing a great victory for the world and for them. When God told Philip to leave the city, the significant statement is made that "He arose and went", without hesitation. There is such a thing as God leading us to do less than it is a good thing for a man to pray about his business for God will lead him if he will let him do so. God usually leads a man step by step, and he does not reveal the whole of his entire plan for his life. It is always best that one shall make progress day by day than suddenly spring into success. Philip did not have to wait long to find God's purpose in sending him into the country, for he found a man of great authority with an open mind and heart for the gospel and he won him to Christ. This was a fine piece of personal work, and this is the type of work that counts the best results in business as in mission work for Christ. Every fellow should be on the lookout for another man he can help and there are plenty who need our help.

19 ARRESTS WERE MADE IN "DRY" RAIDS IN NEW LONDON

Twenty New London Policemen Aided Ten State Policemen in Conducting a Series of Sensational Raids—Several of the Prisoners Are Women—Contraband Seized Was Mostly of the Cheapest Kind—Evidence Had Been Collected For More Than a Week—Prisoners, Bondsmen and Friends of the Victims Jammed the Police Station.

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 22.—By a systematic and speedy series of raids conducted by the state police and local members of the police department late this afternoon, 19 arrests were made, the accused all being charged with violation of the prohibition law on actual sale, but in several of the places visited evidences of the places being used for dispensing liquor was found and the evidence seized. In one instance a still in operation was found and so hot was the boiler that officers had to wait an hour for the receptacle to cool sufficiently to handle the manufacturing implement.

For a time the police station was crowded with prisoners, bondsmen and friends of the victims of the raids. The street in front of the police station was congested with automobiles and scores of spectators were drawn to the scene as prisoners and rum laden cars were brought in.

The raid revealed that stores in many lines of business conduct the sale of liquor in connection with their legitimate business, for a drygoods and shoe store place was raided, together with a fruit and confectionery store, soft drink and confectionery store, restaurant, to any nothing of private residence and the operator of a public service station.

Planned For a Fortnight

The raids had been planned almost for a fortnight for the state police caused a fellow who is known as John McCarthy and a stranger here, to come to New London and make his way into places reputed to be places used for the sale and dispensing of liquor and mingle with the individuals, who made it a practice to sell bottles from the person. This McCarthy did, and as a result of his activities, the information gleaned from the stool pigeon was turned over to Sergeant Clifford Gorias, Groton barracks and today that officer obtained 30 warrants from Acting Prosecuting Attorney Perry J. Holiandersky. This afternoon Sergeant Gorgas and 19 officers from the barracks, together with Sergeant N. Smith and 20 policemen started to serve the warrants and five minutes after the relays of officers departed, in all directions from the police stations, the "flying squadron" was entering the places claimed to be the resort of men and women who sought liquor.

At each place visited the officers besides serving the warrants conducted a search for liquor and in some places they were successful in finding liquor, but in others no evidence of a violation of the law was revealed.

The men and women to be apprehended are:

Frank May of the firm of May brothers, proprietors of the Hotel Winthrop, State street; May Pierson, lodging house, 198 Bank street; Adolph Visconti, 185 Main street, Thomas Kehr, grocery store, 251 Bank street; Arthur Messer, reputed bootlegger, 31 Summer street; Theodore and Nicholas Traggis, father and son, and proprietors of a confectionery and fruit store, 525 Main street; Ms. Eglantine Carpenter, proprietress of a confectionery store, 379 Bank street; Louis Ramistella, 708 Bank street, public service automobile operator; Stephen Pukas, 110 Winthrop street; Henry Marcus, proprietor of shoe and drygoods store, 46 North Bank street, opposite the police station; John Quinn 690 Bank street; Nathan Pumerantz, proprietor of a tailoring establishment and who conducts a sailor's locker room, 38 Green street; Arthur Edward Anderson, proprietor of a rooming house, 105 Bank street; Louis Soltz, store proprietor, 135 North Bank street; Nicholas Haddad, 129 Main street, pool room proprietor and proprietor of a sailor's locker romo; Charles Lawsky, 121 North Bank street; Faddy Rokska, 76 Potter street and Thomas Stavros, proprietor of the Sea Food resaurant; 93 Bank street.

All Furnished Bonds

All of the accused furnished sureties on their respective bonds of $1,000 for their appearance in the police court tomorrow morning. Louis Eltenstein qualified as bondsman for seven of the accused, while the other bondsmen were Fransini Ciolfida, Joseph G. Harrigan, Mrs. Charlotte Dorsey, Cornelius Twomey, Frank Sciallabba, Alex G. Benoit, Sarah D'Elia, Frank Kalka, Morris Riffin, Max Meyer and Pasquale Morriscatta.

Frank May, one of the accused, has been arrested several times for liquor law violation and already has a suspended sentence of six months in jail hanging over him. John Quinn, an old time offender and who is a cripple, was recently prosecuted and convicted Quinn having been arrested no less than half a dozen times for selling liquor. Louis Ramistella has long been reputed to have used his public service automobile as a method for dispensing liquor. Charles Lawsky has never been arrested before for violation of the liquor law but his brother has, the latter having been convicted a comparatively short time ago. Lawsky was penalized in the Superior court some time ago for attacking and beating Prohibition Officer Harry W. Avery at Montville. Henry Marcus' place has long been reputed to be a place where liquor was sold, but the local police have been unable to obtain evidence against the accused. Arthur Messa has long been suspected as being the chief distributor of liquor in New London, but he has yet to be convicted of the crime.

At some of the places liquor, wine "hootch" and paraphernalia for dispensing the liquor were seized. The officers expected to obtain evidence at Hotel Winthrop, but they were not successful in doing so. At the Messer home a quantity of wine was seized, but no whiskey was found there. At the Visconti place was found a considerable quantity of liquor. At the home of Rukas was found a large still in operation.

While the officers did not express surprise in not obtaining evidence at all of the places raided, they declared that a conviction would undoubtedly be established in each case because of the alleged evidence of actual sale having been made to the stool pigeon, McCarthy. Practically all of the accused deny making a sale to McCarthy and declare that they are the victims of a "frame-up."

A warrant for the 20th violator was not served because when the officers visited the home of the accused he was not there and neither could he be located.

CONFLICTING STORIES BY SUURVIVORS OF COMANCHE

NEW YORK, Oct. 2—(AP)—Conflicting stories were told by survivors of the burned clyde liner Comanche, at the hearing before the United States steamboat inspection board in the customs house today. The vessel was destroyed off the coast of Florida, Saturday night, October 17. Several passengers told of drinking by members of the crew. Other denied they had seen any drinking and insisted that the crew behaved in a most seamanlike manner.

John C. Moore, of St. Petersburg, Fla. and Thomas F. Fanning of New York, both told Inspector Harry C. Coglin and A. I. Chapman, that the passengers saved the crew. William W. Mitchell of New York, while denying that he saw any drinking or abusive conduct among the crew declared "the passengers saved themselves and the crew themselves."

James C. Wilkey of West New Brighton, second steward of the ship, said he had one man in his department intoxicated but denied there was excitement, drinking or any lack of seamanlike behavior on the part of the crew.

The hearing adjourned this afternoon after Charles Tobey, assistant general manager of the Clyde and Mallory lines introduced the records of the licensed personnel of the ship and declared Captain Curry of the Comanche was the strictest disciplinarian in the employ of the company. Moore and Fanning, testifying at the morning session, described chaos aboard the liner when the negro crew pulled men from the lifeboats and took their places. They described falling lifeboats and unseamanlike tactics which they alleged were in evidence during the abandoning of the vessel.

THIEVES AT WORK IN THE GRAND CENTRAL SUBWAY

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—(AP) — A legal no-man's land, a pickpocket's paradise, where thieves can work without official recognition by police has been discovered by James E. Hodgson in the underground labyrinths of the grand central subway station.

While ascending in an elevator under 42nd street Hodgson was robbed of a wallet containing $60 and a diamond ring. Vainly he tried to report the theft at four police stations, at two of them he was told that boundaries of their territory met at the middle of 42nd street, but each desk sergeant claimed the elevator was in the jurisdiction of the neighboring station.

HOLD-UP YIELDED BANDITS LOT OF CANCELLED CHECKS

CHICAGO, Oct. 22—(A. P.)—Robbers who held up three messengers of the Federal Reserve bank here early today, and escaped with three pouches of mail, failed to get one dollar for their trouble, Federal Reserve bank officials announced tonight after a careful check-up.

The ten robbers in several automobiles who evidently thought that the messengers had a valuable money shipment, got cancelled checks in large bundles and some bank mail which did not contain money.

The messengers after inspecting hundreds of pictures at the bureau of investigation, finally picked the photograph of James Phelan, now out on $20,000 bond on a robbery charge, as resembling one of the robbers. The police are hunting him.

GOV. "MA" FERGUSON WILL NOT ISSUE STATEMENT

AUSTIN, Texas, Oct. 22.—(AP) — Governor Miriam A. Ferguson has not and will not issue any statement concerning the intimation of Lee Satterwhite, speaker of the lower house that he may call the Texas legislature in special session. This declaration was made here today by James E. Ferguson, husband of the governor.

Satterwhite in Washington Tuesday announced unless the governor did so, he would call an extra session to investigate alleged state highway and other irregularities.

Another Liquor Scandal in Chicago

Involves Policemen, Prohibition Agents, Five Big Beer Syndicates and Five Railroads.

CHICAGO, Oct. 22—(A. P.)—Charges involving scores of Chicago policemen and officials, five big beer syndicates, five railroads and many of their officials and several prohibition agents will be brought before the federal grand jury as the result of a six-months' investigation by prohibition officials.

Federal agents declared that the evidence may bring about the greatest beer running scandal since the 18th amendment became law. They said the evidence will show that eastern breweries, with the connivance of the railroads, having been running as much as $3,000,000 worth of beer into Chicago since the prohibition laws became effective.

The investigation followed the seizure of 1,000 barrels of beer at Morton Grove, a suburb, last month and the arrest of a policeman and six other men. Working back from this case, the investigators from the internal revenue bureau and the federal district attorney's office found that shipments of beer had been coming regularly over five railroads for years. Some railroad officials and employes divided a split of $2 a barrel, policemen and dry agents got another percentage cut and the breweries and financing syndicate divided the rest.

The investigators suppressed all names. Fifty Chicagoans were named in the report.

Two New York bootleggers were arrested today in a fashionable Michigan boulevard hotel while delivering "rare Scotch" made in Harlem from industrial alcohol. Evidence against them was obtained by an under-cover agent, who, like the bootleggers, was living at the hotel without the management being aware of his business. The men gave their names as Meyer Berliner and Leo Smudo, and disclosed that C. Yellowley, new prohibition chief had planted other men in such enable hostelries to look for bootleggers.

The "Scotch" was sold by Berliner and Smudo for $75 a case. It was smuggled in on fast trains.

TRAILED ARMORED CAR AND SEIZED $4,000 PAYROLL

NEW YORK, Oct. 22. (AP—The crime spotlight was taken today by three holdup men who trailed an armored car to its destination and seized the $4,000 payroll it had carried.

The holdup occurred at an east side branch of the New York steam corporation after the gunmen had followed the armored car carrying the money from the company's main office on Madison avenue.

Consideration was given to the crime wave today by Chief City Magistrate McAdoo when he issued a warning that unless restrictions are placed on the sale of bullet-proof vests, invented for the protection of soldiers and policemen, the underworld will use them in its war with society. They should be placed in the same category with firearms and silencers, the magistrate said.

Magistrate McAdoo said a company manufacturing a bullet-proof vest was selling it to the hardware dealers with the understanding that they were not to be retailed except to police in good standing.

Two alleged bigamists, a man and a woman figured in the police news of the day.

A pistol barrel and a silencer said to have been manufactured at the Maxim factory for Eugene Reising, East Hartford, Conn., gun manufacturer, was obtained today by police. BISHOP PARKER FOUND DEAD IN NEW ORLEANS

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 22—(By the Associated Press)—The Right Reverend Edward Melville Parker, 70, of Concord, N. H., Bishop of New Hampshire, was found dead here this afternoon on the floor of his hotel bedroom. He had evidently been dead many hours.

His body was removed to the chapel of Christ Church cathedral where services will be held tomorrow afternoon. Plans tonight provided for taking the body to New Hampshire tomorrow night with the New Hampshire delegation to the general convention accompanying it.

The death of Bishop Parker was the second in the New Hampshire delegation during the convention. William McElroy, Manchester, N. H., died Tuesday, a victim of pneumonia.

Apoplexy was believed to have caused the death of Bishop Parker.

The Right Reverand Samuel B. Booth, Bishop Coadjutor of Vermont, found the body when he went to the room of the New Hampshire bishop to learn why he had not filled a luncheon engagement for Wednesday.

A note was found on the floor, near the body, addressed to Bishop Booth explaining that Bishop Parker felt indisposed and would not be able to join him at luncheon. This note was dated 11 a. m. and death probably followed soon after it was written.

BODY OF DANBURY MAN WAS FOUND IN BOX CAR

PUEBLO, Colo., Oct. 22—(A. P.)—The body of Harold Banks, 25, of Danbury, Conn., believed to have been shot to death by two men late last night in a box car of an eastbound Missouri-Pacific freight train, was found today, 30 miles east of here.

Hanks was shot through the head when he resisted the attempt of the two men to rob him and his brother, Tracy, according to the story of the latter. Then the robbers, one of whom was a negro, threw the dead man from the speeding train.

Warning Tracy Hanks that they would stay on the train and kill him if he attempted to leave the car, the pair swung outside and fastened the door. Hanks finally unfastened the door, climbed over the train and notified the train crew of the murder.

At Horace, Kansas, the crew searched the train thoroughly but found no trace of the slayers who, it is believed jumped from the train immediately after the killing.

Financial Crisis in France Next Week

Caillaux to Present Measures to Provide For Every Eventuality, Including Payment of War Debts.

PARIS, Oct. 22.—(AP)—The financial crisis in France is expected to come to a head with the reopening of parliament next week, when M. Caillaux, the finance minister, will introduce measures by which he hopes to provide for every eventuality, including the payment of war debts. It will then be decided whether socialist policies will be introduced into the french fiscal system.

The socialist group in the chamber of deputies is determined to take an aggressive attitude and has notified the government that it will insist upon a discussion of interpellations on the financial situation, before all other questions.

The socialists will demand a capital levy to balance the budget and provide a fund for the payment of France's debts, to the exclusion of further inflation or increased taxation.

M. Caillaux's measure will probably involve a further limited inflation, with a sinking fund to retire new bills, and increased taxation. The political situation arising from the conflict of the opposing programs of the government and part of its parliamentary majority is so complex that no political experts risks a forecast of the outcome.

The uncertainty as to the future gives rise to alarming rumors, but the French nation as a whole, with undisturbed equanimity watches the franc tumble with increasing rapidity and listens to the threatening reports of a capital levy, inflation to the amount of ten billion francs and a possible cut of from 30 to 50 per cent in the interest on governmental bonus without a trace of financial stampede. This is the saving feature of the situation, and the Bourse today, despite the weakness of the franc, was firm.

The plan attributed in well informed circles to the minister of finance, comprises a new department, attached to the finance ministry, called "la commission of amortization" which would, independent of the other departments have charge of the sinking fund provided to retire any new issue of bills and pay debts. The commission would have control of the issue of national defense bonds and would have power to restrict the total issue to the amount now outstanding.

It would be given power also to limit all forms of floating debt and see that the proceeds of the new financial measures were applied strictly to the reduction of circulation and the public debt.

This, it is said, is the measure which M. Caillaux relies on to reassure the public that the new issue of paper money he will ask for is not intended for the current needs of the treasury.

Financial circles still display confidence in the minister, but an element of extreme doubt is thrown into the situation by the attitude of the socialists and the decision of the radical convention that the government must rely on for support on a coalition of radicals and socialists.

NEW YORK CASE INVOLVES $2,000,000 WORTH OF JEWELRY

NEW YORK, Oct. 22—(A. P.)—While detectives stood guard over him, Harry A. Cohn, young jewelry salesman charged with the hypothecation of approximately $2,000,000 worth of jewelry obtained from local brokers today identified $200,000 worth of diamonds bracelets and pendants which were poured upon a table before him.

The jewels were turned over to the National Jewelers' Board of Trade by Wachs & Herman, jewelers, to whom it is alleged Cohn gave them as collateral for a loan through a "go between" the concern produced the jewels for inspection today after having been cited for contempt for failure to do so yesterday.

Jewelers who entrusted Cohn with valuables crowded the chamber in which the hearing upon an indictment charging Cohn with conspiracy to conceal assets in contemplated bankruptcy was conducted.

GOV'T. VESSELS VIOLATING THE "RULES OF THE ROAD"

NEW YORK, Oct. 22—(A. P.)—Protest was issued today by the American Steamship Licensed Officers association against the alleged practice of government vessels in sailing the "rules of the road" in the lanes of travel that are used by merchant vessels.

It was charged that on September 21 a scout cruiser "deliberately ran into the schooner Benjamin Van Brunt just south of Cape Henry, causing the schooner to sink and it was only by a miracle that the crew was saved, but every one on the schooner lost everything but what they stood in."

On behalf of the masters and officers of American steamships the protest warns that accidents similar to the S-51 disaster are likely to happen in the future unless the "present and past tactics" of government vessels are changed.

GREECE AND BULGARIA ARE ON THRESHOLD OF RUPTURE

Detachments of Greek Troops Advancing to Occupy a Post on the Bulgarian Border Met With Resistance From the Bulgarian Garrison—Greek Premier Has Declined to Enter Parleys as Long as Bulgarians Remain on Greek Territory—Greeks and Bulgarians Are Engaged in Battle on the Macedonian Frontier—Athens Dispatch Asserts That Bulgaria Has Accepted the Terms of the Greek Note.

ATHENS, Oct. 22—(AP)—It is officially announced that detachments of the Greek third army corps, advancing to occupy a post on the Bulgarian border, met with resistance from the Bulgarian garrison. Fighting is in progress.

The Bulgarian charge d'affaires today visited Premier Pangalos with a proposal that a commission of inquiry be appointed to investigate the border troubles. The Greek premier, however, refused to discuss the matter as long as Bulgarians remain on Greek territory.

HOW PARIS LOOKS UPON GRECO-BULGARIAN CONFLICT

PARIS, Oct. 22—(AP)—The Greco-Bulgarian border conflict is likened in Greek diplomatic circles here to the troubles the United States had with "Pancho" Villa along the Mexican border in 1916.

The so-called ultimatum which the Athens government has sent to Bulgaria, it is explained, does not convey a war threat, but merely an earnest desire—"in Bulgaria's own interest"—to finish with the Macedonian agitators, who are a constant source of difficulty to Jugoslavia, Greece and Bulgaria.

The Greeks affirm that they do not hold the Bulgarians themselves responsible, but, in view of the alleged shooting of a Greek officer while bearing a flag of truce, and the occupation of three blockhouses of Grecian territory, they must insist on adequate reparation, the withdrawal of Bulgar troops and assurances that there will be no recurrence of Macedonian aggression.

Bulgarian diplomats, however, esteem the incident worthy of reference to the league of nations and are confident that the Sofia government will lodge a strong protest, in view of the alleged Greek occupation of three Bulgar blockhouses and the killing of five Bulgarian soldiers.

They do not admit the right of the Greeks or anybody to police their territory, but proclaim that the last thing Bulgaria in her present disarmed state desires is war. They are willing to submit the case to an impartial inquiry under the auspices of the league of nations, punish the guilty and pay indemnity if Bulgaria is found at fault, but they resent the presence of Greeks in Bulgaria because they suspect that the Hellenic government has been seeking for a long time a pretext to gain a foothold in that region.

ENGAGED IN BATTLE ON THE MACEDONIAN FRONTIER

ATHENS, Oct. 22. (AP)—Greek and Bulgarian soldiers are engaged in battle on the Macedonian frontier. The Greek command is making an encircling movement on the heights around the town of Petrich, about 20 miles to the northwest of Demirhissar, where the first clash between Greek and Bulgarian patrols occurred Monday.

This is the official information given out here, and it is further announced that the Bulgarians have received reinforcements at Demir-Kapu.

The movement against Petrich is to compel the Bulgarians to evacuate Greek territory, and the fall of Petrich is considered imminent.

The Bulgarians are offering stubborn resistence, but the Greek losses are said to be unimportant. Seven Bulgarians have been captured.

The report of the Greek general staff, the present trouble, quotes textually in the Greek not to Bulgaria sets forth, firstly, that the Bulgarians opened fire first by surprise without provocation or motive; secondly, that the Bulgarians deliberately after careful preparation, concentrated forces out of proportion to such incidents and utilized machine guns, and, thirdly, that the Bulgarian offensive probably was intended to facilitate Comitadji incursions into Greek territory.

The report adds that it is known that Bulgarians have been evasively recruiting soldiers in the guise of labor battalions and civic guard, numbers of whom were found with the Bulgarian attacking forces, thus permitting the assumption that their object was to foment trouble in Macedonia.

TERMS OF GREEK NOTE ACCEPTED BY BULGARIA

LONDON, Oct. 22—(A. P.)—The Athens correspondent of the Daily Mail understands that Bulgaria has accepted the terms of the Greek note. The Macedonian frontier incidents, he says, are expected to have no further consequences.

GLOUCESTER SCHOONER WAS SUNK IN COLLISION

BOSTON, Oct. 22—(A. P.)—An investigation will be held by the local office of the United States Steamboat Inspection service to determine the circumstances under which the Gloucester fishing schooner Nirvana was sunk early today off Cape Cod in collision with the steamer Absecon, Norfolk for Boston.

Contradictory stories were told by captains and crews of the two vessels, each party placing upon the other full responsibility for the accident.

The identity of the vessel which struck the Nirvana was not known until the Absecon docked here late today and Captain James E. McCallum, her veteran skipper, filed a sworn report with the steamboat inspectors in which he said the fishermen collided with his vessel and then continued on its way showing no distress signals and asking for no aid.

Captain Lee Murray of the Nirvana and his crew of 12 landed earlier in the day at the life saving station at Cahoon's Hollow, Cape Cod, after an eight mile row in their two dories. They reported that while the schooner was at anchor preparing to lay out seines at daybreak, an unknown collier crashed into the vessel cutting it in two, and then proceeded on its course, leaving the Nirvana to founder. The shipwrecked crew escaped to the dories and began the long row to the coast.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

The Service battery, Danielson, will be one of the half dozen or more military organizations participating in the Armistice day observance to be held in Putnam, an outstanding feature of which will be the dedication of a Memorial bridge across the Quinebaug river in Pomfret street. In addition to the Service battery, which includes the 192nd Field Artillery band, three other companies of the regiment will be in the line of march. There also will be some infantry companies. Hundreds of Danielson people are planning to see the parade and to be present for other features of what will be Putnam's most impressive Armistice day observance since the first one on the memorable November 11, 1918.

From Woodstock and Eastford tales are coming of the operations of hen thieves. Raiders have made off with a considerable haul of poultry in that territory recently. Automobiles are said to figure in the operations, allowing the thieves to get in from distant points and away again before morning brings a realization of loss to the owners of the raided coops. State Officer Merrill Keith of the Danielson barracks has been making an investigation relative to the thef'

Danielson business interests are pricking up their ears over the propaganda in Putnam, Willimantic and even Hartford as to keeping money in your own home town. Danielson has no quarrel with this effort. It has preached the doctrine itself in the past. The interest in the propaganda here is that it should be duplicated in Danielson. Danielson business enterprises could use the great amount of money earned here and spent in other towns. Putting it a bit loosely, a ton of money goes out of here every month. Putnam is getting at the problem through a united effort of its business men. Danielson might do likewise. This town fears no competition if quality and prices be considered. But Danielson has been keeping its light under a bushel of late. It has not been intensive in efforts to get business and hold it.

Thursday afternoon at the undertaking rooms of L. E. Kennedy, funeral services for Joseph Gorkawaski, 60, were conducted by Rev. Chester J. Armstrong of the Baptist church. Burial was in the town's cemetery at Dayville. Mr. Gorkawaski died October 4 at Goodyear. He had no relatives living there, but at the time acquaintances said he had a son who was believed to be in Providence. Effort was made to locate the son in that city, but without success, though the police department lent its aid in the search. Meanwhile the body has been held at Mr. Kennedy's undertaking rooms. On Thursday hope of locating relatives of the man failed and the funeral was held. Mr. Gorkawaski had been a mill worker. He died from natural causes

With the exception of the Brooklyn center schools, the schools of Killingly and Brooklyn are closed today (Friday) in order that the teachers may attend the annual teachers' convention. A number of the teachers from this town will attend the session at Slater hall, Norwich Free academy.

Before the Public Utilities commission at Hartford today (Friday) one of a number of hearings on the matter of establishing bus lines will have to do with consideration of a proposal of granting a permit for a charter for a bus line from Providence to Hartford via East Killingly. On its face this proposition looks like a joker, though it may have very serious intent back of it. There is no state road direct between Providence and East Killingly. There is a break in the state road system between East Killingly and Dayville and another break between Goodyear and Pomfret. Bus lines have not made a practice of plying over country roads, and it would be a tough proposition to try it between Providence and East Killingly in the winter season. But—the state of Rhode Island has plans for building a state highway from one of its present trunk lines at North Scituate to the Connecticut line near East Killingly over an old Providence-Hartford state coach route. Connecticut has surveyed the breaks in the trunk line system between Dayville Four Corners and East Killingly and between Goodyear and the state highway near Pomfret Landing, on the Putnam-Willimantic line. It is possible that men with foresight see a chance to get a franchise to operate over this route—when it is built—and hold that franchise to sell to the big interests operating busses when the proper time arrives. They used to do that little stunt with trolley franchises, and it has been done with bus line franchises—right here in Connecticut.

For the present the scramble for franchises to operate busses is entertaining and interesting. Of course, the thing is being overdone and no one knows that better than those in the bus transportation enterprise. Bus lines are here to stay, but six or seven are not really required over a single route, the bus people hold, and there is small need of lines running through the woods. Some of the promotion is without doubt a gamble for chances to get something for nothing and sell it for a fat price—a franchise for instance.

The death of Mrs. Grace mEelie Danielson, wife of Willard S. Danielson, occurred early Wednesday evening at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam, where Mrs. Danielson had been a patient for eleven weeks. The body was removed to Danielson. Mrs. Danielson, who had been in a precarious state of health for a long time, was born in Brooklyn, August 11, 1878, daughter of Melvin E. and Amie A. Chaffee Fisher. The family came to Danielson when Mrs. Danielson was a child. Mrs. Danielson leaves her husband and father, who is an invalid and now resident in Abington.

The body of Edward F. Weaver, 74, will arrive here today (Friday) from Oakland Beach, where he died Tuesday. Mr. Weaves lived the greater part of his life in Brooklyn and Killingly and worked for years here at his trade as a carpenter. He was a native of the town of Brooklyn. For years he lived on Oak street in Danielson. He leaves his second wife, a son by his first marriage, Harry F. Weaver of Providence, two sisters, Mrs. Jane Harris, Mrs. Alice Bass, and a brother, George Weaver, all of the West Side.

ANOTHER GILPATRIC SUIT, AGAINST F. E. CUNNEEN

(Speci. to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Oct. 22—Pertaining to new disclosures of operations of G. Harold Gilpatric, former cashier of the First National bank of Putnam, is the fact that Receiver Coffin, representing the federal government has started suit in the superior court for this county against Frederick E. Cunneen, of Danielson to recover for the bank $12,000 that was loaned. Mr. Cunneen's residence on Broad street here has been attached in connection with the court action. Mr. Cunneen for a number of years operated the River Woolen company, the plant being near the state armory here.

THEODORE FULTON WITNESSED MONITOR-MERRIMAC CLASH

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 22—Out of Pomfret comes a story relative to Frank J. Miner and as to his being the last survivor of a famous Civil war regiment—the 62nd New York, otherwise known as the Red Zouaves or Red Devils, as they were known by the Confederates. The regiment made a splendid record.

Danielson, too, has a survivor of another famous regimegt—the 9th New York, known in history as Hawkins' Zouaves. He is Theodore Fulton of Academy street. Mr. Fulton had many thrilling experiences during the Civil war. He participated in numerous severe engagements with the Zouaves and his tales of the stirring days of the Civil war are as thrilling as pages from a best seller.

An incident that stands out in his memory is the battle between the Monitor and the Merrimac. He was a witness of the first clash in history between ironclad vessels. At about the time the stage was being set for the now famous struggle between the "Yankee Cheesebox on a Raft" and the imposing Jerrimac, pride of the Confederate fleet, Mr. Fulton was stationed on Roanoke Island and was assigned as a despatch bearer between Fortress Monroe and Newport News.

On the particular day that the Monitor steamed out to meet the Merrimac and, as it proved, to write one of the most brilliant pages in American naval history, Mr. Fulton was at the Hygeia hotel, which had been converted into a hospital for the care of incapacitated Union troops. It was from the roof of this hotel that he gazed out over the waters and watched the desperate encounter between the two ironclads. Passing years have not dimmed the memories of the emotions that he experienced while watching one of the decisive battles of naval history. One may imagine his exultation over the Monitor's victory.

Thinking back to that and other war days, Mr. Fulton has many a story to tell. This generation, thinking little of Civil war days, finds it difficult to realize that there are men hereabouts who, as picturesque Zouaves, fought many a brave fight for the nation and now find one of their most satisfying pleasures in hours of retrospection of those stirring times in the long, dim past.

GULDEN'S SALADRESSING MUSTARD

PUTNAM

Frederick W. Shaw, treasurer of the Hemingway Silk company died at his home in Bayonne, N. J., after a week's illness from pneumonia.

Mr. Shaw was associated with Ex-Senator George A. Hammond when the Hammond Knowlton was started and then with the Hemingway people when the two companies were merged. Although he has never lived in Putnam, he was a frequent visitor here and attended the annual field day of the employes held at Alexander's Lake Sept. 25 and distributed the prizes to the winners of the events.

Charles K. Shaw of Pawtucket, R. I., one of his sons, formerly lived in Putnam. He had two other sons, Arthur and Louis and a married daughter, Louis E. Law, superintendent of the local mill went to Bayonne to attend the funeral Thursday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Robinson and son, Raymond, have been visiting at Lebanon, Conn., where they attended the 225th anniversary of the Lebanon Congregational church. During the exercises Mrs. Robinson sang several times. Lebanon is the birthplace of Mr. Robinson and in his boyhood he attended the Congregational church there.

Charles Hopkins A. Woodstock, milkman is somewhat bruised and shaken as the result of an accident. He had started his milk to the place for collecting it at the joining of the roads below the Tower place and had stepped behind his truck to remove his milk cans when a car coming from the opposite direction struck Mr. Hopkins just as he was stepping back into the road. Mr. Hopkins had left his truck engine running, so did not hear the approaching car.

At a special town meeting held in Pomfret it was decided by a vote of 114 to 46 not to buy any fire fighting apparatus. James P. Sharpe of Abington was the spokesman for the opposition. He claimed that it would need a large expenditure and a yearly outlay for the upkeep and would be of little benefit to a majority of the residents.

Charles V. Cusmamn stated that he had obtained $1,000 in pledges toward buying a pump or chemical truck and that he could secure at least $500 more and he thought it would make for better fire protection, with a comparative small outlay.

Chepachet had a close call when a fire started in the building occupied by Wilbur Gould as a garage, and William Goodman as an ice cream parlor. Flames swept quickly to the house next door occupied by Gould and the two-family house occupied by Mrs. Ellen Rose and Mr. William and family. A blacksmith shop and three sheds were destroyed, together with the garage and the ice cream parlor. There were also a number of roof fires. The cause of the fire is not known and the loss is estimated at $20,000. Four small automobiles were destroyed with the garage.

Frederick Bennett of this city has been operated upon for appendicitis at the Day Kimball hospital.

Omer Milot was in Boston this week attending a meeting of the New England Clothiers' association, of which organization he has long been a member.

As this is Old Ironsides week and lodges of Elks all over the United States are endeavoring to raise $600,000 to restore the old Constitution by interesting the school children in the movement, to help the cause members of Elizabeth Porter Putnam chapter D. A. R., addressed the pupils Thursday morning. Mrs. Mary B. Bishop spoke at the high school, Mrs. W. R. Barber at the Smith Street school and Mrs. G. Dwight Sharpe at Israel Putnam school.

Israel Putnam lodge of Odd Fellows entertained nearly 200 members of the order at their hall for the working of the fifth degree, after which a banquet was served. Nineteen candidates received the first degree, worked by the degree team of Israel Putnam lodge. There were visitors from Central Village, Danielson, Willimantic, Webster and Pascoag lodges.

The Hi-Y club held its weekly meeting at the Congregational church with a good attendance. The subjects were educational problems and interesting talks were given on "Education out of School" and the "Service of Preparation." Minot Horne and James Valda were the speakers. Next week at the same place a Hallowe'en supper and social will be held by the club.

In rounding a sharp corner from South Main to Front street, at 5.30 Thursday evening a trolley car left the tracks. It struck a telegraph pole and cut it off at the base and crashed into the abutment of the overhead railroad bridge that spans the street at this point. Everett Pellet of Danielson, the operator, was the only person on the car and he escaped without injury. The front of the car was pressed in. Traffic was held up for considerable time at this busy corner.

A party was given Thursday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Justin S. Greene, the date being Mr. Greene's birthday. Whist was played and refreshments were served.

Miss Katherine Bryne, vice chairman of the republican state central committee was the chief speaker before the Republican club at Glastonbury. Miss Bryne has also recently been the speaker before the Republican club in Suffield, and on Saturday is to speak at the Fairfield County Republican association, which olds a meeting in Danbury.

VICTORY FOR THOMPSON MAN IN SCHOOL BOARD PAYMENTS

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 22.—A supreme court victory for Edward J. Keegan, of Thompson, against the selectmen of that town in his efforts to prevent the payment of bills of school committeemen, was among several decisions handed down by the supreme court of errors. It was the only case in which error was found. The cause was remanded to the lower court to be proceeded with in accordance with the finding of the supreme court.

Keegan sued the town of Thompson, Edgar H. Corttis, Dyer S. Elliott Wilfred H. Bellerose, Charles V. Chase and Claus A. Hagstrom. The action was brought in the superior court of Windham county by the plaintiff as a taxpayer in the town of Thompson. The defendant, Corttis, is a member of the town school committee and is now chairman of it. The defendant Elliott is treasurer of the town, and Bellerose, Chase and Hagstrom are the selectmen of the town.

The action was brought claiming damages of $2,000 against Corttis and a permanent injunction restraining him from collecting and the other defendants from paying, for services and expenses as members of the town school committee. The case was heard before Judge Maltbie, who found for the defendants. The plaintiff appealed from the decision.

FOUR LOANS BY GILPATRIC DEMANDED OF DIRECTORS

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 22.—The directors of the wrecked First National bank of this city have nothing to say for publication about the demand of Receiver George M. Coffin that they pay over to him $125,000 the amount of four loans made by G. Harold Gilpatric, the cashier, which the receiver declares were unwarranted and should have been turned down by the directors. It is the reviva of a similar demand, made in March of this year, through the late Charles L. Searls, then attorney for the receiver. He sent a formal letter to each of the directors asking them to confer with him as to their liability in the transactions. Mr. Searls' last illness began two weeks later and the matter has remained dormant since then.

The fact that Mr. Searls did not institute suit but asked for a conference was taken to indicate that an offer for a lesser amount might be acceptable. It is believed that this is still the disposition of Mr. Coffin and the comptroller of the currency, but the announcement is made that the receiver holds the directors liable and that hte claim will not be dropped.

John F. Carpenter of this city, and Edward M. Day, of Hartford, have been retained as counsel for the directors. Elbert L. Darbie of anieson speaker of the house of representatives succeeds Mr. Searles as attorney for the receiver. Lucius Robinson of Hartford is also counsel for him.

Charles H. Brown, who was president of the bank and one of the directors is in his 83rd year. John A. Dady, silk manufacturer, who was one of the directors, died four months ago. John Q. Fox, another director, is to be operated on today at the Massachusetts General hospital for a very serious malady. The other directors are Silas M. Wheelock, agent for the Putnam Woolen company, a brother-in-law of Gilpatric. Ransom H. Bradley, Oscar Dugay, retail grocer Edward Mullan, retail grocer and L. E. Smith, formerly head of Smith and Walker, furniture dealers and undertakers.

The $40,000 loan to the Monson Mass. Worsted company is practically a total loss. The company was organized three years ago by Thomas J. Corcoran, Jr., who was the directing head of the French River Textile company of this city and was reputed to be a very able textile man. A loan almost as large was advanced the company by Gilpatric personally. Mr Corcoran was divorced from his first wife a year ago and two months later married again. He is now a designer for a textile mill in Philadelphia, and the remnants of the company are being disposed of by a receiver.

Of the loans for which the receiver asks restitution, one for $5,000 against the A. Vito Construction company, of which "Tony" Vito is the head, and another of $20,000 against Edward Murillo, Vito's brother-in-law. Vito formerly lived in Thompson, but is now a resident of Webster, Mass. The company is still engaged in business as road contractors but their visible assets are believed to be less than $5,000.

It was said frequently that Gilpatric was personally interested in the company that he used his influence to secure contracts for the company, from the state, and that as the payments would come through his office as state treasurer he was in a position to see when these loans could be repaid.

The loans to the Vitos and Corcoran total $115,000. The fourth claim is for a loan of $10,000 made to the Robert Machine company of Worcester, Mass of which Gilpatric was a director. This company, now in a receiver's hands, was engaged in making and marketing a new kind of welding machine.

But a few days before Gilpatric's attempt on his life, an offer was made by a large corporation, it is stated to take over the concern for $40,000 which would have covered its liabilities. As in the Corcoran case, Gilpatric had advanced considerable sums out of his private means.

Mr. Coffin has taken no action with respect to a possible suit against State Treasurer E. E. Rogers of New London, to recover approximately $155,000 in Liberty bonds alleged to have been bought by Gilpatric for the state with funds taken from trust funds at his disposal as cashier of the bank.

The suit against the directors, it is thought, would be the second instituted by Receiver Coffin. Legal action was recently started by him in the Superior court for Windham county to recover $12,000 loaned to Fred E. Cunneen, of Danielson. No criticism of the directors was made in bringing that suit, and Mr. Cunneen's residence in Danielson was attached. A claim, however, has been filed by Mr. Coffin against the Gilpatric estate for $250,000 to reimburse the bank for losses.

The receiver's charge against the directors in the matter of the four loans mentioned is that they did not examine the teller's blotter often enough to keep in touch with big transactions, for which they were responsible.

Don't think that because a man is idle he is a loafer. He may have a political job.

Will He Be The Third Husband Of Mrs. Wilson?

Dr. Sterling Ruffin, noted Washington physician, who is reported soon to wed Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, widow of the War President, and formerly Edith Bolling Galt. It is known that they were reported engaged at the time Mrs. Galt met President Wilson. She is still in Paris, but Dr. Ruffin left there on September 23 for home. Mrs. Wilson refuses to deny or confirm the rumors.

Rev. E. P. Ayer, blind chaplain of the state senate and a former pastor of Mansfield Center Congregational church, spoke on "Public Men and Affairs" at the weekly meeting of the Willimantic Exchange club, held at the Spring Hill church Wednesday evening. The president, Dr. Clarence E Simonds was in charge. Guests included: F. R. Pember of Kingston, R. I., and Paul Ives of Guilford with Prof. W. F. Kirkpatrick of Storrs; Frank A. Ferguson of Storrs with Dr. G. E. Wilcox; W. A. Houston of Mansfield Four Corners of G. W. Fraser; Rev. E. P. Ayer of Branford with President Simonds; E. Leonard Grees of Providence, R. I., with Lyndon E. Little; and Clarence Ellison of Windham Center with Dr. F. E. Guild.

In the absence of Dr. F. C. Williams, chairman of the program committee, Rev. T. Hawthorne Jones acted in his stead and called on the speakers. Rev. Mr. Ayer reviewed the activities at the capitol and the types of men who carry on the business of the state. He believes that the legislators are interested solely in giving their services on behalf of the state, rather than from whatever income may be derived through their work. In this instances he pointed out the case of Bert Plant, a representative of the town of Branford, who gives his services for sixty dollars a month, considerably less than he has to pay for a hired man to replace him on his forty acre orchard, twelve acres of strawberries and tracts of other produce.

Rev. Mr. Ayer was house chaplain in 1921. He was pastor of the Mansfield church for eight years and his father was pastor of the same church in the sixties.

Principal Egbert A. Case of Windham High school and Edwin J. Donnelly reminded the members of the Windham High-Hartford High schools football encounter at Recreation Park Saturday afternoon next. Adjournment was taken at nine o'clock.

Mrs. Louise E. Bergeron Prue died at her home at 98 South street at four o'clock Thursday morning, after a lingering illness. Mrs. Prue was a native of this city, born May 16, 1884, a daughter of Pierre and Eugenie Arircault Bergeron. She was a well-known and much respected resident. Surviving here is her husband, Frank Prue; three children, Albert B. T. Prue, Miss Blanche F., and Miss Evelyn L. Prue; two sisters, Mrs. Harry Tubba of Norwich and Miss Eva Bergeron of this city; and four brothers, Adelard, Arthur and Philip of this city and Henry Bergeron of Chicago. She was a devout member of St. Mary's parish.

The death of Frank A. Haskell occurred at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Joseph Brown of Storrs, Wednesday night. He was born in Providence, R. I., March 21, 1851, and is survived by his wife, a daughter, Mrs Lillian Brown of Storrs and a son, Bert A. Haskell, of this city.

Clare Hutchins, five days old daughter of Howard Arthur and Rachael Hutchins Stanley, died at the private hospital at an early hour Thursday morning.

Speakers from Windham High school who visited schools in the city this week on behalf of the Old Ironsides committee of the local lodge of Elks were: John Nichols, Thomas Meikle, Gordon Bower, Louise Wilson, Virginia Paine, Natalia Burnham, Julius Pobuda and Carl Webber. Contributions are being made in such volume that an S. O. S. call has been issued to national headquarters for an addition allotment of 3,500 Old Ironsides buttons.

Unique collection boxes have been placed in several stores about the city to receive contributions from local people for the testimonial to be tendered St. Joseph's Boy Scout band and its director, Charles N. C. Wheeler. Albert J. Fournier, chairman of the subscription committee announced Thursday that contributions of larger amounts than those dropped in old brass horns used as boxes can be pledged by signing subscription blanks.

Many from this city and surrounding towns attended the annual harvest supper at the Congregational church Wednesday evening. Mrs. Arthur C. Everest was chairman of the committee and Mrs. Frank P. Fenton in charge of the dining room. Mrs. Christopher Abernethy supervised in the kitchen. The hall was in festive decorations.

An automobile operated by a local person whose identity is unknown, collided with the fire alarm box on Main street at the foot of Ash street late Thursday forenoon, damaging the fastenings attaching the box to the pole. Fire Chief Henry J. Kelley inspected the box and found that in spite of the blow it was still in working order.

Merchants on Church stret were especially jubilant Thursday when the street became a remarkably smooth and inviting thoroughfare, as the covering of asphalt was ironed out almost by magic hand. Edward Ball, of Hartford, in charge of the work looked with pride on the work that had been done within two days and at six o'clock removed the closed-street signs and said affably, "There it is. 'Now go to it and use it.' You will never need my services for this street again." With this a line of motor cars glided over the section

At the Thursday evening prayer service at the Methodist church, Rev. A. S. Muirhead, the pastor spoke on "Temptations, What are They and are They Common to Folks? The general theme of the services is the Life of Christ.

REFUSAL OF 10% PROVES DISASTROUS FOR BOTH SIDES

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 22—With the thirty-third week of the strike of the former operatives of the American Thread company coming to a close, investigation shows that no new developments of outstanding interest have materialized for some time. At present the situation is literally at a standstill.

A review of the standpoint of the striker s and their activities show that the picket line is still being maintained, mass meetings continue to be held at Central Labor Union hall and the Gem theatre, the "Tented City" has been taken down and stored away for the winter, a commissary store has been established on Jackson street and collections are still being made in various cities in and about the state.

The strikers have lost from their ranks through various sources. Some of the strikers have gone to other cities to work. Some of them have simply dropped from the ranks and become just plain "unemployed" and others have been ostracized because they attempted or actually returned to their jobs. As to those remaining faithful, they were given courage and cheer through the censuring of the American Thread company officials at the recent national convention of the American Federation of Labor at Atlantic City, N. J., and the announcement that the organization would stand back of the striking body. These loyal ones continue to meet every day and discuss their problems and listen to remarks by labor leaders. The commissary store was established on the grounds that provisions could be given the strikers at a more reasonable rate than could be procured from local grocery, meat and clothing stores. The place is under the supervision of the local president, Miss Amy L. Hooker assisted by George LeBlond, Edward Curran, John Lutton and others and is well stocked with supplies. Every day from 8 a. m. to 2 p. m. food and clothing supplies are distributed to strikers presenting proper credentials showing that they are entitled to assistance. Canned and prepared boxed foods are in an abundance of vegetables are to be found. There is also a choice of shoes and clothing, most of which is recly-

FRANCE MAY TRY AGAIN

Word that comes from Paris is to the effect that another proposition will be made to this country by the debt commission of France before action is taken by France on the counter proposal made by this government which terminated the last conference. This confirms the belief that France is not favorable to the temporary arrangement that it does not like the idea of delaying adjustment for a period of five years and that it appreciates the benefit which would be attached to an actual adjustment.

The Caillaux commission came here before confident that it would be able to reach a satisfactory agreement. In connection with the new proposal it is to be supposed that it entertains the same view. But it has the advantage of knowing what this country expects and should therefore appreciate the importance of getting pretty close to that position in any new proposition which it will have to offer.

The five year delay in adjustment which was recommended by the United States commission after it was found that no other agreement could be reached would have kept open the question of settlement. It was a move that prevented a rupture of the understanding. There was the desire for deciding upon terms of settlement both now and abroad. France now recognizes what effect delay would have upon its credit. It desires to obtain loans and it looks to this country under such circumstances but there can be no disposition to make further loans to France at a high rate of interest when it has failed to adjust existing loans at a much lower rate.

Perhaps France knows that it can put itself in a better light through some other arrangement than the one suggested by this country to serve temporarily. There is no question but that it will be given a chance to try, as far as this government is concerned. Adjustment is what is sought rather than delay and none should appreciate the benefit to be derived from that more than France itself. It is not unreasonable that France can see a parallel to its financial problems as the result of the conference at Locarno.

USE OF SUBSTITUTES

Repeatedly there is the position taken on various matters that something ought to be done to bring about needed change, when as a matter of fact the remedy lies in the hands of the people themselves. Instead of looking to the government for every little thing, and many times without reason the desirability of getting away from the helpless dependent state needs to get greater attention.

Concerning the coal situation as the head of the state, the Indianapolis News says: "The interruptions at frequent intervals in the production of anthracite which could be prevented by more intelligent and far-minded conduct of their affairs by both the employers and employes, will not forever be suffered. We can think of no more effective way to bring the parties directly concerned to their senses than to buy substitutes for anthracite. The willingness of residents in western states to do that, even when they had been accustomed to the use of hard coal, has made that fuel less and less a factor in heating. An accelerated tendency in the same direction in the east would break the virtual monopoly the anthracite industry has possessed among householders and make for fair prices."

Whether it is the coal operators, the coal miners or the speculators, who are ready to take advantage of every opportunity which arises to aid in squeezing the public, to whom the finger can be pointed for the lack of sufficient anthracite to meet requirements at a fair price, it is none too soon for the consumer to realize that he is not helpless in keeping out of their clutches. He may be used to anthracite but if it cannot be obtained without paying far more than it is worth the oportunity of making use of a substitute that will produce more heat units for less money should not be disregarded. The middle west knows what it means to use such substitutes and in advocating them it is urging nothing but what it is already doing itself.

When the public has a chance to do something for itself, it should make haste in coming to its own rescue.

TEXAN TROUBLES

From Texas comes the report that steps are going to be taken to impeach the governor of that state, Mrs. James Ferguson. It was not but a comparatively short time ago that her husband was governor and was impeached. It would certainly be an odd turn of events if Mrs. Ferguson should go through the same experience and yet in view of the fact that it has been openly admitted that the former governor is now the actual guiding force in Texas there can be no surprise at the possibility.

As the situation stands, and as the charges are made, though awaiting substantiation, there can be no sympathy for Texas if it went into its predicament with its eyes open. It knew what Ferguson stood for and did as governor. It knew that Mrs. Ferguson sought election for the purpose of vindicating his impeachment. It knows that she proceeded immediately to remove the stain placed upon him and it knows that it was the common claim that if she should be elected it would be the former governor who would be the real governor. If the charges made are correct it is simply a fulfillment of what was predicted would happen in the Lone Star State.

Just how much of the present agitation is due to actual facts and disclosures regarding conditions and how much can be charged up to politics will be revealed in time. It is the same with the talked of impeachment. The attorney general of the state is calling for the cancellation of something like 40 highway contracts aggregating about $2,000,000 because the husband of the governor has been letting such contracts and awarding them to the highest bidders. The claim is that the state's money has been badly wasted. Now the people of Texas are going to resent upon these charges is a question. Certainly those who brought about the election of "Ma" Ferguson and the vindication of her husband will insist upon being convinced that the claims are correct, but if the meantime those who have been outspoken in their opposition to the Ferguson regime are not going to be backward in making the most of the situation which the attorney general has called to attention.

DEALING WITH CRIME

Dealing with the criminal is getting to be a bigger problem than ever. Crime is too prevalent and it is being demanded on all sides that more effective measures in dealing with it be taken. There is a growing opposition to the extension of leniency, for that has been grossly misjudged. Too many are the instances where it receives the interpretation of encouragement.

A Massachusetts judge when about to sentence three young men, two of whom had not reached their majority, for assaulting and robbing an old man declared that it would be useless for a lawyer to ask him to grant probation for any crime of violence. The folly of yielding to any such plea had been made painfully clear to the judge and he was convinced of the need of using rectitude in dealing with the young criminals.

Another recognition of the harm that accompanies the display of leniency is to be found in the disgust manifested by a New York jurist when sentencing for murder a man who committed a crime while out on parole. How many other instances are there when this same result has followed. The raroging of prisoners just because they have been in restraint long enough to merit such consideration, but who have no intention of leading a different life and are soon back at their old practices of preying upon the public?

There is need of giving careful consideration to duty all along the whole line by those who are vested with the responsibility of enforcing the law and protecting the public welfare. Crime multiplies rapidly under the slightest encouragement.

DISARMAMENT

Though it may not be the time now, the time will come when it will be advisable to call another conference in behalf of disarmament, when the nations that participate will be desirous of such a step and it has been indicated from Washington that this country is ready to make any move that may be considered advisable when that time arrives. That view was expressed some time ago and it has been recently reiterated.

Perhaps it was natural that it should be raised at this time following the successful outcome at Locarno, but progress in such matters is not likely to be so rapid. Much is expected as the result of the understanding reached by the nations of Europe but it is advisable to wait and see whether developments are in accord with expectations. It is well to get the effects of the security pacts and treaties. They may accomplish more than has been anticipated and they may accomplish less. It is well to see what the behavior is under actual operation.

When the time does come for the taking up the matter of reducing armaments it has been set forth that Washington believes that any such conference dealing with land armaments should be held in Europe while a conference on naval reductions should be held here. This gives recognition to the fact that the question of armies is a problem that is particularly European. The nations of that continent are much more deeply concerned than this country. But when it comes to the navy we are quite as much concerned as any of the others. We have taken a lead in the reduction of armaments and our position in that respect is not likely to be altered in any subsequent conference on that subject. Our willingness to participate, or even initiate should not be taken to mean that there will be an immediate move made.

THE SEWING CIRCLE

The fluffy-haired blond arrived late for the second time in a month. She removed her hat, adjusted her spectacles and, with that air of the fluffy-haired person with a gentle shock in the manner of a ruffled bird, and produced a businesslike work bag from which she dug out a handful of white silk stockings.

"I've been so busy lately that my mending has piled up alarmingly," she said. "I don't know where it all comes from, anyway. It's like those new subdivisions on the coast of Florida—"

She scowled at a run in a white silk leg while the circle regarded her.

"Oh, maybe you haven't been to Florida lately," she explained finally. "Well, you just dig out a little sand from a low place in the ocean, you know, and pile it up on a high place until it sticks out of the water, and then you name it Shellscomb Beach or something and stake it off and sell it to tourists for buildings lots. Awfully simple. If I'd known ten years ago that the real estate business required no more effort of the intellect than that I'd opened an office myself. And then I shouldn't need to darn stockings for the rest of my life. But I suppose I acquire virtue by remaining poor and setting an example of industry."

"Pity about you," remarked the young matron with the auburn wave. "Is it a thwarted ambition in the world of business that's giving you that puckker in the middle of your forehead today, or is your new cook a failure?"

"Neither," admitted the fluffy-haired blond rubbing at the offending puckker with a slim forefinger. "I've lost Bill again, that's all. But it worries me."

"Bill?" echoed the newest member.

The young matron with the auburn wave smiled wickedly. "This paragon of economy uses fourteen-carat gold hairpins," she explained with relish. "Five of them, all named. And Bill is the largest of the lot. He goes in to the first and heaviest coil, and is the keystone, you might say, that holds up her crown of glory. When did you lose him?" she added to the owner.

"Yesterday," said the fluffy-haired blond, sadly. "And he was the best hairpin I had, absolutely reliable, and worn so smooth and nice—"

"Where'd you lose him?"

"If I knew that, I could go and find him, couldn't I?"

"Oh, not necessarily," said the young matron. "I know exactly where I lost the last half dozen napkins of my best dinner set, but when I went to find 'em the laundress had moved to Jail and her cousin from Mississippi had preempted the premises, as the local agent said. Pre-emptied was right, too, believe me."

The fluffy-haired blond sighed heartlessly. "You do have such bad luck with your linen and silver," she said with a twinkle.

The young matron glared at her warningly, but the fluffy-haired blond shook her head. "Tell it yourself, then," she said, "because if you don't I will."

"Tell what" demanded the newest member.

"Well, you see," explained the young matron reluctantly, "for several years before I married George I lived in hotels in Paris and Rome, where my father was in the government service, and later here. I never had a home.

"And you know yourself how it is about forks and spoons even in the best hotels. Somehow you have no confidence in 'em at all, and I had a frightful habit of wiping them off with a napkin. It got to be such a joke with my friends that when I dined at their houses they put an extra glass of water at my place." She hesitated and glanced appealingly at the fluffy-haired blond.

"I'll finish this story myself," said the blond one firmly. "George met an old friend on the street the other day, a college chum whom he hadn't seen for years, and of course they stopped and exchanged data.

"'Whom did you marry?' said the friend, after a bit.

"'Oh,' said George, 'I married the girl who washed the silver at the Ritz-Lake hotel'—and of course he grinned.

"'Really, old man?' said the other chap, earnestly, getting hold of George's hand and wringing it with warmth and fellow feeling. 'Say, I know just how that is. I married an actress myself.'

"Here's your tea, Celeste," said the young matron, when the roar of laughter had subsided, "and here's a large sponge cake for a stopper to your conversation."—Exchange.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

The Rt. Rev. John C. Murray, who has been elected presiding bishop of the Protestant Episcopal church, has been at the head of the Maryland diocese since 1911. After leaving college he was engaged in business for some years, and was in Kansas, Colorado and New Mexico until 1882, when he went to Alabama and engaged in the iron business. In 1893 he became a candidate for postulate orders in the ministry, and was ordained a priest of the Protestant Episcopal church in 1894. His first work was on the Alabama river missions, where he remained until 1896, when he received a call from the church of the Advent in Birmingham. In 1903 he was called to the pulpit of the Church of St. Michael and All Angels in Baltimore. The same year he was elected bishop of Mississippi and a year later was offered the bishopric of Kentucky, both of which he declined.

From Small Beginnings

Out in Hannibal, Mo., then a rough, dirty little village on the Mississippi river, in 1835, one of the village storekeepers had a boy who lived in the kind of life that "Huck Finn" is said to have lived. He dressed just as he pleased, did what he pleased, went where he pleased and, in a sense brought himself up. He saw the village drunks, the "tough" citizens, the negroes, the rough steamboat men, and all the galaxy of interesting characters who appear in that delightful yarn, "The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn."

In the village printing office the boy, Samuel L. Clemens, picked up the knack of setting type and running a press, and he set out as a tramp printer, working wherever he found the chance, and then moving on to the next place. His father had died when the boy was 12, and so the youngster had to earn money for the family as well as for himself.

"Sam" Clemens had always looked upon the steamboat pilots as great heroes, and so as a mere boy he dropped out of the printing offices and became a river pilot, thus gaining the ability to write the wonderful suggestive pictures of the Mississippi river that occur in his various books. The Civil war stopped all the Mississippi boats and so the young man set out for the far west, where he roughed it as a miner and wanderer, and then drifted into humorous writing and editorial work.

It was at this time that he took the name "Mark Twain" drawn from a signal used on the Mississippi boats to denote the depth of water. By the time he was 32 he had made people laugh so much by his writings that the editor of the San Francisco paper sent him on a trip to Europe. This he wrote up in that most comical of books on people smiled at the name of "Mark Twain," bought all that. The Innocents Abroad. From then he wrote, and showered money upon him. He wrote book after book, rollicking with laughter, and gave lectures that convulsed the hearers. A publishing house that he had helped to establish failed, and he wrote and lectured periodically in order to pay off the entire debt. In his last years he had plenty of money, a host of friends and lived in comfort. He died at 73 one of the best loved of all Americans. He had written honestly of the things that he knew best, and of the things that made him laugh.

Stories That Recall Others

A Change.

It is always possible to guess correctly nine times out of ten the selection that will be played and sung preceding, during and following the marriage ceremony. However, the other day there was a new one. Along with the program of the usual bridal airs of "O Promise Me," "At Dawning," "To a Wild Rose," etc., was the number "Adore and Be Still."

Rheumatic Cat.

Little Alfred, age three, was visiting his next door neighbors one day. He had expressed great interest in a large Angora cat owned by them. The cat did not prove to be very friendly, or playful, however, and the neighbor woman told Alfred that Poor Teddie had the rheumatism and did not feel well.

"My goodness," said Alfred, "is he going to have his teeth out?"

HOHENZOLLERN LIBRARY OF 100,000 VOLUMES HELD

Berlin, Oct. 22 (AP)—The family library of the Hohenzollerns, comprising about 100,000 volumes, besides numerous maps, musical publications and sketches, forms part of the Hohenzollern inventory claimed by the German republic as being the property of the state.

Pending the ultimate decision of the courts the library remains in the former Royal Castle at Berlin. The library was founded September 20, 1863, when the private libraries of Frederic the Great, Kings Frederic William II, III and IV, and the small but valuable personal library of Queen Louise of Prussia, were incorporated. Prior to that date these various libraries were kept at different castles.

The originator of the idea of founding a library of the Hohenzollerns was Duvinage, the librarian of Frederic William IV, who suggested the plan to the king in 1852. His suggestion, however, did not meet with the approval of the Treasury of the Royal Household and it was not until 1862 that his successor, Dr. Dohme, overcame this opposition.

By 1871 the new library contained 10,000 volumes. At the suggestion of Emperor William I, a number of contributions from the library were made to other libraries.

From 1880 to 1888 the Hohenzollern library was steadily enlarged, rearranged and recatalogued and with the ascension of Emperor William II, and the new librarian, Walter Robert Tornow, it was given an entirely new lease. By an imperial edict in 1895 a large number of smaller family libraries scattered among the various castles were also incorporated.

Although the Hohenzollern Family Library was intended for the exclusive use of the Hohenzollerns and their court retainers, it was accessible to all intellectual persons who had an interest in studying the books.

MAY FOUND SITE OF LEGENDARY CHEROKEE TRIBE

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 22 (AP)—What may have been the habitat of the legendary lost tribe of Cherokee Indians for which the famous Chief Sequoia lost his life in the search in 1848, has been uncovered in Richardson county, Nebraska, by E. E. Blackman, curator of the State Historical society museum.

Prof. Blackman found the remains of an ancient Indian city, together with several pieces of pottery and many chipped flint tools, different from those made by tribes hitherto known to have inhabited that region.

Unearthed articles bear unmistakable signs of Cherokee origin, Mr. Blackman said. This led him to believe it possible that the site was once the location of the lost tribe which legends say split away from the tribal home in southwestern United States and pushed across the Mississippi never to return. The migration is supposed to have taken place before the white man came to America.

IF LEAGUE MEETS IN MADRID MEMBERS' WIVES RESPONSIBLE

GENEVA, Oct. 23 (AP)—If the next session of the Council of the League of Nations is held at Madrid, the selection may have been made by the wives of the council members.

The Spanish ambassador was asked by a friend whether he thought the Spanish invitation to meet in Madrid would be accepted.

"What do you think?" rejoined the ambassador.

"Well, all I know is that Mrs. Hymans (the wife of the Belgian member of the council) says she wants to go to Madrid," said the friend.

"Then it is all set," said the Ambassador with a laugh. "If the wives of the council members have decided on Madrid then we shall certainly go there."

FINDS ONLY TWO PER CENT OF U. S. CHILDREN ARE TRUANTS

DULUTH, Oct. 22 (AP)—Only two per cent of school children are truants, but in this two per cent are 20 per cent of delinquents, said James A. Starkweather, assistant supervisor of Duluth schools. He spoke before the meeting of the National League of Compulsory Education and Child Welfare.

Delinquent girls rarely steal, Mr. Starkweather declared, but when they steal, they steal alone. When boys steal they pilfer in groups of four or more, the speaker said.

Pavlova Will Always Dance

LONDON, Oct. 22 (AP)—Mme. Anna Pavlova, the famous dancer, declares that artists should never retire, and she herself has no intention of abandoning dancing, despite reports to the contrary. After a season in England, she plans to go to France and then make a tour of Australia and South Africa.

"It has long been my opinion that an artist should never give up," Mme. Pavlova said. "Artistic ambition should be to the last gasp."

HAD 3,001 TAX RETURNS MADE FROM NORWICH

There was a total of 3,001 income tax returns filed from Norwich in 1924, while Hartford led the state with a total of 19,438 and New Haven second with 18,728, according to figures given out in Hartford by Col. Robert O Eaton, collector of internal revenue. New London was second in this county with 2,906 returns.

The returns aref ro both classifications of incomes, that are known as No. 1,040, for incomes approximating more than $5,000 a year and No. 1,040 "A" for incomes less than $5,000 and more than the amount subject to taxation. The latter class of income, recently mentioned in Secretary of the Treasury Mellon's suggested tax cut, forms a large proportion of the number of incomes on which returns are made. No figures are available yet as to the number of persons filing returns under the No. 1,040 "A" classification but internal revenue officials prove to be exempt from taxation.

The returns by counts with New Haven county leading Hartford county by a margin of some more than 1,000, is as follows: Hartford, 41,720; New Haven, 42,929; Fairfield, 28,992; New London, 8,355; Litchfield, 6,391; Windham, 3,770; Middlesex, 3,590; Tolland 1,865. Returns filed out of the district totaled 995 as against 1,095 for the 1923 returns. There delinquents as amended in the final returns from the entire state in 1924 returns as against 4,633 for 1923.

STORRS PREPARING FOR ANNUAL FOOTBALL HOP

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Oct. 22.—Plans for the annual football hop, Dec. 4, the first formal dance of the year at Connecticut Agricultural college, are well under way and preliminary plans indicate it will be a brilliant affair. By a vote of the student body last night it was voted that all members of the varsity football squad be given complimentary tickets to the football hop which means the athletic association will be host to Connecticut's gridiron men. It was also decided that the varsity football captain should be the honourary chairman of the football hop committee and that he should lead the grand march.

Plans for the Rhode Island game, which this year will be played at Kingston, R. I., Nov. 14, were also discussed at last night's meeting. As in the past there will be no classes at Storrs, and the entire student body will follow the team to Rhode Island.

Officers of the athletic association for this year are president, Gerald D. Allard, '26, of Putnam; vice-president, William K. Schofield, '27, of Waterbury; and secretary, W. Theodore Brigham '28 of Meriden.

NEW BISHOP SCHOOL ADMIRED BY CITIZENS

It was estimated that about 800 people visited the new Bishop school on the east side between 7:30 and 9 Thursday evening, the hours of public inspection when the scholars were in the class rooms pursuing their regular exercises under direction of their teachers.

President Walter F. Lester of the school board and Superintendent E. J. Graham who were present during the evening received many expressions of admiration for this latest and finest modern addition to the school buildings of the town. The building cost, with its equipment $100,000 and it is considered the town has obtained unusually large value for the amount that has been expended since modern estimates of school building costs are put at $10,000 per room for the building alone. The bishop school is an eleven room, fireproof building which has been erected and equipped at a price less than the usual estimate for erecting the building alone.

Mr. Connelly entertained in his usual pleasing manner with songs and stories and there was a finely executed dance number by Miss Alice Lord, daughter of the guest of the evening. MAX HANOVER REPORTS ON LIONS' CONVENTION

With the usual large attendance and with President William Anderson in the chair, the weekly luncheon meeting of the Norwich Lions club was held Thursday noon at the Wauregan hotel. William R. Frisbie was the song leader and there were group and club song numbers with Pete Ethier presiding at the piano. The meeting opened with the singing of America and grace was said by Rev. S. A. Iciek, pastor of St. Joseph' Polish church, who was a guest at the meeting. A report of the recent International Lions' club banquet at Worcester last Friday was given by Max Hanover. The local club was represented at the banquet with a delegation. The attendance contest prize, a fountain pen and pencil, donated by President Anderson was awarded to Secretary Edward Rich.

Rev. Father Iciek was introduced to the meeting and gave a brief and interesting talk on the coming campaign for the raising of $25,000 towards the expense of equipping the new parochial school opposite St. Joseph's church. The school which is being erected by the parish will accommodate nearly a thousand children and he dwelt upon the fact that the building is also to be a community center for the people o. Norwich. Next week this Polish parish is to start a campaign for the raising of $25,000, to furnish and equip this handsome building which is to be a great benefit to Norwich, not only as an additional school but also as a community center. St. Joseph's parish are building this up-to-date building at an estimated cost of $150,000 and hope that the public of Norwich and vicinity will stand back of their appeal for the amount necessary to furnish and equip same properly. Rev. Iciek received hearty applause and was assured the hearty support of the Lions club in his undertaking to raise the $25,000.

Following the talk by Rev. Father Iciek the meeting was turned over to Jean Kieffer, chairman of the entertainment committee who announced as the feature of the entertainment programme, the showing of a moving picture reel, The Ford Age. This reel showed various scenes at the Ford automobile plant and its many branches. The picture was shown through the courtesy of the Irving E. Bogue company of this city and Mr. Brandt, a representative of the Ford Motor company of New York. The meeting closed with the singing of The Star Spangled Banner.

SON OF FRENCH AMBASSADOR RECALLS NORWICH LEADERS

When a distinguished graduate of Norwich Free Academy, Poultney Bigelow, of Malden-on-Hudson, wrote to a local acquaintance of having "retired" as he had reached the age of 70, also that he had put his experiences into a book called "Seventy Summers," his attention was directed to the example of Gen. William A. Aiken, of Norwich, who although 92, would call "retiring" a very bad habit!

Mr. Bigelow writes humorously regarding the matter:

One of my most pleasing boyhood reminiscences is associated with such pillars of Norwich prosperity as the handsome and benevolent Governor Buckingham, General Aiken, Senator Foster, David A. Wells—Ah! there were giants in those days! My own father died in the full possession of all his faculties at the age of 94 and it was to him and his friendship for those Norwich representatives of Lincoln days that I owe the very happy time I spent before graduating in 1873.

Of course I was too insignificant a fragment of ephemeral mortality to have then arrested the attention of the notable patriots that made Norwich famous half a century ago. But they made a profound impression upon me and they have doubtless been an inspiration to every boy that has been so fortunate as to have had that Academy as his alma mater. Pray recall me indulgently to General Aiken and tell him that I have retired, much after his own method at the conclusion of the Civil war. The Bible pronounces me as having reached age enough—and so from now on its a wholly new life opening for.

Faithfully Yours,
POULTNEY BIGELOW

ENROLLMENT AT STORRS IS CLOSE TO 500

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Oct. 22.—Complete figures on enrollment at Connecticut Agricultural college for the first semester of the present college year were made public today by Registrar George S. Torrey, following the start of the two year course in agriculture, which got under way yesterday.

A total enrollment of 489 students, which is eleven less than the 500 limit at any one time as set by the legislature, is the mark reached thus far at Storrs.

Agricultural science is the most popular division of the college at Storrs, with 189 enrolled. Agriculture comes next with a registration of 153, home economics third with 92 enrolled, and mechanical engineering last with 49 registered. Although the classification "special student" has been abandoned under the new rules governing the work to be carried by students, it applies only to new students. There are six upperclassmen who have been allowed to retain this classification. Enrollment in the school of agriculture, which is the two-year course, is 25, of whom 17 are first year men, and eight of whom are in their second year.

In the regular four year course, the freshman class numbers 205, the largest entering class in the history of the college. Of this group, 156 are men and 49 are women.

Of the remaining three upper classes sophomores, juniors and seniors, 181 are men and 78 are women, which gives a total of 259 upperclassmen.

REV. C. T. M'CANN HAS CLASS OF 150 TO BE CONFIRMED

A former Norwich Town pastor, Rev. Christopher T. McCann, continues his activities as head of St. Bridget's parish, Manchester. The Manchester Evening Herald tells of a class of 150 boys and girls receiving the sacrament of confirmation from Rt. Rev. Bishop Nilan in that church Sunday. The Herald says:

An impressive feature of the ceremony occurred toward the close. At Bishop Nilan's request, the one hundred and fifty children knelt before the altar and repated after the bishop the total abstinence pledge against the use of alcoholic liquors until arriving at the age of twenty-five.

Led by Rev. Father McCann, who is also their musical instructor, the children then joined in singing "O! Salutaris," and "Holy Father We Praise Thy Name," in a manner which caused many comments of approval after the close of the services.

CLAIM CAPT. ROSTAD HAD BEEN DRINKING

That "booze" liquor played a part in the events that led to the drowning of Captain Samuel Rostad of Noank, master of the yacht Carapulpa, is revealed in affidavits taken by County Investigator William E. Lewis who investigated the affair and made public Thursday by Coroner J. T. Desmond. Both William H. Corey, 56 Mitchell street, Groton, and Josef S. Main, 57 Mitchell street, informed the county detective that Rostad was more or less under the influence of liquor at the time he fell over board from a boat in which the three together with Captain John Dix, skipper of the yacht Radiant, owned by Claude M. Hendrix of Fishers Island were enroute to New London from West Mystic on the night of September 22, when Rostad was drowned.

Coroner Desmond, stated Thursday that as yet he had no statement from Captain Dix, but that County Detective Lewis, was looking for Dix and a statement was expected shortly from the latter. The coroner has as yet rendered no verdict on the drowning but it is indicated that he will find that Rostad's drowning was entirely accidental.

The body of Captain Rostad was found floating in Fishers island sound ten days after he was drowned. No report of the drowning was made and the authorities were at a loss to account for the manner in which he was drowned, until Detective Lewis took charge and succeeded in solving the apparent mystery. Both Corey and Main in their sworn statements to Detective Lewis lay their failure to report the drowning to Captain Dix, who they state said he would report the matter.

Main in affidavit declared the men went to the home of an Italian where they had several drinks and purchased two bottles of liquor. They later boarded the boat and started for New London.

Continuing his statement, Main said: "the man who died was lying on the deck at the rear of the boat, just back of the steering wheel. I felt cold and sleepy and went down into the cabin. I was dozing when the captain pulled me and said: the man had fallen overboard. I heard him call Sam and the man in the water answer. He called out 'swim Sam and we will get you.

"We stayed around about half an hour and picked up the life preserver that had been thrown into the water. The man in the water answered two or three times then all was quiet. We turned back to West Mystic and on the way the captain said he was sorry for poor Sam and believed he would set fire to the boat and jump overboard. I said 'no, you won't, I can't swim. Put me on shore and then burn the boat if you want to.'"

The statement obtained from Corey corroborates in substance the affidavit submitted by Main, throwing no new light on the drowning which for some time remained a mystery.

HARKNESS ESTABLISHES FUND TO PROVIDE LEGAL AID

Edward S. Harkness of Waterford and New York has established a trust fund of $150,000 to provide legal aid for deserving persons in New York city who would otherwise be unable to have the assistance of counsel. Announcement to that effect was made Wednesday night at a meeting of the Bar association of the city of New York, held at 42 West 44th street.

The fund will be known as the Thomas E. Stillman fund, in memory of Mr. Harkness' father-in-law, who died in 1906. The sum will be invested and the income will be available for deserving persons.

Mr. and Mrs. Harkness last week closed their Waterford home for the winter and returned to New York city. They have been liberal contributors to educational and charitable causes and members of the Harkness family have made huge financial gifts to Yale university, Columbia and other institutions. The Harkness quadrangle at Yale, made possible through their gifts, is one of the finest groups of college buildings in America.

ACTIVE WINTER IN STEEL INDUSTRY IS FORECAST

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—(A. P.)—An active winter in the steel industry was forecast today by Eugene G. Grace, president of the Bethlehem Steel corporation, in announcing the results of the third quarter's business, which showed total net earnings of $6,337,782 compared with $9,768,528 in the preceding quarter.

"The railroads are buying both rails and equipment in substantial volume," said Mr. Grace. "The demand from both the automobile and building industries is very large. Bethlehem is receiving orders for steel products at a rate considerably in excess of current shipments. The trend of price is upwards."

The third quarter's earnings, it was explained, were equivalent to 56 cents a share on the common stock in contrast with a deficit of 54 cents a share in the third quarter of 1924. Total earnings for the first nine months of 1925 were $8.86 per share, as compared with $1.46 per share for the corresponding period last year. Interests close to the Bethlehem management predicted that the entire year's earnings would close to $5 a share earned on the common stock.

Nothing, humbles, the average man more than to find himself in the soup when he imagined that he was in the swim.

SURGEON SHOT IN HIS OFFFICE IN LAWRENCE

LAWRENCE, Mass., Oct. 23.—(AP)—Dr. Leon G. Beeley, a surgeon, was shot and probably fatally wounded in his office in this city tonight by one of two men who had been in conference with him. The bullet lodged in the lower part of the body. At the Lawrence General Hospital where Dr Beeley was taken, physicians said his condition was critical.

In a brief period of consciousness at the hospital, the surgeon gave the police a description of a patient whom he had been treating for a withered hand. The name and address of this man he did not know.

The police believed that the patient came to Dr. Beeley's office accompanied by another man, who shot the surgeon after a demand for money had been refused. Dr. Beeley telephoned for the police and for an ambulance before he collapsed from the wound.

SATURDAY'S GRIDIRON CONFLICTS WILL HAVE IMPORTANT BEARING ON TITLE

NEW YORK, Oct. 22. (AP)—Championship hopes and aspirations will be at stake in many sectors of the college gridiron battle this Saturday.

While Georgia Tech and Alabama, outstanding southern conference contenders, are fighting it out and Michigan seeks to hold her place at the top of the western conference heap by downing Illinois, two of the East's major title aspirants, Pennsylvania and Dartmouth, also will meet crucial tests.

Last year, Yale shared the highest eastern football plateau with Penn and Dartmouth, but the Elis setback at the hands of the Quakers last week virtually has put them out of the running although most of the decisive battles are yet to come.

Pennsylvania now has Chicago to worry about and not a few experts, while expecting the Quakers to have a bit the better of the argument, feel that the 200-pound, Maroon line, product of the Stagg defensive school, will be more than a match for the bull-like rushes of Al Kruer and the shifty thrusts of Charlie Rogers.

This engagement will produce a battle of sectional champions, for while Penn was on the eastern peak last season Chicago galloped off with the "Big Ten" crown. Defeat for either will not affect their respective sectional standings, but the outcome of their clash on Franklin field must be considered in any rating given either outfit.

Dartmouth's powerful array, encountering Harvard at Cambridge seems to have a better chance of victory than Pennsylvania, although the big green squad undoubtedly will have its hands full in attempting to make it three straight over the rejuvenated crimson forces. The result of this game is second only in importance to a "Big Three" contest in the minds of Harvard followers and the Cambridge eleven will throw its full strength into the fray.

Washington & Jefferson's hopes of coming back to the eastern heights they occupied a few seasons ago will be at stake in the game with Lafayette at the Polo Grounds.

Lafayette, as is the case with Colgate and Princeton, opponents in another headliner this week, has one game on its record but cannot be counted out of the championship possibility class except by defeat.

Cornell, the Army and Syracuse, among other midseason top-notchers, have little to worry about for a week or two. Cornell is idle this Saturday while the Cadets, facing St. Louis and Syracuse meeting Providence have nothing but good workouts in prospect. The same thing is true of Boston college, which meets Allegheny this week, and Holy Cross, which has Fermont for an opponent.

Penn State which lost to Georgia Tech two weeks ago, will attempt to regain some intersectional prestige against the Michigan Aggies.

Yale and Brown each has had championship hopes blasted somewhat by Pennsylvania in the last two weeks but that won't detract from the intensity of their battle in the new stadium at Providence.

Amherst hopes to advance a step toward the "Little Three" championship by beating Wesleyan. Williams, the remaining member of this triumvirate and titleholder for the last few years, is not up to standard this season and has little chance of making an effective showing against Columbia.

NUTMEGS BOOKED TO PLAY LORRAINE MILLS SUNDAY

Sunday afternoon local football fans will have another chance to see the last Nutmeg A. C. in action when they will play the Lorraine Mills team of Westerly on Sachem field. The Rhode Island boys have a team made up principally of former Stonington and Westerly High School players and are coming to Norwich determined to give the local eleven a hard fight for a victory. The Nutmegs are likewise determined to win so that prospects look good for a hard, fast game.

Last week Jewett City held the Nutmegs to a scoreless tie and the Norwich boys are out to make up for it by defeating Westerly. To date the local team has played four games and has yet to be scored on. The first three games were all won by impressive scores while the last was a tie. The Nutmegs have had some hard practice sessions this past week and are in fine trim for Sundays contest. Wednesday evening the entire team had a long signall drill while tonight the backfield only will be drilled. Saturday afternoon Coach MacLaren will put his charges through their final practice in preparation for Sundays game.

The team that will represent the Nutmegs next Sunday will be much the same as went up against the Speedboys last week with the exception of two or three new players who have been added to the clubs roster during the past week. The exact lineup to be used in Sundays game has not yet been given out but it is expected that it will be chosen from among the following men who were on the first team in practice Wednesday evening: ends Carlin, Kelly, F. Moran; tackles, Butts, Pallochs, Fidell; guards, Hagberg, Grover; centers, Sullivan, Sadinsky. In the backfield will probably be seen MacLaren at quarterback; McGrath and Chase halfbacks; and Williams, fullback.

Besides these men the following are to be held in reserve; Adams, Brush, Harris, Hatt, Pekowsky, Boirighine, Ludlow, Harris and Steinman. All of the first string men have formerly played with well known teams. Former N. F. A. stars make up the greater part of the clubs roster with a few ex-Hardig's and Judean players also appearing in the lineup.

Manager Winterbotton of the Lorraine club has a fast team made up as the following men: l. e. Carr, l. t. Kenyon, l. g. Knowles, c. Stillman, r. g. Wenchle, r. t. Richards, r. e. Dyer; q. b. Fharageagk, l. h. b. Gavitt, r. h. b. Harvey, f. b. Hach. Carr and Gavitt are former Westerly High school stars. Harvey and Stillman are well remembered by former N. F. A. fans to their sorrow. Dyer is an ex-Mt. Pleasant club player. The Lorraine club has a fine reputation for hard, fast, and clean playing.

The management of the Nutmegs wishes to announce that parking space for a very large number of autos is available within five minutes walk of the playing field. Cars can park on the following streets; Sachem, Sherman, Lafayette, Williams, Asylum, and Oneco. The field has been roped off and marked since last Sundays game. Also it is expected that police protection will be secured. Entrance to the field can be made from Sachem St., Asylum St., and Lafayette St.

The manager of the Nutmegs has booked games with teams from New Haven, Hartford, Bristol, New Britian, and Waterbury to be played here in Norwich. If the local football fans want to see real games and many of them with well known teams both in and out of the state they will have to support the team.

SCHNEIDER PLANES HAVE ANOTHER DAY OF REST

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct.—(AP)—Rain and low hanging mists forced a day of inactivity at Bay Shore Park today, where the Blue Ribbon seaplanes of three nations are being groomed for Saturday's Jacques Schneider trophy race over the Chesapeake Bay.

Tomorrow the planes will be put through their paces on the surface of the Bay, to test their seaworthiness and general stability.

The British submarine Napier S-4 and Gloster-Napier III, and the big Macchi flying boats of Italy, remained all day carefully stowed in their hangars, blanketed like thoroughbreds at the turf. The American Curtiss racers were drawn out on the runways long enough for brief motor tests.

Failing of a chance to take their powerful ships aloft, Lieutenants Ralph A. Ofstie and George T. Cuddihy, the navy's racing pilots, took a turn around the course in Voightou pursuit ships which are present for the naval air pageant scheduled to precede the cup race Saturday.

The British aviators received today the best wishes of their sovereign in a cablegram from the Royal Aero Club. The message said:

"The king will await with interest the results of the race for the Schneider cup and his majesty offers his best wishes for success to the British team."

WESLEYAN PLAYS MOST IMPORTANT GAME SATURDAY

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Oct. 22.—(AP)—The initial game for the New England "little three" championship will be played Saturday when Wesleyan university meets Amherst on the latter's gridiron.

Early games of the season have left Wesleyan squad in excellent physical condition for the "little three" campaign. Only one man, Boyd, fullback is on the injured list, but is expected to be able to play against Amherst.

Coach Sam Hill has developed three sets of backs, all of whom seem to be about on a par. His first choice is Boyd at fullback, Martin at left half and Crowell at right half.

A squad of 28 men will make the trip to Amherst, stopping Friday night at Northampton.

Friends of both Amherst and Wesleyan will hold a joint rally and smoker Friday night at Springfield in preparation for the opening of the "little three" championship series.

SQUAD OF 32 YALE PLAYERS OFF FOR BROWN

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 22. (AP)—Thirty-two members of the Yale football squad will leave here tomorrow for Providence where the Bulldog will clash with Brown in the new stadium Saturday. The probable Yale lineup as announced tonight includes four men moved up from the second team in the general shakeup made after the Pennsylvania game.

Captain Joss, ill for several weeks with sinus trouble and a member of the second team since his return, will be in at left tackle Saturday and will start his first game as captain. The other new men are Dave Bert, center, who replaces Sturham; Webster, right guard, who has Wortham's place and Benton, right tackle, who will be in Butterworth's berth. Richards is still on the first team but has been transferred from left tackle to left guard. Potts and Bradley will start the game as the ends. Bunnell as quarterback and Kline, Cutler and Allen in the backfield.

MOST VALUABLE PLAYER AWARD IN DEC. IN NATIONAL

NEW YORK, Oct. 22—(AP)—The winner of the national prize of $1,000 for the most valuable player in the circuit will not be announced until the annual league meeting in December, President John A. Heydler revealed today.

This decision has been made to avoid possibility of a condition such as prevailed this year in the American league, which announced Roger Peckinpaugh of the Washington Senators winner of the junior organization's most valuable player prize immediately after the close of the race, only to have the veteran shortstop fail the club badly in the world series.

Peck created a new record for fielding blunders in the series.

MAY CLOSE FRISCO GOLF LINKS ON ELECTION DAY

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 22. (AP)—Election day closing of all golf links used by San Francisco voters was urged today by the downtown merchants' association.

Experience has revealed, the merchants said, that persons excused from their regular jobs on election day, play golf instead of voting.

The matter of closing the links is ticklish. Unlike the saloon, closed by official mandate in the old days, links are for the most part outside San Francisco and moral persuasion must be used to get results.

There is a chance for a few local people to secure several of the coveted tickets for the Yale-Brown game at Providence Saturday by calling at Madden's cigar store. Several tickets have been turned in there and it will be a case of "first come, first served."

WESTERN TEAMS PREPARE FOR CLASSICS SATURDAY

CHICAGO, Oct. 22. (AP)—Twenty-six years ago, a University of Chicago football team, led by Amos Alonzo Stagg, were hosts to the University of Pennsylvania and sent them away happy with a 5 to 5 tie.

Today another Maroon team, led by the same coach, starts east to return the call. Pennsylvania is in the role of host and entertainment is ready for Saturday in Philadelphia.

With Chicago goes a formidable reputation as a line crashing aggregation with punting and passing threats. There is also the possibility that Coach Stagg will abandon his conservative tactics and open up with a display of gridiron pyrotechnics similar to those which put his proteges at the top of the western conference column last year.

While the Maroons carry mid-west hopes eastward, fans anticipate spectacular games in the Illinois-Michigan meeting at Urbana and the Iowa-Ohio State engagement at Columbus.

The Wolverine-Illini game last year established the reputation of Harold "Red" Grange, Illinois captain and All-American back. Michigan hopes the coming melee will fix the fame of Benny Friedman, sensational open field runner and spectacular passer.

The Buckeyes are practicing passing, with Marek and Bell doing the tossing and Cunningham held in reserve. Iowa's star "Cowboy" Nick Kutsch is acquiring polish as a triple threat.

Northwestern is getting set for Tulane in an intersectional tilt, and some likely plugs are being developed to fill the hole in the backfield caused by the injuries to Ralph Baker.

YALE ALUMNI TO SEE BIG GAMES IN MOVIES

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Yale graduates both in this country and abroad will be given an opportunity of seeing the Yale football team in action through motion pictures which will be distributed to alumni associations by Carl A. Lohmann, secretary of the Yale Alumni advisory board.

A film showing pictures of the Pennsylvania, Army, Princeton and Harvard games, and of last year's Yale-Harvard crew race, will be ready for exhibition by alumni associations on December 1, Mr. Lohmann said today. Three sets of the film are in preparation so that alumni in remote parts of the country may see them. One set has already been booked by the graduates of the Pacific coast, the Hawaiian Islands and Panama, and another will go to the Yale Alumni association, of France after exhibition in the middle west.

ELEVEN IN ENDURANCE RACE IN FINE SHAPE

BRANDON, Vt., Oct. 22.—(AP)—The eleven horses remaining in the eastern 300 mile endurance test tonight completed the fourth day of the five day grind in excellent condition. All finished the 80 mile ride here tonight under the nine hour limit fixed by the rules of the test.

Today's ride was the hardest of the entire series, including considerable hill work, but the horses did not seem to be bothered by the difficult route, which led from Brandon up into the mountains with the luncheon rest at Breadloaf Inn in Ripton and back to this town in the afternoon. The final 60 mile ride tomorrow will lead by a continuous route to Benson where the noonday rest will be given and the test will conclude here tomorrow night. The winners will be announced on Saturday.

N. F. A. SECOND STRING WILL START AGAINST PLAINFIELD

Coach Whitney gave the first team a rest Thursday after their game with Stonington Wednesday. However the second team was put through a long stiff drill in which they showed up nicely. In view of the fact that Plainfield, who the local boys are slated to play Saturday afternoon, are a notoriously weak team the entire second team will start the game with the exception of one or two players. If however they should show signs of weakening the first team will be in readiness to relieve them.

CHICAGO SQUAD STARTS INVASION OF PENN

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Twenty eight university of Chicago football men, accompanied by a large number of student rooters, entrained this afternoon for their invasion of Philadelphia, where on Saturday they will demonstrate Coach A. A. Stagg's type of grid play against the powerful University of Pennsylvania team.

"We have a fighting chance to win," was the "old man's" only comment.

Most of the men were in perfect shape, but a few had minor injuries.

Speedboys vs. Greeneville

Sunday, at Jewett City the Greeneville Tigers and the Jewett City Speedboys clash in what ought to be the toughest battle of the gridiron year. Greeneville won the first game by a lone touchdown but the Speedboys have improved considerably since then and intend to take thesecond encounter at any cost. The three crippled Speedboy stars who have been out for two weeks, Provost, Marshall and Burke will be back at their old positions and a battle royal will be in order. With the exception of N. E. Body, triple threat man from the open spaces the Speedboys will have the same line-up.

PROFESSIONAL FOOTBALL GAINS FIRMER FOOTING THIS SEASON

NEW YORK, October 22.—(By The Associated Press)—Professional football is at the bar of public opinion, claiming the right to national prominence.

The burden of proof is on professional football. College elevens have fought one another on the gridiron for more than half a century in the United States until today the fall sport has become a great financial project, so far reaching that various faculties have demanded curtailment in order that the game shall not burst from campus control.

A true football warrior will sacrifice his limbs to carry the name of his college to the high planes of the world of sport. He sees comrades pulled from the field unconscious with cheers their only recompense. When danger comes he casts himself into it, head and shoulders, for Alma Mater. The financial end is something with which he has nothing to do.

The steadily increasing revenues go to the erection of huge stadia, improved equipment for the gridiators, better training table fare, the athletic education of a larger squad, increasing of athletic facilities generally. Twenty years ago there were few substitutes, today and larger institutions can call on four full teams in combat and behind them are scores of other men, the scrubs upon whom the full force of the mighty varsity is hurled for purposes of conditioning.

Money has given every college athlete his chance to play football, but it has been revenue derived from traditional rivalries like that of Harvard and Yale. There is no room for the outside public at a clash between the Crimson and the Blue, for their graduates join their students in viewing the annual battle whether they are good teams or bad.

Professional baseball has gained a firm footing, but the game was not taken from the colleges. Rather did the colleges adopt it from professionalism. And, baseball is a sport which requires less of mighty muscles and more of mighty muscles and more of an acquired skill. Daily contests and a gate on the public which have called forth innumerable columns of advertising have given the diamond game its prestige.

Now comes the professional football game to seek its place, backed by increased financial support. It has thrived in several cities of the land for some years, but not until this fall did it invade New York. Bob Folwell, former coach of the navy elevens and of several eastern colleges, was appointed mentor here, and he gathered about him an imposing array of talent—five of his players All-American selections while in college.

The public, of course, has a right to everything that professional football can offer. The public wants to be entertained and if the professional gridiron sport is desirable it soon will prove itself. Public opinion has been the judge of baseball, and has ordered it to continue as the national pastime.

Nineteen professional teams, in eighteen large cities are under control of the National Football League, now in its fifth year. The cities are New York, Providence, Rochester, Buffalo, Philadelphia, Pottsville, Cleveland, Canton, Akron, Columbus, Dayton, Chicago (two teams), Detroit, Milwaukee, Kansas City, Rock Island, Green Bay, and Minneapolis.

On the rosters appear such names as Thorpe, Alexander, Haines, Garvey, Eckstein, Kozlowski, Wentworth, Stein, Slater, Bullman, Sonnenberg, Spellman, Shurtleff, Hamer, Kuppisch, Youngstrom and Gwosdon. The names speak for themselves. Three men have been college stars in the last few years and they are capable of playing marvelous football.

The public appears willing to be shown with more than 20,000 attending last Sunday's game in New York despite the fact that the Army and Notre Dame had played to a capacity throng the previous day. Americans like football and the stars of the colleges are being put into the professional game, so it is up to the National Football League to see that the thing is done right always, that there is no room for suspicion.

Professional football will succeed if it can prove itself.

HARVARD COMMITTEE TAKES UP COACHING QUESTION AGAIN

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 22.—(AP)—Disapproval of intersectional, championships and post season games, belief that coaching ultimately should be restricted to graduates of the university and that coaching salaries should be reduced to a minimum, approval of intercollegiate athletic agreements and the belief that treatment of professionalism in college athletics by inflexible rules is impossible were among the opinions expressed in the report of the Harvard College committee on the regulation of athletic sports published today in the Harvard alumni bulletin.

"Fundamentally the aim of your committee is to encourage the student body to take part in athletics and the measure of success is the number of participants," the report said. "Intercollegiate contests must remain a means to this end, and intercollegiate victories must be a consequence of its success and not its primary purpose.

"Your committee appreciates the risk of excess and declares its policy to keep the number of intercollegiates within reason. They should not be inaugurated or maintained for the entertainment of the public or the graduates. Although football games have been criticized in this respect, your committee believes that they do not unduly interfere with the academic part of the student's education.

"However, intercollegiate contests have a tendency to expand and multiply into forms which your committee does not approve. Such are intersectional championship and post season games. These are not necessary to sustain an interest in the sport and the motives are usually not really athletic. The policy of your committee is to discourage such contests."

Commenting on the agreement made by Harvard, Yale and Princeton to limit their football coaching salaries, the report said:

"Your committee would like to restrict all coaching for every intercollegiate sport to the graduates of the university and would like ultimately to reduce the salaries to a minimum."

In the matter of further and more radical agreements with Yale and Princeton, the committee expressed its "belief and hope that these three universities may set up a standard which will improve all college athletics," as well as athletics in preparatory schools.

"The leading universities must so conduct their athletic affairs as to help other universities, colleges and schools to maintain athletics as a worthy part of modern education," the report added.

It called attention to two types of professionalism in inter-collegiate athletics "which must be watched." The first and what the committee believed the worst type was described as "the athlete who is supported or subscribed, either directly or indirectly, by someone interested in the success of his team."

"The graduate who thus procures athletes for his college prostitutes the sport and undermines the permanence of academic athletics," the report declared.

The other type was cited as "the man who is able to earn his way through college and thus secure his education by employment in one way or another as an athlete."

In either case, the committee reported, "there is a question of degree in which the cases midway between the outright professional and the undoubted amateur are exceedingly difficult of determination." In this respect the committee cited the athlete who procured a summer job in a hotel and played on the house baseball team, or the tutor who plays a sport with his pupil or pupils.

Declaring that "not only do the doubtful individual cases call for a nice judgment, but also the general principles to be applied are not plain," the committee reports its belief that "the distinction between the amateur and professional is one of spirit which the letter of a rule killeth, and it is our policy to retain in agreements with Yale and Princeton a maximum of discretion in the individual case and to proceed cautiously in laying down inflexible rules."

Referring to the agreement between Harvard, Yale and Princeton which forbids the training of their football teams before September 15, in any academic years, the report said:

"Your committee entertains certain doubts as to the wisdom of this. Football is a strenuous, even violent game and any shortening of the period of preparation and training brings a risk of inadequate physical condition and perhaps consequent injury. Whether it is wise to forbid absolutely this training from beginning from September 15, must remain to be seen."

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

Middlebury college's football eleven has made a record for leaps from depths to heights. Harvard rolled up 68 points against Middlebury on October 12. Middlebury buries St. Michaels 61 to 0 a week later.

Next Sunday at City College stadium in New York Willie Ritola will attempt to lower the American mark for a ten mile run of 51 minutes 3 2-5 seconds made by Hannes Kohlmainen in 1913.

The world record for ten miles, held by Al Shrubb of England, had stood for twenty one years. Ritola thinks that the slow track at City college will prevent him from cutting Shrubbs figures.

An eastern football conference with Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Dartmouth Brown and Pennsylvania as charter members is in the discussion stage.

Kamekichi Suzuki, holder of the national junior 18.2 balkline billiard championship will not defend his title this year, having returned to Japan. Plans are well under way, however, for a junior tournament.

Christy Mathewson jr. elected director of the Boston Braves recently had not followed his father's footsteps in the athletic realm. He stands high in his classes at Bucknell, is a saxophone artist and is a favorite with the students.

It is understood that a new slate of officers has been selected for the U. S. A. G. by the nominating committee with W. C. Fownes, Jr., of Pittsburgh, as president.

The Dartmouth boys are marveling over Glenna Collett, in a foursome with three men yesterday her side won as the result of her 79 and a 15-foot putt on the last green.

Chicago Nick Dunovich, southpaw pitcher with the Seattle Pacific coast league club last season has been recalled by the Chicago Cubs and turned over to Kansas City Kaws of the American association. He was sent in part payment for Outfielder Scott and another player will be transferred later.

William H. Wanamaker of Philadelphia, will serve as judge of the harness horses in the national horse show to be conducted by the Chicago Riding club beginning December 8.

Lady Luck isn't trailing Fred Fulton, once Frederick the ferocious Minnesota plasterer, Fulton fought Sergeant Jack Adams in Belvedere, Ill., the other night and was flattened like a strip of linoleum in one round. Before the fight, Fulton pulled a diamond ring off his finger and asked a 24-hour acquaintance to hold it until after the contest. The acquaintance, Fulton says, did a sneak while Fred was unconscious on the floor of the ring and hasn't been seen since. The ring was valued at $1,500.

Jack Malone, the St., Paul middleweight, will tangle with Tiger Flowers Georgia negro, in St. Paul tonight night in a 10-round bout to try to wipe out the pasting he received from this same Flowers in East Chicago last summer. Although decisively beaten in that engagement, Malone figures he can whip Flowers.

San Francisco—Harry F. Morrison, boxing promoter, has announced that negotiations were "virtually completed" for a title match Thanksgiving day between Phil Rosenberg, world's bantam weight champion, and the winner of tonight's bout here between Abe Goldstein and Chuck Hellman.

Coming to the Breed

If you like unusual romance—
If you like thrilling melodrama—
If you like beauty and exquisite color photography—
If you like Blanche Sweet and Ronald Colman—

Then don't miss George Fitzmaurice's latest production, His Supreme Moment, which comes to the Breed theater Sunday, for three days.

It is a riot of romance, beauty, color, drama and fine action by the featured players and a cast of notable actors including Jane Winton, Belle Bennett, Cyril Chadwick, Ned Sparks, Nick de Ruiz, Anna May Wong and Xalla Pasha.

From a new novel by May Edginton, Frances Marion, who has adapted all of the recent Goldwyn-Fitzmaurice productions, has evolved a screen story which centers around the platonic trial marriage in the wilds of South America of a young mining engineer and a beautiful New York actress. A selfish and designing heiress who is in love with the engineer provokes a series of complications which bring the principals back to New York face to face with a series of unusual dramatic situations.

At the Breed

Something unique in screen entertainment was presented yesterday at the Breed theater, when the William Fox supreme attraction entitled Kentucky Pride opened a three days' engagement. For this unusual picture is the life story of a beautiful racing filly, as told by herself, and some of the most noted thoroughbreds in turf history, including Nescofol, The Finn, Fair Play, Morvich and the peerless Man o' War are actors in this heart-stirring equine drama.

Headed by Man o' War, for whom his owner, Samuel D. Riddle, has refused $400,000, several million dollars' worth of aristocratic horse flesh appears on the screen as the story of Kentucky Pride develops. It is laid in the Blue Grass country, and most of the picture was shot there, thus giving some never-to-be-forgotten glimpses of that romantic region.

Kentucky Pride deals with the fortunes and misfortunes of Virginia's Future, a royally bred filly. There are people in her story, of course, including her master, Roger Beaumont; also her trainer, her jockey and the other human adjuncts necessary to her eventful career. If Beaumont hadn't had a fatal weakness for gambling and a wife who hated him, and cared for nothing but money, the filly's autobiography would have been a different and happier story.

The picture has no lack of eminent two-legged actors in the accessory parts. Henry B. Wathall, as Roger Beaumont, carries the role of an old-style Southern gentleman as only Mr. Wathall can.

J. Farrell MacDonald, the famous Corporal Casey of The Iron Horse, injects his inimitable humor into more than one situation that, without such relief, might become too pitifully tense for comfort.

The picture was directed by John Ford, who will long be remembered as the directorial genius responsible for much of the undisputed greatness of The Iron Horse, one of this season's foremost film triumphs.

ed from New York and other large cities.

The American Thread company officials insist that the strike was over on May 25, when the plant was reopened under power, after ten days' shut-down, during which proper notice was given for the former operatives to return to work. Today, according to authorities, there are 1,500 people employed at the plant. The majority of this number is composed of members of large families brought here from Manchester, and Newmarket, N. H., and other places. The remainder is made up of employes who remained at work when the strike was called and those who have drifted back to the jobs they had left. Company officials point out that the plant is being operated on a most satisfactory basis and in some departments the records for production are in excess of those made by the old help, and that the product turned out is to the satisfaction of customers.

The company owns 181 tenements in the city and but sixteen are now vacant. The occupants are all families represented as employees at the plant, and with the exception of but eight of these families all are from out of town. It is further stated that but a small percentage of the strikers appearing for work are granted this admission. Most of those who are accepted are given work different from what they previously had. A few who were experts in their lines have been replaced on their former jobs.

It is stated that some of the family heads of those who had been occupying the Tented City resent the action of the strikers in tearing down the tents with the coming of cool weather and failing to provide wooden buildings which were promised them, by officials at the time they were evicted from American Thread company tenements and the tents were erected for their use. Thomas F. McMahon of the United Textile Workers of America, international president of Providence, proposed the erection of the twenty-odd tents. The Tented City was officially opened with a huge parade and a speech July 7, by William Green of Washington, D. C. national president of the American Federation of Labor. President McMahon gave assurance at that time that when cold weather came houses would be built for the strikers with the aid of the American Federation of Labor, local and vicinity union building mechanics would give of their time gratuitously.

Labor leaders in their speeches before the strikers express themselves as being unshaken in the belief that the former operatives need only hold true to their cause to win. The product leaving the local plant, they state, is imperfect and is not accepted by most or all of the customers. They lay this to the inexperience of the help and the fact that the workers are not interested in the company's welfare. They hotly deny rumors that the strikers are about to capitulate. It is only a matter of reasonable time, they state, when the Thread company will invite its old operatives to return and receive a restoration of the 10 per cent wage cut which became effective January 12 of this year. When the strike was called, March 9 about 2,200 operatives answered the call.

Fast Work in Sugar

Only five or six minutes are required to spin off and wash 60 pounds of sugar, says Nature Magazine. The products of this process are washed raw sugar and wash sirup. It is the latter that is mixed with the raw sugar when it first enters the refinery for the finishing processes.

JEWETT CITY

In connection with Sunday night's assault and robbery, when Mike Alena was badly beaten up and his money taken from his person, Stanley Novick was arrested late Wednesday night. He was locked up in the local police station and was brought to trial Thursday morning in the town court. He pleaded not guilty. Judge John T. Barry gave him two months in jail and costs.

Mrs. C. T. Armstrong and Miss Alice A. Brown entertained Annie Brewster Fanning chapter, D. A. R., at the home of Mrs. Armstrong Wednesday afternoon. During the business meeting it was voted to hold a rummage sale and to send a Christmas box to the D. A. R. workers at Ellis island, the contents to be used by the immigrants who are detained there. These boxes which contain cotton and wool knitting yarns, cotton cloth needles and thread are very much appreciated by both men and women. The program consisted of a reading by Mrs. J. B. Tracy entitled "A word in remembrance." It was written by Mary Virginia Cabell for the 35th anniversary of the founding of the society and told of the early days with which was familiar. The paper of the afternoon "What Young America Owes to Old Europe" was prepared and read by Mrs. Arthur M. Brown. Refreshments were served by the hostesses assisted by Miss Margery Brewster.

The coming Sunday Jewett City football fans will have their first glimpse at the greatest machine ever to represent Jewett City. Jewet City people supported their championship baseball team and now surely will support a greater football team. The opponents for Sunday will be the Jewett City's old rival, Greeneville. At least two hundred Greeneville fans will be here.

Misses Lillian Vassar of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Helen Vassar of Washington, D. C., are spending two weeks at Mrs. Alfred Cudoird's, on Brown avenue.

Thomas Barnett's two sister, Catherine and Alice, were hurried to Backus hospital Wednesday immediately on learning of the serious condition of their brother. Mr. Barnett had a fairly comfortable day Thursday and late at night the hospital reports were encouraging.

Miss M. A. Burdick is the guest of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Frank Burdick of Woonsocket, R. I.

L'Union St. Jean Baptiste d'Amerique held its October meeting Sunday in its room in the town hall. It was largely attended to hear the report of the president, Louis M. Gingras, delegate to the eleventh grand convention of the society in Holyoke, Mass., Oct. 13, 14 and 15, to celebrate the 25th anniversary. The delegate reported the largest convention in the history of the society. Many changes were made in the by-laws and in its insurance. The order will now insure from an infant of 6 months to adults of 60, also have a paid up life insurance after Jan. 1, 1926. The delegate's report was accepted with a vote of thanks. It was voted to run a whist party during the winter months. There was a smoke talk after the meeting. Mr. and Mrs. Louis M. Gringras attend the convention.

Invitations are out to the 53rd annual ladies' night of Mt. Vernon lodge No. 75, F. and A. M. to be held Nov. 13. The committee in charge is William McCluggage, H. L. Hanna, Harold Field, Lawrence Drescher and Kenneth C. Everett.

Local coal dealers are obliged to refuse orders for chestnut coal, bituminous coal is to be had, as well as small quantities of anthracite furnace. Both dealers have cars of West Virginia coal due here at once.

A man canvassed the town Wednesday selling a Look purporting to be for the benefit of disabled veterans of the American legion. Officials of the order are doubtful as to the genuiness of the appeal.

Members Faith chapter, O. E. S. are requested to meet at chapter room Saturday, 1:30 to attend funeral of Mary K. Cheney.—Adv.

A stranger, an early caller in town, Thursday, said he wondered if he was in the right burg. A book he had for guidance informed him that upon entering the town of Jewett City he would see a sign: "Drive slowly and see our town—drive fast and see our jail." Today he declared he read the sign, Welcome to the Borough of Jewett City.

Paul Fabian will substitute in the local post office while Thomas Barnett is obliged to be off duty.

MAN FOUND DEAD IN PARK IN NEW HAVEN

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Detectives investigating the circumstances under which an unidentified man, who was found in Waterside park today, met his death, had neither established his identity nor reached any conclusions as to the exact cause of death tonight. It is known, however, that he died of natural causes.

The body was found by the caretaker of the park. There was evidence that the man had dragged himself about thirty feet before death came. He had $1.30 on his person, together with a pocket book containing the name "Arnell." Initials in his hat were "M. S."

It's a poor consolation to the man who is hard up to know that the well-dressed man is compelled to keep a little behind the fashions.

FELL 36 FEET FROM GAS TANK IN NEW BRITAIN

NEW BRITAIN, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Dennis J. Harding, of Philadelphia, foreman of the Crus Kemper company, construction engineers of Ambler, Pa., was seriously injured today when he fell 36 feet from a large gas tank being erected here. He was reaching for a rope and lost his balance. Harding, who struck a steel girder while falling and who landed on a pile of girders on the ground, suffered a fractured skull, a fractured arm, a fractured leg and other injuries. At the New Britain General hospital it was said he was in a critical condition.

HIS COLONY IMPROVES AS "BIG BILL" HAYWOOD IS IN HOSPITAL

MOSCOW, Oct. 22.—(AP)—While William ("Big Bill") Haywood is at present ill at the Kremlin hospital suffering from an acute attack of diabetes, the American industrial colony of the Kuznetzky mining region—in the initiation and organization of which he worked—is now reported to be making great progress. The output in coal has been increased by 60 per cent.

The administration of the colony has set aside $75,000 for the building of dwellings and other improvements for the works. A town of American type is being built at Kamerova.

NEW PROPOSAL FOR INCOME TAX RATES

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2—(AP)—Slightly greater reductions on the normal income tax rates than he suggested Monday were proposed today by Secretary Mellon in a revised schedule submitted to the house ways and means committee.

The new proposal of the treasury affecting these rates, which are the only one applying to small incomes, was figured on a basis calling for elimination of the provision in the present law allowing a 25 per cent. reduction on earned incomes.

The schedule provides for rates of one per cent. on taxable incomes up to $3,000, two per cent. on the next $1,000, three per cent. on the next $4,000, and five per cent. on taxable income in excess of $8,000.

Present normal rates are two per cent. on the first $4,000 of taxable income, four per cent. on the next $4,000 and six per cent. on the remainder.

Mr. Mellon's letter forwarding these rates to Chairman Green as a suggestion but not as a definite plan, did not mention that they were calculated on a basis of elimination of the 25 per cent earned income reduction provision, which applies to incomes up to $10,000, and embraces all incomes, whatever the source, up to $5,000. Joseph F. McCoy, government actuary, who framed the schedule, declared, however, that the estimates were conditional on such action.

Mr. McCoy estimated that the reduction in total revenue involved in these cuts in the normal rates would be $40,000,000. Mr. Mellon's suggestion Monday that the surtax maximum be reduced to 20 per cent. from the present level of 40 per cent. was not altered in today's communication.

The secretary's letter was read today at the outset of the fourth day of public hearings by the committee, which it plans to continue through next week before beginning work on its new bill. Both republican and democratic members of the committee expressed approval of the new schedule as compared with the suggestions he advanced Monday, which called for normal rates of one per cent., on the first $3,000 of taxable income, three per cent. on the next $4,000, and five per cent. on the remainder of income.

Plans for even greater reductions on these rates, however, have been proposed by both republican and democratic members, and pending study of the proposal none would commit himself definitely. Decision on the new rates will not be made by the committee until it concludes its public hearings.

In his letter to Chairman Green, Secretary Mellon explained that the actuary had compiled two schedules for proposed reduction on the normal rates, and that he had finally decided to advance this scheme.

ARCTIC NIGHT SETTLES TO SEE NORTH MORE DESOLATE

LONGYEAR CITY, Svalbard, Oct. 22—(AP)—The arctic night has settled over these desolate regions, and not a glimmer of sunlight will be seen again until the end of April.

This coming winter will be even more than unusually quiet in Spitzbergen. Most of the coal mining settlements will be virtually deserted, for the low coal prices now ruling have made it imperative to restrict output and from Kings Bay alone 300 operatives are being sent home by the last coal boats before the ice closes in, and only a score of watchmen will remain in charge.

At Green Harbour, the Dutch Company will have odd jobs for about 50 men, but only a dozen hardy Swedes will keep a lonely watch at the remote Swedish mine at Braganza Bay, which this year was inaccessible even in the middle of June.

The Great Northern Coal Company, the most important concern, will endeavor to carry on here with 400 operatives, and a monthly output of 15,000 tons is expected. Conditions here are more favorable and the quality of the coal is superior.

The isolation of the smaller outposts is less complete since the advent of wireless.

A suggestion to adapt Amundsen's remaining polar plane for conveying mail and occasional passengers to and from Spitzbergen has been abandoned by the Oslo government on the score of expense.

Next spring, of course, mining operations will be resumed in full force, with the Norwegian government officials for the first time in control of the archipelago.

For the first time, the entire west coast of Spitsbergen has now been completely charted. This work has taken 20 years. A government Cartographic expedition returned this week to Tromsoe with the final data collected by the state hydrographers, who carried out their mission on Amundsen's former supply ship Farm.

The executive committee of five members of the Connecticut Valley Tobacco association, which includes Nathan D. Prince, president of the Hartford-Connecticut Trust company, assumed practically the complete control of the association.

"M'GUFFEYITES" IN INDIANA PERPETUATE FIRST READERS

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 22 (AP)—The small schoolhouses that dotted Indiana's hillsides half a century ago have become garages and granaries, but the lessons learned in them from the McGuffey readers will be perpetuated by "The McGuffeyites," an association of Hoosier state natives.

In the days when the three R's constituted the curriculum, the readers prepared by Dr. W. H. McGuffey were the standard, and often the only texts. Many a copy, its covers battered and leaves worn thin by hard usage from each successive child of the family, went on the mantelpiece beside the family Bible and Pilgrim's Progress when new educational methods and subjects discarded the one-room rural school. The McGuffey readers and their contemporary, the little red schoolhouse, became only symbols of a step in the evolution of rural education.

Then, several years ago, a letter in this reader's column of The Indianapolis News asked: "Where can I get the old McGuffey school books I studied 45 years ago?" Two persons answered the inquiry with offers to share their McGuffey readers but refusing to sell them. Other Indianians whose alma mater was the hillside schoolhouse asked access to the readers. In several months The News published 74 letters about the McGuffey readers.

In the seventy-fourth letter, Otis J. Miller of Bloomington, called a meeting of "McGuffeyites" in Indianapolis, and an organization was perfected and named. Its purpose is to keep alive the traditions of the McGuffey readers and the little red schoolhouse days. Today the organization has 200 members, publishes a monthly newspaper, and holds regular meetings.

MANDATE OVER SYRIA IS EXPENSIVE TO FRANCE

PARIS, Oct. 22.—(AP)—France has lost more than 17,000 men and has spent more than 3,000,000,000 francs in Morocco and Syria since she took over the protectorate of Morocco and assumed the Leagues of Nations mandate over Syria.

Such is the information imparted to the finance committee of the chamber of deputies by Premier Painleve today. In Morocco 2,176 men were killed and 8,297 wounded, and in Syria 6,626 were killed, wounded, or are missing. The cost in Morocco had been 950,000,000 francs and in Syria more than 2,000,000,000 francs.

M. Painleve, in response to an interpellation by M. Renaudel, one of the leaders of the socialist party, said he hoped the question of Syria might be settled through the League of Nations, which had entrusted France with the mandate. He entertains no such opinion concerning Morocco.

"The Moroccan question," he declared, "is one which must be liquidated between France and Spain on the one hand and Abd-El-Krim on the other."

The percentage of French troops killed or wounded in Morocco, Premier Painleve explained, was one to four compared with natives. The foreign legion is classified as "French." The premier said that he would ask parliament for additional credits of 300,000,000 francs for the period of July-December, 1925, for the Moroccan campaign.

NO LEGISLATIVE ACTION ON ANTHRACITE COAL SHORTAGE

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Legislative action will not be sought by the New York state coal commission as a means of solving the anthracite fuel shortage, the commission decided today, on the ground that even though the legislature should be convened in extra session, it could take no effective steps in the matter.

At the conclusion of a conference today between members of the coal commission, New York and Brooklyn coal dealers, and officials of two up-state cities, Chairman Charles W. Berry of the commission announced that he does not consider the situation serious in view of large supplies of soft coal and other substitutes on hand. There is no hard coal whatever to be had, he reiterated, so this has ceased to be a factor in the situation.

The section of the sanitary code which prohibits use of fuel emitting dense smoke was temporarily rescinded today by Health Commissioner Monaghan to permit use of soft coal and other anthracite substitutes.

To Demand Equal Rights For Women

Mrs. Pethick-Lawrence, famed feminist of England, who attended the Inter-Parliamentary Union with her husband, who was a delegate. Mrs. Lawrence is behind the plan asking for equal rights for men and women all over the world, and that every parliamentary body should take immediate steps to bring the laws of its country into harmony with the principle.

SAGHALIEN ISLAND SOURCE ALL JAPANESE COAL NEEDS

TOKYO, Oct. 22 (AP)—The northern part of the island Saghalien could supply all the coal needed by the factories of Japan if mining was carried on according to plans drawn by experts, said Mr. Hidiakoff, chief of the Russian Investigation Commission, just returned from there.

"The coal deposits are great and almost immeasurable," he said. "Veins are so numerous that mines can be established readily in almost any part of the northern territory. The quality is also so good that the best of coal tar can be obtained from it."

BETTER ALABASTER LAMPS OF TUT'S DAY FURNISHED LIGHT

LONDON, Oct. 22 (AP)—Whereas the world is just beginning to use alabaster for electric lighting, the Egyptians 3,275 years ago made even finer alabaster lamps than are produced today, Howard Carter, co-discoverer of Tutankhamen's Tomb, said in an address here.

Mr. Carter made known that in finding many of these secret lamps in the tomb the secret of how the Egyptians illuminated their homes was revealed.

The lamps were executed in beautiful designs in translucent alabaster, and one of them stood about three feet in height, with a large central cup. There was no decoration on the exterior or the interior, but immediately a light was placed in the vessel there could be seen a picture of the young king and queen in colors. This effect was produced by another vessel, with the decoration on its exterior, being fitted inside the lamp so cleverly that the joints between the two vessels could not be seen.

The theft of jewelry valued at $15,000 from her rooms in an apartment hotel in the Back Bay district, Boston, was reported to the police by Mrs. Sarah Munro, a wealthy widow.

LIMIT HIGH SCHOOL ATHLETE TO TWO HOUR GRIND DAILY

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 22 (AP)—Athletes in the local school under no circumstance may exercise more than two hours in an afternoon. No student may try out for more than one major sport team a semester.

The Board of Education, "alarmed at the steadily increasing displacement of studies by athletics in the minds of students," set these and other rules for high schools here. Post-season contests for sectional titles and contests with university or college freshman teams were also tabooed.

Only two practice games in sport will be permitted to precede the regular season.

Duck Calls Broadcast

OAKLAND, Calif., Oct. 22 (AP)—A device for broadcasting duck calls has been invented by J. V. O'Hara, president of the Vallejo Gun club. Radio apparatus has been installed in the club's preserves, and with the opening of the shooting season in October, an alluring "quack, quack" was scattered among the duck blinds.

TAXPAYERS WILL PAY TRIPLE FOR COURTHOUSE ON BOND PLAN

SEATTLE, Oct. 22 (AP)—Taxpayers are going to pay three times the actual cost of the obsolete King County courthouse built in 1889, printed copies of the 1926 county budget showed.

A new county-city building constructed in 1916, but financed under a different plan is to be paid for in 1934, three years after the old obligations are wiped out.

The original bond issue for the old courthouse was for $200,000 to run for 40 years at five per cent interest. Up to February 1, 1911, the country had paid in interest $215,833 and nothing on the principal. In 1911 the 1889 issue was refunded with serial bonds of $10,000 maturing each year for 20 years at an interest rate of four and one-half per cent. Each year since then the county has levied $10,000 with interest for old court house bond retirement. Interest in the second issue will amount to $94,500 making the total interest charges on the two issues $310,333. Added to the $200,000 principal, it makes the total repayment debt total $510,333.

Records show that the cost of construction of the old courthouse was $11,540.

It consists of two sheets printed on both sides, giving four printed pages of news for those who can not see. F. Kimura, a wealthy Japanese philanthropist, is financing the enterprise and the editor is S. Hiroha...

The county clerk at Topeka, Kas., received a telephone call asking if he would keep his office open a little after with dental bridgework of American said that he had some important business to transact. The clerk was accomodating. A little after 5 o'clock a small boy stepped in, deposited a pair of jackrabbit ears and asked for the bounty of 5 cents allowed by the county.

A fete in connection with the 25th anniversary of the establishment of the artificial silk-spinning industry was held recently at Tubize, near Brussels, where the industry has transformed what was formerly a small farm village into a model garden city. There was a parade of the 4,500 men and women employes of the factory, and a large apartment in the works was converted into a temporary chapel, where a choir from the Theater Royal, Brussels, sang a te deum.

WILL IMPOUND A LAKE 100 MILES LONG TO GET POWER

MILES CITY, Mo., Oct. 22, —(AP)—The thud of axes and the crash of 90,000 trees on the banks of the Osage river near Bagnell, Mo., will herald the construction of a dam that will impound a lake more than 100 miles long and have 970 miles of shore line. Through the sluices will rush the tawny waters of the Osage river to turn five turbines each generating 25,000 horsepower of electricity to vitalize factories, light towns and speed transportation in Missouri.

The lake to be created will have 1,830,000 acre-feet of storage capacity, much more than the Elephant Butte reservoir. The turbines will produce almost as much primary power as does Muscle Shoals.

The Missouri Hydro Electric Company, which will built the dam, also has purchased land for the erection of two other power plants about 100 miles south on the Current River. These, its officers say, will produce 58,000 horsepower. Linked with the Osage river plant, 188,000 horsepower will be produced, if the projects are completed for transmission through Missouri.

Linn Creek, an old Missouri town with an almost unchanging population of about 500 persons, will be inundated in the Osage reservoir. The power company expects to build a new town for Linn Creek's people on a nearby hill.

The power plant and dam will be built largely of local materials. A large deposit of gravel will be used in the concrete with limestone blocks broken from ledges on the property. No steel reinforcing will be used. The dam will rest upon limestone which has been drilled 342 feet without penetration.

CURIOUS OROGIN OF BUILDING RECALLED BY ALTERATIONS

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 22 (AP)—A brokerage firm is making interior alterations in the Parrott Building, a structure built in 1853 of stones brought from China.

When the ship sailed in from Hongkong and landed at the single wharf the city then had, Chinese coolies secured the great stones to bamboo poles and carried them to the site. There was no derrick, and the stones were lifted into place by a primitive system of poles and ropes. But the coolies, directed by an American contractor, did a good job.

The little three-story building stood staunchly through the 72 years of progress. It was one of the few downtown to survive the earthquake and fire of 1906. It presents a strange contrast to the glossy surfaces of the giant structures of San Francisco's Wall Street. Although interior improvements are being made, the exterior, built to endure, will not be changed.

Russian Illiterates Decline

RIGA, Oct. 22 (AP)—The proportion of illiterates in Russia has been reduced from 777 per thousand in 1914, to 500 per thousand at the present time. Among the vast amount of reading matter freely circulated in Soviet Russia today, in contradistinction to pre war Russia, scientific works are most in demand. Books on political economy and sociology are given preference. Other very popular sciences are chemistry, astronomy and biology.

Form Japanese Clerical Party

TOKYO, Oct. 22 (AP)—Formation of a strong Clerical party that would participate in the coming elections at which more than 9,000,000 new voters will ballot, is reported to be supported by priests of the Nichiren sect, a militant Buddhist group. An obsolete police regulation prohibits religious workers from joining political parties in Japan. The Nichiren sect, composed of 2 different groups, has approximately 3,000,000 followers

SWELL IN VALUE OF LIRA DID NOT REDUCE COST OF LIVING

ROME, Oct. 22 (AP)—The recent increase in the value of the lira which was expected to relieve the high cost of living, has instead left Italians as loggerheads with the task of making ends meet.

When the lira was worth hardly more than three cents, the cost of living suddenly soared upward. But when the lira was again worth more than four cents, the high cost of living refused to come down, despite the lamentations of the people.

Shopkeepers who marked up their prices refused to mark them down arguing they had to pay for their stocks at the higher prices and that the lira was too unsteady to permit stabilizing selling rates.

DISPOSING OF THE LEAVES.

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

Smoke.
S-m-o-k-e.
SMOKE.
Smoke from road-side gutters.
Smoke from back-yards.
Smoke of dead autumn leaves, raked into piles and fired to get them out of the way.

And this done by scores and hundreds of people who would never think of burning up $2 bills to get rid of them, nor even of burning up their soiled napkins to save the trouble of washing them.

Done, too, by the same people who've been wondering why the grass on their lawns was so thin, or why the seeds they sowed so hopefully in their gardens "didn't seem to do nothin'."

Done, too, by the same people who not only spent various $2 bills for garden and grass seeds last spring, but $5 for high-priced fertilizers to stimulate or feed them.

I do not fail to note the fact that the highway authorities have forbidden folks to burn their leaves on or at the side of the state highways. This has been done for the sake of the roads themselves, and to prevent the heat of the fires from disintegrating their surfaces.

Those who obey this edict will, however, continue to burn up the leaves in their own front or back yards, where the long arm of the highway commission can't reach them. And then, next year, they'll buy more grass-seed to sow on the thin spots, and more beet and bean seed to plant in the garden, and more fertilizer to put on both places.

Why do they do it? Burn the leaves, I mean.

Well, some because of their over-developed mania of "neatness." And some just to imitate their fool neighbors. Some very few perhaps because they think the ashes will do the soil good. And some because they don't know any better. But all, from A to Izzard, because they lack the sense of thrift which takes advantage of all small opportunities to promise larger good.

Have you ever walked through a natural forest about this time of the year or a little later when the leaves had all dropped off? If you have you have waded, often knee-deep, through rustling beds of fallen foliage, dry and fluttery on top but even now at the bottom beginning to soften and decay. It is the blessed mulch which nature spreads, every fall, to protect the soil throughout the winter and then to turn into invaluable fertilizer to renew old growths and feed new ones, when spring returns.

"If you give an old leaf over to the bacteria in the soil and do not burn it, the old leaf will make a new leaf," says Prof. Esten of Storrs. Those bacteria will do it all by themselves and all for nothing, too. They won't ask for any steering from you or any donations. As a matter of fact, they were on the job some millions of years before your pace appeared on the scene and don't need instruction nor advice nor assistance from you. All they ask of you is to let them alone and not rob them of their raw material. They'll make it over again into new patterns and to serve new uses.

But you won't let them alone. "What do I care for a lot of bacteria?" is your mental response. "I want these dead leaves out of the way and my lawn and roadside looking as neat and clean-swept as my neighbors'." And so, as a valued correspondent writes me:

"In a few days the air will be filled with the smoke of burning leaves and garden rubbish, so-called, while the bacteria, on the verge of starvation, will whiff the unwelcome smoke and moan: 'There goes up in that smoke our last hope for a full dinner-pail, next winter. What Fools These Mortals Be.'"

Now, I'll grant you at the start-off that your lawn or frontyard or garden are not parts and parcels of the primeval forest. They've been taken out of it and dosed and doctored up into suburban or rural gentility. Having thus been transformed and transmogrified into something you find more convenient and regard as even better looking in other respects, why should any one urge you to revert to the wild and natural in this one matter of autumn leaves?

Dinged if I know why. In truth, I didn't know that anybody did. Certainly I am not going in for anything of that sort. You think your "grounds" will look better if the litter of dead leaves is cleared away. So do I.

Likewise I think you'd look rather queer going to business with all the two-cent stamps in your possession gummed onto your coat lapels and down the sides of your trousies. The place for them is in the stamp-box, not as illuminants of your sober business suit. But it would seem to me strangely absurd for you to burn them up before starting down-town, just to get them out of the way.

Yet you're burning up quite a bunch of two-cent stamps every time you burn up a heap of drifting leaves. The main difference is that Nature has given you the leaves while you have to pay a paternal government in good money for the two-cent stamps. Does that make the latter any more valuable, intrinsically?

I have known farmers, in the days when they kept horses and could hire help, to make a practice of hauling quantities of forest leaves from the woods, every fall, not only to use as an absorbent bedding for their animals, but to dump by the hay-rigging load into their barn-yards and pig yards, there to "make manure."

And there's Esten, up at Storrs, who is trying to show the tillers of worn-out New England soils how a return to the bacterial alliance will save them money, give them crops and renew their soils, who emphatically insists that they must give back to the soil all the wastes of their crops, the stalks, the weeds, the leaves, in order to preserve humus and give the bacterial hordes something to live and work on. He demands this as vigorously as the use of lime and phosphates for soil sweetening and feeding.

When it comes to brush, dead bushes, fallen tree-limbs and the like woody stuff, I don't happen to know of any better use for it than to burn it, leaving the ashes where you're going to sow peas or set cabbages, next season. But leaves and dead weeds and all the softer materials which make up what we call garden litter are worth too much, just as they are, to treat so drastically.

As has been noted, we're forbidden to burn them by the roadsides lest they injure the macadam or cement. If we burn them on the grassy lawn, we're apt to scorch the grassroots so they'll show it, next summer. If we carry them all to the back-garden and burn them there on the bare dirt, we shall have left just the ashes, with their small content of potash and still smaller traces of lime. In every case, we've either done actual damage or destroyed actual value.

Worse than that, if we let the women or the children do the burning, as a good many of us are apt to, we incur the risk of one, now and then, setting clothes afire and causing painful if not serious burns.

What in tophet shall we do with the stuff, then? For we are not going to let it lie around underfoot all winter, to litter up the place and be tracked into the house every time we go back and forth. That's flat.

Well, that's up to each one of us, individually. No two will find exactly the same answer solving their problem. All a fellow can do is to make suggestions, which may or may not fit particular cases.

One careful gardner whom I used to know began, each spring, to make a "compost-heap" in a useless corner of his garden. All the weeds he hoed or pulled out from his growing crops were picked into a basket and dumped there. All the short clippings from the lawn were added. If any wood-ashes were made in the stoves, they were scattered over the growing heap. The garbage-can was emptied there, too. In fact, it was made the receptable for all the wastes which weren't automatically disposed of and which ordinarily were looked on as nuisances. As crops matured and died, their stalks or vines were piled on. In the fall the dead leaves were rake up and carried there, a few old boards being laid over them to prevent the wind from blowing them away, till they should get naturally wet down.

This particular gardner, from a garden of not over half an acre, from the garbage of an ordinary country-house, and from the leaves of perhaps a score of apple and shade trees, made thus, in the one season I was able to keep tally on his work, something over three tons of the best fertilizer attainable. In fact, he made more than was needed for all the next year's garden, and used a small load of the finest top-dressing to scatter over the weaker spots of the lawn.

Of course, I don't know whether such a plan would meet your approval or not. It involves some extra trouble. You may be one of the sort who had rather spend money than take trouble. There are such. It also involves a comprehension of thrift, its meanings, its ends, and its motives. You may be one who has atrophied his inherent thriftiness by long disuse. There are such. Or you may be too busy with what you consider more important things. There are such.

All I can do is to call your attention to the fact that, when you burn up your leaves and other litter, you're rejecting one of Nature's kindly gifts, and you're coolly dooming to death or, at least, to innoccuous desuetude, some few billion millions of benevolent bacteria whom Nature sent to help you out and who'd be glad to do it for their board, if you'd only leave them that.

That doesn't really seem like "good business," does it?

He was born in Ekonk church parsonage and he gave many interesting and inspiring reminiscences of his boyhood days here. He told of the day when his little brother was drowned and brought home to his mother by a neighbor and the mother exclaimed "The Lord gave and the Lord hath taken away. Blessed be the name of the Lord" and a neighbor thought if religion could enable a mother to say that under such trying circumstances, he wanted to try religion himself and was converted.

DEMAND MADE UPON DIRECTORS OF FIRST NAT'L BANK, PUTNAM

HARTFORD, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Demand has been made upon directors of the First National Bank of Putnam to pay $125,000 to Receiver George M. Coffin to cover four bad loans made by G. Harold Gilpatric as cashier of the bank wrecked by his defalcations.

Acting under instructions from Comptroller of the Currency J. W McIntosh at Washington, Receiver Coffin has notified the directors that they were negligent in sanctioning these loans when presented by Gilpatric for their approval, as investigation would have shown that the borrowers lacked the financial standing to secure the notes. Seven directors and the estate of an eighth, in addition to Gilpatric, are held to be liable to the receiver of the bank for the aggregate of the loans. They have been notified that suit will be instituted by the government to recover the $125,000 unless settlement is made.

The directors involved are C. H. bank; Silas M. Wheelock, R. P. Bradley, Oscar Dur[illegible], John O. Fox, Edward Mullan and L. [illegible] Smith. Similar steps have been taken against the estate of the late John A. Dady, and the bankrupt estate of Gilpatric, both of whom were also members of the board of directors. All of the directors are residents of Putnam or immediate vicinity.

Half the world is half asleep

You cannot stay the hand of time. But time can steal youth gracefully, and leave a person still attractive. It is the vicious work of constipation that robs a sufferer of beauty, personality, and even of an interest in life itself. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN brings sure and safe relief from this disease.

"It was not age that lined her face"

You have seen young old-women. They should be beautiful, and they are faded. They should be charming, and they are—but to put it kindly, they are colorless.

So many premature gray hairs, untimely wrinkles, listless eyes, unwholesome complexions can be laid at the door of constipation. Thank goodness there are thousands of women who have regained their charm—thousands who have rid themselves of this disease with Kellogg's ALL-BRAN.

No matter if constipation has become chronic, Kellogg's ALL-BRAN will bring you permanent relief. This is why: It travels completely through your body unchanged in fiber—what doctors call a bulk food, and a most necessary one.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN sweeps the intestine—cleans and purifies it. It stimulates the flow of digestive juices. It absorbs and carries moisture through the intestine. It causes a laggard intestine to function exactly as nature intended. You never have to increase the amount you eat.

Can habit-forming pills and drugs do as much? No. They irritate the intestine. They become less than useless unless the dose is increased.

Eat two tablespoonfuls of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. If eaten regularly, it is guaranteed to bring permanent relief or the grocer returns the purchase price. Eat it with milk or cream, sprinkled over other cereals, cooked with hot cereals, in soups, or in the really wonderful recipes you will find on every package. Delicious with fruit too.

KNOW THE TRUTH ABOUT BRAN

To be effective, bran fiber must go through the various digestive processes without submitting to any of them. It must pass through the entire alimentary tract without its form being changed.

What happens when a bran food is eaten?

After the saliva has acted upon it, it passes through the stomach and into the intestines, where every part which is not fiber is absorbed.

In ALL-BRAN the quantity of fiber is so great that it furnishes bulk enough to prevent and relieve constipation.

In a part-bran food, the quantity of fiber is so small that there is only a puny amount to do a herculean task.

ALL-BRAN brings sure results. Demand it.

Only ALL-BRAN can bring sure results. A part-bran product will bring, at best, only partial relief. Chances are, it will bring no relief at all. You cannot afford to experiment.

Kellogg's is the original and only ALL-BRAN. The one which doctors recommend. When you eat Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, you know how much bran you are getting. You know you are taking enough to drive out of your system the poisons of constipation. All grocers sell Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Buy a package today. Leading hotels and restaurants serve it.

The original ALL-BRAN—ready-to-eat

WESTERLY

Before the 31st annual convention of the Rhode Island W. C. T. U. held in Grace Methodist Episcopal church in Westerly had adjourned Thursday, the third and last day of the session, the following delegates from Rhode Island were named to attend the next national convention of the Women's Christian Temperance Union: Miss Ruth Barton, president of the Pawtuxet Valley district; Mrs. H. E. King, president of the Providence district; Mrs. Rachael Aldrich, resident of the North Providence union; Miss Ruth Hammond, resident of Wickford union and Miss Martha Wood, president of the North Scituate union.

Resolutions commending the Rhode Island Mounted Police, urging heavier penalties, including permissable jail sentences for first violations of the liquor law, attacking the increased use of tobacco by women and girls, and the use of drugs, especially among school children, and advocating that the United States become a supporting member of a permanent court of international justice, were adopted at the convention Thursday.

The delegates voted to send copies of the resolution praising the work of the state police and commending the efforts of other officials to perform their duties to Col. E. St. J. Chaffee, superintendent of the Rhode Island Mounted Police, and to Attorney General Charles P. Sisson.

The convention also adopted a resolution urging a more effective programme of temperance education and advocating vigorous efforts to bring about better law enforcement.

A round table discussion was held Thursday forenoon at which the following topics were considered: "Interesting New Women in the W. C. T. U." "The Best Programmes for the Local Union Meeting." "The Place of Department Work in the Local Union" and "The Local Union and the State Union." Mrs. Lillian C. Borden of Portsmouth, president of the Island district, conducted the noonday prayer and consecration service for new officers.

A citizenship and law enforcement programme was carried out at the afternoon session. Mrs. Susan Dawley of Wakefield presided. Included in the afternoon programme was the Deborah K. Livingston Tribute pageant under the direction of Mrs. Alice F. Potter and Mrs. W. E. Dennett, of Providence.

Then came the awarding of diplomas for the citizenship course of study, by Mrs. Alice F. Porter, with an incidental solo by Mrs. Ethel Whittaker of Westerly. R. P. Hutton, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league of Rhode Island, gave an address on "The W. C. T. U. and Law Enforcement." Final adjournment was taken Thursday afternoon.

The art classes in Westerly schools are designing bookplates many of which will be exhibited at the library during Book Week, November 8-14. As other bookplates will be shown at the same time, the library is asking for copies of personal bookplates owned by people in or nearly Westerly. During Novembe arad December an exhibit will be held in the art room of the books, games and toys our grandparents owned when they were children.

Neighbors' Night of Westerly Grange. Patrons of Hunbandy, George Maurice Nye, Master, attracted nearly 200 grangers from Washington county chapters of Ashaway, Hope Valley, Quonochontaug, Narragansett, Exeter Slocum, Quidnesset, Perryville, West Kingston and Richmond and the New London county granges of North Stonington, Mystic and Stonington to Grange hall at Avondale. At 9 o'clock, an open meeting was held at the lecturer's hour, in charge of Miss Ethel James, lecturer of Westerly Grange. Charles M. Gardiner, of Springfield, Mass., high priest of Demeter, made his sixth annual visit and spoke to the Grangers assembled on a timely subject in his effective way. The evening program was begun and ended by a musical selection by Ashaway Grange orchestra. Asa T. Hoxie, of Charlestown sang a solo.

Both rooms of the grange hall, which it is hoped in time can be made into one, were used for the accommodation of the "neighbors" and had been most attractively decorated with red oak leaves. Following the program sandwiches, cake and coffee were served.

It took the jury just twelve minutes to decide for the defendants, Thursday morning in the last trial case for the Westerly calendar in the September term of superior court for Washington county. A fifteen minute charge by Associate Justice Antonio A. Capotosto was given in the counter civil suits for damages at $1,000 each as the result of alleged assault. Annunziata Serra vs. Gabriele Falcone and Anneline G. Falcone vs. Mary A. Serra. The jury returned at 11:27 o'clock and the members were discharged after being paid off, and final adjournment was taken by the court.

Martin H. Spellman was elected president of the Providence College club of Westerly at the meeting held at their rooms on Main street Wednesday. Other officers elected were vice president, Francis P. O'Brien; secretary, Leo J. Rowan and treasurer, Charles J. Butler. The social committee named consists of Charles J. Butler, William Murry and Dominic D. Gencerelli.

While the erection of the building on Canal street for the United Theatres of Westerly has been in progress there has been considerable discussion relative to fire risks in the structure and now comes charges that the building is almost devoid of safety appliances, and that it will constitute a menace to the safety of the theatre's patrons. These charges were made at a meeting of the Westerly zoning board Tuesday evening, according to Town solicitor John Ferguson, Jr. Mr. Ferguson said he was instructed to draft a resolution requesting the incoming Town Council to appoint a building inspector, as authorized by state laws.

The resolution the vote of the zoning board states will be presented to the new town council, which takes office next month, instead of to the council now in office. The present town council, Mr. Ferguson says, has neglected to appoint a building inspector, as authorized by law, nor has one been appointed since the law was passed.

"Westerly is no worse than many other municipalities in the state in this respect," said Mr. Ferguson yesterday. "I find that the law relating to building inspectors is quite generally disregarded, except in some of the larger cities, in which building is governed by city ordinances."

The zoning board, it was stated at the meeting Tuesday evening, finds its hands tied in this and similar instances. Under the law creating it, it may name locations for buildings, but it has no authority, it was stated, to say how the building shall be constructed.

The theatre complained of, it was stated at the meeting, has no windows in its auditorium, and but two exits. Narrow wooden stairs lead to a gallery, under which are to be two stores, with furnaces in their basements. A furnace is also to be placed under the wooden stage of the theatre, it was said. The gallery, it was alleged, is to have no exit except the narrow wooden stairways. In case an audience should find it necessary to use the stage exit, it would be forced to mount wooden stairs to the stage.

"The town councils of the several towns throughout the state shall elect and the mayors of the cities of Woonsocket and Central Falls shall appoint, annually, in the month of January, an inspector of buildings, who shall be paid such amount for his services as shall be determined by the respective towns and said cities."

Western Lawyer To Be Dempsey's Legal Pilot

Ray Cannon, Milwaukee lawyer long time friend of Jack Dempsey, who is to be the new pilot of the heavyweight champion, partly as pugilistic advisor but mostly as legal pilot. Cannon has quite a reputation as a legal light in sports circles, and is just the man for Dempsey, as the latter has little head for intricate legal problems. The school is under the tutelage of Thomas Williamson, United States attorney, and John B. Madden, deputy prohibition administrator of Illinois.

The statute had never been repealed. Hill's offense had been committed on the Sabbath, and the justice accordingly assessed a heavy fine.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Peter Tries to Make a Call

Who trusts entirely his eyes
Will get full many a surprise.
—Old Mother Nature.

It really was most unkind of Ruddy the Red-backed Mouse, to invite Peter Rabbit to call on him at his home and then say that he was going home that very minute and actually disappear right in front of Peter's eyes. But this is what he did. Yes, sir, he did so. It seemed to Peter that he just vanished in the most mysterious manner. On instant he was sitting there in front of

So then Peter began to look around on the ground

Peter talking to him, and the next instant he had disappeared. You see with that little red coat of his it was an easy matter for Ruddy to disappear amongst the red leaves on the ground. He just slipped in amongst them and then kept perfectly still.

"Hold on, Ruddy! Wait a minute!" cried Peter. "Wait a minute and I'll come and make that call right now."

Ruddy sat perfectly still and kept perfectly still, although down inside he was chuckling. Of course it was a noiseless chuckle. He could see Peter staring eagerly this way and that way and every way. Peter looked right at Ruddy without seeing him and Ruddy wanted to laugh right out. Finally Peter began to hunt all about. Once he sat down back to Ruddy so close that Ruddy could have pulled the long white hairs in Peter's funny short tail. But he did nothing of the kind and presently Peter gave up. That is, he gave up hunting for Ruddy and started to hunt for Ruddy's home.

When Peter is by himself he sometimes talks to himself in this respect. "It must be," said Peter, "that Ruddy's home isn't far from here. Any one with such short legs isn't likely to travel very far. I ought to be able to find his home without any difficulty at all. He may be smart in hiding himself, but I don't believe he can hide his home so that I can't find it. I'll look around a bit."

It was right then that Peter discovered that he didn't know where to look. More than once he had seen Ruddy sitting on a stump. This means of course, that Ruddy could climb. Peter thought of Whitefoot the Wood Mouse and how Whitefoot some times made his home up in a dead tree. Could it be that Ruddy did the same thing? On the other hand Ruddy's nearest cousin, Danny Meadow Mouse, seldom did much climbing and nearly always built his home in the ground, or some times in the ground. Could it be that Ruddy did as Danny did? It was right then that Peter realized that he didn't know where to look.

He began by looking in all the stumps and dead trees for holes. He found several, but he had no way of climbing up to those holes and looking in them. You know Peter cannot climb. So he was no wiser than before.

"It's of no use for me to look up in trees or stumps," muttered Peter. "If his home is up in one of those places I certainly can't find it. But if it isn't up in a tree or stump I ought to be able to find it."

So then Peter began to look around on the ground. He poked his inquisitive little nose into all sorts of places. Every now and then he would find a little hole in the ground—a hole just about big enough for Ruddy to go in. That put a new idea into Peter's head. He made up his mind right then and there that Ruddy's home was in the ground and that was why he couldn't find it. So then he decided to watch those little holes that he found. He had a feeling that Ruddy would put his head out to look around. So Peter sat where he could watch one of those little holes. After a while nothing having happened, he grew tired. Then he moved to another little hole and did the same thing. So in turn he watched all those little holes. But despite all his watching he saw nothing of Ruddy.

"Well," said Peter at last, "I guess I'll wait until some other day to call on Ruddy."

"That's too bad," said a squeaky little voice. "I'd love to have you call on me today."

Peter whirled around. There sat Ruddy the Red-backed Mouse on an old stump. He was sitting up eating a beechnut.

TAX, OFFICIAL DEPRECATES COMMUNITY EXTRAVAGANCE

The feeling of New England communities that they must have the best in governmental activities, such as schools, police and fire protection, roads and health protection, without counting the ability to pay, is a tendency towards extravagance that was deplored by President Henry F. Long of the New England tax officials' association in addressing the 13th annual convention at Holyoke Thursday. Too many are going to the extravagance of providing the things that are nice to have, but hard to pay for. If this trend is to continue it is time to look for new sources of tax revenue, he declared, but a better way is for communities to demand less of their local governments and undertake to live within their income.

Mr. Long's address, as follows, opened the conference.

We who are gathered here represent that medium of government which distributes in accordance with the statutes as interpreted by our courts the burdens of taxation after the people have determined either directly or through their duly chosen representatives the extent of their governmental activities.

We are not here gathered in conference, as too many people assume, for the purpose of finding some new way of burdening the people by taxation. We who see clearly the burden, taxation too often brings welcome every effort to reduce the expenses of government. As taxing officials we have no control over the amount of money to be expended for the various governmental functions which modern-day life has developed a demand. It is our duty to see that the revenues are raised and that burdens of taxation are spread upon the shoulders of all the people with the degree of fairness that the statutes contemplate. It is for us to administer the law assuming that enactments are meant to enforce the principle that our government is set up so that all shall enjoy the benefits of government and all shall share in the costs of that government in proportion to their ability to contribute. We cannot waive the requirements of the law and must carefully exercise any discretion allowed us. It is well for us to confer that we may know the progress that is being made in the various states in meeting the constantly changing conditions, and to gain by contact with each other the benefits obtained by the experience of actual application of the many forms of taxation which the complications of modern business and every day life have made necessary to fairly spread the tax burden, and to make known to the people that the multiplication of taxes is not as at first glance it would appear additional burdens upon the taxpayer. They being but efforts to spread with a greater degree of fairness the burdens of government upon all the various forms of property enjoying the advantages which government offers.

The six New England states, each having their own individuality, rich in tradition and always forward-looking, have a community of interest. The activities of the various states may vary but the demands of government are similar. While there is no uniform systems of taxation, it is uniformly found that the real burden of taxation is borne in each of the New England states by real estate and tangible personal property just as the real burden of government is expressed in by far the largest part by the expenditures for purely local needs which are largely within the control of the people themselves.

New England with approximately 63,000 square miles of area, comprising 67 counties, 103 cities, and approximately 1932 towns, must provide a large amount of money to keep going the activities which are more or less fixed charges.

Unquestionably, much in the way of revenue must be obtained from a valuation approximating $12,000,000,000 to care for the needs of a population of about 6,000,000, to provide educational facilities for the 1,425,000 elementary and high school children and for the burden of upkeep of approximately 170,000 miles of highway which must take care of a registration of about 1,200 000 motor vehicles.

It is apparent that New England is facing further burdens in the form of taxation unless the demand for improved roads, educational expansion, enlarged fire and police protection, shows a tendency to recede—not to mention other activities which cry for more and more in the form of taxes. The people of New England seem desirous of providing themselves through government with the best in the various activities that modern-day thought seems to suggest as a proper function of government. Unquestionably through government has come much of the benefits and comforts we enjoy today, protecting us in our health and property, and providing every facility for us to improve living conditions and to give to the rising generation more in the way of education, without individual expense, that could be purchased a few years ago by people of large means.

There is no question but that all desire every educational advantage for children. All desire safe and comfortable highways to ride over, adequate fire and police protection but it is not clear that the local communities dependent upon their own properties as the base for raising the necessary revenue can go to the extravagance that many of them are going to providing the things which are nice to have but which are hard to pay for.

To us is given perhaps more than to any other governmental agency, the opportunity to bring home to the people the rapid extension in governmental costs. The spirit of New England which manifested itself in the constant striving for the attainment of liberty and individuality is no more evident than in the field of taxation. Each state has distinct forms of raising revenue. The multiple taxing units typified, by districts, towns, cities, counties or boroughs tends to encouragement of local self-government and control but operates against an effort to capture, analyze and demonstrate the actual cost of government to the people of New England.

The need of knowing the cost of government in order to allow progress only within the means of the people apparently has not as yet made itself sufficiently felt to actuate the people to originate agencies to collect and tabulate for intelligent use the costs of our present unsatiated appetite for governmental activities.

We see that by far the greater proportion of the cost of government is represented by the activities engaged in by our various cities and towns, money being appropriated, raised and expended right at the doors of the taxpayers. We see that much of this is in the shape of fixed charges almost beyond control of a municipality growing out of the countrywide demand on the part of the people for a widely diffused system of education, improved highways to care for the rapidly increasing number of motor vehicles, greater expenditures for police protection some of which can be directly attributable to the advent of the motor vehicle, increased expenditures for fire protection and larger expenditures for the care of the mentally and physically sick. We see that if these items of expenditure were eliminated or substantially reduced the expenses of government would no longer cause a burden of taxation. We see that there is no apparent diminution on the part of the people for governmental activities. We see that there has not been translated into revenue to continue them many of the activities which the people feel are necessary. We see that much in the way of expenditure is occasioned by the thought that someone else pays the tax, that many can enjoy and few pay. We see a general lack of interest in local government. We see that there is translated into the thought of government today the feeling which too often is the expression of the individual that the possession of new things or new comforts is not to be measured by the ability to have them but the mere desire to have being reason enough for the having. We see communities to all appearances unable to afford yet having extensive and expensive governmental activities. We see that there is perhaps no way that the benefits of governments can be given to so many as through expenditures for good highways, good educational facilities, police and fire protection and for health. We see that there is apparently a point beyond which to go means extravagance on the part of the cities and towns, and the running into an expense which is greatly beyond the ability of the community to pay. We view with consternation the desire on the part of the people to have these things which are of a somewhat temporary nature at the expense of the next generation by borrowing on the credit of the community.

We see that many of our cities and towns have already gone to the limit of their resources in providing these various activities. We do not see any classes of property striving to bear a larger burden of tax, but a tendency always to the shifting of a burden which will not disappear. It would seem that if we are to continue this trend that the time had come not to lay additional burdens upon classes of property already bearing the brunt of burden, but rather to look to new sources of revenue which have not as yet been burdened to the extent for example that real estate has been burdened to provide for these activities.

The other and perhaps better way is to have the people demand less of their local governments and undertake to live within their income and ability to pay. In other words reduce taxes by spending less money.

None of the New England states are freed from the burden present but not always evident, voluntarily assumed in the guise of exemption of property from taxation on the theory that the activity performed is one that government would have to perform but for private benevolent enterprise, to say nothing of the many other classes of property exempted. That the total value of property exempt is appalling is evident to all who have given it any study but its reduction to actual figures is possible in only a few states. As pressure for revenue becomes more pronounced a more searching inquiry will of necessity be made into how much the people are burdening themselves with by allowing such liberal exemptions from the burdens of government. Ultimately, all costs of government in whatever form, must be reduced to figures so that all may know costs.

While some of the New England states have passed valueable statutes which materially reduce the ability of the present day to borrow of tomorrow, many of the states still have the door wide open for extravagance in the shape of spending today and paying tomorrow, on the theory perhaps that the dollar of tomorrow is more easily raised than the dollar of today. This we feel is a bad policy because, as we see things developing, it wound appear that the next generation will receive a rich heritage in the ability to spend money, all in fact that they can well stand for, without being given any of the expenses of today.

It is for us of New England who are engaged in that most interesting economic problem of administering tax laws frequently to gather as we now are doing, for the purpose of studying into methods employed in the administration of tax laws, to compare our experiences in their operation, to profit by observations made as to them in relation to the present economic conditions, and to make every effort so to administer as to bring with the greatest possible degree of fairness a spread of the tax burden upon the shoulders of all the people.

New England has given all her best in men and money to develop the United States. There is still a tendency on the part of every state in the Union to look to New England for counsel and guidance, for New England never behind in its activities for the benefits of the people is still not lacking in a proper conception of tax laws in their relation to the spending of the burdens of government. It is for us to uphold the tradition of New England so hardly won and so necessary to retain.

The Hour of Early-Dark

Now comes the children's Hour of Early-Dark,
Queer hour when night invades the afternoon;
Too soon the sun goes down—a flaming arc
Unlingering—as in happy days of June.

Play out of doors comes quickly to an end,
Fall air grows chill, young fingers strangely numb;
Home-lights begin to glow, as shadows send
Their mother-message: "Here the children come!"

They gather home—the lamplight's friendly glow
Reveals torn garments, chafed and dirty hands;
A woman smiles and dreams of long ago—
Queer how a mother knows and understands!

Her own sweet Hour of Early-Dark returns,
She sees herself dusk-driven, too, from play;
High on a shelf an oil lamp brightly burns.
Though suppertime is yet two hours away.

In memory brothers, sisters, laughing-eyed,
Play hide-and-seek by bed and back of door;
Tonight her children beg that she go hide,
Be just her happy self—a child once more!

In prankful mood, she plays with them a while,
Yet well she knows the supper waits her call;
She lets herself be "it," and with a smile
Remembers Age is Childhood after all.

Soon father comes, toil wearied, yet heart glad,
He knows the Hour of Early-Dark is here;
His children gather 'round, demanding dad
Be just as mother—sharing in their cheer.

Sweet Hour of Early-Dark! Your lamplight glow
Brings soul-reflective dreams to those who roam;
I fancy it must make them long to go
And live anew the twilight hours at home!

REV. JOHN J. REILLY PRAISED FOR ADDRESS AT LENOX

A special fro mLenox, Mass., to the Springfield Republican read as follows:

Lenox, Oct. 19—Two hundred members of the Knights of Columbus and their women guests held their annual banquet at Curtis hotel this evening. Grand Knight Joseph M. Walsh presided. After the banquet, Rev. John J. Reilly, of Norwich, Ct., gave a splendid address on the achievement of the times in which we live. District Deputy Frank J. Diamond was the next speaker. Former Senator David I. Walsh was then introduced and addressed the assemblage.

SCHOOLS ADD VALUE TO HUMAN LIVES

It is hard to place a certain definite price on human life. Some, in a way, are useless, others useful and still others most valuable. The criminal is of little or no use to the human society. The average citizen is an asset to a community. A great statesman, an inventor an artist may render his fellowman such great service that it is beyond our power to place a value on it. Who can calculate in dollars and cents the service rendered to this country by Washington, Lincoln, Edison, Ford or any other of our great citizens?

I often watched the pearl fishers on the Mississippi river. From early dawn till late in the day they would be combing the river bed for pearl bearing clams. Coming to the shore they would examine thousands of those clams for pearls. Only once in a great while would they find a pearl of extraordinary value, although they often find many good ones in a day's catch.

Our schools can be compared to the pearl fishers on the Mississippi, declares one of those interested in the drive for St. Joseph's school. Each year thousands of children go through the grades. Life will sort them out and place each one in his class. Some will fall by the wayside, others will make good. let us hope that most of them will make good, a few will achieve eminent success. Each school is doing its utmost to make our future citizens fully competent to perform their duties and discharge their obligations towards God, their country and their fellowmen.

The new St. Joseph school is rapidly approaching completion. No expense is being spared to make it up to date in every respect. In a few months it will be filled with hundreds of American children who will be trained there to become good American citizens. The building is modern, fireproof and we all hope that it will serve this community well for many years, after those who are building it and those who by their contributions towards the drive, next week, will help to complete and furnish it are gone to their reward.

The parish of Elizabeth City, N. C., which has just celebrated its 250th anniversary, is the oldest continuous parish of the Protestant Episcopal church in America.

Don't Say You Can't Sleep —You Can

If your health and nerves are to be maintained at the full vigor, which makes life worth living, you must get proper sleep. The number of hours you sleep is not as important as the depth of your sleep. You should be able to fall asleep almost as soon as your head touches the pillow and sleep without a break until morning. That kind of sleep is the greatest aid to health, beauty, vigor and strength.

And you can do it. Those who are troubled with fitful, broken slumber have found that this condition is changed as soon as they begin to use a new preparation called Neura.

Neura is an easy-to-take pink pellet that contains no opiates or any harmful or habit-forming drugs. Neura quiets the too active brain, soothes the shattered nerves and brings the sweet, profound sleep of childhood. And best of all, you can get Neura from Lee & Osgood Co. or any good druggist with an absolute guarantee to return your full purchase price if you do not get wonderful results from the use of the very first package.

LONG ISLAND CHAUFFEUR PAYS $50 IN CITY COURT AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 23—Edward J. Smith, of Great Neck, Long Island, was in New London Wednesday when he was the chauffeur of a New York state car. He got up to the head of State street and there he started his car in a southerly course, but met the truck of the New London Glass company and crashed into it because he was on the wrong side of the blinker and of course out of his rightful territory. The truck was damaged, the owners claim to the extent of $100. Smith was arrested as he drove away without ascertaining what damage had been occasioned. In court today he was fined $50, which took all the money he had. He settled and then proceeded to Great Neck, Long Island.

Herbert Cook, a sailer on coast guard steamer 136, brought a car from Massachusetts when he came to New London some months ago, and has since been operating the machine without any registration. Officer Parkins found yesterday that Cook had not conformed to law and ordered him to court, where today he was fined $10. Cook represented that he at one time had Massachusetts registration, but he did not have it today and admitted that he had not made application for registration.

Virgil Littlefield and Fred Sparrow parked their automobiles on Starr street last evening at a point where city ordinance decare no automobile shall be left—the southwest side, between Green and Washington streets. The young men attended the Masonic meeting. They declared that they did not observe any warning signs nor did they park with the intention of defying any ordinance, but on the contrary they looked for street marking signs and failed to find them. Judgment was suspended in each case.

C. H. Brigham, superintendent of the slaughter house of the Soltz company, Douglass street, complained to the police today that some time yesterday several feet of hose had been stolen from the abattoir.

The New London authorities today ascertained through the Rhode Island motor vehicle department that the automobile tagged on the 18th inst., by Patrolman John Sullivan because of the driver of the car having violated the city's parking regulations is owned by the Buss Motor Co., Prov. The owners of the car this afternoon were instructed by the local police to cause the driver of the machine to appear in the New London police court without delay.

Groton fire department was called out late this afternoon when a lively blaze was discovered in the roof of the residence of an Italian family on Pequonnoc road. The blaze giving indications of being a serious one. An alarm was rung in from Box 3-2, corner of Chicago avenue and Poquonnoc road, on the arrival of the Pioneer Hose company the fire, which originated from an accumulation of soot in the chimney was quickly subdued.

FORGERY CHARGE SETTLED AND TRAGEDY AVERTED

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 23.—A resident of the northwesterly section of the city was taken into custody this evening by Sergeant John Cavanaugh on a warrant charging him with forgery. After the accused had been locked up a short time, the complaint against the man was withdrawn and after the amount of the fraudulent transaction $25, had been paid to an officer who came here from Providence to effect the arrest of the accused. A near-tragedy, however, was narrowly averted in connection with the arrest of the accused. After the Providence detective had gone to the home of the accused, and was unable to arrest the man because the officer had not jurisdiction in New London the officer sought and obtained the assistance of the local police. Accompanied by the Providence detective, Sergeant Cavanaugh went to the home of the man and as the officers entered the house they observed the fellow at the top of a flight of stairs armed with a shot gun, which he declared he would use to destroy himself should the officers ascend the stairs. He was also possessed of a knife with a blade about four inches in length which he was ready to use the officers finally induced the man to abandon the idea of suicide and after persuasion the man gave himself up.

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 22.—Harry Hett, 3, residing with his parents at Oakdale, is a patient at Home Memorial hospital suffering from injuries received late yesterday afternoon by being kicked by a horse. The child wandered to where a horse was standing in the yard of the Hett home and walking too close to the animal was kicked in the face. The blow resulted in the child sustaining the loss of two teeth, besides suffering lacerations and severe bruises of the face. The boy was brought to the hospital where the injuries were dressed.

Funeral services for William B. Lee were held this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the residence of his brother, 332-2 Broad street, Rev. Horatio J. Grace, pastor of the Montauk Avenue Baptist church, officiating. The body was forwarded to Huntington, L. I., for burial.

The floral tributes were exceptionally beautiful. The body will be forwarded to Danby, Vt., tomorrow, where burial will take place.

Daniel Scoville, about 35, was taken into custody this afternoon at the residence of his mother, following complaint being made by his mother to the police that her son was undoubtedly insane and that she was in fear of her life at his hands. Sargeant Samuel Hick and Patrolman Frank Philopena were dispatched to the Scoville house and upon the arrival there of the officers Scoville was unquestionably of unsound mentality so much so that the officers had difficulty in getting the man to the police station. Once placed in a cell, as his grandmother didn't mind it Scoville was demonstrative in the extreme. City Physician George P. Cheney was summoned and after a brief examination adjudged the man insane, and ordered his commitment to Norwich state hospital for observation. Scoville, who formerly resided in Groton, and who served in the world war, was taken to the state institution by two police officers tonight.

George E. Fisher, who has been confined to his home, Nathan Hale street, a fortnight as a result of an infection of his hand, was able to return to his business duties today.

Billy the Terror

"Called at Robinswood today," remarked Miss Belinda.

"The Merrys, the new owners, are very nice people I hear," said her brother Ben.

"Mrs. Merry's mother received me. Most of the family had motored to Madison," Miss Belinda went on. "I must tell you about my visit. The little boy playing at the gate rose from where he was sifting gravel through his chubby fingers and put his dirty little hand in mine. Of course I was touched by this mark of confidence.

"'Me's Billy,' he told me 'and me's Daddy says my nam's Billy the Terror, but I ain't.'

"'What is it, then?' I inquired.

"'What you sink?' he countered, and I of course said, 'Meryl.'

"'Me wike you. Me doesn't wike everybodies.'

"I was immensely flattered and when the door was opened by a distinguished-looking elderly woman, I marched in proudly with the youngster still clinging to my hand. She looked a little severely at Billy and I could see that she was annoyed to have him make my acquaintance in his decidedly soiled state. I looked down at him reassuringly, and remarked that he was a darling.

"'Yes, indeed,' she snorted at Billy, 'you're the owner of the enchanting garden, aren't you?'

"'I glad you think it enchanting,' I replied. 'You must come over soon and go through it.'

"'Me wike flowers,' remarked Billy and he reached up for a vase of geranium pinks on a table. The next instant it lay in fragments on the floor.

"'Oh, that's too bad!' I exclaimed as I helped pick up the pieces.

"'Please don't be disturbed,' said my hostess. 'There are lots of other vases in the house.'

"'Me wike pinnole, too,' volunteered Billy. 'Me may pluns for you.' He smiled beguilingly at me and strode toward the baby grand, which he began to hit lustily. I longed to snatch him away, but I thought that as long as his grandmother didn't mind it wasn't my place to interfere.

"'Wouldn't you like to look at a picture book, dear?' she asked presently.

"'Me wike piter book all wight,' he answered majestically. 'Bwing one.'

She meekly handed him a volume of travel tales richly illustrated. For a few blessed moments he examined it sedately while she told me how sorry Mrs. Meryl would be to miss my call. Then to my horror that frightful child tore out three leaves from the book.

"'Oh,' I gasped. 'What a shame!'

"'Never mind,' she said with admirable calm. 'Children will be children. I long ago inured myself to their ways.'

"'But,' I dared to ask, 'don't you think they should be trained?'

"'Yes, I think they should be trained,' she agreed, and Billy said, 'Me doesn't wike twaining. Me hit you.'

"'No, no, dear,' she said with what I considered lamentable weakness, as she gently caught his uplifted hand. 'You wouldn't hurt me?'

"'Yes, me would,' he declared.

"Just then there was a step on the porch, and in another second there was an excited woman peering through the door.

"'There you are, you little rascal—excuse me, ladies, but I've been almost crazy hunting for him. He gave me the slip at the hotel, and his mother and father are playing golf and I was that scared for fear he was in the lake that I could cry. Come with me, Billy Jameson, and let me clean you up before your mother lays eyes on you!'

"She dragged him away, kicking and screaming, and we looked at each other in astonishment. Then we burst into laughter.

"'I thought you were the most overpatient woman in the world,' I said.

"'I thought you had the worst spoiled child I'd ever seen,' she returned, and then we had the best of time telling each other what we'd like to do to that enfant terrible."

"Why, Belinda," said Ben. "I knew all the time that the Merrys had no children."

"I wish you'd told me before I took Billy the Terror into that house," sighed Miss Belinda.—Chicago News.

No, Indeed!

"An' the way she spoke. Mrs. 'Arris, as though I was a bit o' dirt. Why, I wouldn't speak to my 'usband the way she spoke to me."—London Humorist.

America's Foremost Horse Racer

COPYRIGHT KEYSTONE VIEW CO., NEW YORK

Horse racing has oft been called "The Sport of Kings." Yet, Mrs. Payne Whitney, daughter of the late John Hay, one time Secretary of State, is the virtual head of the Greentree Stables, and not a [illegible] goes by that does not see one of her horses chalked up to victory. She and her husband were one time friendly rivals, each racing their own colors. Mrs. Whitney is the type of society woman that can fittingly be called the backbone of the nation's female angle. She does not use make-up in any form, and allows nature to take its course in the matter of excess weight. And Mother Nature has been good to her accordingly. It is still remembered how Mrs. Whitney, when at an opera, lost a jewel encrusted watch. Others would have raised a fuss. She just instructed an attendant to look for it.

THIS WOMAN'S RECOMPENSE

"I was so weak and nervous I could hardly do my housework," says Mrs. Harry Ashcroft of Covington, Ky. "I could not stand because of the bearing down pains in my back and abdomen. One day I read how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had helped others and decided to try it. I want to praise this wonderful medicine for the health and strength it has given me and ask other suffering women to try it." This is the one great dependable medicine for women's ills.

Shanghai's New England Mayor

Mr. Sterling Fessenden, Lord Mayor of Shanghai, China, as he is known to the British. He was born at Ft. Fairfield, Me., and educated at Bowdoin College. He arrived in Shanghai in 1903 as just another American lawyer, but mastering the hard Chinese law made him a celebrity and one to rely on. He became dean of the Far Eastern Bar Association, which is made up of American lawyers there. As the Mayor of the city, he rules over 2,000,000 people, made up of different nationalities, and his rule is backed by warships of the United States, England, France, Italy, Japan and others. He is well liked, a keen administrator, fair, and able, and a head of one of the fastest growing cities in the world. And he is proud he is a Yankee.

POULTRY.

POULTRY
PAN-A-CE-A
Starts pullets and moulted hens to laying

Nothing like Pan-a-ce-a to bring back the good feeling to a moulted, run-down flock.

Just add one pound of Pan-a-ce-a to every fifty pounds of mash, or one tablespoonful for 20 hens once a day.

Then see the combs and wattles begin to turn red. Listen to the song, scratch and cackle.

Pan-a-ce-a tones up the dormant egg organs, starts the feed the egg way.

There is nothing you can buy for your flock on the same terms on which you can buy Pan-a-ce-a.

Just tell your dealer how many hens you have; he will supply you with the right size packages to suit your flock.

Feed it, all of it; if you don't get eggs, more eggs, enough eggs that you want to feed it regularly, then return the empty container to your dealer and get your money back.

Mr. Poultryman, Dr. Hess & Clark are paying for this advertisement just to get this message to you and they mean business.

Get your package of Pan-a-ce-a from The Yantic Grain & Products Co., 2 Cove St.; Norwich Grain Co., 41 Commerce; The Yantic Grain & Products Co., Yantic; Baltic Grain & Coal Co., Baltic.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS FIRM

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—(By the A. P.)—Expanding pool operators and public participation characterized the resumption of the broad upward movement in today's stock market. The usual week-end profit taking made its appearance in the closing hour, but offerings generally were well absorbed and closing quotations were around the day's highs.

The day's sales approximated five and one half million shares. A total of 592 separate stocks and "rights" were dealt in, making it the broadest market on record. The average price of 20 leading industrial stocks also recorded a new high level.

With the exception of a sharp break in French francs to a new low level for the year in apparent reflection of the French cabinet disapproval of the temporary debt agreement proposed by the American debt funding mission, the day's news developments were largely favorable. Call money continued easy at 4 1-4 per cent, and the weekly meeting of the directors of the New York federal reserve bank brought no change in the 3 1-2 per cent. rediscount rate.

Secretary Mellon's newest tax proposal, providing for a further downward revision of the normal tax on incomes had a bullish effect on sentiment. Other favorable factors included reports that operations of the United States Steel Corporation had risen to 81 per cent of capacity, an advance in pig iron prices and special dividend announcements by a few smaller companies.

The quarterly report of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation showed net income of $2,090,659 in the nine months ended September 30 as compared with $3,423,190 in the previous quarter and $192,170 in the third quarter of 1924. Total earnings for the first nine months of 1925 were equivalent to $3.53 per share of the common, as compared with $1.48 in the same period of 1924.

Resumption of the upward advance in the oil shares met with a large volume of realizing sales although Marland crossed 56 to a new 1925 high and independent oil and gas showed a net gain of 3 1-3 points at 32 1-2. Steel shares held relatively firm. United States steel common closing fractionally higher at 125 7-8, after having sold a point above that figure, and Gulf States steel and United alloy each showing net gains of more than a point. Sloss Sheffield soared six points to a new high at 115.

Motor stocks took on a new lease of life under the leadership of General Motors, which scored an extreme gain of six points at 130 1-2, presumably in reflection of reports that it was negotiating for the control of Vauxhall motors. Ltd. Mack trucks showed a net gain of 3 1-3 points, and Hudson two. American Smelting advanced over a point to within a small fraction of the year's high but the other coppers were rather sluggish on reports of a lessened demand for the red metal.

American Can was run up over five points to a new high record for all time at 251 3-4. Underwood typewriter, which is expected to declare an extra dividend of $1, jumped over five points to a new peak price at 65 3-4. Union Bag and Paper soared nine points to 85 and United States distributing six points to 41, both new high records.

Other outstanding industrial strong spots were American Brake Shoe and Foundry, Byers company, Cluett Peabody, the Commercial Solvents issues, Du Pont, General cigar, Otis elevator, Remington typewriter, and Weber Heilbroner all up 3 to nearly six points.

Rails were rather sluggish although Southern Railway and Baltimore and Ohio exceed their previous top prices for the year.

Call money held firm at 4 1-2 per cent, a further stiffening, was noted in time money rates, sixty to 90 day funds being quoted at 4 3-4 to 5 per cent, with six months loans on a first five per cent basis. Commercial paper rates were unchanged, with 4 1-4 per cent the ruling rate for prime names.

A sharp break of over 10 points in French francs which established a new low record for the year at 4.80 cents, was the feature of the irregular foreign exchange market. Demand sterling held firm above $4.84, but Italian lire sank about five points to around 3.95 cents. Danish krone rallied about 20 points to 24.72 cents, but the other Scandinavian rates showed little change.

Dr. True's Elixir

I was nearly discouraged. I was giving my oldest girl something nearly every night, but now I keep a bottle of Dr. True's Elixir handy, and only give it occasionally. I have tried so many things, but now as soon as I see signs of worms I give Dr. True's Elixir,

SLOGAN FOR NORWICH IS SOUGHT BY CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

The newly elected board of directors of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce held its first business meeting Thursday noon at the Wauregan hotel with President James L. Case presiding. Dr. Hugh B. Campbell, Henry A. Tirrell and Roy D. Judd were appointed by the president as a committee on programme and policy for the ensuing year. This committee will consider a large number of suggestions which have been submitted by various members of the chamber. Twenty-nine different suggestions have been offered by the members, some of whom offered duplicate suggestions. When the programme committe has completed its programme the various committees will be named to work on the various projects.

John M. Lee, Joseph N. Weymouth and E LaRue Bliven were named by the president as a committee on committees. An advisory committee, consisting of past presidents was also appointed, those on this committee being Charles V. James Charles F. Wells Herbert M. Lerou, and Arthur E. Story. The board in order to create public interest in Norwich decided to offer a $10 prize for the best slogan for Norwich. Details of this slogan contest will be announced later. However, the time limit for the contest has been set as November 20th. The board also decided to request the schools to conduct essays on some topic concerning Norwich. There will be prizes for the pupils of the grammar schools and for the pupils of the Norwich Free Academy. Essays will be limited to 300 words. Further details of this contest will be published later.

The local chamber has been invited to be represented at the New England conference to be held November 12th and 13th in Worcester. The conference is being fostered by the six governors of the New England states and is an effort to have united action on the part of every community throughout New England to devise ways and means of holding industry in New England agriculture, commerce, transportation, public utilities, and other matters of common concern. Norwich will be represented at that conference in Worcester. An invitation was also extended to the Norwich Chamber of Commerce for representation at the first meeting of the New England Shippers Advisory Board which will be held in Hartford, on October 30th. The purposes of the advisory board are to form a common meeting ground between shippers and railroads for the better mutual understanding of local transportation and trade channels of the commodities produced in the various communities. Third to promote care and operating efficiency in connection with maximum loading. Fourth to secure a proper understanding by the railroads of the transportation needs of shippers. Fifth, to acquaint shippers and railroads in each section of the country with seasonal requirements. Sixth to adjust car difficulties which may arise in territories between carriers and shippers. Seventh to give the shipping public a direct voice in the activities of the car service division of the American Railway association. The Norwich Chamber of Commerce will be represented at this meeting of the New England shippers.

The board received a communication from the officials of an out of town industry which the chamber is endeavoring to have locate in Norwich. The communication states that the concern will eventually remove from its present location and will consider Norwich sites when the time comes.

The new board of directors comprises:

MAKING THYROID SURVEY THROUGHOUT THIS STATE

At the request of the Connecticut state department of health, representatives of the U. S. public health service are now in Connecticut making a thyroid survey. Interest in the thyroid gland has been intensified during recent years by the discovery that thyroid enlargement, sometimes called endemic goitre when it occurs in excessive degree, may be prevented by small amounts of iodine. It would seem that the thyroid requires a minute quantity of iodine in order to perform its function and when not enough iodine is present the gland enlarges, possibly for the same reason that the muscle of one's arm enlarges when greater demands are being made upon it. In some sections of the country, particularly in the middle west around the Great Lakes and in some parts of the far west, a majority of the children have some degree of enlargement of the thyroid. Enlarged thyroids appear to be much less frequently observed in the eastern section of the United States and it is not believed that such conditions exist to any great extent in Connecticut. In order to be certain of the matter, however, it seems worth while to obtain accurate data by a thyroid survey.

The plan of the survey is to select several cities or towns in each country and examine a representative group of perhaps 500 to 1,000 school children in each. In order to measure the maximum incidence of thyroid enlargement, it is particularly desired to examine children of adolescent age. This would include pupils in the 7th and 8th grades in the grammar school and students in the high school. The thyroid examination is very simple. It consists merely in inspection and palpation of the thyroid to determine whether the gland is normal or enlarged. As an additional bit of research work the examiners are also looking for co-existent focal infection of the teenth, tonsils and adenoids. Since the determination of the condition of these organs takes only a moment the entire examination requires little time.

The purpose of the survey is primarily to ascertain the percentage of thyroid enlargement of different degrees. Incidentally the information concerning infection of the teeth, tonsils or adenoids will permit a study of thyroid enlargement in relation to such focal infection. By such a study it is desired to obtain information as to whether or not focal infections may be one of the factors causing enlarged thyroid.

It is expected that the survey will continue for some time. The cards upon which records are made will be sent to the office of the U. S. public health service for tabulation. It is expected that a report of the survey will be published in the public health reports.

CONNECTICUT'S ONE-MAN CAR RULING IMPORTANT

Extremely fare-reaching effects are already resulting from the recent decision of the Connecticut supreme court of errors which sustained a previous decision of the superior court that the Connecticut company might have a permanent injunction to prevent the city of New Haven from inhibiting the operation of the double-truck one-man trolley car. During the past few months this decision of the Connecticut courts has received wide publicity throughout the United States, because of its interest in other cities where one-man cars are in operation.

The decision is of great importance to trolley companies in all of the forty-seven states in which public utilities commissions have been established, for the court's finding made it clear that such commissions and not the municipalities are the highest authority in the regulation of street car operations, and that, in cases of dispute over the type of cars which might be operated or over the number of men which should comprise a trolley car crew, appeals should be directed to the commission instead of attempting legislation by the board of aldermen or common council.

DANCE WITH PROCEEDS FOR ST. JOSEPH'S SCHOOL

With about 400 present a successful dance was held Wednesday evening at Pulaski Hall under the auspices of the St. Joseph's association. Thumm's orchestra furnished the music for the dance programme. The proceeds of the dance will go toward the building for the new St. Joseph's parochial school building. Those in charge of the dance were John Oney, chairman; Joseph Daniliowics and A. Nowakowski, assistant chairman; ticket sellers, A. Warakomski and E. Kozlowski; in charge of ladies' and gentlemen's cloak room, S. Kochanski and F. Suplicki; refreshments, L. Karpienia, E. Gwiazdowski, P. Korenkiewiewicz, J. Deptulski, C. Satkiewicz, W. Konopka, B. Wojtkiewicz, C. Stacewicz, F. Kellar and J. Stubelik.

HEALTH MESSAGE SPREAD OVER THE STATE

An unusual opportunity for spreading the health message has been offered during the last two months when the health exhibit was installed at fifteen of the agricultural fairs. For the most part these fairs were held in the rural sections, though occasionally they drew a large city following.

This was the third successive year of health exhibiting by the State Department of Health during which time twenty different fairs have been visited, many of these more than once. Thus a complete circuit of the state has been made enabling parents in rural sections to obtain this health message directly and carry away a graphic impression through its visual appeal. An aggregate of 56,000 have been so reached, and over 105,000 leaflets have been distributed. Thus an average of two or more leaflets has been carried back into each of these homes where the health message will be continued over a longer period.

Over two thousand children have been weighed yearly at these fairs, making a total of 7,573 during this three year period. Mothers have been keenly interested in this feature of the state exhibit and the greater number of them have had special conferences as to the health needs of children. Some have returned yearly "to see how my child has grown this year" showing that there are still some districts in the state without adequate facilities for child health work. Each child weighed has received a blue tag on which was recorded the height and weight, and on the reverse side some health rules. So the record form worn proudly away has been the means of introducing some health instruction into that home.

The 1925 health exhibit covering a period of eight weeks represents twenty-four days in the field by the staff of the state department of health. Thirteen fairs were attended, five of these being in new places not reached in former years. Two other fairs were scheduled but were "called on account of rain." Demands for the health exhibit in other places have been insistent, but the staff available has made it impossible to increase this service. Such invitations will receive first place in the 1926 schedule of fairs.

The people in attendance have been much interested in the moving pictures which have been shown at the majority of the fairs. By a clever device the power for showing these has been made possible on an independent circuit, thus putting moving pictures into the smallest and most remote sections. During the 1925 season there have been 110 film showings of the most popular health films, over five thousand people attending.

Other exhibits received their share of attention. The large size smallpox pictures bore witness to the need for vaccination and the biologics focused attention on the serums used in immunizing against smallpox, diphtheria, typhoid and tetanus. The nutrition exhibit graphically portrayed the need for right food, and emphasized the relation between food and health.

Probably in no other way could the health message have been spread so far in so short a time. Meanwhile requests are being received daily from those who "came and saw" for more information on some special service.

NAVY TO CELEBRATE ITS 150TH BIRTHDAY

On October 27, 1925 the Navy will celebrate its one hundred and fiftieth birthday. It was on the 27th of October 1775 that the Continental Congress authorized the purchase of our first vessels of war. Back there in the dawn of our history John Paul Jones told the Naval committee, "you are called upon to lay the foundation of a new power afloat that must in the course of human events become formidable enough to dispute even with England the mastery of the ocean." In those days no doubt he was considered a dreamer but at last his dream is a realization. The development of the Navy from those wooden hulks of Revolution to the well balanced Navy of today is a story fraught with many disappointments. It was one of these disappointments that the sheer indomitable spirit of Theodore Roosevelt turned into the foundation of the Navy of today. It is fitting that the birthday of this great benefactor of the Navy should be the same as that of the Navy itself.

The eyes of the nation are now focused on the Navy. With every wind that blows we hear the shouts of the air enthusiasts. Perhaps they remember that the walls of Jericho were razed by a band of Jews marching around them seven times shouting. Certainly it was a far cry from John Paul Jones to the aeroplane, battleship, and submarine of today and it may be that their shouts will prove a prophecy of the future but to the conservative there is a certainty that so long as troops must use ships to cross open stretches of water, as long as armies and rations must receive food and material by sea, bomb-proof and even so long as the airplane must rely on the carrier there will always remain the menace of the lurking submarine.

Today New London boasts the submarine school of the Navy both for officers and enlisted men. Her facilities extend even to the industries essential for the manufacture and equipment of a modern submersible. It is natural enough that the citizens of this community should have more interest in this branch of the Navy than any other.

Navy day will be celebrated at the Submarine base on the 27th of October. This day will be a holiday in the respect that it will be an "At Home" day, when the Navy will entertain as many civilian guests as can find it convenient to pay the Base a visit.

An elaborate program is planned which will give visitors an excellent idea of what the submarine branch of the Navy is like. Everything will be open for exhibit from the submarines themselves to the elaborate equipment necessary to keep them in repairs and to instruct their crews.

USIN GNEW METHOD TO SET WATER POLES

Many of the greatest problems of public service are solved outside the well equipped research laboratories the maintenance of which public utilities find necessary. Perhaps it is nearer the mark to say that the research laboratories are not confined within the walls of a building, nor are all of the scientists men of specialized academic training.

Ever since it became necessary to construct pole lines, telephone construction crews have had to contend with the problem of sinking poles in shifting soil or below the surface of a shallow lake or creek. To comprehend the difficulties encountered in such work it is only necessary to try to scoop up shifting beach sands at the seashore. Telephone construction men attacked the problem along scientific lines. After many experiments, they tried fighting water with water. It worked.

So now they turn the persistently obtrusive water against itself or against the elusive sand. Instead of attempting to make a hole the crew places the pole upright on the surface of the shifty soil. Then a stream of water from a hose with 20 or 30 pounds pressure is directed at the sand below the base. As the sand is washed away the pole sinks. Usually a depth of five feet is sufficient to sustain the average sized pole.

Eastern Connecticut Health

Communicable diseases reported from the towns in eastern Connecticut during the week were:

Measles—Norwich 1.
Typhoid fever—Norwich 2, Hebron 1.
Whooping cough—Danielson 3.

RUNNING WATER SOUND CURED HIS INSOMNIA

One of the most unique manners of wasting water was recently uncovered according to the Connecticut committee in public service information. The various water companies located in the towns and cities of this state have discovered the public water supply being wasted in more ways than one, including the running of water to prevent the pipes from freezing, excessive use of lawn sprinklers, and a host of other methods, but the latest is the most curious of them all.

A heavy waste of water was traced to an apartment tenant who kept the faucet flowing full head in the bath tub every night. He explained that he had to do this because the sound of running water was the only thing that would lull him to sleep. It was thought at first that he might have been a retired sailor, but further investigation proved that he was troubled with insomnia.

Since the enormous waste of water meant no money out of his pocket book, he slept soundly every night, but when the landlord got through reading the ancient riot act to him, he decided to seek some less expensive cure for his sleeplessness. Neither the landlord, nor the water company, however, were interesting in learning what sort of a lullaby he substituted for his self-developed water fall.

Much water is often lost in wanton waste like this, but the really serious losses usually result from leaking fixture. If the water bill takes a sudden jump and the customer is certain that he has used no more water than usual, a careful inspection of all of the outlets of the premises and particularly the toilets will probably reveal the cause.

BAN ON AUTOMOBILES AT CONNECTICUT COLLEGE

The position of Connecticut college in regard to students driving their own or hired automobiles on the campus has been clearly stated by Benjamin T Marshall, president of the college, and David D. Leib, registrar. In the "C" the college handbook, the former expresses himself clearly on this subject.

No student, nor any group of students who are residents of Connecticut college, says the article shall maintain, hire or borrow an automobile or motorcycle if the same be driven by a student.

By permission of the authorities seniors may have their own cars no earlier than the Friday preceding commencement. Juniors may have cars during the Friday, Saturday and Sunday of the junior prom.

Dr. David Leib expresses himself in this fashion: "The ownership and operation of cars by college students during college years is entirely unwise apart from any social distinction it may tend to create. The temptation to spend excessive amounts of time and money both for personal pleasure and in playing the role of host or chauffeur is in general too strong to be resisted. There is also in addition to time and money wasted, the actual danger to life and personal safety. In the case of young women this danger is augmented. Bad habits of all sorts are established and encouraged. Students should walk more and ride less anyway. I would personally not object to a local student using a privately owned car as a means of transportation to and from college when it is clearly a common sense thing to do."

ART EXHIBIT WITH COLONIAL HOUSE DEDICATION

NEW LONDON, Oct. 22. — The annual art exhibit of Connecticut college for women will be one of the features of the exercises to be held Saturday afternoon in conjunction with the dedication of Colonial house the college's newest dormitory.

The paintings of old masters will be hung in the salon of Colonial house for the benefit of the scores of prominent persons from all parts of the state who will attend the dedicatory services. The art exhibit will continue until November 7.

President Benjamin Tinkham Marshall will make a dedicatory address following a formal luncheon to be served in the new dining hall of Colonial house.

Colonial house, a two story gray granite building, was given to Connecticut college by the late Charles Clark Knowlton of Ashford, Windham county. The building has four single rooms on the second floor and twenty double rooms accommodating two students each.

On the first floor is the salon, a room 72 feet long and 42 feet wide, which has already become one of the main social centers of the college. A dining hall, a suite of rooms for the house fellow and pantries in addition to two ample reception rooms are also on this floor.

The formal luncheon and dedication Saturday will also be the first meeting of the general citizens' committee headed by Governor John T. Trumbull as chairman, which will aid the college to raise $500,000 for endowment.

Another feature of the program will be a hockey game by the college girls and an inspection of the college buildings. At 4 o'clock the student council will serve tea in Colonial house.

UTILITY SERVICES PLAY BIG PART IN HOSPITALS

Up-to-date hospitals, of which there are many in Connecticut, have come to be almost entirely dependent upon the efficient continuance of four public services. The dependence of hospitals on these services is now so great that if any one of the services were suddenly cut off, the great work beting done by the hospitals would be seriously jeopardized. These four public services are electric light and power, gas, water, telephone.

In well-equipped institutions in this state, the patients are brought into the hospital and carried to their rooms by electric elevators. High temperatures are reduced by ice manufactured by electricity. Specially constructed electric lamps afford the proper illumination for diagnosing and operating. The X-ray is operated by electricity. Electric suction pumps, cauteries, and magnets for extracting steel fragments are employed. Operating and dressing rooms are equipped with electric sterilizers for instruments and dressings. Electric body baking devices are in large use. Electricity operates dental drills and other dental apparatus. Electric buzzers and bells at the patient's bedside call the nurses and attendants.

Gas is extensively used for heating the rooms and creating steam for sterilization purposes. Gas is indispensable in hospital kitchens and laundries and for making distilled water. It is not only used in washing and sterilizing clothes and bedding, but also used in ironing.

Hospitals use great quantities of water not only for bathing and cleaning, drinking, ice-making, and cooking, but also to a considerable extent in treatments.

One of the busiest places in any hospital is the telephone switchboard, which comes into use in communication not only outside of the institution, but within the walls of the building itself.

LARGE CROWD ATTENDED BERRY CHILDREN'S FUNERAL

While a large crowd stood congregated in front of the parlors of Undertakers Cummings and Ring, Main street, Thursday afternoon, at 2 o'clock Rev. William A. Keefe, pastor of St. Mary's Memorial church, conducted the service for the double funeral of Eugene, five, and Joseph, four, children formed Tuesday morning by their father, Eugene J. Berry of 224 Boswell avenue. Mrs. Berry, mother of the murdered children, was present at the service. Becoming hysterical as she alighted from an automobile at the cemetery she had to be assisted to an automobile which took her to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William McKenna in Jewett City.

The children were buried in St. Mary's cemetery where a large crowd had also congregated. There were a number of floral forms from friends of the children.

BULGARS APPEAL TO LEAGUE OF NATIONS AS GREEKS INVADE THEIR TERRITORY

In 240 Square Miles of Bulgarian Territory Occupied by the Greeks 25 Persons Have Been Killed and 15,000 Made Homeless—The League of Nations Went Into Action Quickly After an Appeal For Intervention Had Been Received From the Bulgarian Government.

(By The Associated Press)

The fighting between the Greek and Bulgarian forces in Macedonia, growing out of frontier encounters between the guards of the two countries several days ago, appears from all accounts to be slackening, at least temporarily, and on Monday the council of the League of Nations, acting on the appeal of Bulgaria, will meet in extraordinary session in Paris to take up the dispute.

Representatives of Greece and Bulgaria have been invited to state their claims before the council.

An official communique issued at Athens stated that the military operation may be considered ended, the Greek troops having "attained their objective" by advancing into Bulgaria as far as Perich. This was followed later by an official announcement of evacuation of Greek territory by the Bulgarians, but it was added that the Bulgars in order to prevent reoccupation of an evacuated blockhouse, still were firing on Greek positions.

The view expressed in official quarters in the Greek capital is that the incident is now entering "a purely diplomatic phase." It is pointed out, however, that Greece will demand satisfaction for the alleged Bulgarian aggression in the Demirhissar region on Monday last. On the other hand the Bulgarian authorities are insisting that the fault lies with the Greek guards. They admitted in their appeal to the league that Bulgarians shot a Greek soldier dead, but insisted that he had first attacked a Bulgarian sentinel on Bulgarian soil.

Official quarters in Sofia, recounting the consequences of two days of fighting, say that 25 Bulgarians have been killed, and 15,000 made homeless, and that 240 square miles of Bulgarian territory has been occupied by the Greeks.

The official Greek announcement that the military operation may be considered ended seems to be borne out by a message from a correspondent of The Associated Press, who, writing from Petrich, says that as he was leaving the town the firing had ceased and the Greek operations appeared to have stopped. The town of Petrich is described in this dispatch as a mass of ruins and deserted by the inhabitants.

BULGARIANS HAVE EVACUATED GREECE

ATHENS, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Official announcement was made tonight that the Bulgarians evacuated Greek territory this afternoon. It was added, however, that the Bulgarians were firing on Greek positions to prevent reoccupation of a blockhouse that had been evacuated.

TOWN OF PETRICH A MASS OF RUINS AND DESERTED

PETRICH, Bulgaria, Oct. 23. (AP)—A mass of ruins now constitutes the town of Petrich, and except for the mayor and other officials, it is totally deserted. Groups of peasants, who began trekking northward as the Greek troops entered the town from the south, are presenting a picture of desolation and terror. Men, women and children are tramping the rain-soaked roads, shivering with cold, sullen and apathetic.

As the Associated Press correspondent made his way from Sofia to Petrich, he was stopped frequently by peasants who asked: "has it come again to war?"

The Greek artillery kept up a steady bombardment of Petrich for 24 hours and entered the town as it was evacuated by the Bulgarian soldiers, as the correspondent left tonight, the firing had ceased, and the Greek operations appeared to have stopped.

GREEKS HAVE INVADED BULGARIAN TERRITORY

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Oct. 23.—(AP) Twenty five killed, 15,000 homeless and 240 square miles of Bulgarian territory occupied by the Greeks. This is the consequence of the last two day's operations, amounting to regular warfare with old Macedonian province as the battlefield, as given out in official quarters tonight.

Thus far the killed are said to be about evenly divided between soldiers and civilians, but, according to official information, panic-stricken inhabitants of the invaded region are fleeing before the Greeks without food and in utmost misery, and further casualties among these people are expected within the next few days.

The ministry of war charges that behind the advancing Greek columns of regulars, troops from Asia Minor are resorting to a veritable pillage of the occupied country, requisitioning wheat, cereals and other foodstuffs. One town, Petrich, and seven villages are declared to have fallen into the hands of the Greeks, whose advance is described as being over a 30 mile front and to a depth of more than six miles. Latest advices, received here, however, indicate that the Greek advance has come to a temporary halt.

Stories of horrors, such as cropped up during the early weeks of August, 1914, are being told in Sofia tonight. The capital is seething with rage as the refugees relate such happenings as the killing of three children and four women by a shell that exploded at the Petrich railroad station.

In shelling Petrich, the Bulgarian authorities say, the Greeks used long range guns of 155 millimetres.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS TO ACT TO PREVENT WAR

GENEVA, Oct. 23.—(AP)—The League of Nations went into action quickly today in connection with the various conflict of arms which has arisen between Greece and Bulgaria. Within a few moments after he received an appeal for League intervention from the Bulgarian government, Sir Eric Drummond, secretary general of the league exercising his right under the covenant, decided to convoke a special session of the council at Paris Monday afternoon.

Sir Eric lost no time in getting in touch with M. Briand the French foreign minister, by telephone. M. Briand, also president of the council, approved the secretary general's decision and authorized convocation of the council on French soil, instead of at Geneva, as this was best suited to meet the convenience of the members of the council Monday was considered as the earliest possible moment when the Greek and Bulgarian representatives could arrive to present their cases.

M. Briand, meanwhile, has sent telegrams to both the Bulgarian and Greek governments, emphasizing that it is their duty as members of the league not to have recourse to war, and pointing out the "grave consequences which under the covenant would result from violation of the covenant's terms."

This is a warning that the countries in dispute risk being made the object of penalties by the league members in case the proved aggressor insists on engaging in war.

In conclusion M. Briand exhorts both parties not to permit new military operations and to withdraw all troops behind their respective frontiers.

Telegrams explaining the situation have been sent by the league not only to the states which are members of the council, but to all the other members of the league. Should the Bulgarian charges of Greek invasion of Bulgarian soil be proved, it is regarded as one that the league will be confronted with the most serious international dispute it has ever handled.

It is admitted by the Bulgarians that they shot a Greek soldier dead, but they insist that it was on Bulgarian soil after he had attacked a Bulgarian sentinel. They alleged tonight that Greek forces, including artillery, now have penetrated into Bulgarian territory to a depth of ten kilometers (about 6 miles) along a front of more than thirty kilometers, causing eighteen Bulgarian casualties, with seven soldiers missing. They also charge that the city of Petrich has been bombarded by the Greeks. The Greek government has not yet answered the Bulgarian charges.

Sir Eric Drummond had planned to make an official visit to Athens on November 1 at the invitation of the government but league circles said it is probable he will postpone the trip in view of today's developments.

MEXICAN DEBT AGREEMENT HAS BEEN MODIFIED

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Modification of the Mexican debt agreement, under which Mexico will resume payment on its $500,000,000 external debt on January 1, 1926, was announced tonight by the international committee of bankers on Mexico following the conclusion of conferences with Alberto J. Pani, Mexican finance minister. The modified agreement is subject to ratification by President Calles and the Mexican congress, and to the acceptance of the bondholders.

The original debt pact, involving the payment of interest upon Mexico's $500,000,000 debt and $200,000,000 accumulated interests, was negotiated in 1922 by Thomas W. Lamont, chairman of the international bankers' committee, and Adolfo De La Huerta the then finance minister of Mexico. The agreement was temporarily abrogated in July, 1924, when the Mexican government, financially weakened by the De La Huerta revolution was forced to default on payment.

The revision agreed upon by the bankers and Senor Pani provides for the return of the Mexican national railways to private management on January 1, and for the separation of the railroad debt, amounting to about 40 per cent., of the total from that of the government. Elimination of the government's guaranty however, will in no way affect the original schedule of interest payments, which after 1926, will amount to $25,000,000 yearly payable in semi-annual instalments.

The principal features of the modified agreement are:

1—A reduction of interest payments to the international committee in January 1926.

2—Return of the national railways to private management on January 1, 1926.

3—Restoration of the railways to the government prior to January, 1926, in proper working condition.

4—Exchange of bonds of the Caja de Prestamos (a Mexican agricultural institution) for a new government issue.

5—Agreement to subject the modified pact to acceptance both by the Mexican president and congress and by depositing bondholders.

MASONS FAVOR FEDERAL DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—(AP)—The supreme council of the Scottish Rite Masons, southern jurisdiction, unanimously went on record today in support of the bill to create a federal department of education, which will be introduced in the next congress.

Earlier in the day the council selected Omaha, Nebraska for the 1926 convention city, and it devoted tonight's program to the coroneting of the 32d knights commander of the court of honor, designated to receive the thirty th driedgree.

Judge Edward C. Day of Helena, Montana, chairman of the council's committee, which recommended support of the education bill, asserted that "a well-informed public will never content itself with the negative idea that education is not a function of the federal government." The bill has been prepared under the direction of the National Education Association and associated organizations.

MURDER AND HOLD-UP IN NEW YORK YESTERDAY

NEW YORK, Oct. 23—(A. P.)—Criminals today added a murder and a holdup to the city's crime record, while police arrested six alleged holdup men and obtained the conviction of an alleged gang leader arrested last Saturday. Two murder convictions were returned by juries today.

Examination of the body of William Zimmer, 65, a grocer who was found dead in the rear of his store today, showed that his assailants suffocated him when they jammed a handkerchief down his throat and gagged him. The police believed that the motive was robbery.

Arrested last Saturday as the head of a gang of Loft thieves, Herman Rothenberg today pleaded guilty in general sessions to an indictment charging him with the theft of $55,000 worth of cloth. He was sentenced to 5 years in Sing Sing.

Six men arrested with him in a West Side apartment stored with loot from a recent burglary are being held. The gang, police said, was responsible for one-quarter of the Loft burglaries of the past few years.

In Brooklyn supreme court Sam Wing, said to be a Chinese on Leong tongman, was convicted by a jury of the murder on September 3 of Tom Wong, Brooklyn laundryman and a memember of the Hip Sing tong. Wing will be sentenced Monday.

The three men today held up John Bandano, Brooklyn dairyman, robbed him of $400 and jewelry valued at $1,500, drove him in his automobile to a spot ten miles away and threw him from the machine. They escaped in his car.

Police today trailed four men to an alleged speakeasy on the upper West Side and arrested them with two companions as the holdup men who last Monday robbed the chauffeur of a jeweler's automobile of $50,000 worth of gems. The prisoners gave their names as James Murphy, Frank Turiello, John Buckner, Joseph Jordon, Thomas Flynn and Anthony Laguinia, all of Manhattan.

A policeman's uniform worn by one of four men who robbed Mr. and Mrs. James Goldman of $13,000 on Monday led to the arrest of Charles J. Neary former probationary policeman. He was held without bail today in a Brooklyn police court.

The grand jury today heard testimony of several members of the "Cowboy Gang" arrested last week, who appeared as witnesses against their companions in connection with several robberies.

Because he told the federal grand jury that he had never sold liquor to patrons, Max Gafney, alias Michael McCarthy, waiter at the Del-Fey club, was indicted today for perjury. The Del-Fey club was one of 20 places against which padlock proceedings were instituted this week.

After an hour and a half of deliberation, a jury in general sessions today returned a verdict of guilty of first degree murder against William W. Hoyler, 25, a West Indian negro who was charged with killing his five-year-old daughter. He will be sentenced Tuesday. Hoyler was also charged with murdering his wife at the same time that he shot the child.

JEWELED CIGARETTE CASE OF "THE MAD MONK"

BOSTON, Oct. 23. (AP)—Out of Russia has come a strangely designed flat gold box, studded with precious jewels reputed to be the cigarette case of Rasputin, "the mad monk," who wielded a powerful influence over the late Czar and was assassinated during the war. The case was brought recently from Russia and is now in the possession of M. Milan of Boston, who purchased it from Jacques H. Jopkeen. Jewelers have appraised the value of the metal, stones and workmanship at more than $2,000.

The stones are set deep in the metal in a hap-hazard design. The surface is rough, suggestive of hills and valleys bearing microscopic trees. The setting of the jewels suggests stones in a state of nature, giving the impression that there are others beneath the surface. In all there are two diamonds, two emeralds, a sapphire and a ruby.

Evidence that the case was the property of Rasputin is said to be good and it is said, is further strengthened by the story of a gift by the czarina of such a case to the monk.

ROXIE STINSON TESTIFIED BEFORE GRAND JURY

NEW YORK, Oct. 23—(A. P.)—Roxie Stinson, divorced wife of Jesse Smith, confidante, and friend of Harry Daugherty, former attorney general, today testified before the special federal grand jury investigating certain acts of the alien property custodian's office under the administration of Col. Thomas W. Miller. Miss Stinson was in the grand jury room about half an hour. Attaches prevented her telling what her testimony had been.

She said she might leave for her home in Columbus, Ohio, tonight. Hiram C. Todd, special assistant attorney general conducting the investigation was not present, and was reported to be looking for other important witnesses in the case.

State Trooper Bests Alleged Rum Runners

Three Autos Were Involved in The Battles—One of the Rum Runners Killed.

EAST HAVEN, Oct. 23—(A. P.)—One man is dead and six are under arrest, three here and three in Providence, R. I., as the result of a series of running gun fights and liquor seizures here early this morning. One lone state trooper, William Schatzman, battled with the alleged rum runners three different automobiles being involved in the fights.

The dead man was Simone Rianna, 38, of Providence. With a bullet over the heart, it is believed he continued to drive his machine to Westerly, R. I., where he collapsed. Companions then continued to Providence, where after a vain search for a doctor, the wounded man was taken to the Rhode Island hospital.

It is believed here that the dead man and the three men under arrest here were members of different bands of Rhode Island rum runners. The men under arrest here, all charged with the transportation of liquor are Sidney Gilmore, 25, of Hoxie, R. I.; Wilfred T. Doran, and Daniel Del Seleve, of Providence. Two machines, one driven by Gilmore and the other by Del Seleve, were confiscated by Officer Schatzman, together with 225 gallons of alcohol. Rianna was driving a touring car which out-distanced the trooper in a running fight.

The men under arrest in Providence are Anthony Rianna, brother of the man killed; Alfred Nobile and Alfonso Capaldo, all of whom are charged at the present time with being suspicious persons.

The first capture by Trooper Schatzman this morning was a coupe containing Gilmore and Doran. The car was forced off the road after a long chase in which ten shots were exchanged between the trooper and the suspect. Gilmore and Doran were arrested and 75 gallons of liquor in the car seized.

Two hours later, two automobiles, one a coupe and the other a touring car roared past the trooper as if in a race. It appeared that the touring car was attempting to force the coupe off the road. The state policeman gave chase and after a mile run brought both machines to a stop. While he was searching the coupe, the touring car got away. As the officer turned to fire shots at the machine, two men in the coupe made their escape. One reached the woods, but Del Seleve became mired in the mud and was captured. The coupe was found to contain 150 gallons of alcohol.

PROVIDENCE MAN WAS VICTIM OF HI-JACKERS

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 23—(A. P.)—Belief that Simone Rianna of this city was fatally wounded by State Trooper William Shatzman during a chase along the shore road in Branford, Conn., early today, faded tonight when it was determined definitely that the man's death was caused by a .35 calibre, steel jacketed bullet, not the type fired after Rianna's machine by Trooper Shatzman. With this ascertained, police were inclined to believe the story told by Alfred Nobile and Alphonse Capaldo, Rianna's companions, to the effect that they were fired upon by a band of hi-jackers.

Earlier in the day, Trooper Shatzman had reported chasing Rianna's machine and firing several shots at it when the driver failed to halt. The bullets fired, according to officers of the Connecticut State Police, were of the regulation department size, .38 calibre and of lead.

Rianna was wounded near Branford but continued to drive his machine as far as Westerly, where he collapsed. One of the other occupants then drove the machine to Rianna's home in this city and later to the Rhode Island hospital. Rianna was dead when the institution was reached. The steel jacketed bullet was found in his clothing, having penetrated the back and emerged through the right breast.

Nobile and Capaldo were taken into custody and held pending the arrival of Connecticut state police officers. After a long grilling, they were released tonight. Superintendent Robert Hurley of the Connecticut department informing his subordinates by telephone that he did not believe their actions warranted their being returned to Connecticut under charges.

Their automobile was found to be one specially equipped for rum running. Between the floor bottom and the undergear was a compartment that extended from the engine to the rear seat, into which several hundred bottles of liquor might be carried. Another compartment was found in back and under the front seat.

NO PLACE FOR ALIENS WHO HOLD REVOLUTIONARY VIEWS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—(AP)—The refusal of the state department to permit Countess Karolyi to visit this country is regarded by President Coolidge merely as an attempt to administer the law barring aliens known to hold revolutionary views.

The president has received no formal information on the case, but he is confident that the department's action was taken to protect American interests.

Nine Mayoralty Candidates In Boston

Seven Democrats and Two Republicans to Contest the Election.

BOSTON, Oct. 23. (AP)—Nine candidates for the mayoralty of Boston remained in the field tonight after the time for withdrawal of candidates expired at five o'clock. Three Democrats withdrew today, leaving seven Democrats and two Republicans to contest the election. Previous withdrawals had reduced to an even dozen a field that at one time ran as high as 17 candidates. Those who announced their withdrawal today were General John H. Dunn, former city commissioner for soldiers' relief; Francis A. Campbell, clerk of the Suffolk superior court, and James T. Purcell, city councillor. The candidates remaining are:

Democrats: Theodore A. Glynn, fire commissioner; William T. A. Fitzgerald, Suffolk county register of deeds; District Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien, John A. Kelliher, sheriff of Suffolk County; Daniel H. Coakley, disbarred Boston attorney; Dr. Walter G. McGauley, a dentist, and Joseph H. O'Neil, banker and former congressman.

Republicans: Malcolm E. Nichols, former collector of internal revenue, and Alonzo B. Cook, state auditor.

Under the provision of the law up to 5 o'clock tomorrow, any of the qualified candidates who withdrew may dispose of his nomination as he sees fit. General Dunn first announced that he would substitute the name of Col. William A. Gaston for his own but when informed that Col. Gaston would not become a candidate, substituted Fire Commissioner Glynn. It was intimated that City Councillor Furcell would name Charles L. Burrill, Republican, former state treasurer and member of the governor's council.

The good government association, which has been a factor in municipal affairs for a number of years, will announce its choice of candidate Monday. The organization always has endorsed a Democrat. This year the choice was said to lie among Nichols, Republican, and O'Brien and Kelliher, Democrats. The election date is November 3.

COL. MITCHELL MUST PLEAD GUILTY OR NOT GUILTY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23—(A. P.)—Col. William Mitchell of the army air service, will have to plead guilty or not guilty to eight specified charges of violating the 96th article of war when he goes to trial before the general courtmartial ordered to convene next Wednesday.

The charges, all founded on two public states vigorously criticizing the army and navy air service administrations made shortly after the Shenandoah disaster by Col. Mitchell while he was on duty at San Antonio, Tex., were cited in official papers handed to him today by war department orders.

They assert, in effect, that Col. Mitchell, through his action September 5th when he issued the first of the two statements held by the judge advocate general of the army to contain violations of the 96th article, made himself subject to trial by a general courtmartial on four counts.

The charges enumerated in the first four specifications charged him today "the first three allege conduct to the prejudice of good order and military discipline; insubordination to war department administration, and contempt and disrespect of war department administration with intent to discredit while the fourth reiterates these charges in the of the navy department. Specifications five to eight inclusive repeat the allegations set forth in the first three counts, except that they are founded upon the statement enlarging upon that of Sept. 5, made public by Col. Mitchell on Sept. 9.

BRITISH RHINE ARMY TO MOVE TO WIESBADEN

COLOGNE, Germany, Oct. 23.—(AP)—The British Rhine army has been ordered to move to Wiesbaden as soon as possible. Weisbaden is on the right bank of the Rhine, 30 miles southwest of Cologne.

Evacuation of the Cologne bridgehead by the British troops has been expected in European political quarters as one of the consequences of the agreements reached at the Locarno security conference, although it was pointed out in French official circles that no promise, verbal or written, had been made to that effect.

Recently Austen Chamberlain, the British secretary for foreign affairs, M. Briand, the French foreign minister, and Premier Painleve of France discussed the desire of the British occupational force to make its new headquarters at Wiesbaden, but it was said that this would conflict with the French arrangements for supplying the French army in the Rhine. The French it was understood, preferred the British to take over the Coblenz bridgehead.

A broken engagement may not worry a young man half as much as the fact that he has to go right on paying instalments on the ring.

GILPATRIC NEVER REMOVED BONDS FROM STATE CAPITOL

State Treasury Has Established the Fact That the Serial Numbers Show That Once a Bond Was Delivered to the State It Remained in the Treasury Until Sold—Investigation Disproves the Contention of Creditors of the First National Bank of Putnam That Gilpatric Removed Bonds and Replaced Them Five Months Later.

HARTFORD, Oct. 23.—(AP) — The alleged contention of creditors of the First National Bank of Putnam that its cashier, former State Treasurer C. Harold Gilpatric, removed $330,000 in Liberty bonds from the state treasury in October 1920, and replaced them five months later, was challenged at the state treasury department today.

Investigation had established, it was announced, that not a single security was ever taken out of the capitol by Gilpatric. The serial numbers on the bonds show, it was explained, that once a bond was delivered to the state it remained in the treasury until sold, and in no instance could it be found that Gilpatric had replaced any.

As to whether Gilpatric may have diverted to his own uses the money paid him for Liberty bonds bought by the state through his bank, no opinion was ventured, at the treasury, but it was pointed out that if such were the case, Gilpatric accomplished it by manipulating his accounts in the bank rather than those of the state treasury. There are on file at the state treasury receipts taken from Gilpatric as bank cashier at the time every check was accepted by him for securities and the state received all the Liberty bonds it ordered through his bank. Whether the bonds the state paid for were ultimately paid for with funds supplied him by the state for the purpose or with the funds of others at his disposal as cashier of the bank would have to be determined with information other than what is in the possession of the state it was explained.

The theory was advanced that Gilpatric as bank cashier, after receipting for the state's money to buy bonds, fixed the books at the bank to make it possible for him without fear of detection, to use the money received from the state for his personal purposes, but when the time came for the delivery of the bonds (a delay of months being customary for the conversion of the bonds into securities of larger denominations at the federal reserve bank in Boston) that he dipped into the funds to pay for the bonds required to be delivered to the state.

The independent check-up of state Liberty bond stocks by auditors in the employ of creditors of the First National bank of Putnam stood suspended today following Treasurer Rogers' decision Thursday noon to hold up those activities pending a conference between Governor Trumbull, Attorney General Healy and himself.

A short conference was held at which the treasurer was represented by Deputy Treasurer Thomas H. Judd and it was adjourned until 2:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon when Mr. Rogers could be present. In the meantime, auditors of the firm Hadfield, Rothwell and Soule, will not be permitted to on with their investigation by which it was intended to identify certain securties in the state treasury as Liberty bonds bought by certain brokers with money Gilpatric stole from trust funds at his disposal as bank cashier.

The investigation of Gilpatric's misdeeds has brought to light the fact that the Mechanics Bank of New Haven, lost $25,000 through him. The Monson Worsted company, of Monson, Mass., of which Gilpatric was a director, wanted to borrow that amount on its note and Gilpatric got the Mechanics bank to make the loan on his endorsement. The Mechanics bank assigned its claim against Gilpatrics estate to a third party. Gilpatric himself gave the Monson company $40,000 of the Putnam bank's funds on a note, which proved to be worthless and this $40 is a part of the $125,000 for the recovery of which Receiver Coffin of the bank has made demand upon the directors of the bank.

"CAT EYE" ANNIE AT HARD LABOR IN AUBURN PRISON

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 23.—(AP) — Lillian McDowell, known internationally as a crook under the names of Julia Archer and "Cat Eye Annie" was recaptured by the police today, following her escape from the Erie county jail on Thursday and was soon afterwards taken into county court and sentenced to ten years at hard labor in Auburn prison.

The circumstances surrounding the woman's escape from the top floor of the jail and her recapture today in a partly finished house in Kenmore, a suburb of the city, tends to prove that her sensational escape from prison was wholly without outside aid.

In dropping from the window where she made her exit from the jail, Annie sprained her left ankle. She entered a Delaware avenue bus, a short distance from the jail, and rode to the end of the line. From there she walked to the empty house where she remained for 36 hours, suffering agony from her injury and lack of food.

Workmen found her at noon today, recognized her as the fugitive and called the sheriff.

"You'd never have got me if I wasn't injured; I had no trouble at all in getting away," she said when Sheriff Tyler came to get her.

Cat Eye Annie's chief claim to fame as a crook was her elusiveness in escaping arrest for numerous robberies in which the police were sure she had a hand. In giving her record after sentence Miss McDowell said she had been convicted only two times — in Chicago on June 1, 1911, for grand larceny for which she served a term in Joliet prison; Buffalo, March 7, 1913, grand larceny; sentenced to Ohio state prison.

Cat Eye Annie's method was in obtaining employment as a domestic on fake recommendations and preparing the way for the robbery of her employers by confederates. The crime for which she was sentenced today was the theft of $75,000 worth of jewelry.

TWO MORE BODIES FROM THE SUBMARINE S-51

NEW LONDON, Oct. 23.—(AP)—The submarine S-51, sent to the bottom of the ocean off Block Island a month ago after a collision with the steamer City of Rome, is slowly giving up its dead. Two more bodies were recovered today and sent to the naval hospital at Newport, where the body found yesterday was taken.

Thirty-three officers and men of the S-51 were trapped when the submarine was sunk, eight bodies have been recovered and three were saved at the time of the accident.

The three bodies recovered yesterday and today had not been identified tonight but it was expected that they would be identified soon through finger print records.

Divers at work on the submarine, now resting on its side on the ocean bottom, found the two bodies today. They were engaged in the necessary operations preparatory to another attempt to raise the undersea boat, this time with the aid of pontoons. The divers were sealing the hatches of the sunken naval vessel and covering the holes made when the craft was rammed by the steamer when they came upon the two victims of the wreck. The bodies were carried to the surface and then taken on a naval vessel to the Newport base.

SEALED VERDICT IN CASE AGAINST WILDA BENNETT

MINEOLA, N. Y., Oct. 23.—(AP.)—A sealed verdict was returned in supreme court today by the jury in the trial of the $100,000 suit for the alienation of affections brought by Mrs. Katherine M. Frey against Miss Wilda Bennett, actress. It was announced that the verdict would be opened Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

In his charge to the jury Justice Faber stated that "no man has lived widely enough to be able to weigh love in dollars and cents." He told the jurors that their belief that there may have been an improper relationship between Frey and Miss Bennett would not justify a verdict of damages. It must have been shown, he said that Miss Bennett was "the pursuer and not the pursued."

In the closing hours of the trial today, Hunter Johnson, a butler formerly employed in the home of Miss Bennett at Great Neck, testified that he heard Miss Bennett say to Mr. Frey in the spring of 1924:

"Never mind the expense. What we want is the divorce."

Miss Bennett made this remark, the witness said, after Frey complained that he would have to bear the expense of a trip to Louisville to get his divorce.

Recalled to the stand by counsel for Mrs. Frey, Miss Bennett declared she had never made the remark. She smiled as she said, "No. I never said that."

CAILLAUX TO GIVE HIS PLANS IN DETAIL MONDAY

PARIS, Oct. 23.—(AP)—M. Caillaux, the finance minister, did not explain the details of his plan for the financial restoration of the French treasury to the cabinet members today, as had been expected, but will do so on Monday.

"This is worse than Locarno," the finance minister told the correspondents as he left the cabinet council.

Political uncertainty still dominates the entire official atmosphere, and no developments are expected until Monday, when M. Caillaux must present his entire plan to the ministers. This is still talk that a majority of the ministers will oppose the plan, especially that part of it concerning inflation.

In such case, it is generally believed the finance minister will resign immediately, leaving someone else to the task. The resignation of M. Caillaux probably would entail the withdrawal of several ministers who support him and this would necessitate reorganization of the cabinet.

INDUSTRIAL CO. CAMPAIGNERS MEET AND ORGANIZE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 22—Organization of the campaigners, who will carry on an intensive one week drive for the sale of $65,000 new stock issue by the Willimantic Industrial company, which is erecting two additions at the Rossie Velvet Co. plant, was perfected at a meeting of representative bodies of the Chamber of Commerce, the Exchange and Rotary clubs, held Thursday night. James B. Fullerton was chairman of the meeting and Girard E. Loisell secretary. Following brief remarks by Chairman Fullerton, A. Linn Weatherhead, president of the Chamber of Commerce reviewed the objects of the campaign. George E. Taylor president of the Industrial Co. gave a history of that organization stating that it was formulated in 1911 upon the application of the Rossie Velvet Co. for a building here. As a child of the Willimantic Chamber of Commerce it was incorporated with $250,000 capital stock, $119,000 of which has been issued to date. Besides two additions to the main building which originally cost $65,000, a large brick mill on Center street was purchased. The two present additions now under construction cost approximately $35,000 and $5,000 will be spent to re-roof the main structure. The Center street plant later will be vacated and offered for sale or rent to other concerns seeking Willimantic as a location.

The value of the present building is placed at $200,000. It is leased to the wealthy Rossie company on 5-year terms which are renewal on expiration. The list is on an 8 per cent basis and the dividend on stock of six per cent, leaving an annual surplus which has enabled the company to conduct repairs and build smaller additions in the past, without a new stock issue.

M. Eugene Lincoln, secretary-treasurer of the Industrial company, read a financial statement in which was shown that the company has realized a net gain of $30,000 since it was organized.

Supt. Andrew C. Roux of the local plant of the Rossie Velvet company gave a statement of the progress of that company locally. The mill was opened in July 1912, with 70 employes and a pay roll of $12,000 annually. This has steadily increased, until the present figure is 504 employes and a pay roll of $396,978. With the completion of the new addition the plant will occupy a floor area of 89 880 square feet and more employes, both male and female, will eventually be hired. The coming of the plant has served materially to build half a dozen or more streets in that vicinity, a well populated and desirable residential section.

To carry on the campaign those present elected the following leaders: George F. Taylor, general superintendent, twelve directors, E. Frank Bugbee, C. J. Alpaugh, James P. Bath, W. P. Jordan, Louis A. Kingsbury, John F. Carr, John E. Brick, Leslie F. Hartson, A. J. Bill, H. C. Lathrop, Frank D. Fenton, George S. Elliott, head of the Manufacturing branch James B. Fullerton and of the finishing branch, Roland B. Jordan. Overseers, Samuel Chesebro, Raymond A. Parker, James P. Mustard, Otto B. Robinson, Louis H. Arnold; manufacturing, Edwin J Donnelly, J. E. Sullivan, A. C. Roux, P. D. Donohue, A. P. Martineau of the finishing. These overseers will appoint 25 workmen for each department.

NEARLY INSANE AT TIMES

Mrs. Saunders Tells how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Relieved Troubles of Change of Life

Knoxville, Tenn.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound while going through the Change of Life. I was very nervous, could not sleep and had melancholy spells. In fact, I was nearly insane at times and my memory was almost a blank. I was so weak I could not do my housework half of the time and suffered dreadfully with my back. My doctor said I would have to worry it out and I went through this for three years before I began taking the Vegetable Compound which I saw advertised. I think it was eight bottles that I took. It has been two years since I took any and I haven't had a doctor since for that trouble. I do all my washing and ironing and I have gained from 116 to 138 pounds. I advise all women who suffer physically and mentally as I did to give the Vegetable Compound a fair trial. I hope it will do as much for them as it did for me."—Mrs. T. A. Saunders, 711 E. Depot Street, Knoxville, Tennessee.

"If other cars required as little attention, as few adjustments, as the Willys-Knight—the repair shops of this country would have to close their doors tomorrow!" . . .

—direct from the owner of the busiest repair shop in one of our largest cities comes that statement . . .

"Fully 50% of our time is spent in grinding valves and cleaning out carbon", says another service station manager . . .

In those two significant remarks, from experience-headquarters, you have the answer to the expensive and annoying cost-of-upkeep problem that perpetually perplexes so many car owners. And, in the same breath, you have the reason for the universal satisfaction of Willys-Knight owners, today in their hundreds of thousands! . . .

"An Engine You'll Never Wear Out"

the patented Knight sleeve-valve engine . . . in this lies the secret of Willys-Knight emancipation from engine-repairs, its freedom from the need for constant adjustment. This unique engine-principle means uninterrupted service, year in, year out. It means longer life for your car—immeasurably, infinitely longer. It means a sweeter, quieter, more efficient motor-mechanism up to and beyond 100,000 miles than you enjoyed on the day you bought it! . . .

No Carbon Troubles No Valves to Grind

. . . your Willys-Knight is absolutely immune from engine-complications and engine-disorders caused by carbon accumulation. "It's all the better for a bit of carbon"—any expert mechanic will tell you that. Carbon cannot harm your Willys-Knight, or cause knocks or noise, or put your car out of commission for hours and days. It is an engineering fact that carbon serves actually to facilitate this engine's functioning!

No valves to grind—no tappets, no springs, no rocker arm bushings to get out of order or replace. The Knight sleeve-valve idea gets rid of all of them. No eternal pounding of metal upon metal—all parts of this sleeve-valve engine slide and rotate—hence no chattering of parts, no wear and tear . . .

. . . where all other engines lose in power, lose in endurance, and cost more to run as their mileage grows—the engine of your Willys-Knight actually improves with use. It develops more horsepower, becomes sweeter and quieter, and costs less to run the more mileage you pile up on it!

A Car of Rare Beauty—Rare Distinction

And your Willys-Knight is as beautiful an automobile as you have ever cast your eyes upon. "In line and form the most graceful I have ever seen," a famous artist says. Its appointments as rich, its equipment as complete as you will find in any car, regardless of its price . . . See the smart Coupe-Sedan here shown. A car you will delight to drive. A car in which you will take vast pride in owning. Come, see this superb automobile. Familiarize yourself with the facts about its magnificent performance record. Consider the substantially reduced prices. Deferred payments. A small amount down. Danielson will be directly on the air route of the Boston-New York air mail service to be operated by the Colonial Air lines. W. Irving Bullard of Boston and Danielson and interested in the new line said here Friday afternoon that he is using every effort to have an emergency landing field developed here.

The flight of planes from Boston over the new mail route to have been made today has been postponed through unforeseen circumstances. However, there will be a flight of three or four planes having a capacity of a total of 20 passengers three weeks from today. The flight will mark the formal opening of the new air line.

The flight will start from Boston, with Brunswick, N. J., as the destination. From Brunswick the planes will be flown back to Hartford, where a stop for dinner will be made. Mr. Bullard, who will make the trip in one of the planes, said he is arranging to have some formal notice taken by the pilots of the planes that they are passing over Danielson. Just what form this notice will take Mr. Bullard did not make known Friday.

There will be disappointment for many in the announcement that the flight today (Saturday) has been abandoned. The disappointment will be but temporary, as the establishment of the line is an assured fact and in the near future the mail planes will be seen any day.

Chief John McFarland was concerned Friday with an investigation to establish the responsibility for some more instances of sneak thieving. A garment store has reported the loss of two dresses and three watches. A section of the new cement road-way at Elmville has been opened to travel and was in use Friday. This first section of the new road to be opened for use extends, on the eastern side of the highway, from the bridge at Elmville to a point opposite what has been known for a number of years as the Clayton Wright place. During Friday the westerly side of the new highway was being put in from the bridge at Elmville south and a long stretch of it was completed during the day. The one-way traffic regulation continues in force, but there isn't such a length of roadway to those has been for the past three weeks.

This work is being done from town to town throughout the state, and is in line with the effort of the tax commissioner's office to improve the tax collection system of the state. Recently at Hartford there was a gathering of tax collectors from Connecticut towns with populations under 5,000. In the near future tax collectors from larger towns of the state will be assembled at Hartford for a conference with the tax commissioner. From the data that is secured by field men and information already available in the tax commissioner's office much information that is valuable to tax collectors will be imparted to them at the opening conference.

At the home of her daughter, Mrs. Arthur Edwards, at Elmville Friday afternoon funeral services for Mrs. Alice B. Hayes were conducted by Rev. Chester J. Armstrong, of the Danielson Baptist church. Burial was in Westfield cemetery. The bearers were Alton Elledridge, E. T. Ellsworth, Hartwell Shippee, Wendell Barnard, Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Emulating their prototypes of ages and ages, boys seeking adventure agreed to have crawled under the bandstand in Davis park, Friday afternoon, and there indulged in such diversions as cave dwellers and other ancient types were wont to enjoy. The net result in this case was a fire alarm pulled in from box 23 at 4:20 p. m. and the response of the Capt. Pat Elmore company. The bandstand was not materially damaged by his 'fie.

November 13 is the date that has been set for the annual hunt of the Thirteen club, an organization largely composed of Providence men, with their country headquarters at the Mason homestead near East Killingly. King George Jacques will be master of the hunt, which each year nets many rabbits and not a few game birds.

In an effort to conserve limited supplies of hard coal, many householders in Danielson are using wood exclusively in stoves and even heaters and will continue to do so until severe cold weather obliges them to draw on their coal supplies. By this means, if it can be continued until November 30 to December 1, some who are short of coal will be able to get through the winter in comfort, even though they get no more coal meanwhile.

Robert Morin who has been a patient at St. Vincent's hospital in Worcester, has returned to his home here.

Mrs. A. D. Putnam of Reynolds street will have the members of the Ladies' Reading circle at her home for a meeting Monday afternoon.

This, considering the items about air mail lines, appears to be a proper morning to comment on the lack of a crush to get air route franchises.

Unlike the bus line routes the air is still free.

WEDDINGS

Sheldon-Rhoades

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar E. Rhoades on Farrows street Thursday afternoon their daughter, Miss Eva Rhoades, and Charles Sheldon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred E. Sheldon of South Woodstock, were married by Rev. W. B. Burton, pastor of the Methodist church.

The bride wore a white satin gown trimmed with chiffon and rhinestones. She carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses and lilies of the valley. Her veil of maline was caught up with orange blossoms. Miss Eda Rhoades sister of the bride, who was bridesmaid, wore a frock of peach-colored georgette trimmed with gold ribbon and maribou. She carried ophelia roses. Little Miss Wilma Taylor, the flower girl was dressed in nile green crepe de chine and carried a basket of sweet alysaum, ophelia roses and white ribbon. Edward Hanson of New Britain was best man. Mrs. Edgar Rhoades, mother of the bride, was attired in black satin with black lace trimmings, while Mrs. Sheldon, the groom's mother, wore brown crepe de chine, with lace trimmings. Edward Hanson of New Britain was best man.

The bride gave her sister a silver vanity case with her monogram engraved on it. The groom gave his attendant a pair of cuff-links. The color scheme of Nile green, peach and white was carried out very effectively. The table was decorated with white carnations and festooned with the bridal colors. A wedding cake surrounded by ophelia roses formed a centerpiece, having been arranged by Mrs. Daugherty of Fall River, Mass. Following the ceremony a reception was held for 150 guests. A lunch of salads, sandwiches, coffee, cake, ice cream and fruit was served. Later in the evening a chicken supper was served for the relatives of both families. ANOTHER LINK IN "PAN-AMERICAN RAILROAD"

"Limited train for Mexico City, Panama, Quinto, Lake Titicaca and Buenos Aires only! Train on track four!"

It may still be some time before the official train caller at the Union Station in Washington recites this line every day, but, with the completion of a 124-mile stretch connecting Bolivia and Argentina last month, the long-cherished dream of uniting the Republics of North and South America with bonds of steel, has been brought another step nearer realization.

"The new line," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic of Bolivia, extending from the Argentine border city of La Quiaca northwest through tortuous mountain districts to Atocha, well up on the lofty plateau of Bolivia. At its southern terminal the line connects with the railway systems of Argentina, and through them with the lines of Uruguay and Brazil. At Atocha it is possible to make rail connections with Pacific coast ports, central Bolivia and to continue as far north as Cuzco, Peru.

"South America's newest railroad despite its comparative shortness, is one of the most important internationally south of the Rio Grande. It offers a new outlet to coastless Bolivia, which is the Switzerland of South America in this respect. Its connections farther north with lines leading to the Pacific at Antofagasta, and at Arica, in disputed territory, presents a second Trans-Andean railroad, no slight accomplishment when it is considered that railroads must scale the Andes at altitudes equal to those of the peaks of Switzerland's loftiest mountains.

"When the mythical 'Pan-American Railroad,' the Cape-to-Cairo route of South America, is completed, this short stretch of track will convey freight and passengers from the United States over the last hard climb before descending into the fertile rolling fields of northern Argentina. More than half of the 10,211 miles separating Washington and Buenos Aires have already been 'paved with steel,' while several hundred additional miles have been surveyed or are now under construction.

"Whatever its importance in a Pan-American sense, however, the new railroad is welcome to Bolivia. This stalwart, land-locked, mountain-ribbed Republic, which beyond its borders is too little known except for its mines of gold, silver, tin, copper, and other metals, has for the first time a direct rail connection with the Atlantic and the great food markets of Buenos Aires.

"Southern Bolivia especially, with extensive deposits of minerals, will benefit by the advantage of competitive trade routes for the shipment of ores and other products. Some of these deposits can be easily worked, experts say. The Incas, and later the Spaniards, sought only gold and silver, abandoning other metal ores which today are in demand.

"La Paz, seat of government and distributing center for this inland empire, greater in extent than the States of Missouri, Texas, Illinois, New York and Pennsylvania combined, now has direct rail connections with a larger Andean territory than any other city. At the crossroads of a continent, and the terminal of four great international railroads, La Paz bids fair to become the Chicago of South America, although it is the highest capital of the world and its surrounding snow-capped peaks and labyrinth of precipitous canyons were for many years the despair of the railroad engineer.

"Sucre, the official capital, will also soon be linked by a branch line to the new route, for Bolivia is at present time making greater progress in railroad construction than any other South American country.

"The new line itself is a triumph of engineering. For many years its advantages had been recognized. Ten years ago the contract was given to a European company, but the work dragged until 1921, when the Bolivian government turned it over to an American firm.

"The entire line lies between an altitude of 8,500 and 14,000 feet. Excepting the valley lands, of comparatively slight extent, the route is through a virtual agricultural waste. Precipitous canyons, many lofty bridges and bold rock cuttings, however, present a gorgeous array of wild and colorful scenery to the traveler.

"As a link in the 'Pan-American' railroad the fact that the traveler can now journ-road' the new line directs attention to new with speed and comfort from Buenos Aires northward through Bolivia (with a boat connection across Lake Titicaca.) as far as Cuzco, the ancient Inca capital, in Peru. Throughout Peru, Ecuador and Colombia are many stretches of completed line. Central America is also doing its part. At Guatemala City it is possible to board a train that affords direct connections with Washington, 5,769 miles away."

AT THE CLUB

The sandy-haired person was late for his once-a-week luncheon engagement with the large and amiable member. But the large and amiable member waved aside all apologies and led the way toward the grillroom without accusing haste.

"You were speaking of your sister the other day," he remarked, shaking out a napkin and laying it across his 54-inch waist line.

"Very likely I was," conceded the sandy-haired person, calmly.

"Your remarks gave rise to a suspicion in my mind that your sister was—er—shy of matrimony, so to speak?"

"Put it that way, in the light of a question," said the sandy-haired person, consideringly, "I may state that your impression is more or less correct. More or less, you understand."

He gazed at the other inquiringly.

"You don't give a fellow much satisfaction," growled the amiable man. "What you said the other day was that your sister considered marriage a sort of losing proposition—robbing Peter to pay Paul. Now, what did you mean by that?"

"Oh, I remember now," remarked the sandy-haired person, adjusting the bows of his spectacles with great care. "I was telling you how she felt about wedding presents. No doubt." He settled his spectacles more firmly on his nose and smiled benignly.

"Well?" prompted the amiable member, with unusual tartness.

"Well, what?" inquired the sandy-haired person, still resting upon his friend a gaze of childlike innocence.

"Well, how the deuce does she feel about it?" roared the generally amiable member.

"Oh, oh, I see," said the sandy-haired person politely. "You are desirous of learning my sister's views on the modern practice of setting the bride and groom up in business—kitchen cabinet, dining-room furnishings and parlor ornaments complete. Is that it?"

"Put it that way if you please," growled the large member, "only go on talking."

"Your appreciation of my conversation is unique," commented the sandy-haired person. "You see, my sister is 35 years old. And she admits it freely. So you needn't be too alarmed. Therefore, as we say in Boston, Sis has been handing out wedding presents in a steady stream for ten years and more. She tells me she estimates that she has expended three grade of perfectly good dollars on wedding presents alone, not to mention the bridal shower, which, as I understand it, is a highly profitable side line graft. And she says that with all her acknowledged mental acumen she can't figure out how she's going to clean up on the investment unless she gets married herself and holds 'em up on the return ticket, as it were."

"Not a bad idea," suggested the amiable member, brightly, "especially—"

"But," interrupted the sandy-haired person, with firm insistence, "Sis has always maintained that she acquired virtue by remaining single and contributing to the pro rata efficiency standard of the general community. So she would have to back down on that theory. Moreover, as she herself points out, matrimony is pleasant to get into, but painful to get out of. She may be wise to take the original loss and let it go at that." He paused and shook his head.

"I should like to have a chance to convince your sister that her line of argument is not sound," said the amiable member, "just on the ground of general principles, you understand."

The sandy-haired person regarded him for some moments with a fixed glare. "I understand," he stated crisply. "You can come up to the house some evening at 8 o'clock. I believe in giving every fellow a fair show. But this esteemed brother business is an old game to me, my boy, and lacks thrill, so you must pardon my seeming lack of sympathy. I might add, by way of time-saving information, that her hair is naturally curly, and she never wears a boudoir cap to breakfast. But I warn you, my dear dear sir, I warn you—"

"Oh, calm yourself," advised the amiable member soothingly. "See you tonight, old man. At 8 o'clock, you said?"—Exchange.

THE CONSUMERS' OPPORTUNITY

There are those who are placing the blame for the coal strike upon the miners and there are those who are charging it up to the operators. There are those who are telling how much the price is being advanced by the coal companies just because there is no production and there are those who are answering that if it were not for the miners' demands and refusal to arbitrate there would be no stoppage, no shortage and no chance for boosting the price for that reason.

There are also those who are charging the miners and operators with being in league in order to squeeze the consumer, with the miners placing the burden for the situation upon the operators and the operators claiming the miners are to blame.

Whether the blame rests entirely upon the miners, entirely upon the operators, or to some degree upon both, there is no getting away from the fact that it is the consumer that is paying the price, and whether the miners are taking advantage of the operators' attitude or the operators of the miners' attitude it all comes back upon the fellow who pays the bills, either in higher prices or hardship through an inadequate supply.

It has been that way through all other strikes and it will continue to be so just as long as the public stands for it and does nothing to extricate itself from the clutches of those who bring about this frequent holdup.

The relief is to be obtained through the use of others than the product in which the miners and the operators are concerned. If they have no consideration for the consumers there is no reason why the consumer should display any great regard for them. When it was impossible to get other fuel than anthracite there was little else to do but to yield, but when substitutes are available and when it is the verdict of those who use them that they give better results, involve less expense and no more and in some instances less trouble, it is time for the consumers to do a bit of independent acting and manifest their determination to look out for themselves. One reason of such a demonstration would have its good effects.

GREECE AND BULGARIA

There have been various opportunities for the league of nations to show what it could do in the way of preventing nations from rushing into war. Regardless of what might have been done or what it was expected would result from such opportunities the display of ire between Greece and Bulgaria indicates that the first thoughts of those countries when facing bloodshed was not of the league of nations. Even though there has been a means provided for adjusting such ructions between neighbors, that was the first thing thought of. It was the old practice and this was only one of the several instances which has shown how difficult it is for nations which have been so long trained in war to replace it by some other method of settlement.

Geece and Bulgaria have not been particularly friendly. They are neighbors who have no difficulty in finding a pretext for a quarrel, and it is not improbable that the cause for the present trouble has been particularly irritating but neither can afford to rush into a war. They are located in the war caldron of Europe and may feel that they cannot too quickly depart from the reputation which has been established there, but in the interest of humanity and the maintenance of peaceful relationships it is time that different methods were adopted.

The situation haan't gotten so far that the influences of the league of nations may not be able to intervene and prevent a continuation of the fighting which has been done. It is certainly to be hoped that pressure can be brought to bear in a manner that will bring them to their senses and to a recognition of the fact that under just such circumstances they have agreed to appeal to the league for a settlement before adopting any other course and that in no case will they resort to war within three months.

It should be disclosed before long just what effect their responsibility as members of the league is going to have. It doesn't stand out to their credit that they have to be reminded of the fact that they are lague members as such really ignoring it.

THE MITCHELL CASE

Throughout the time that he has been throwing himself into the limelight it has been evident that Colonel Mitchell was engaged in grandstand playing. Bob Washburn in his Washington letter declares "He is a glutton for public notice, besides whom even Babe Ruth seems to turn away from a hot dog." He has made it apparent that he was given to indulging in wild statements and not sticking to them, to be putting forth a lot of claims which were not based upon the facts and expecting them to be swallowed because he was responsible for them.

It was not long ago that he launched out into a tirade against the manner in which federal authorities were administering their duties. What he had to say was not compilmentary and was not intended to be. He charged negligence and incompetence and used this as a basis for urging upon the country a reorganization of the national defense in such a way that it would make the air force separate from both the army and navy.

The statements and charges that he made indicated that he was snapping his fingers at discipline within the army. He openly declared that he would probably be court martialed, and it seems probable that he was playing his cards for that very end in the expectation of getting further publicity concerning himself and his project.

His acts have obtained for him the expected court martial. It could not be avoided. He will be tried by a court that has been picked, but as seems characteristic he is not pleased now because he cannot direct how the court must function. He is not to be permitted to plunge into the whole question of unified air force. He is to be tried for his statements and the court will determine whether they are to the prejudice of "good order and army discipline." He faces the possibility of being dropped from the army, but because he cannot bring about a judgment on his views from the court martial instead of a decision on the utterance he actually made he is emulating the little boy and crying "I'm not going to play anymore."

DENYING THE COUNTESS

When Countess Karolyn applied to the American consulate general at Paris to visa her passport to this country he refused because he knew her, knew her communistic tendencies and knew her attitude toward this government and knew that her admission was against the law of the country. That decision was backed up by the department of state. She was here not so long ago when her husband was permitted to the country because she was sick but he came under the promise that he would make no public addresses.

After he had gotten here there was a great fuss stirred up over him and his voluntary agreement not to speak. The departure of the Karolyi's was not that of a couple expressing gratitude.

Now the attempt is being made for the countess to return for the chance to expound some of her radical views, but there is a law for the exclusion of undesirables and in the application of the law the country has cause for satisfaction that those in charge of the enforcement are doing their duty.

This will of course be the signal for those who are up to no good to the administration to raise a howl of protest and make the claim that we ought not to attempt to protect our government until some harm has been done. There is remarkably good value to be found in preventive work and there is no reason to suppose that we should fling our doors wide open to every red who wants to come here for the purpose of spreading the red propaganda. The spirit of tolerance doesn't call for us to do any such thing. It is fortunate the government isn't helpless under such a situation.

WIRELESS AGAIN.

This week an Italian steamer was abandoned in a helpless and sinking condition in mongean after the crew had been taken off. It may still be afloat, but what might have been the fate of that crew of a quarter of a century ago.

It might not be entirely right to claim that they would all have gone to a watery grave but for the help which was made possible through wireless, but the great value of communicating over long distance in such a manner cannot be overlooked. There are other ways of attracting attention but there's no certainty that they would have been seen or heard. The President Harding was 100 miles away when it got the call for assistance and it involved a delay of more than 48 hours before it was able to effect the rescue.

There was the usual chance taking in transferring humanity in mid-Atlantic in bad weather, but the situation called for heroic work and it was performed and the hardships which those aboard the helpless vessel were experiencing were over. The fact that it was dangerous work did not stand in the way of its performance once there was a chance to do it. It was much different than it would have been under calm conditions.

Not many are the instances where some measures cannot be taken in the way of rescue if it is possible to let the world know of the situation and the need of help. Wireless didn't actually accomplish the transfer of the crew from the ill fated steamer, but if it hadn't been for wireless the crew might have stood no better chance of getting back to port than the abandoned steamer.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

One sometimes wonders just how far the doctrine of the "survival of the fittest" works out in actual experience. It certainly finds support in the record of nations now defunct, and in others that are now seemingly on the decline. One cannot read Rawlinson's standard work: The Seven Great Monarchies of the Ancient World without coming to this conclusion, that is if he reads intelligently. The reason why Chaldea went down was that Assyria was fitter to live. But why could they not live together? Because they were rivals, and the latter was better fitted to advance civilization than the former. For the same reason Babylon, Media, Persia, Parthia and the new Persian empire follow one another. The next great power and greater than all these combined was the Roman. But ancient Rome had its day, and in old age it could not contend against the superior peoples of northern Europe. It went down under the Goths and Visigoths.

It is beyond all question that some present European states are beginning to show traces of senility. Of course they would resent being informed of the fact. They are as sensitive about their ages as old ladies are and not a few old men. You have only to note how the balance of power shifts from one nation to realize this fact. No nation gives up its power until its hands get too old and feeble to cling to it longer. Beyond all question America is moving into the position of world leadership, if she has not already reached it. How long she will hold this position will depend upon how she uses this power, or how she lives. The life of a nation is not unlike that of a man. If he wants to a man can burn up his energies when he is 20, and die of old age before he is 30. If America will live the normal life she may retain her leadership for centuries.

If one is looking for more peace and comfort, it certainly does not pay to be sincere; but if one is very desirous to possess peace of conscience it certainly does pay. A case in hand is the recent survey made of the whole prohibition situation by the Federal Council of the Churches of America. With intelligence, courage and a desire to get at all the facts with prejudice, they have produced a document that has caused an uproar. The saner elements of both sides have highly sanctioned the findings, while the fire eaters of both parties are furious, especially those who sanction the Volstead act. The better element of the country is better satisfied with facts, than with a rosy picture of conditions which do not exist. Among many the report finds occasion for rejoicing, such as the increase of savings of working people, better home conditions, but on the other hand the widespread gain of law breaking is something frightful, due to two things, bootlegging on the outside, and traitors on the inside.

If anybody thinks that the boy and girl who get their sheepskins at the college commencement, and then step out into a world that holds in store for them any quantity of soft snaps he misses the mark by about 250,000 miles. That is not equivalent to saying that it would be better for them to plug along in the grimy world illiterate and be subordinates from the cradle to the grave. The real graduate would not have it otherwise for the world, but he pays the price for whatever distinction he may have. In these days, for instance, he is asked to support aliquant funds of academies, colleges and graduate schools. He doesn't growl even if his funds are low. Most college graduates are identified with the churches, and, as an illustration, we have the community work of Storrs to help; the near east calls are urgent and the American board is in a hole. And it increases each year.

In this onrushing age if a person should claim that he had an appetite for solitude, he would be set down as "queer." The craving for excitement these days is so strong and the opportunity for satisfying it so great, that a yearning for the still life as well such circumstances in view of this unfortunate situation, unfortunate because it is responsible for so many nervous disorders—it is therefore quite refreshing to hear so competent a judge as Thoreau writes on this strain: "As some birds cannot endure to be caged, so it seem that I cannot keep so much society as you can. I have an immense appetite for solitude, like an infant for sleep, and if I don't get enough of it in this way, I shall cry all the next." And again, "some of my acquaintance, would fain hustle me into a renaissance for the sake of society, and I were pining for that diet, when I see it to myself a most befriended of men and find constant employment."

The necessity of preserving one's health cannot be urged too often. When that is wrecked the edge of every other possession is badly blunted. It is perfectly amazing how far the power of keeping one's health lies in his own hands. Woodsworth made an apt expression when he said, "I make it a rule to go out every day, and as I never consult the weather, I never have to consult a physician." It always seems to be raining harder than it is when you look at the weather through the window. Even in winter, though the landscape often seems cheerless and bare enough when you look at it from the fireside, still it is far better to go out, even if you have to brave the storm. When you are once out of doors the touch of earth and the fresh air give you new life and energy. Men, like trees, live in great part on air.

Churches and Sunday schools are having their rally days and they are of great importance to both. It probably goes without saying that church attendance is not what it ought to be. If all church members would take their Sunday duties more seriously, and if many of them would stop playing religion and take it more earnestly, this old world of ours would be fairly revolutionized in a few years. If every church member would regularly go to church, it would create enough of religious zeal to meet a major part of our church problems. People sometimes say that they can be just as good without going to church. Whether they can or not, as a matter of fact they are not. Possibly here and there you may find some person of superior qualities who ranks well with church going people. But if you compare one group with another, the difference is quite obvious. For the rank and file the church is a necessity.

It strikes the writer that there is a great moral lesson in this Norwich-Putnam highway agitation. In this highway as it now lies between this city and Danielson there are some danger spots. On this point, at least, there is little room for disagreement. The bridge over the railway just beyond Jewett City, making the letter S formation is most undesirable. One wonders why it was not made to cross the railway obliquely rather than at right angles. There is also Bishop's crossing that has been shown to be a veritable death trap. In our journeyings through life are there any danger spots that ought to be cut out? Suppose all the crooked places should be cut out and the roadway be made straight. Where people are picked up injured or dead on the highways of life it is usually at the crooked spots. My brother are there any crooked spots in our life? If so cut them out.

The less heart a man puts into a task the more labor it requires.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Talman Street

Mr. Editor—I would like to say a word in regard to some of our streets. It is deplorable the way those leading off of the main thoroughfares are neglected.

Has our public works committee taken a trip over the potholes in the west end of Talman street? Here is a condition that is a disgrace, but it could be relieved in a brief time by those who are blowing city funds to little or no purpose.

I plead for Talman street, but that is only one of many that needs attention.

The Case of the Misses Phillips

Mr. Editor—My attention has been called to an article in your paper in reference to the proceedings prior to the removal of the Misses Phillips from Connecticut to Massachusetts. We came to Connecticut in June, 1921, under a false impression. In September we heard we were "headed for the town farm. It is rather a coincidence that the house was originally my great-grandfather's, William Phillips. Although proceedings were commenced there were no results, and if it were not for kind friends and neighbors our conditions would have been pitiful. Still I had good courage, having faith that the right would prevail. The night before Christmas, 1923, there appeared at the door a committee from the Benevolent Order of Elks of Putnam. Otis Fox and Mr. Thayer with a basket of Christmas cheer. They came ten miles through a severe snowstorm. At first I was overwhelmed with the thought "charity." Then I remembered other days and accepted the bountiful basket in the spirit in which it was given. In April, 1924, Albert H. Williams, the new president of the board of selectmen of Woodstock, appeared and inquired into our case. Before he left he arranged for extra supplies—milk, which had stopped—groceries and wood, which had stopped. He went to Hartford and presented our case to the department of state agencies and institutions. William E. Davidson made altogether three trips to Duxbury and interviewed the selectmen there. E. Roger Jones, Albert H. Williams and W. C. Davidson called upon Mrs. Richard Hicks and Mrs. Hicks agreed to take us back to Massachusetts and provide us with a suitable home. She notified me to that effect, but considering my experience since 1921 I prefered to wait for something more official. Early in February Mrs. Hicks attempted to stop the extra supplies. In the latter part of February Mr. Davidson came and arranged to have us return to Duxbury. There was some delay but on March 23 we came to Putnam and on the 25th we came down here with Mrs. Over and Mr. Davidson. My object in writing these facts is to give credit to the department and Woodstock where it belongs.

Sunday Morning Talk

The Book of Books

Sometimes we are told by superficial pessimists that the Bible has been pierced by some infidel bullet of criticism. But it still flies on with ever increasing benediction to the world. During the War of 1812 Francis Scott Key who wrote the "Star Spangled Banner" was a prisoner on a British ship while Fort McHenry was being bombarded through the night. He lived the night through in terror and fear. He feared, as he saw the glare of the bombs bursting in the air and heard the crash of cannon, that in the morning the flag of his country would have disappeared from the fort. As the day broke it found him pacing through the darkness to learn the truth, and as it grew light, he exclaimed, Our flag is still there! And he went away that very morning to write the National anthem, "The Star Spangled Banner." So ever and anon they tell us some of the critics are going to destroy the Bible, and bring it down from its long flight of usefulness and blessing. But after the bombardment is over and the smoke cleared away, yonder in the sky of the world's civilization flies the winged book, still preaching its everlasting gospel.

The Bible is sure of a long flight, so long as human nature is what it is, because it not only broods over us when we are children, making childhood loving and tender; not only inspires us when we are young with its poetry, and with ideals nobler than are breathed anywhere else, not only cheers and comforts us amid the struggles of manhood and womanhood; but when the hair whitens, and the shadows lengthen toward the west, the Book with Wings does not stay behind. When other books lose their interest to us because of weakness and old age and approaching death, the Bible becomes more precious and indispensable. When Sir Walter Scott lay dying, he said to his friend Lockhart, "Fetch me the book." "What book?" said Lockhart. The great man smiled, and said, "There is but one book." That one book not only flies above us, full of good cheer and comfort, inspiration and hope, from the cradle to the grave, but lights up the path into the beyond with unquenchable glory.

DISCOVERIES IN LABRADOR AND GREENLAND

Dr. Walter N. Koelz, naturalist with the MacMillan Arctic expedition under the auspices of the National Geographic society, and who made a 40-mile trip in an open power boat between Bromfield and Hopedale, Labrador, sends the following report of his natural history observations in Jack Lane's bay, one of the little visited nature paradises along the northern Labrador coast, to the National Geogaphic society.

"Jack Lane's bay is within a few hundred miles of the tree limit. Here may already be viewed the operation of those forces which arrest the growth of trees in the north. The commonest trees along the shore are the white and blue spruce, with a few tamaracks and an occasional balsam. The white spruce seems to be the hardiest of the group and few there are that do not show scars won in the war for existence with that great enemy of the northern tree, the wind.

"Where it grows in exposed situations, the limbs to the north, the direction of the prevailing winds, have been stunted or killed, and, in its mutilated state, the white spruce thus stands as a living compass. Many a trapper avails himself of its direction. Where the tree has pushed its way to the ocean's edge it exists only as a gnarled and deformed shrub, sending out perhaps one horizontal branch where some projecting crag has offered shelter and developing, in 50 years or a life, a trunk that would not serve for a broom handle.

"In the bays, growth is more rapid. Many a tree can be seen, the trunk of which a man cannot encompass with his arms, but such patriarchs as the annular rings of the stumps show, stood before the Pilgrims landed in Massachusetts.

Trees

"The presence of trees added many new animals to the Arctic fauna and many of the birds and animals which we know at home penetrate to the outposts of the timber line. Our robin is almost as common here on the crowberry and blueberry barrens as he is in the American cherry tree. The little Labrador vale, a cousin of our meadow vale, or meadow mouse, is the commonest animal of the region and serves as food for the foxes and birds of prey which assemble in numbers to the feast which nature has provided. The foxes, of which there are two species, the white and the red to silver and black, are the commonest of the furbearing animals.

"One of the interesting birds of the region is the hawk owl, which appears quite commonly at this season. The bird has the structure of an owl except that its tail is hawk-like and it hunts by day. About a dozen species of land birds are resident. These birds, which here brave the Arctic winter, all show peculiarities which disinguish them from their relatives in other parts of the continent, and few museums have good series of speciments of these races.

"A few specimens were obtained of the ladder-backed woodpecker which is one of the rarest birds in American collections. The bird, unlike his cousins, has only three toes and instead of the conventional red crest which our woodpeckers disport, has a bright yellow dab.

Game Birds

"Game birds abound. In the water there are several species of ducks. The most interesting water fowl now is the big Canada goose which feeds, before undertaking his southern journey, on the crowberries and becomes exceedingly fat. There are on land two species of grouse, the willow ptarmigan and the spruce grouse. The latter is the well known "Fool Hen" which is so tame that it is often captured by means of a noose on the end of a stick. This spruce hen feeds on pine needles which sometimes form the only item in its diet. A little later, the rock ptarmigan arrives from the north and then the grouse are said often to cover the ground along the bay shores and, when shot at, to fly ahead only a few yards before settling.

"The fishing season is now over and the capture of seals and whales begins. These are caught in large nets made of rope and constitute an important item in the revenue and of domestic economy. The skins and oil are sold and the flesh sustains men and dogs.

"The country supports several species of fruits. The cloudberry or bake apple, the blueberry, the crowberry and the bearberry are the commonest, and all are gathered for food. The two latter are gathered very late and are stored fresh. They are thawed out for the table from time to time during the winter.

"Several plants furnish beverages to the natives. The black spruce needles are frequently brewed and of course there is the Labrador tea, which also grows in American swamps and gets its name at home because of its usefulness. Here it has also a close relative which is highly esteemed and which is known as christian and crystal tea. The interior of the country with its myriads of lakes offers special allurement to the angler bodies of men. Waters a mile across are termed pond and are left dignified with a name, though they may abound with trout. What the lakes may contain, no one knows and much of Labrador is still terra incognita to the naturalist."

How the Eskimos live in icy Greenland, one of the most forbidding of all inhabited areas, is related in the following bulletin from the National Geographic society, based on a report from the MacMillan Arctic expedition:

"Aside from its mines of coal and cryolite, Greenland is as free of industry and manufacture as it is of agriculture, husbandry or forestry. The rock-lace-work border between Ice Cap and sea offers no opportunity for farming or herding and a two inch tree produces little lumber. But there are thousands of suitable harbors to which a kayak or a small wooden boat can retreat from the storm.

"The Eskimo has been repulsed by a barren land which, however, welcomes him cordially when fish are piled on his deck or walrus or seal drag at his towline. It is natural therefore that the only industrial plant we saw in Greenland should be related to fishing.

"Across a narrow bight from the main town of Holstenborg is a small but modern factory for canning halibut. There girls, in bright head collars, work for forty cents a day, solder cans, weight the first white flesh or scrap sections of the big fish in chilly tubs of sea water.

"In the north, as elsewhere, civilization has been working its way with primitive peoples. What has meant wealth to Gloucester has meant increasing want to the Eskimo, and the Danes have sought to provide employment for those Greenlanders who, while while developing tastes for imported articles, are farming their once productive half acres less profitably than before. The halibut cannery at Holstenborg is an attempt to enable a settlement to live through cooperation at a time when individual skill and initiative are on the wane. Sons of kayakers who would brave any storm get seasick on the big halibut schooner and it is hard to find efficient men at any price commensurate with possible return.

Trapping White Whales

"Greenland halibut is perfection in fish food and a sale is gradually being developed for canned halibut produced in a factory which answers a demand, not for food or profit, but for employment by those who would otherwise lack it. Sukkertoppen has become prosperous by running nets between islands and trapping white whales. The whale factory around which the entire economic life of the town centers can be provided with eight hundred carcasses in a season.

"Holstenborg depends on a big flat fish to keep bright boots on its women and fat cheeks on its babies.

"The halibut is the king of those fish whose wandering and shifting body planes make them seem deformed when they are actually highly developed for the life they lead. Although the life history of the halibut is still unknown, a study of these flat fish leads one to think that during growth one eye migrates across the head and that the body axis shifts.

"Not only because of his shifty eye and turnable spine is the halibut interesting, but he is also able to change the color of his skin to match that of the bottom near which he lies. In some mysterious way this ability to play chameleon is connected with eyesight and a severing of the optic nerve robs the halibut of its protean ability to camouflage himself against the home he has chosen and the furniture amid which he moves. Only by keeping his eyes open can the halibut work out a color scheme of his own. So commercial fishermen prevent the flesh from becoming discolored by using the fish's own body as a blinder and laying him eyes down.

"When a schooner arrives in port with many of its cargo still alive, the bins are full of fish, all stacked with the white side up. As the huge fish are lifted to the wharf, the first operation is to cut the head, which forms a considerable portion of the body, and tons of these are thrown into the harbor or given to the poor of the town. Just before night one sees pairs of trousered girls bringing home baskets of fish heads which are split and hung from poles to keep them from the dogs and allow them to dry. These drying heads give flavor to the town and make its scent as vivid as are the local colors in which bright beads have so large a part.

Rescue Ship Now a Pier

"Out in the harbor is the towering hulk of the Old Peru, a gallant ship which was once sent to the relief of Nansen but is now used as a floating pier.

"Like the primitive peoples of the north, this venerable vessel has a flat nose and high cheek bones so that it seems as though it could float broadside as easily as go ahead. An old sailor down in Maine described such a vessel by saying that if a bucket fell overboard under her bowsprit, she would bump it ahead of her for a week before she would get past it. This old vessel marks one stage in the Royal Danish trading comany. The shiny tin cans of the Holstenborg cannery, filled to the ton with the firm flesh of the northern halibut, mark another stage in modern man's effort to adapt himself to changing surroundings, as the king of flatfish does in shifting eye and body axis and changing the color of his skin."

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

This is the 55th birthday of Tasker L. Oddie, the junior United States senator from Nevada, who started prospecting one day with a total cash of about ten dollars, discovered the famous mines of Tonopah, and today is commonly reputed to be in the multi-millionaire class. Senator Oddie is a native of Brooklyn, N. Y., having first gone to Nevada in 1898. He was educated in the public schools of East Orange, N. J., and at New York University. After having made his "pile" in mining operations he turned his attention to politics. He served as district attorney of his county from 1909 to 1902 and two years later was elected to the Nevada senate, where he continued to serve for four years. In 1910 he was elected to the governorship of the state. In 1921 he upset a strong Democratic majority and pulled through a winner as the Republican candidate for United States senator.

From Small Beginnings

Lyman J. Gage Secretary of Treasury

In a little village in central New York a boy was engaged to take care of the bank stove, to brush up the dirt left by the feet of farmer customers, to shovel the heavy snows of winter, and to do any odd jobs that any one in the bank wished to have done. "He's a good boy," the cashier and the bank president said, and they put emphasis on the word "boy," and thought of themselves as being in quite a higher sphere.

There was indeed a great difference between the position held by the boy and the positions occupied by the bank officers. A few years later there was still greater difference—for the boy had developed into being secretary of the treasury of the United States, the Hon. Lyman J. Gage, no longer a hired boy for a country bank, but the respected director of a nation's finances.

When Lyman J. Gage had to stop going to school in his early "teens" it looked as if he might hope for comparatively little except the rough, hard work of life. It seemed as though shoveling coal for a bank would be about all he might expect in the great world of trained brains. That is the mistake most people make. School is only a place where study is made easy; any one who wishes may study somewhere else just as well as in school. Lyman J. Gage worked for a little while in the country bookstore, and there he read many books. He worked again as mail agent on a railroad, and there, too, he gathered information. In the bank, in the intervals when he was not busy with his muscles he was busy with his brain, thinking about the business carried on by the bank, learning about checks, notes, drafts, deposits, investments and general finance. At 19, having picked up the art of bookkeeping, he went to books. After a time he found employment keeping books for a Chicago bank, and he did his work well, for he knew all about the banking business, simply by having observed and thought when he was shoveling coal. Such a young man is sure to rise. He became a cashier, and then kept moving up until he became president of the First National bank of Chicago, and secretary of the treasury of the United States, one of the most honored financiers in the country.

Stories That Recall Others

Out of Luck

A woman entered a small grocery on the outskirts and asked for assorted safety pins.

"I don't carry anything in the line of notions," politely answered the grocer.

"Oh, pshaw!" exclaimed the woman "I wanted to do some mending."

Never Satisfied

Speaking of banks a state official was telling this one:

"A bank had been closed and the liquidation of the institution was authorized. The bank was about to pay 100 cents on the dollar. One middle-aged depositor demanded a dividend on her saving. She was told that the bank had no money to pay dividends. To this she replied: 'Well, I should think a bank could borrow enough money to pay dividends.'"

His right leg amputated above the knee following the development of gangrene many months after he was injured in an automobile accident, Michael Dolyak, 18, of 171 Berkshire avenue, was awarded $15,000 damages in a verdict return by a jury to Judge John W. Banks in superior court in Bridgeport.

General Coxey, Of "Coxey's Army" Fame

KEYSTONE VIEW CO., NEW YORK

Thousands remember Gen. Jacob Sechler Coxey, who in 1894 left his home at Massillon, Ohio, and headed the army of nondescripts who followed him to Washington to ask for the abolition of interest charged by banks for loans. His idea was to put these unemployed men to work building good roads, results of which we now see, but the furnishing of money for building by banks should not bear interest, as it is really Government money, loaned to banks, on which interest is charged. He says the same thing would solve the problem of merchant marine, soldiers' bonus, New York's transportation, etc. At his home he is the head of a silica sand quarry, which supplies silica for steel and glass making.

SAYS EDUCATION SHOULD PRODUCE MEN AND WOMEN OF CHARACTER

Frederick C. Ferry, president of Hamilton college, Clinton, N. Y., who was the speaker at the general meeting Friday afternoon at Slater hall, which closed the all day session of the fall meeting of the Connecticut state teachers association, held the close attention of his audience of over 500 as he spoke upon "The Changing Ideals of American Education." He brought his instructive and helpful address to a close with the declaration that the most important ideal to be held before instructors was the ideal of character, to turn out men and women of real worth as citizens to their communities.

Superintendent E. J. Graham of the Norwich public schools was chairman of the general meeting, welcoming the large attendance of teachers to Norwich. A report from the Indianapolis meeting of National Education association was given by the state delegate, Miss Sylvia A. Keeney of New London.

This was followed by the address by President Ferry, which he opened by calling attention to the epoch making inventions that science has produced in a very few years, in all of which education had played a tremendous part. But this is all on the materialistic side. Some one has said that the rendering of the common people uncommon has been America's greatest contribution to the world. America stands out as the land doing the most for education, particularly general education, but the answer today to the question as to what contribution we are making to American education will be given in the extent to which we are turning out noble, true and generous souls.

Never before has there been such a demand for this education, which you and I are offering, said President Ferry, and he went on to speak of the different stages that had been observed in the methods of education. The early ideal was the disciplinary one, where the system was stern and the rewards were few. This followed by the period where rewards took the place of punishment and this in turn by the elective ideal, the painless process of studying when, where what, how and if you please. It softened a large number of the good old solid courses of other days and the undergraduates selected the easy, the novel and the queer subjects. As an example of the operation of electives President Ferry mentioned the group of students who elected Sanskrit without knowing that it was a language and another case where the student elected what he called a perfect course because none of his lectures came before 10:30 in the morning or would take him up more than one flight of stairs. Under the elective system arose the great development of "college life." This system tends to a wrong direction of activities and one of its worst features is the elimination of the study of Latin and Greek.

Following the elective ideal came this most enticing of things, the vocational ideal. This seemed most attractive in theory, but the trouble is that so few young people know what they want to do through the long years ahead of them. President Ferry spoke of instances where employers in technical lines insisted in putting the men in their employ into occupations other than those for which they had done special vocational study, claiming that what the employers wanted was flexibility of mind and that this was not produced by specialized study but by a liberal course that combined diversified subjects, thoroughness and discipline.

Finally, said President Ferry, the ideal of character, is what instructors should be most interested in. They are asked more and more to be both parent and priest, and they should endeavor to teach their pupils to turn their eyes to the mountain tops because that is where the sun shines the longest.

JUST WHAT THEY SAID

"I had a marvelous time at the tea," reported the pretty little wife at dinner time. "Such a lot of interesting women who really had things to say! They—"

"I can tell you all about it," the exasperating husband informed her kindly. "You remember I listened in at your tea last winter when I had the sprained ankle. I know how it went this afternoon!

"They all were comfortably upholstered ladies, not a haggard one among 'em and the mode of addressing one another was virtually the same. 'Sally!' would cry a new arrival in sage green, meeting a friend on the stairway, 'I haven't seen you in ages! How well you look! My dear, you are positively thin—whatever have you been doing?'

" 'Agnes!' would gurgle the Sally lady. 'You sweet thing! Can you notice it? Tom, the brute, says I look just the same to him and something is the matter with our bathroom scales, because I weigh a pound more according to them than I ever have—but I just knew that I was thinner and now I am sure, seeing that you have noticed it! You never saw anything like the way I've been dieting! No butter except on toast and no potatoes except for dinner and scarcely any sweets, just four or five times a week, though of course when I go out to parties—you look thinner, too.'

" 'Do you really think so?' rapturously cries the new arrival, preening herself. 'Yes, I've lost a pound and a quarter! Why, I've been eating the most wonderful new food, put up in tablets and you take it three times a day on a slice of tomato! Positively that's all and I can eat anything else I like! It's such a comfort to have one's mind at rest and not have to count calories as Edith does! Such a nuisance! She is always refusing another sandwich in the afternoon and she sits and looks so virtuously self-denying that it is unbearable. I think she is positively scrawny. And she is so set up because she can walk right into a ready-made shoe and walk out with a dress that fits her!'

" 'Yes, I think it is an awful mistake,' agrees the other, 'to carry reducing so far as Edith does! There is sense in all things! Take it slowly as we are doing and in a year—'

" 'Why, Grace!' the rolypoly in the black ensemble is saying to the mammoth lady in the corner, 'do tell me what you have done to yourself since I saw you! You are actually thin, do you know it? You look wonderful!'

" 'Do I?' murmurs the mammoth lady in gratified tones, trying to rise and sticking in the armchair. 'Don't people have the oddest furniture these days—thank you for taking it off! Why, I merely have exercised self-denial and absolute, unwavering control of my diet! I never break over unless I go out to a party or unless we have somebody in! And I am taking the Phake exercises—you use a broom. They are wonderful. But I never saw such a change in any one as there is in you! Why you are pounds lighter! What have you—'

" 'Really?' sauesis the black ensemble delightedly. 'I have found the most wonderful woman who gives the most extraordinary set of exercises! You sing as you do them and it's something about the effect of the singing on your nerves, she says. She is awfully scientific! There is Agnes gracious, she's at least ten pounds heavier than she was a month ago—over there talking with Sally! Isn't Sally huge? You'd think she'd do something about it!'

" 'Hello, Daisy Marion, or what have you,' the hum of conversation rages all over the rooms. 'How marvelous you look, my dear! So beautifully thin! Tell me how you did it!' 'Really! Why, Lucile, Gertie or maybe Helen,' the others answer, 'you dear thing! Oh, I do the Getten exercises and eat Thinnening Sugar tablets—you can't imagine! But isn't Grace huge, have you noticed? It is positively lazy not to do a thing about it when one is so fat as she is! What new method did you learn this afternoon dearie?' "

When the exasperating husband paused for breath his wife said: "You are perfectly absurd! I won't tell you a word of the interesting things we really talked about! Oh, Henry! I wish you'd buy me a book tomorrow downtown—it is 'Slim Slenderness in Sixty Seconds'—and I just sort of want to look at it! Three different women mentioned it this afternoon and it must be good!"—Chicago News.

PERSISTENCE WINS

"What's my favorite flower? Bridal wreath!" announced the handsome young man from town, who had driven out to call in the suburbs. "Bridal wreath every time! Here, let me stick some in your hair—"

"Nobody is interested in your favorite flower around here," the pretty girl with black eyes assured him, plotting him away from the snowy drifts of the hedge. "Come, take a long, keen look at the radishes and green onions and you'll feel better!"

"How awful it would be to be married to a wife totally devoid of sentiment!" the young man declared. "But I know that you are concealing your true emotions, Emeline."

"See here, Henry," the pretty girl began decidedly, sitting down on a garden seat, "it won't do! You're been reading something about Persistence and Keeping Your Eye on the Goal and girls who sink into a manly pair of arms murmuring 'My cave-man!' Folks get paid so much a word for these poetic outbursts, and sad young men like to read 'em and cheer up—but honestly, did you ever know of the theory being proved by any human soul?"

"I got my first job when out of college by sitting in an anteroom every day for 22 days till they couldn't stand the strain any longer," the irrepressible young man insisted with conviction. "My success made a great impression upon me! Give me time and I can sell anything to anybody! It isn't as though you didn't like me, Emeline. Regarding the matter as an outsider, I'd say you were actually fond of me."

"If a girl married all the young men of whom she was fond," the pretty girl told him, "life would be quite filled up with legal complications. why are you—"

"You are nervous!" the young man said firmly. "Every girl is nervous when she sees matrimony approaching, unescapable and inevitable. You're seeing it now and this is just your last frantic resistance. It's a holdover from the stone age, when the girls had to pretend they objected to being yanked to their new home by the hair of the head. Instead of which they loved it!

" 'My goodness!' Mrs. Early Flint would boast to her caller as she served acorn tea on the flat rock renaissance table, 'Flint is the strongest thing, you can't imagine! Three great handfuls of hair jerked from my head on my wedding day! Nobody can beat him!'

" 'Oh, I don't know,' counters the caller easily. "Bonehammer told me if I didn't marry him he would root up our family forest preserve and wreck pa's fortune and I know the dear boy meant every word of it!' Yet they strieked every step of the way while the flower girls strewed roses!

"You're kept me dangling around long enough, Emeline, and I came out here today on purpose to settle this thing—"

"You've been coming three or four times a week for months to settle it,' the pretty girl reminded him in injured tones. "Nothing would settle it! If I were engaged to you you would keep right on coming—and when I say no you keep right on coming to make me say yes! Why, if you turned your car loose in the streets of Chicago it would arrive here shortly under its own power! The neighbors see it out in front so much they think we own two cars instead of one. I—"

"I think you're just stubborn," decided the handsome young man, setting to his feet and regarding her thoughtfully. "It's hard for you to climb out of the rut. And maybe I've been mistaken in thinking you liked me. Well, I'm not coming again!"

The pretty girl looked up in surprise. "What?" she cried. "Now, Henry, don't be silly! When we're such good friends and—and everything!"

"You wouldn't miss me much," the young man said half to himself, surveying the rose garden unseeingly, hands in pocket. His face had lost its gay assurance and there was a droop to his shoulders, but he was very good to look upon nevertheless. She looked at him a long time and something new came into her face.

"I—why, I can't imagine what I'd do if I never saw you again, Henry!" she breathed in great surprise at the fact. "I didn't realize—"

"Oh Emeline!" the young man said a few minutes later from where they sat together on the garden bench, "what if I had been such a fool as to walk out of that anteroom on the 21st day instead of arriving as usual when the office opened on the twenty-second!"—Chicago News.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c and 30c.

LANDIS SENDS OUT CHECKS FOR CUT IN THE WORLD'S SERIES PROCEEDS

CHICAGO, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Another large slice was cut from the generously proportioned world's series melon tonight when Commissioner Landis distributed checks amounting to $154,538.11. They went to the Washington Club, defeated by the Pirates in the titular series, the Cincinnati Nationals and Philadelphia Americans; who finished third and second in their respective leagues, and the St. Louis Americans, who wound up in third place. Checks for the New York Giants, runner-up in the National League, will go forward tomorrow.

Connie Mack, veteran manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, who is entitled to a share in the money, wired the commissioner tonight requesting that his portion be eliminated an innovation came also from the Cincinnati Club, which awarded one quarter of a share to the gatekeeper at Reds' Park.

Rumors to the effect that Joe Judge, first baseman of the Senators, was not to receive a cut in the melon, were set at rest when the commissioner sent him a check for a full share as voted by the Washington Club. It had been said that Judge's contract stipulated that he was not to share in the world's series receipts, in case the Senators were participants.

The Senators received a total of $95,100.35. Twenty one players, Coaches Altrock and Schacht, and Trainer Martin received full shares of $3,734.60. Bobby Veach received $1,320; Pitchers Ogden and Ballou $1,000 each, player Myer and Jeanes $800 each. Scout Engle $150, the groundkeeper $250 and the club house boy $750.

The Athletics divided $25,473.32 giving 28 players, the trainer and coach a full share of 904.40. Cincinnati, $16,982.21 into 28 shares of 606.51, twenty seven shares going to the players and two coaches, while one share split, half going to the groundkeeper, one-fourth to the business manager and one-fourth to the gate keeper.

The St. Louis Americans divided their $16,982.21 into 27 shares of $653.17 each. They voted Coach Austin a full share and divided one share between the secretary and the trainer.

SACHEMS TO PLAY LORRAINE ON SUNDAY

All arrangements are completed for Sunday's football game at Sachem field, Falls, when the Norwich Nutmegs will entertain the fast Lorraine football club of Westerly. The field is in A-1 shape. The grounds have been roped off, the field has been marked off, new goal posts have been erected and special police protection will be had for Sunday's game.

The following will be the final lineups for the game: Nutmegs: L. E. Vin Carlin; L. T. Butts; L. G. H. F. Grover; Center Sullivan-Sadinsky, E. S. Charlie Hagberg R. T. Paliocha; R. E. Jim Kelly. In the backfield will be seen MacLaren at quarterback; C. McGrath and Chase at left half with F. McGrath and Bill Conerfry at right while Al Williams will be at fullback. The following will be held in reserve; Boldrighime, Harris, Burns, Fidell, Steinman, Blinderman and Hyatt.

The Westerly Lorraine club will take the field as follows: L. E. Carr; L. T. Kenyon; L. G. Knowles; C. Sullivan; R. G. Frenchie; R. T. Richards; R. E. Dyer, Q. B. Fharagerass; L. H. B. Buck Gavitt; R. H. B. Harvey and F. B. Hach. Gavitt and Harvey have reputations as being triple threat men and should give the Nutmegs plenty of trouble. The majority of the Lorraine are former Westerly and Stonington high school players with a sprinkling of star amateur players. As the local team contains many former N. F. A. men the contest will take on some of the old high school rivalry of Norwich against two old rivals, Westerly and Stonington. As the field is but a short distance from the center to the city there should be a record-breaking crowd on hand Sunday for the game. The kick-off is scheduled for 3:00 p. m., sharp.

BRADFORD A. A. OPEN SOCCER SEASON SUNDAY

The first National Cup Tie soccer match to be played in this vicinity will be played at 2:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon at Douglas Park, Bradford, R. I., between the Bradford A. C., and the Wayposset A. C., of Providence. Wayposset is in a tie with two other teams for first place in the Rhode Island Soccer league, and Bradford is in a tie with two other teams for fourth place. The match Sunday, however, is not a league match, being something far more important than that. Wayposset won the the eastern amateur soccer championship last year, and is the best soccer team in New England outside of the professional teams in the American league. Bradford has secured Edward Weall, Frederick Matthews and Flash Davis, former English stars, who are now employed in the Bradford Dyeing association, and the match will probably be the best ever played in this section of New England. The officials will be from New York city. Two 45-minute halves will be played.

FRISCO TEAMS EVEN UP SERIES WITH LOUISVILLE

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct.—(AP)—The Louisville Colonels, who yesterday shut out the San Francisco Seals, dropped the second game of the series today to the champions of the Pacific Coast League by a score of 9 to 2, errors on the part of the Colonels helped the Seals pile up a good lead and clinch the game. Louisville used three pitchers during the contest who were all hit freely.

MRS. MATHEWSON RETURNS TO HER HOME AT SARANAC

SARANAC LAKE, N. Y., Oct. 23.—(AP)—Mrs. Christy Mathewson, back at her home here after the burial of her husband, the idol of baseball fans, told friends today the "Big Six" never had made a will, and consequently there would be none for probate.

Mrs. Mathewson said she had not completed her plans for the future, and that she was not decided how long she would remain at the home in this village.

MALONEY GETS DECISION OVER KING SOLOMON

BOSTON, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Jim Maloney, Boston heavyweight, won decision over King Solomon of Panama in their ten round bout here tonight. In the fourth round Maloney cut Solomon's left eye with a hard right and throughout the remainder of the bout, the Boston fighter played for the injured member.

Solomon assumed the aggressive at the start and bothered Maloney considerably with left jabs to the face and an occasional right cross. The battling was even for the first two rounds and Solomon had a shade in the third, but after Maloney's terrific blow in the fourth the Panaman appeared to slow down. The cut over the left eye bled profusely throughout the six rounds that followed.

In the last two rounds Maloney stove to land a finishing blow but Solomon proved too shifty and escaped serious punishment. Maloney weighed 196 pounds and Solomon 190. Paul Berlenbach, light heavyweight champion, was a ringside spectator.

Barney Keeley of New York was the victory by decision in an eight round preliminary with Sam Lucci of Clinton. Hamboue Kelly of Boston knocked out Archie Skinner of Cambridge in a semi-final scheduled to go eight rounds.

ONE OF BRITAIN'S PLANES CRASHES IN TRIALS

BAY SHORE, PARK, BALTIMORE, Press)—Misfortune perched on the tails of Great Britain's racing seaplanes today. With her ace plane, the flashing Supermarine Napier S-4, a shattered and watersoaked wreck, and unable to put her reserve ship through the qualifying navigability trials, Britain will send only one plane into the international Jacques Schneider Seaplane Trophy race tomorrow.

The third pilot to take to the bay for the required navigability tests, Captain Henry C. Biard, was engaged in a preliminary short flight when he was overtaken by the crowning misfortune of a train of mishaps, which had pursued him and his ship from Southampton.

The glistening Supermarine, its Napier-Lion engine roaring, had banked through several sharp turns well off shore, when, in the midst of a steep bank approximately 200 feet above the water it faltered.

Captain Biard stuck to his controls and was in the cockpit when his pontoons slapped the water. The Supermarine landed right side up, only to nose down and roll into the waves.

When the spray cleared, the pilot was seen through glasses trained from shore to be clear of the wreckage partly supported by a life belt, but hanging to his ship, the heavier portions of which had gone down to lodge on a bar.

WESTERLY BEATS CHAPMAN TECH AT NEW LONDON

Westerly High school romped to another victory when they turned back Chapman Tech to the tune of 9 to 2 Friday afternoon at New London. Chapman was outclassed throughout the entire game and scored their two points on a fluke. Westerly on the other hand was the aggressor at all times and very seldom was the ball outside of the New London teams section of the field. Westerly's first score came in the first few minutes of play and was a safety. Their final score was made in the last quarter when Furrissi of Westerly recovered a fumble by Chapman and raced forty yards down the field for a touchdown. Mielkie kicked a pretty goal after touchdown.

Chapman Tech's two points were made on a safety when a Westerly man was penalized 25 yards for clipping and the ball went across the goal line on the penalty.

Brown and Kannenberg were the stars for the team down the river while Meikle and Salamano were not only the shinning lights for Westerly but for the whole game.

LITTLE HOPE HELD OUT FOR CHARLIE PRIOR

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Oct. 23.—(AP)—Although little hope is entertained for the ultimate recovery of Charles Prior, Lehigh University quarterback, lying in a Bethlehem hospital with a broken back as a result of an injury sustained in a game last Saturday, his condition today was practically unchanged.

Drs. Pancoast, Spiller and Fraser, specialists of Philadelphia, who were to have had a consultation yesterday were not satisfied with the x-ray plates and new plates were made and rushed to the University of Pennsylvania where the consultation is to be held. The most serious change is the possible development of pneumonia, symptoms of which have been noticed in the last twenty four hours.

ST. JOSEPH AND ROCKVILLE IN BENEFIT GAME SUNDAY

The last baseball attraction of the season for Norwich will be staged at Duwell field on Sunday afternoon when the deciding game of the series between the Rockville A. A. of Rockville and the St. Joseph team of this city will be played. Both teams have each won a victory by close scores and Sunday's game will be one of the features of the baseball season. The proceeds of this game will be given to the new St. Joseph's school.

Rockville has strengthened their lineup for this game and on paper this team looks to be as fast as any club that has played here this season Mgr. Oney will use his strongest lineup which will include some of baseball's best talent in this section. The game will be called at 2:30 o'clock.

CRIMSON AND GREEN READY FOR ANNUAL BATTLE TODAY

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct 23—(AP)—Harvard and Dartmouth were ready tonight for their fourth annual struggle for football supremacy since the colleges resumed relations after a 15 year break. In the modern series the tally now stands: Dartmouth 2; Harvard 1. Both squads went through final rehearsals at the stadium today in preparation for tomorrow's battle.

After a light kicking, passing and signal drill, Harvard turned the field over to the visitors, who went through routine drill and accustomed themselves to the vast reaches of the big concrete horseshoe. The Dartmouths backs were put through a long practice session catching punts against the lowering sun before the teams were sent to the showers.

Both squads were pronounced fit. Harvard's erstwhile cripples, Captain Cheek, Clem Coady and Daly, were much in evidence in the final drill and were certain to start Leo. Saltsonstall, first string right end, is the only real invalid. He will be out of the line-up, probably for another fortnight with Jack Adie getting the call.

Harry Hillman, Darthmouth's veteran track coach and trainer, brought his squad of 64 men to Boston in good shape with the exception of Win Robinson, the Big Green's kicker, who will be unable to start because of wrenched shoulder ligaments.

Tickets for the contest were at a premium tonight. Dartmouth reported 10,000 unfilled applications from alumni and Harvard almost as many. The Dartmouth undergraduate body, 2,000 strong arrived tonight on three special trains. Scores of students came down over the road, and many started on foot in hopes of "hitching" into town in time for the game. For the first time, several hundredz townspeople followed the team on a special train.

While both coaches regard the outcome as a toss-up, the confidence of Dartmouth's undergraduates has led to the Green's being established a strong favorite in the betting. Harvard, through her reserve at the hands of Holy Cross last week, knows her weaknesses; while the Dartmouth team, more especially on the defense is as yet an unknown quantity to the coaches, having bowled over three comparatively weak opponents without being forced to extend itself.

WINDHAM CLASHES WITH HARTFORD HIGH TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 23.—The banner gridiron classic of the season in this section of the state will be staged Saturday afternoon at Recreational Park, when Coach Thomas A. Callaghan's undefeated eleven from Windham High School will clash with the Hartford Public High School aggregation. The game will start at 2:45. The officials will be R. J. Guyer, referee, Zimmerman of Storrs, upmpire, and McGrath of East Hartford, head linesman. Arrangements are being made for the biggest crowd ever to attend a grid clash in this city. Coach Callaghan will start the same lineup which has been successful in holding off all opponents so far this season. Since 1922, Windham has not been scored upon the local field and during that time has yet to meet a defeat.

BROTHERS TO PLAY AGAINST EACH OTHER TODAY

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Oct. 23.—(AP)—When Dartmouth High and Vocational School of this city meet in the gridiron tomorrow afternoon, Mrs. Jane Chace of Rock O'Dundee Road, South Dartmouth, will find her problem harder to solve than did Mrs. Mary E. Callahan of Lawrence who six years ago set in the Yale Bowl and watched her two sons, "Mike" of Princeton and "Tim" of Yale, play on opposite teams.

Tomorrow George and John Chace will appear at left guard and left tackle respectively for Vocational with Stuart Chace at right end for Dartmouth High. Miss Dorothy Chace a sister of the boy and a teacher at Dartmouth High school will be rooting for Dartmouth but her mother has expressed herself as being strictly neutral.

SMITH KNOCKS OUT DIXON IN THIRD

NEW LONDON, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Steve Smith, of Bridgeport, knocked out Johnny Dixon, of Newark, N. J., in the third round of a ten round bout here tonight.

Pinky Burns, of New London, knocked out Young Montie, of New Rochelle, N. Y., in the sixth round of an eight round bout.

Johnny Peters, of Bridgeport, knocked out Young Marino, of the Coast Guard, New London, in the first round.

"DADS' DAY" AT GAME BETWEEN OHIO AND IOWA

COLUMBUS, O. 23.—(AP)—Fathers of members of Ohio State's football squad will occupy unique positions here tomorrow at the Ohio State-Iowa game. Since it is "dad's day," the Buckeye players' fathers will occupy a special bench on the side lines during the fray.

To identify them, they will wear the same numbers pinned to their backs as their husky sons wear on their playing jerseys.

DEMPSEY OFF TO MEXICO FOR BOXING EXHIBITIONS

LOS ENGELES, Cal., Oct. 23.—(AP)—Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight boxing champion, left here this morning for Mexico City, where he will engage in several exhibition bouts with his two sparring partners. Dempsey was accompanied by Jimmy Fitten, Mexico City promoter, and his sparring partners and his trainer "Jerry the Greek," the champion expects to return in two weeks.

Baseball fates were good to George Grantham and Vic Aldridge of the Pirates. Little did they realize that when the winter trade net caught them up from the Cubs and dropped them off in championship and series checks of over $5,000 each.

YALE-BROWN AND DARTMOUTH-HARVARD GAMES FEATURE NEW ENGLAND FOOTBALL

NEW YORK, Oct. 23. (AP)—A week of severe conditioning has prepared the football eleevens of the eastern seaboard for hand-to-hand encounter with each other and with foes out of the West on widely scattered battlefields tomorrow.

Chicago marches upon the undefeated Pennsylvania Quakers at Franklin field, where nearly 70,000 are expected to witness the joust. Harvard goes forth to redeem itself against the invasion of the Dartmouth Indians, who in the past two years have returned into the New Hampshire mountains with Crimson scalps. Yale, an uncertain array, enters Providence to disturb the Brown Bear for the first time in almost a quarter of a century. A fighting Colgate squad, led by the evasive Eddie Tryon, creeps upon the Tigar liar at Princeton. The Army has been drawn up on its own field to meet the rush of St. Louis.

Lafayette and Washington & Jefferson come out of Pennsylvania to carry on a feud of long standing at New YYork's Polo Grounds, and the Michigan Aggies have arrived in the center of the Keystone state to engate Penn State. University of Pittsburgh, its forces realigned after defeat, stands ready for revenge upon the forces of Carnegie, victors in last year's contest.

Many smaller engagements are scheduled for the afternoon, with Fordham going into Ohio to battle Akron, Williams coming out of the Bay state hills to face Columbia, Rutgers clashing with Lehigh, Georgetown meeting Bucknell, and Amherst tackling Wesleyan in the first of the "Little Three" series.

It will be a gala day for two of the contests, for Pittsburgh will dedicate its gigantic new stadium sunk in the heart of its campus. More than 70,000 can be seated there now and another year or two will see a capacity of more than 100,000. Yale will assist in the dedication of the new field at Brown. Only one side of the stadium has been constructed, seating about 20,000 persons, but temporary stands on the north side of the field will care for 8,000 more and there is plenty of standing room.

Chicago Invades Penn.

Several of the games are expected to create history. Chicago opposes Pennsylvania for the first time in 24 years with an exceptional defensive outfit. The teams have met four times, with Pennsylvania victorious on three occasions. Twenty-six years ago there was a 5-5 tie. For Alonzo Stagg, 63-year-old coach of the Chicagoans, it will be more than a football game. He is a Yale man and the Quakers beat Yale last Saturday. Throughout the season he has pointed for this contest.

Pennsylvania also has a redoubtable defense. It has been sufficient to hold two sets of forwars, Brown's and Yale's. And Al Krues, whose educated left toe keeps the Pennsylvanians out of danger, is fit for the fray. Rogers and Fields, mates of Krues in the backfield, should worry the visitors.

Harvard vs. Dartmouth

Harvard believes its team has profited by its defeat at the hands of Holy Cross, but in Darthmouth it faces a heavy, well trained eleven which in the past two years has kept Crimson warriors away from the goal line. Dartmouth is a favorite in the battle that will be witnessed by nearly 50,000.

Yale vs. Brown

Yale goes to Providence with a reformed line. Captain Joss has returned to his position at tackle. Burt has been placed in the pivot post and Richards and Webster have been added to the first defense, which failed to hold Kuez, Fields and Rogers a week ago. Brown also has a powerful line and two running backs in Kafer and Payor who rank high in the Eeast. Jones, a 196-pounder, will do the pluuging for the Bears. Yale is expected to have a tussle to win. Colgate's hopes are tucked under the army of little Eddie Tryon, leader of the eastern scorers. Princeton is favored, for it is figured that the Tiger will win if Tryon can be stopped. Charlie Weekes is likely to do much of the Princeton ball-carrying.

W. & J. vs. Lafayette

Washington & Jefferson is expected to down Lafayette, which has a patched line-up; the Army should have little trouble with St. Louis; Pittsburgh looks able to gain revenge against Carnegie; Penn State should defeat the Aggies from Michigan, and Columbia over a weaker Williams eleven.

Here's how some of tomorrow's rivals fared last year:

Dartmouth 6, Harvard 0.
Yale 13, Brown 3.
Lafayette 20, Washington & Jefferson 6.
Army 17, St. Louis 0.
Carnegie 6, Pittsburgh 0.
Columbia 27, Williams 3.
Rugers 13, Lehigh 13.
Bucknell 14, Georgetown 6.
Boston College 13, Allegheny 0.
Amherst 32, Wesleyan 13.
Holy Cross 37, Vermont 0.
West Virginia 21, West Va. Wesleyan 6.
Maine 20, Beats 0.
Colby 9, Bowdoin 0.
Swarthmore 6, Franklin & Marshall 6.
Niagara 13, Hobart 7.

ACADEMY TO CLASH WITH PLAINFIELD TODAY

Friday afternoon Coach Whitney put the N. F. A. squad through a short and light practice. Kicking drills opened the afternoon's work and were followed by a one-lap jog around the track which was followed by the usual daily grass drill. A short signal practice which lasted only about an hour closed the afternoon's work. As the coach has previously announced the second team will start the game this afternoon against Plainfield high school at the campus. They have had two days of hard practice in preparation for the game. In case the visitors upset all dope to date the first team members will be on hand to do relief work.

From all reports to date Plainfield has one of the weakest teams she has had in years. Last Friday Plainfield was defeated by Putnam trade school by the crushing score of 33 to 0. However, they are expected to make a better showing this week after a series of long, hard practices. The following are the men from whom the Plainfield high coach will choose his team: ends, Williams and Walsh, Kosh; tackles: E. Hopkins, Kirschner and Royle; guards: N. Carpenter, H Burton and D. Stevens; center, Skaradowsky; in the backfield will be seen French at quarterback, C. Stevens at left-half, Misura at righthalf and L. Gallup at full. Up to a late hour Friday evening it was not certain whether or not Tetreault, star right half back would appear in Saturday's lineup.

Coach Whitney refused to announce any lineup for the game this afternoon. However, it is expected that as the second team is to start the game the following men will represent the academy in the starting lineup today: ends, Waters, McClugage and LaCroix; tackles: Kramer, Gilbert and Mullens; guards: Connell and Norman, centers: Murphy and Sullivan. In the backfield will be seen Vitiano at left half, McGlone at right half and two regular team men at full and quarter, namely Radio Ed Brewer and Norm Courbois, respectively.

The entire team shows considerable improvement, as the Stonington game last Wednesday illustrated. The team as a whole showed more fighting spirit and team-work than had been seen to date this season. Schwartz, the first string center, due to an injury, received during the game with Stonington high, has made his appearance the last couple of days with crutches.

The kick-off for today's game is scheduled for 2:30 p. m. sharp.

"Y" Swimming Meet

An interesting swimming meet took place in the Y. M. C. A. pool last night when the "Y" intermediates trimmed the Vallants by the score of 15 to 30. Throughout the meet the competition was keen and exciting much to the approval of the spectators who did their bit by encouraging their favorites to extend themselves. The scores were as follows: 40-yard dash, Gromko 1st; Henschel 2nd; Mingo 3d. 20-yard dash, Henschel 1st; Gliniski 2nd; Shea 3rd; plunge for distance, Oguinick, Henschel, Bruckner tied for 1st; relay race, won by Vallants: Shea, Mingo, Marks, Murphy. The Vallants, believing that reinforcements might help them retrieve their loss, challenged the intermediates to another contest to be held in the Y pool next Friday evening.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

Twenty-seven American outdoor records will fall if Willie Ritola realizes his hopes for his attempt to lower Hannes Kohlemainen's mark of 51:03 2-5 for ten miles in New York on Sunday. The records, all held by himself are mostly for fractional distances.

The turf follower who likes to play hunches is disappointed over failure of the second race at Empire City Thursday to produce as winner a horse which cost his present owner Tommy Maher by Frank Kelly when despondent over losses, was heralded for a sensational comeback but came in ninth.

From the ranks of Rutgers student waiters William H. Dalton of Long Branch, N. J., has been promoted to fullback on the varsity eleven.

Harvard's committee on the regulation of athletic sports questions the advisability of forbidding football training before September 15. Harvard has an agreement with Yale and Princeton for this limitation. Harvard and Yale were beaten and Princeton was tied last Saturday.

Sectional qualifications has been adopted for next year's British open golf tournament. Great Britain thus follows the lead of the United States.

At least one eastern winning streak on the gridiron will start today for another week, Cornell, with four victories by overwhelming scores, will keep its slate clean as a result of idleness.

France is willing to forgive and forget if Johnny Dundee will return to that country and meet Fred Bretonnel in a fight from which he withdrew a year ago.

A battered and water-soaked football with which Tulane University claims it won the first football game ever played in the South, 30 years ago, is a talisman that accompanies the team on all of its foreign trips. The ball originally belonged to Major George Bayne, Yale quarterback, back in the '90s, and it was loaned by him to Tulane for its first game. Somebody kicked it into a bayou and the game had to be halted while one of the team dived to recover it.

"Don't bring the baby" is the plea made to 67,000 fans who will see the Illinois-Michigan game at Urbana. The management says experience has shown that unless there are tickets for children, even down to infants in arms, seat neighbors are discommoded.

Members of the Cardinals and Tigers, finishing in fourth place in the major league races, share in the world's series players' pool, $8,491.11 going to each club. Commissioner Landis mailed checks to the players Friday, each receiving $292.80. Coaches, trainer and traveling secretary of the Cardinals received full shares, while the Tigers split two shares equally to take care of Owen Carroll, collegian pitcher who joined the club late in the season, the traveling secretary and two men in the office.

The story that Luis Firpo may meet Floyd Johnson in Buenos Aires if the pieces remain intact after Johnson's meeting with Harry Wills is somewhat exaggerated. Firpo wires. Luis has no thoughts of returning to the ring at this time.

A throng that seems certain to reach 70,000 and may even eclipse the assemblage which witnessed the dedication of the Ohio stadium three years ago already appears assured for the Ohio State-Illinois football conflict at Columbus November 21. Interest in the game is heightened since it is the annual home-coming fray, by the fact that it will mark the final appearance of "Red" Grange, as a western conference player, and, as a result of Ohio State's improved showing this year.

Albert P. Fogarty, 34, arrested by Rhode Island state trooper No. 47, Robert S. White, Oct. 18h, was charged with operating an automobile on Kenyon road in the town of Richmond without first obtaining a driver's license. The arrest was at the instigation of Charles Fuller, when the automobile operated by Fogarty got into sand and turned over. The defendant claimed that this was one of the few times he had run the automobile which he had owned for some time without a licensed driver with him. He was fined $25 and costs.

Antone Rindell, 44, was arrested by Police Sergeant Michael Curtin Oct. 21st when he collided with an automobile at the junction of High and Friendship streets, when alleged to be driving under the influence of liquor. At the time, beside having Dr. Michael Scanlon examine him, Dr. William A. Hillard also declared him under the influence. Town Solicitor John Ferguson, Jr., told the court that this was the second time Rindell, who lived at Chase hill, town of Hopkinton, had been before the court on a like charge. Remarking that the first case had not taught the defendant a lesson, Judge Turano sentenced him to pay a fine of $200 and costs and to serve a 10 days sentence in Providence County jail.

If born, which will be a bastard, alleging that Edward O'Connell is the father, and the date of conception about the 31st day of January 1925," entered a plea of not guilty. The case was continued one week for trial, with surety in the sum of $1000 with Henry P. Walton as surety. Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown and Patrolman Robert Kessel went to Harleyville, R. I., on Thursday, and returned with O'Connell to Westerly.

The indecent assault case, State, Westerly Chief of Police Brown vs. James DeRicco, in which DeRicco had been taken into custody by Patrolman Robert Kessel Sunday, Oct. 4th, for an offense against 14-year-old Cecelia Bramble of 88 Oak street, required the remainder of the morning session also an afternoon session. DeRicco was represented by Attorney C. E. Roche. The court sentenced the defendant to six months in Providence county jail. Notice of appeal was given by the defendant.

The complaining witness, Cecelia Bramble, a 7th grade pupil detailed the assault as occurring on Saturday morning the week before school began, at about 9 o'clock in the morning at her home, after her father had left and she was in her home with a younger sister and brother. Testimony showed that James DeRicco, 37, of 88 1-2 Oak street, and father of eight children, had gone to the Bramble home to look at some carpet and furniture offered for sale, when the offense was alleged to have occurred. Witnesses who testified were Florence, an 8 year old sister, her father, Berton Bramble, a brother Joseph Bramble, 11, and Patrolman Kessell.

DeRicco took the stand in his own defense, stating that he had been in the employ of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad for the last seventeen years, the past two or three years as a track walker. He entered a general denial to the charges and claimed that he was not alone in the room with the complaining witness.

The death of Mrs. Mary Ball occurred Thursday at her home, 28 Stanton street. She leaves two sons, James F. of New York and Walter K. of Elizabeth, N. J., and a daughter, Miss Ruth Bell, of Westerly.

Mitchell of Washington county before Judge Watts, in Second District court, Wickford Thursday morning, pleaded nolo to the charge of violent assault upon James Tarbox, a jitney driver of Belleville. He was sentenced to one year in Providence county jail. He was fined $10 each on charges of operation of an automobile without proper number plates, operating without proper registration and for driving an automobile without an operator's license.

Walter Hazard, 24, also colored, alias Buster, also charged with assault upon Tarbox pleaded nolo and was sentenced to 30 days in Providence county jail, the light sentence was given in view of lack of previous court record. Both men were taken to the jail by Sheriff Mitchell.

Louis Watson, 35, pleaded nolo to charges of larceny of an automobile and the breaking and entering of the garage of Charles M. Boss of Exeter, and to breaking and entering the house of Edward B. Fessenden of Usquepaug, in the night time, and larceny of a knife, revolver, belt sheath, holster and flashlight, and also to the breaking and entering of the garage of Edward Fessenden, the larceny of two number plates and 30x33 1-2 automobile tire. He was taken to the Washington County Jail at Kingston by Sheriff Mitchell.

Abandonment by the War Department of the proposed improvements in Sakonnet harbor, East Greenwich bay and the Pawcatuck river will be opposed by the State Harbor Commission, but it will not object to the abandonments in the outer harbor at Block Island, Potowomut river, Sakonnet river and at the entrance to Point Judith pond.

The attitude of the state as voiced by the Harbor Commission will be placed before E. S. Division Engineer R. G. Powell.

The War Department proposes to modify the plan for the improvement of the Pawcatuck river by reducing the width of the channel between Stonington and Avondale from 200 feet to 100 feet. Its contention is that the present width of 100 feet is wide enough.

The State Harbor Commission objects to this modification because this stream serves Westerly, and because of a strong current it is difficult for tows to pass other vessels in the narrow channel.

EKONK

The October meeting of the South Windham Six-Church conference was held in the Congregational Church last Tuesday. Refreshments were served in the Grange hall, across the way. It was a notable meeting. Every speaker on the program seemed at his best and scored to the line. Preaching ability from Plainfield, Moosup, Danielson and Putnam was at the front and the audience appeared at the close of the session to have greatly enjoyed the entire program.

Rev. Leon Wells of Moosup preached the sermon. His text was Jno 7.37, "In the last day, that great day of the feast, Jesus stood and cried, Saying 'If any man thirst let him come unto me and drink.'" The message was impressive and appealing.

The address of Rev. Mr. Armstrong of Danielson on the subject, "Dare we be Christians?" was both challenging and encouraging. It awakened much interest and was a discourse of very high order.

The address of Rev. Mr. English, on "The Church in the Community," considered specially the needs of young people today, their independent attitude, and the tactful and wise way of approaching them with the Christian message. Mr. English is a young man and classes himself with the young people. On the 15th of this month he was installed pastor of the Putnam Church formerly ministered to by Rev. Mr. Sergent of blessed memory.

It was a pleasant surprise to the Ekonk people to have Rev. E. P. Ayer, chaplain of the senate, come into the meeting. His reminiscences, stating that his grandfather built the parsonage and barn and the church in Ekonk, and that his father also ministered to the people of Ekonk, were of great interest. He further stated that he was born in the parsonage here. His presence was a most interesting feature of the meeting, and he led the discussion of each of the addresses in the afternoon very helpfully. Others participated enthusiastically in these discussions.

The fact that some members of the conference were in Washington, D. C. attending the meetings of the National Council, and the blank wind of the day lessened the attendance. There were 51 present.

Rev. T. D. Childs is pastor of the local church.

Where Ruddy's Home Really Was

Where I live and what I do
Has naught at all to do with you,
Ruddy the Mouse.

Peter Rabbit was no wiser than he had been from the beginning regarding the home of Ruddy the Red-Backed Mouse over in the Green Forest. "I think," said Peter to Ruddy, "that you're most impolite to invite me to call on you at your home and then not show me the way to your home."

The bright, beady eyes of Ruddy snapped and twinkled. "I think, Peter," said he, "that it is most impolite of you to be so curious about my affairs. You will be most welcome at my home if you can find it. If you don't know, you ought to know, that to ask any one for whom so many people are hunting where their home is, is a thing no one has a right to do. A home is the most precious secret we little folks can have, and we have a right to keep it secret just as long as we can. If you can find it, Peter Rabbit, I won't say a word. But not all the teasing in the world will tempt me to tell you where it is."

Of course Peter had to admit that this was right, and wisely he gave up looking for Ruddy's home. It was just as well, for never, never in the wide wide world would Peter have found it. No sooner had Peter disappeared than Ruddy ran swiftly over to a moss-covered stump. He looked this way and he looked that way. He looked every way. Sure that no one was watching him he darted around this old stump and poked his head in a little hole in the ground between the roots—a hole that was hidden by a fern leaf which hung over it. Ruddy squeaked. From somewhere down underneath there was an answering squeak. Ruddy squeaked again. In a moment out popped Mrs. Ruddy. "Well," said she, "has that long-legged bunch of curiosity gone on about his business?"

Ruddy chuckled. "If you mean Peter Rabbit," said he, "he has. In fact, I think Peter has given up all thought of finding our home. You see, I told him very plainly that it was no business of his."

"I'm glad you did," declared Mrs. Ruddy. "It is the business of no one but ourselves. We are the only ones in the least concerned."

"Just the same I would like Peter to see it," replied Ruddy. "I don't know of any home like it. I'm proud of this home. We've had other homes, but never as good as this. You know it's dreadful to have something you are proud of and not be able to show it off."

"Huh!" squeaked little Mrs. Ruddy and disappeared back in her home.

Now it really was a fine home as Mouse homes go. It was an extra fine home. Down underneath that mossy old stump was a hollow between the roots. It was a nice, comfortably large hollow. That little round hole under the fern led to it. In that hollow was a big, soft nest. It was made very largely of moss. There was some fine dry grass, but you know over there in the Green Forest there is very little grass. So this nest was made very largely of moss, dry and soft, and oh, so comfortable. Mrs. Ruddy had been very particular in choosing the place for that nest. She had first made sure that it was at all times dry in that hollow under the mossy old stump. She wanted a dry place for her home. She wanted to be sure that the babies would not get cold. You know dampness is very apt to lead to colds and illness. When she had found this hollow and how dry it was, she straightaway decided that she must have just as fine a nest to go with it. And so she had built this big, comfortable soft nest down there under the mossy old stump.

"Well," said she, "has that long-legged bunch of curiosity gone on about his business?"

In going to and leaving that home both she and Ruddy took the greatest care that no one should see them. They always paused at the entrance when they were going out. They paused to look about with their bright little eyes and to listen, and they seldom left that little round doorway in the same direction twice in succession. You see they took pains not to make any little paths leading to that round doorway. And so it was that they kept their secret. I think it was a secret worth keeping. Don't you?
